ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Malinda Jane Casteel vs. Sylvester S. Casteel.

No. 2715 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The hill states—

1. That on the 23rd day of April, 1899, the plaintiff was married in Preston county, West Virginia, to the defendant, Sylvester S. Casteel, commonly known as Jacob Sylvester Casteel, with whom she resided as man and wife in Preston county, West Virginia, and Garrett county, Maryland, until about the year 1922.

2. That although the conduct of the plaintiff towards her husband, the said Sylvester S. Casteel, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Sylvester S. Casteel, while the plaintiff and defendant were living in Garrett county, Maryland, about the year 1922, did without just cause or reason abandon and desert the plaintiff and has declared his intentions to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterrupedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That the plaintiff and the said defendant, Sylvester S. Casteel, have had eight children born unto them from said marriage, three of whom are of full age and married; three, namely, Lloyd, Goldy and Junior, now residing with their father, the said defendant, and two, Mary and Gladys, both minors, residing with the plaintiff.

4. That the said defendant has provided no support or maintenance for the plaintiff over a long period of time.

5. That the plaintiff has continued to reside in Garrett county, Maryland, since said separation, but the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and, the plaintiff is informed, resides for the most part in Canada.

The bill then prayes for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 17th day of January, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of three successive weeks before the 9th day of February, 1927, give notice to the said of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 7th day of March, 1927, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

ARBITRATION WITH MEXICO.

The major disputes between Mexico and the United States relative to the oil and land laws may appropriately be submitted to arbitration. The United States government is endeavoring to protect American property rights. But certain of the questions at issue are not clear cut. It is not as if the Mexican government were attempting to confiscate American oil wells or American property in land.

For instance, one question concerns the Mexican law under which foreign owners of a controllingg interest in Mexican rural land companies must dispose of their stock in excess of 49 per cent within ten years. Secretary Kellogg holds this is an interference with American property rights. The Mexican government says it simply requires foreigners to transfer their holdings from one form of property to other forms, and gives them a reasonable time to make the transfer.

Certainly this is an arguable point.

On oil lands, the Mexican law requires that foreign owners who had not begun development work at the time of the adoption of the constitution of 1917 must have their titles confirmed and for a period of only fifty years. That is, if an American oil company had bought up extensive tracts of land which it hoped would produce oil, but on which it had done no development work before 1917, its ownership would be limited to fifty years.

This, too, is certainly a point open to negotiation.

There are other questions in dispute. But it ought to be perfectly possible in every instance to reach an adjustment or to find some way for a peaceful settlement.

AMERICANS AND MONEY.

Mr. G. K. Chesterton, the unbanc and highly intellectual Will Rogers of modern English essayists, has been saying some true and interesting things about America. 'Of all the lies,' says G. K. C., 'the worst lie is that the American worships money. An American never talks of money in the hushed and awestruck tone that an Englishman employs in referring to financial matters.'

Excellent! It might have seemed in ill taste had an American said it. But when an American has listened all summer to courteous Englishmen deplore the 'materialism' and the alleged money-loving propensities of the Americans; and when an American has heard the French and Belgians and Italians and Germans say the same thing, his large international patience shows signs of strain, and a word like that of Chesterton's is refreshing.

For the truth is, England and the Continental nations not only worship money, but grovel before it, says the Dearborn Independent. It enters into every marriage contract—which is not true in America; it determines every social position—which is not true in America; it controls the entrance doors to universities and colleges—which is not true in America; it has the first and last say in bestowals of title—more than it could possibly do in America; and in spite of all the exposed scandals in American political life, the concealed corruption due to money in European political life goes wider and deeper. Money rules life in Europe; it does not rule life in America.

Europeans worship money. The chief difference between them and the Americans is that Americans will work for their money, while Europeans want only money that someone else has earned. To earn one's own money is rather honorable in America but it is very much off color in Europe.

Europeans worship money and therefore attribute to it greater power than it possesses. They think money will rehabilitate Europe—a superstition that could exist only among the most primitive mammon worshipers. Americans know the limitations of money; they know that they can make money, and they know that money connot make them.

M'ADOO CLASSES STATE WITH NULLIFICATIONISTS

Says President Should Request Measures to Bring Recalcitrant States Into Line

Using the campaign against prohibition as a smoke screen, "corrupt municipal politics is making a concerted and nation-wide drive to control national politics," William Gibbs McAdoo on Friday told the Ohio State Bar Association at Toledo, Ohio, on Friday.

He declared the United States, in continued flouting of prohibition laws is approaching the "slippery path to anarchy."

The country's problem, he said, is to "resist the debasement of its civilization at the hands of machine politicians, whether they come in the guise of Republicans or Democrats."

"Two great municipal bosses," he asserted, "tried to gain control of the United States senate at the November elections, making the drive primarily as champions of the liquor traffic and every evil force connected therewith."

In an address which consisted of a structure of arguments for prohibition and against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the former candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination asserted the question of law and order is one of the gravest confronting the nation and that the root of lawlessness and disorder is the attitude of those who take the constitutional inhibition against liquor lightly.

The return of legalized liquor, he declared, would not affect a remedy for the crime wave, because, he contended prohibition has had nothing to do with the increase of deeds of violence.

That, he asserted, has been predicted on growing disrespect for law, and the only "way is the path of duty and obedience to the law."

Nullificationists!

The only lawful way to change the constitution, he pointed out, is by the adoption of another amendment in the nature of a repeal or modification of the one in question. He charged those who seek a shorter cut to legalized liquor with being nullificationists.

New York and Montana, in repealing their state prohibition enforcement laws, have taken action which is voided by the express words of the eighteenth amendment, he contended. He placed Maryland, which never enacted an enforcement code, in the ranks of nullificationists.

In all such cases, he said, the remedy lies with the federal government.

"It is for the President," he continued, "to report the situation to congress and to request the necessary appropriations and measures to enable him to enforce the constitution and laws of the United States in such nullification or recalcitrant states."

Such measures would not have to take the form of force, but could consist of a sufficiently organized federal police power, was his contention.

Attacks States Rights.

He lashed out at the movement to have states repeal their enforcement laws as a campaign to induce the people of the country to accomplish results "by openly and frankly violating and disregarding the highest law of the land."

"Constitutional government is impossible," he said, "if we proceed on the principle that only those parts of the constitution are to be observed and enforced which any given state or individual happens to like or approve. This is the slippery path that leads to anarchy. It is the negation of the principle of majority rule; it sets up that very tyranny of the minority which the opponents of prohibition assail so loudly."

He declared the eighteenth amendment by its very wording leaves no choice for State legislatures or congress in the matter of providing enforcement laws.

"It is itself, a positive prohibition, operating by its inherent force to prohibit absolutely the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within the United States."

Upheld By Courts.

He pointed out that the supreme court has upheld the Volstead provision of one half of one per cent, and that if there should be a substitute for the Volstead law, with a provision for higher alcoholic content, it necessarily would be unconstitutional.

"Under the constitution as it now stands, there is no possibility of enacting valid regulatory legislation which will permit the traffic in liquor containing a peecentage of alcohol high enough to be intoxicating.

"I believe that if an attempt were made to repeal the Volstead act, and to substitute therefore an unconstitutional statute, or no statute at all, the supreme court would be constitutionally bound to hold that the attempt repeal was void and of no effect and that the Volstead act would still remain the law of the land until there was substituted for it some other statute equally consistent with the Eighteenth amendment and which could be held to provide the essentials of effective enforcement."

"There are only two questions which properly can be considered by the American people at the present time consistently with the principles of their established institutions; and those are first, whether they desire to repeal or modify the Eighteenth amendment by the means provided in the constitution; and second, unless and until such repeal or modification is effected, what duties and obligations under the Eighteenth amendment, rest upon the different departments of the federal and state governments. What action by those government is lawful under the amendment, and what would be unlawful and unconstitutional?"

Symptoms of Lawlessness.

There are two outstanding symptome of lawlessness and disorder in the country, he said. He listed one as the campaign against the Eighteenth amendment and the other as the prevalence.

The most disquieting feature of the prohibition question, he declared, "is the failure on the part of public officials to realize or live up to their constitutional obligations under the Eighteenth amendment."

He asserted crime was increasing with "alarming rapidity" long before the days of prohibition.

"Beginning with 1913," he continued, "we know that there were 8902 homicides reported to the police. In 1925, there were 7778 homicides, a large decrease in view of the increase in population. The figures should indicate that the evil is one of long standing and that there has been no such surprising increase since the adoption of prohibition as to form any basis for regarding prohibition as the cause or even one of the causes of the general prevalence of crime in the United States.

"The reason must be sought elsewhere, and perhaps the crime wave itself is due to the same causes which lead to the present fanatical opposition to prohibition and the present widespread violation of the prohibition laws.

"Regulated, unregulated, or absolutely prohibited the liquor traffic is the very heart and center of the snider's web of corruption, dishonesty and dereliction of public duties, which has for so long undermined the effectiveness of popular institutions thruout a large part of the nation."

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD AND OFF TO COLLEGE

B. & O. R. R. Sponsors Education of Maryland Boys and Girls

In celebrating the fact that it has arrived at the ripe old age of one hundred years, the Baltimore and Ohio is proud of having started in college over two score boys and girls—not the children of its own employes, but farm boys and girls residing along the Baltimore and Ohio and whose unusual ability the Railroad has recognized and desires to help develop.

Believing that junior farm club work is a necessary system of education for farm boys and girls, which system must continue to grow so that it will become available to much larger numbers of rural boys and girls, the Baltimore and Ohio announces that it will continue to award again this year, as has been done for the past five years, two one-hundred dollar scholarships in this state to the boy and girl who most efficiently completes their project in agricultural club work during the year 1927.

The club members may enter any type of club work recognized and supervised by the University of Maryland Agricultural Extension Service, such as: corn clubs, potato clubs, sewing clubs, canning clubs, calf clubs, pig clubs, etc.

The winners of Baltimore and Ohio scholarships have the alternative of using the scolarships for educational purposes at any recognized college or university or in defraying the expense of an educational trip to the Boys and Girls Sixth Annual Club Congress and International Livestock Exposition at Chicago next December.

The Baltimore and Ohio has awarded 64 scholarships to date, 43 of which the winners chose to use for educational purposes at their respective state universities, while 21 chose the educational trip. Of the 43 club members who elected the scholarships for educational purposes, 26 have either graduated or are now in college in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and Virginia.

Maryland farm boys and girls who have won Baltimore and Ohio scholarships to date are: Katharine Baker, Edgemont, Washington county; Norwood C. Thornton, Elkton, Cecil county, and George Oland, Olney, Montgomery county.

Oakland High School Notes.

Examinations Are Over!

All last week the students were busy with the mid-year examinations. Friday, February 4th, tells the tale of whether or not they passed in their first semester's work, for then the report cards go home to the parents.

Parents are asked to examine these cards carefully. If you son or daughter has a failure in a subject find out the reason why. A failure for the half year's work is a serious thing, and parents should look into the matter. Do your sons and daughters study two hours a day outside the school room? They should. Parents, watch your children's progress in the school! Look for their report cards on Friday, February 4th. Examine them carefully. Help your children make passing grades in school by insisting upon their regular attendance at school and careful and sufficient preparation of lessons.

The program this week will be the radio program which was printed in the paper last week. Parents and friends are welcome at all times.

LITERARY SECRETARY.

Collegians To Play Mt. Savage Shamrocks Tuesday Night.

Results of games played prove in a manner that the Oakland Collegians have a strong aggregation for basketball this season. Out of three games played, the local five have been victorious on two counts.

Meyersdale, Pa., kept Oakland from having a clean score last evening when they won over the locals by a score of 18 to 26.

It is said that last night's game was probably the best of the season so far, and it was only the last few minutes of play that Meyersdale talued her winning points.

The games won by Oakland to date were from Kingwood, West Va., with a score of 24 to 39, and from Lonaconing by a score of 19 to 24.

While basketball has been for many years the leading form of sport for the local fans, yet the game is still commanding the attention of many citizens of the community, and it is thought by the management of the Collegians that more patronage will be given the team in thier endeavor to advertise Oakland as a town well capable of producing material for a good, clean basketball team as well as for other forms of sporting activity which come in their line seasons.

MRS. N. C. BROWNING.

Mrs. Nathan C. Browning departed this life on January 14, 1927. She was a daughter of Thomas and Nancy DeWitt, both of whom were born and reared near Sang Run, where their daughter was also brought up to womanhood. The family was very highly respected in the neighborhood in which they resided and were always ready to lend aid in cases of sickness or any other charitable deed. Mrs. Browning never found the night too dark nor the day too cold to deter her from going on an errand of mercy to comfort the sick and needy. Mrs. Browning was twice married, her first husband being James H. Lowdermilk. He was known for his charitable nature and every person was his friend. He died nearly twenty years ago. During the illness of their mother, her two daughters, Mrs. Lloyd Schroyer and Mrs. Carl Friend, were in constant attendance at her bedside and rendered every comfort that could be given her, assisted by their brother, W. F. Lowdermilk, and many of the neighboring women, all of whom were very kind and showed a spirit that any neighborhood should be proud of and admire. She was about 69 years of age. May her soul rest in peace.

Local Church Activities.

Two of the local church members—Methodist and Lutheran—were agreeably surprised last Sunday morning when they assembled in their respective houses of worship to be greeted by pastors not their own, Dr. Moore, of St. Paul's church and Pastor C. A. Shilke, of St. Mark's church, having exchanged pulpits for the morning service, the arrangement between the ministers being kept from the general public. Both ministers were greeted with excellent congregations, the worshippers, following the services, expressing their pleasure with the manner of conducting the services and with the sermons delivered.

Sunday evening at St. Paul's M. E. church the Women's Missionary Society presented a pageant entitled "The Templed Hills," which was exceedingly well presented by those taking part and was well received by the large audience present.

Tuesday evening the Lutheran Brotherhood met in the lecture room of St. Mark's church where the members enjoyed a very excellent program which had heen prepared by the President, Henry Lauer. At this meeting the devotions were conducted by Pastor Shilke, following which Donald Sincell, the retiring president, presented newly elected officers, namely: Henry Lauer, president; Guy O. Yutzy, vice-president; Edward Kahl, secretary; Wm. Kahl, treasurer, who were installed in a brief but impressive service conducted by Pastor Shilke.

The members of the Brotherhood, numbering 39, entered lustily into the singing led by Wade Hinebaugh with Wm. Gibson at the piano. President Lauer addressed the members and outlined a program to be followed by the organization.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. F. F. Rathbun, in his address, paid a high compliment to the Brotherhood for the work it is doing and then in his usual forceful and clear manner outlined things an organization of this character could do. His message was an inspiration to his hearers and was greatly enjoyed.

A group of the women of the church furnished and served delicious pumpkin pie, ice cream and coffee.

Garrett County Game and Fish Protective Association Formed

At a meeting of the sportsmen of Oakland and vicinity, held in the City Hall Tuesday evening the Garrett County Game and Fish Protective Association was formed.

The Association has for its object the observance and enforcement of the laws governing the taking of game and fish in Garrett county; the destruction of birds and animals which prey upon the game; to use its influence to secure legislation from time to time which will be conducive to the preservation of game and fish in Garrett county; the retaining of the good-will of land-owners and tenants on whose land they are permitted to hunt by refraining from committing any act which would be just cause for resentment on the part of such land-owner and tenants.

The Association is to be non-political and stands for unity, good fellowship, clean sportsmanship and respect for the law.

An active campaign will be carried on throughout the county to secure members.

Another meeting of the newly formed organization is called for Tuesday evening, February 8th, at 7:30 to be held in the City Hall, to which all red-blooded sportsmen are invited.

OAKLAND, MARYLAND

Jailed For Petty Larceny.

Leaving her boarding house with a suit case that was later claimed by another boarder caused the arrest of a woman giving her name and address as Mrs. Nellie Grant, of New York City, Monday.

Mrs. Grant came to Oakland about a week ago from the home of her parents who reside four miles out of Terra Alta, West Va., and was boarding at the home of Francis Gower, on Third street, when she was suspicioned by another boarder, Mrs. L. G. McCormick, of stealing wearing apparel, jewels and money from her room, and upon being questioned concerning the matter, she denied the assumption and defied the other members of the household to go to her room in search of the missing articles. However, at an early hour the following morning she returned to the house from a trip down town and when asked where she had been she replied that she had taken her suit case to the station and checked it to New York City, because she did not wish to be bothered with it when she would leave later in the day for the city.

Upon investigation at the railroad station it was learned that she had not checked her suit case as she had said, but instead had left it at the Manhattan Hotel, where it was located and upon being opened the missing apparel was found.

At a hearing before Justice of the Peace W. A. Gonder the woman was held in default of bond for her appearance before the Grand Jury at the June Term of Court. It was disclosed at the hearing that Mrs. McCormick had lost $33 in money, a 17-jewel Elgin watch and several dresses. The dresses were found in the suit case and it is not known what was done with the watch and money.

Another Baby Clinic to be Held

The baby clinic, recently conducted in the office of Miss Rhesa M. King, the county nurse, was so largely attended that the physician, Dr. Charlotte Gardner, of Cumberland, was unable to examine all, so another clinic will be held at the same place on Wednesday, February 9th, at [illegible] m. Mothers are urged to bring their babies at the county nurse's office on the third floor of the Court House at 9 o'clock a. m. of that day.

BRONZE VAIL MEDAL WINNERS FOR 1926

THREE Marylanders, two West Virginians, and two Virginians are awarded bronze Vail medals by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company for saving life and property in several communities.

William L. Chalk, and Henry C. Smith, linemen, and H. R. Klug, repairman, Baltimore; Charles A. Coffey, engineer's assistant, Charleston, and Robert C. Atkins, combinationman, Madison, W. Va; and Lee W. Crouch, cable splicer, and John L. Stallings, combinationman, Norfolk, Va., are the men who will receive medals for services rendered to the public in 1925.

For the action of these men in saving life and property, the committee has awarded these medals for their splendid services to the people of the several communities.

Combinationman Stallings, while driving with his family near Jamestown Island, Va., June 21, saw an automobile suddenly leave the road and plunge into a mill pond. Driving rapidly to the scene he saw five people clear themselves of the wreck and reach shore, leaving a young girl lying under the water beside the car.

Diving to the bottom of the pond, he pulled the girl out of the water, and then applied artificial respiration until she regained consciousness.

Lee Crouch, cable splicer, rendered first-aid to a small boy who had cut a deep gash in his foot by stepping on a broken bottle on August 21, last. This caused severe arterial bleeding.

Crouch, who had received training in the telephone company's first-aid classes, temporarily checked the flow of blood, applied a tourniquet and carried him to a hospital, where the doctor who treated the case, said that undoubtedly Crouch saved the life of the child.

On December 17, Henry C. Smith, lineman, employed at Baltimore, while driving along Joppa road near Towson, heard a crash near the trestle of the Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad and found that a large motor truck had collided with a steel girder supporting the tracks and that the pier had been knocked out of place allowing the track to sag so that it was dangerous to traffic.

Smith drove to the nearest telephone and notified the railroad authorities who succeeded in having a passenger train, then about due, held up. A letter from the president of the railroad company commended Mr. Smith for his action, stating that if it had not been for his prompt action in warning the trainmen, there would have been an appalling accident.

Henry R. Klug, a repairman working in the Curtis central office, Baltimore, heard a girl scream, and ran into the rest room, where he found an operator whose hair was on fire. After trying to extinguish the fire with his hands, he pulled a sweater, worn by the girl, over her head and extinguished the flame.

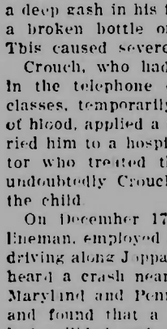
The operator having fainted, Klug carried her to a couch and applied carbolated petroleum to her burns and used ammonia inhalants to revive her.

Learning that the wife of a neighbor had fallen down the steps at her home in Baltimore, William L. Chalk, telephone lineman, rushed to the scene of the accident and found that the lady in falling had broken a dish which had caused a deep arterial wound in her left forearm. He controlled the bleeding and dressed the wound so that the patient could be transported safely to a hospital.

R. C. Atkins, combinationman at Madison, W. Va., saved a baby from death by strangulation. An operator notified him that a baby in a house nearby was in a serious condition from having swallowed a marble. On reaching the scene he tried to dislodge the marble with his finger, but meeting with no success, used a teaspoon successfully, and the child was quickly revived.

While working in Jonesville, Va., on February 17, C. A. Coffey, an engineer's assistant, whose headquarters are at Charleston, W. Va., discovered a fire which threatened to destroy the town. He and two other employees joined forces to fight the fire and to remove equipment and furniture from the telephone building which was directly in the path of the fire and was later completely destroyed.

They then discovered that a dwelling near the Court House was on fire and realizing the importance of saving the building which contained records of the county, the men under Coffey's directions obtained a fire hose, and from the roof of a nearby building brought the fire under control.



Later they established a temporary telephone communication with other towns nearby, and notified them of the fire. The Mayor of Jonesville and the county officials commended them for their prompt action and effective work.

This announcement is made by the Vail Medal Committee, which includes John C. Koons, vice-president, chairman; Burdett Stryker, vice-president and general manager; P. C. Coffin, vice-president and general auditor; S. M. Greer, vice-president; W. B. Clarkson, general commercial manager; M. D. Sedam, general traffic manager; Hanse Hamilton, general plant manager; and John L. Vandegrift, secretary, Washington.

Vail medal awards are made annually and are provided for by the Vail Memorial Fund, established to commemorate the life of Theodore N. Vail, late president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, who at the time of his death, April 16, 1920, had long been recognized as one of the world's greatest business leaders, and to whose conspicuous service in the telephone field were largely due the expansion of the Bell system and the development of the art of telephony.

MISS MINER HAS LONG SERVICE RECORD

WEARS DIAMOND EMBLEM

Miss Mattie L. Miner, chief instructor of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia, at Wheeling, is the oldest telephone employee in point of service in the State.

Miss Miner began her telephone career at Wheeling on April 1, 1884. She was chief operator there for many years, but in 1921 she became welfare supervisor for the Wheeling district, and in 1922 was made chief instructor for that district. She is active in civic affairs in Wheeling and is connected with the Business and Professional Women's Club, Y. W. [illegible] Red Cross and Bel[illegible] the telephone organization, the company has adopted the plan of awarding service emblems to its employees at the completion of certain fixed periods of service. Employees having five years of service, but less than ten, are awarded an emblem bearing one star; those having ten to fifteen years of service are presented an emblem bearing two stars; fifteen to twenty years of service is recognized by a three-star emblem; employees with twenty to twenty-five years of service are presented an emblem bearing four stars; twenty-five to thirty-five years of service is recognized by an emblem bearing a ruby inset; and thirty-five years or more of service is recognized by the presentation of an emblem bearing a diamond inset.

[illegible]eral policy of re[illegible]aging loyalty [illegible]

The service emblem is of gold, bearing the words "Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company" on its circular edge. In the center is an eagle supporting a bell, on which appear the words "Bell System." The eagle represents freedom and power, while the "Bell System" links the nation by the closest ties. Beneath the eagle and bell is a [illegible] of telephone wire, on which is inscribed the word "Service."

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach.

Home Entertainments.

Grantsville, Md., February 2, 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nathan entertained last Tuesday evening in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Endsley, the occasion being her birthday. The evening was spent pleasantly with a variety of diversions, followed by a two course lunch. Mrs. Endsley received a number of useful remembrances. Those present were Miss Mary Miller, Mrs. Harold Boucher, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lee Beachy, Mrs. W. H. Miller, Mrs. James Younkin, Mr. and Mrs. George Diefenbach, Misses Marion Price, Dorothy Younkin, Violet and Hilda Stephen.

Mrs. Harry C. Edwards gave a party to the little people of the village last Friday afternoon, the occasion being her son Cecil's fourth anniversary. Twenty-five little boys and girls were in attendance and had a jolly good time with games, followed by a birthday cake with four candles and refreshments consisting of cake ice cream and candy. The decorations were yellow and white. Cecil received a large number of presents.

Shakespeare Club.

The Shakespeare Club of the Holmes and Wallace Studios began the second year of its existence last Tuesday evening by reading Acts I, II and III of "The Winter's Tale," followed by very interesting discussions on the characters of the play and of noted actors who have played those roles.

Church Society News Notes

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. M. Nathan on Tuesday afternoon of last week. Following the devotions, the sewing of rags for rugs was the work which kept the members busy. Refreshments were served. Those attending were Mrs. Etta V. Engle, Misses Beulah Engle, Jane Roberts McMannis, Alice Johnson, Ethel Broadwater, Lou Shaw, Mrs. Lillie B. Younkin, Mrs. H. C. Edwards, Mrs. Earl Frickey, Mrs. Henry Patton, Mrs. J. C. Miller, Mrs. Lee Beachy, Mrs. James Younkin, Mrs. Rebecca Johnson, Mrs. Beatrice Endsley and Mrs. Nelle Zeller, of Frostburg.

The Missionary Society of the Reformed church met at the home of Mrs. C. A. Bender on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Byron Bender was the leader. The lesson was chapter two of "Templed Hills," which was discussed by Mrs. Harold Boucher. Ten members were present.

The Lutheran Missionary Society held its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Christena Winterberg. The lesson was "The Hope of Islam." The leader was Mrs. G. W. Diefenbach.

Farewell Party For Minister and Wife

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Livengood were host and hostess at a miscellaneous shower and farewell party to Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Lobach, the former pastor of St. John's Reformed church, at their home in Grantsville last evening, which was attended by about fifty members of Rev. Lobach's congregation. A most pleasant evening was spent by the retiring minister and his wife, who will shortly leave for their new field of labor. A two-course luncheon was served and Mrs. Lobach received a large number of useful remembrances. Last Thanksgiving day Rev. Lobach was married to Miss Rosetta Platt, of Somerset, Pa. They will go to Waynesboro, Pa., where Mr. Lobach will become pastor of the Reformed church. Rev. Lobach served the Grantsville congregation and the Wilhelm congregation at St. Paul, Pa., for nearly six years, during which time much was done for the upbuilding of the work. The best wishes of the communities in which he served go with them to their new charge.

H. S. Pupils Visit Town's Banks.

The members of the Senior Class of the local high school visited the two banks of the town last Thursday afternoon and had the functions of banks explained, with an outline of the services of banks dl etaoin etao the services rendered by banks in a community, which was quite interesting as well as helpful to the students.

The regular mid-year examinations were held last week in both the high and grade schools of the town.

Misses Zola Layman and Mildred Michael have become members of the Junior Cow Testing Association, an organization in the agricultural section of the high school, which is for the betterment of dairy herds.

This week twenty five buttons will be awarded by the [illegible] ville high school for perfect attendance during the past four months. For another four months' record a second button will be awarded, and for ten months' perfect attendance a certificate will be awarded at the commencement exercises in June.

Hand Cut With Axe.

While chopping wood last Saturday evening, Harold Hetrick, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hetrick, of Negro Mountain, was cut in the hand by a son of Mr. Ed. Durst. The wound is at the base of the fingers and it is likely that several of them will have to be amputated. The injured lad was taken on horseback as far as Ira Wright's and from that point Mr. Wright brought him to town in his car where Dr. Davis dressed the wound.

Oyster Supper Saturday Night.

The members of Mr. Fred. Livengood's Sunday school class gave an oyster supper in W. O. W. Hall on Saturday evening. They served over one hundred persons with oysters, besides many with ice cream and cake. The proceeds of more than forty dollars goes to the improvement fund of the church.

Deaths

Nancy Jane Warnick, wife of the late John Warnick and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warnick, also deceased, died at the home of her son, Archibald H. Warnick, in Akron, O., on January 26th, age 77 years. The funeral services were held by the Rev. J. E. Johnson of the Methodist church at the home of Mrs. Annie McIntyre, near Savage Mountain, on Monday with burial in the Warnick cemetery about two miles from Merrill. Paralysis was the cause of her death. Since the death of her husband in 1919, she has resided with her son in Akron. She is survived by six children: Mrs. Annie McIntyre, Garrett county, Mrs. Levina Piper, Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Laura Emerson, Akron, Ohio, Archibald H., James and Freeman Warnick all of Akron.

Lida May, the ten months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Failinger of Keyser Ridge, died of mastoiditis on Thursday last, after several days of severe suffering. The funeral was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Ritter, of the Lutheran church, Addison, on Saturday afternoon and burial in the Addison cemetery.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wagner, of Latrobe, being a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Baker of town, died Wednesday of last week. Mrs. Wagner had gone to Chicago with the child to consult a specialist and upon arriving there he became ill and never recovered. The funeral was held at Latrobe, Pa., last Friday. Mrs. Sarah Winter, of Pittsburgh, who has been caring for her mother, who is ill, a sister of Mrs. Wagner, attended the funeral.

THE PRACTICE OF CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP.

Matthew 25:14-30.

Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.—Matt. 25:21.

THE BIGGEST BUSINESS.

No longer do we reckon business in terms of millions. Vast combinations of capital control the activities of armies of men and women and our investments are simply staggering in any attempted computation. Over the shining rails, aeross the wind-swept sea, in vast networks of swift moving trucks, humming across the sky, commerce goes on its ever increasing way. Yet there is a bigger business than this, for this is but one department of God's Kingdom enterprises. Every human activity belongs to Him and His business. Ask any of our industrial magnates whose their part of it will be a hundred years from now and catch his answer. Not a dollar of money, not a foot of land will be at the disposal of his own thinking. The slate will have been wiped absolutely clear. Evidently he has only a life-interest in the business he is conducting. He is never the owner. Yet there must be someone to whom this reverts and to whom the permanent holding belongs. It is not conceivable that it should be tossed about at the chance behest of power to get hands on it and control it for a bit. Back of all other business is God with the permanent possession of all the real estate on earth. It may be so recorded on the books of our state and county records but that is the final word of ownership. There isn't a title deed any where that gives man the possession permanently of the earth upon which we live. We are commissioned to subdue it, to master its forces, to transform it, but never to own it. This is God's world.

This is the basis of the stewardship of all men. For no man is an owner. The demand upon those who are out of the Church of Jesus Christ is as imperative as upon its members. The Christian merely accepts more of the obligation resting upon all men. God asks nothing of me that He does not ask of any other man any where. All His laws are in universal terms. Think of gravitation affecting only the Christian! Yet many men make much more use of it than others do and by mastery of its possibilities float in the air or spend hours beneath the sea. Christians merely get more out of God's laws than others. They are the scientists of the moral world.

THE PURPOSE OF THE BUSINESS

This picture from the lips of our Lord, given on that wonderful Tuesday night of passion week, is vivid with the assignments of certain members of the retinue of the owner. They were as much owned by him as was the money he gave to them. But his chief interest was not in perpetuating a company of slaves but in promoting them to partnership in the business, to making them members of the family who would serve as sons and not as servants. For God has no desire for servitude, for servility; He wishes the free attachment of children. That is the goal of every Kingdom enterprise. So he disposes of his goods among t[illegible] about him on the basis o[illegible] take care of it. That is on[illegible] thrills of a lifetime, that our Go[illegible] faith in us. Whatever He may put [illegible] brain or life of power or opportunity, of time or riches, He believes I am able to take care of that situation. These men were graded. The amounts were carefully given. The Master knew what He was doing. This is not a meaningless world either in its making or in its progression.

He was selecting those fit for promotion. How eager big business is to find a man who can command a $50,000 salary! Advertise for a helper at $10.00 a day and the street may be blocked the next morning by applicants. Advertise for a Superintendent at $25,000 a year and it will be days before there is the suggestion of a taker. In any business house the manager is always studying his men, shifting some to other places, examining sales sheets and other data, and seeking in every way possible to find where this particular person may become most serviceable. God is doing the same thing for us in our life situations. The tragedy is that we fail to respond and seek the advancement to fullest fellowship with the Owner of Earth and Heaven. He wants us at our best and biggest.

THE FAILURE

There was but one failure recorded in the story. Twice as many were giving satisfactory service. No other than the Master can tell whether the proportion has changed or not but the great probability is that there is much larger number who acknowledge God as the owner of their power and possesions than in that old picture day. The real tragedy is that t[illegible] are any who fail to share in so[illegible] a part of the life of God. The t[illegible] lay in what he thought abou[illegible] Master. Hard, cruel, exacting ing, compelling, he enlisted n[illegible] the carrying out the commis[illegible] feared God, cowered in His[illegible] cringed out of it. A slave in[illegible] refused to become a son, for stewardship is never an arduous task, it is an adventure in expanding values. The two who were giving all their energy to the work of their Master were far too busy to have any complaining and far too interested to nurse any grouches. He who abandoned the work became a typical kicker. In the expressive language of Uncle Noah, "De hoss dats pullin' aint kickin', and de one dats kickin' sho aint pullin'!" "I've never had to explain why I was beaten," was Grant's only comment upon criticism upon his standing as a soldier.

THE ACCOUNTING

There is always an end to any day. The Master returned and there was both joy and grief at his coming, for it meant an accounting. Eagerly they gathered around him and began to make their reports. "I have doubled my gifts," cried two of them. And it is strikingly true that a one horse-power engine running will accomplish more than a hundred power standing still. But in the sphere of life the used muscle has doubled in size—note the difference in a black-smith's arms—while the unused one has grown weaker and weaker. These shared the joy of their Lord—a thing that can never be conferred but must always be achieved. A heaven that is imposed upon folks instead of being the necessity for the character that is theirs would be an impossible affair. There was some questioning about the result in the story but to use or lose is one of God's universals. And even the dispossessed did not say, "That money was mine." Even he acknowledged the ownership of the Master, a thing we sometimes forget to do.

COUNTY AGENTS CONFERENCE HELD AT COLLEGE PARK, MD.

Five Days Session of County Agents Bring Many From All Parts of State.

By J. L. McGlone, County Agent.

During the course of a year many meetings and conferences are held at the University of Maryland, one that is always looked forward to is the Annual Conference of the Extension Service. Had a stranger been standing on the steps of the Administration Building at the University Tuesday morning they would have witnessed the arrival of the Extension Service members from every county in Maryland, the Department of Agriculture and a representative from the State of Pennsylvania, also the Farm Bureau and Grange Representatives.

Upon arrival at the Administration Building each members was welcomed by the Reception Committee. Entering the Auditorium many hand clasps and cheery remarks were exchanged. Some new faces appeared at this meeting and had been in the service for a long time.

As the clock in the hall struck nine o'clock, Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Extension Service, called the meeting to order. The roll was called and Dr. Symons, chairman of the Conference gave a speech of welcome. Following Dr. Symon's speech of welcome, Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University, also welcomed the members of the conference. Dr. Pearson said he was pleased to be president of the University of Maryland and felt very proud of the Extension workers connected with it. He also expressed his desire to visit and study the problem of each county.

Dr. C. B. Smith, United States Department of Agriculture, gave a very interesting talk and presented some statistical charts pertaining to Extension work throughout the United States These charts brought out records of various phases of agriculture and also outlined what could be expected for the future.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, assistant director of Extension Service, pointed out the outstanding achievements in each county for the year of 1926 and movie was presented, "The Growth of outlined some very important projects for the coming year.

Mr. Roscoe Num, U. S. Weather Bureau, entertained and instructed the conference by the presentation of a movie entitled, "Watching the Weather from Above." Following this movie another Extension Work in Howard County.' This picture brought out the outstanding things which had been developed in that county during the past few years.

Tuesday afternoon Dr. H. J. Patterson, director of the Experiment Station, gave a very interesting talk on the Developments of the Experiment Station and College of Agriculture. He showed that by numerous experiments carried on at the University the income from various crops had been increased. The farmers were also benefited by the work done on insects and disease control. He also pointed out that the Agriculture College of Maryland had developed many leaders in the field of agriculture and other industries.

The heads of other departments outlined the work which had been accomplished during the past year and brot out the latest developments that will effect Extension work in 1927.

Following the joint conference was the group conference where various problems were discussed, some of which are a follows:

Dairying: The advantages and results of T. B. testing in Maryland.

Result of the dairy train operated through counties along the B. and O. Railroad.

Many other problems of the dairyman were brought up such as low producing cows and how this could be remedied. Permanent pasture, sanitary conditions, markets for milk and feeding knowledge. The final opinion was that should the farmers desire institutions along the dairying lines the County Agents could arrange for meetings in various sections at which time the specialists from the University would help the farmers with all their problems.

The conference brought out that Boy's Club Work has shown an increase in practically every county. It has also been the means of introducing better practices on the farms, added more purebred stock to the state and stimulated the boys interest on the farm.

Many problems of the sheep industry were discussed such as breeding stock, caring for sheep, especially in treatment of parasites. Along with the discussion on the marketing of lambs and wool, a trip through the Baltimore stock yard was arranged.

Many points were brought out by the stock yard representatives as to the better way of handling stock. He showed the advantages of grading the lambs and claimed that if the farmers would send in the lambs of uniform weight they would receive more money in return for their trouble. He also pointed out the advantages of docking lambs which he claimed would increase the farmers's income.

The marketing conference discussed the following problems:

1. Adapting production to market requirement.
2. Cutting down the surplus of poor quality products.
3. How does the marginal producer affect the market?
4. Grading, is it worthwhile?
5. Standardization, can it be attained?
6. Containers, are they all that can be desired?
7. Shall we use the U. S. grades or special brands?
8. How shall we market near by stuff?
9. How does inspection at shipping point help the farmer?
10. Can Maryland farmers co-operate further? How?
11. How can market news service be improved?
12. What special service can we render the farmer in marketing?
13. How can cooperative marketing be further promoted?

Organization conference took up:

1. Cooperation with the Grange.
2. Cooperation with the Farm Bureau
3. Cooperation with community organizations.
3a. Cooperation with Women's clubs.
4. Cooperation with business organizations.
5. Cooperation with commercial organizations.

The farm Management conference debated the following:

1. Should new crops or new farm practices be recommended to Maryland farmers under the present economic conditions?
   a. For the mountain region?
   b. For the Piedmont region?
   c. For the Southern Maryland?
   d. For the Eastern Shore?
2. Should the Southern method of harvesting corn, that is slipshusking the corn from the standing stalk, followed by cutting ear and and husk when fed to cattle, be a solution of the labor problem?
3. Would the use of improved corn harvesting machinery be a solution?

I. What new practices to grind alfalfa or soybean hay or other roughage for cattle?

The department of plant disease control showed that the losses from plant diseases are enormous; all crops are affected more or less. Then too, there is unusually a loss in quality as well as in quantity of the product produced. The following estimated losses reported for Maryland, by Federal Plant Disease survey for the year 1925 (the latest available) will give some idea of the great economic importance of crop diseases.

Below in the table the first column of figures is Total Production in Maryland in Bushels in 1925; In the second, Total Losses From Diseases in Maryland in 1925.

CORN	25,760,000	3,651,000
Potatoes	3,212,000	1,128,000
Wheat	10,920,000	1,027,000
Sweet Potato	1,290,000	200,000
Apples	1,870,000	313,000
Oats	1,856,000	77,000
Pear	280,	57,000
Peach	210,000	37,000

Owing to the varied conditions in Maryland the County Agents were urged to have special sessions with the heads of various departments at which time program for each county were outlined separately.

The departments of Horticulture, Agronomy, Soils, Animal Husbandry, Poultry, Forestry have a special program for Garrett County.

These will be available at the County Agent's office some time in the near future.

A recent conference was attended by county home demonstration agent, Miss Lola Belle Green, agriculture teachers, O. T. Graser, Oakland, Mr. M. V. Whitford, Grantsville; Mr. W.. E. Tarbell, Accident; Mr. John H. Carter, Friendsville; and County Agent, J. L. McGlone it was decided that a moving picture machine would be of more value to the county. There being no funds available for the purchase of a machine other methods had to be pursued. While attending conference at College Park, Miss Green and Mr. McGlone arranged with the Extension Service at the University to loan Garrett County a machine until one could be purchased.

The University of Maryland and U. S. Department of Agriculture have some very interesting and instructive films, which can be obtained at a small cost. It is hoped that a program can be arranged and various films will be shown throughout the county.

Should any one have a particular film in mind which they thought would be of interest and benefit to the county the mentioning of same will we welcomed. The Home Demonstration and County Agents have some recent information on Agriculture products and home Improvements. These can be obtained by calling at their office or by written request.

The following is the schedule of the Home Demonstration meetings January 31 to February 12th inclusive.

Monday Jan. 31, 3:30 P. M. Editors meting: Office H. D. A.

Thursday, February 10, Cumberland sectional conference agents with specialists.

Friday, February 11, Cumberland sectional conference agents with specialists.

Saturday, February 12, 2:00 P. M. Accident Woman's Club; Election of officers; Demonstration.

Thursday evening the conference members were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. T. B. Symons. A musical program was rendered by the girls from the University. A professional entertainer also told some very interesting stories pertaining to the Old Time Negroes of the South. Following the entertainment a luncheon was served.

Friday evening the Extension Service members were invited to attend a Basketball game by the Athletic Board. The game was between the U. of Md. and Washington College. Even though Maryland was defeated by a small margin of one point it showed that Maryland had a first class [illegible] of which one might be proud of the University Alumni could feel very proud.

BITTINGER.

'Though your task is unattractive,
If you've got the pluck to stick,
If your hands and mind are active,
You will find your luck and "kick".

According to geometrical measurements, Prof. C. M. Friend's smile has hovered between a circle and a triangle since last Sunday, and, oh boy! how he does drive his car. The traffic cops have been instructed to overlook all violations on his part at this time, Madam Stork and Dr. Nedrow, of Friendsville, visited the Friend home last Sunday afternoon. Now the Professor divides his time between the village school and the little daughter at home.

During the warm, sunny days of last week, some of the owners of sugar camps in this section got busy and cleaned up their equipment and are ready to begin the making of maple sugar and syrup.

Mrs. T. B. Wiley, of Grantsville, visited relatives in this village last Saturday and Sunday.

Owing to a break in the boiler used in operating the sawmill at the Back Creek Lumber Company's operation near hear, the mill has closed down for a few days pending repairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Orendorf visited Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davis, at Tissue, Pa., one day last week.

A resumption of work in some of the coal mines at Jennings was reported last week.

Elmer Beachy, of near Grantsville, who had been engaged in a logging contract here for some months, finished his contract last week and returned to his home.

John Campbell, of Uniontown, Pa., visited his father, Rev. E. E. Campbell, at the Lutheran parsonage last Saturday and Sunday.

OPPORTUNITY FOR HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS IN CONTEST

Sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Local high school girls are to be given an opportunity to win a university scholarship through competition in a national meat story contest, according to formal announcement of the event which has just been sent out to home economics teachers by the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Several scholarships are being offered, it is said. It is the fourth annual contest to be sponsored by this institution of research and education.

To compete, a student must write a story or theme on some phase of the subject of meat or the live stock industry. The stories are to be judged by a committee of home economics authorities. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics, in the United States Department of Agriculture, who has been chairman of the judging committee for the three previous contests, will again serve in this capacity, it is said.

The Board gives as a reason for this annual competition for scholarships a desire to stimulate a greater interest in the study of home economics, a subject which is considered of great importance to the coming generations of housewives. It is pointed out that today education is playing a most important part in the solution of the housewife's many problems. More than 10,000 girls competed last year, it is said, and the contest directors express the belief that even more will enroll for the present contest, which will come to a close on March 15.

The contest has been most successful due to the fact that teachers have found it especially valuable as a class project, says the Board's statement.

We are now having beautiful winter weather—no snow, but cool, crisp air.

Continuation of the Park History.

The camp meeting under Rev. John Thompson's management had increased in efficiency each year until Mr. Thompson's eyesight was almost gone, but he was continued the remainder of his life as honorary manager and Dr. E. I. D. Pepper was chosen to take the burden of the management for the season of 1900. At the close of that summer Rev. Thompson said he had decided to return another year, which he did, but quietly and peacefully slipped away during that summer.

Dr. W. L. Davidson had built up the Mountain Chautauqua so that the Association was able to enlarge and floor the old auditorium and make other costly improvements in a substantial amount turned over to them by Dr. Davidson from year to year after all the running expenses had been paid.

About this time a descendant of a soldier of the Revolution brought suit for the Military Lot upon which the public buildings had been erected, in addition to the land upon which a number of cottages had been erected. [illegible] peals and would likely resulted in a costly piece of litigation for the Association a second time had it not been for one broken link in the chain of evidence, hence the Association won out but was put to quite an expense in defending the action. J. A. E.

Fike, Mrs. Galen Fike, Mrs. Harry Yost and children, Mrs. Ernest Ridder, Mrs. William Kelly, of Sunnyside; Mrs. Victor Kelly and son Cecil; Misses Minnie Shaffer, Nettie Ridder and Grace Mason.

Protecting the Babies' Eyes.

Babies in Maryland—in fact babies all over the world—have profited from the discovery made over forty years ago by Crede, a doctor in a maternity hospital in Leipsic, that babies eyes could be protected from the dangerous infections that formerly left so many of them sightless for life, by placing one or two drops of a certain solution in each eye of the new born baby.

Twenty-five years ago, one out of every three children admitted to the schools for the blind, in the United States, was blind as the result of infections picked up at the time of birth. By last year, the number had been reduced to about one out of every ten.

In the Maryland School for the Blind, out of a total of 101 pupils attending the school in 1925, 19 had been made blind by such infections; but of the 16 new pupils admitted that year, none was reported to have been blinded by birth infections. The same was true of the four children admitted that year to the Colored School for the Blind.

Speaking of the measures that are taken to protect the babies' sight, Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, said, "the condition that destroys the sight is known as ophthalmia neonatorum, which in simple English signifies an inflamation of the eye, leading to blindness of the new born. It is one of the diseases that must be reported immediately to the State Department of Health so that every possible effort may be made to save the child's sight. The only hope of saving is lies in caring for the condition immediately.

"To prevent this condition from arising, the State Department of Health furnishes, free of charge, to any physician who asks for it, and to all midwives, a supply of the solution first used by Crede, and now used by careful physicians all over the world. The solution comes in wax tubes, each tube containing just enough for each individual case. The general use of these protective drops at birth was not begun in this country until about sixteen years ago, and even in that short time there has been great improvement as is shown by the experience in the State Schools for the Blind.

"The germs that cause this dangerous condition of the eyes include a number, among them those that cause pneumonia, erysipelis, boils and carbuneles, as well as those that cause other serious diseases."

DRIVER CAUSING DEATH OF WARDER ROY SENTENCED

To Serve Six Months in Jail and Pay Fine of $300 Following Conviction at Parsons.

H. A. Donaldson was convicted in the Circuit Court of Tucker county, sitting at Parsons, West Va., one day last week, of involuntary manslaughter, and was sentenced to serve six months in jail at Parsons and to pay a fine of $300.

It will be remembered by readers of The Republican that during the month of August of last year, on the road between Davis and Thomas, Donaldson struck a car belonging to Warder Roy, a youth residing at or near Davis, which resulted in the death of Roy. The testimony at the trial of Donaldson showed that Roy was in front of his car repairing a tire when Donaldson's struck Roy's car, causing it to pass over his body, which produced injuries from which he died.

Young Roy was well known in Oakland, having graduated from the Oakland High School in the class of 1926. While his home was in West Virginia, he preferred the Maryland school. He was held in high esteem by the faculty and the students of the school.

This is the first conviction in Tucker county from a car accident. Out of the case, grew three civil cases. Lucy Friend of Roy, was in the car at the time of the accident. She was thrown out of the car and received injuries and was taken to an hospital in an unconscious condition, it is claimed, it remained, in that condition for several days. She has brought suit against Donaldson for $5,000.

Mrs. Pearce, a companion of Donaldson at the time of the accident and riding as his guest, was injured, and he has filed suit against Donaldson for $1,000.

Mrs. Fuller, administrator of the estate of Roy, has brought suit for damages against Donaldson.

Other suits against Donaldson will be tried at another term of the court, to be held at Parsons.

ATTORNEY TO ADDRESS THE PYTHIANS

A. T. Matthews' Subject Will Be Abraham Lincoln

A member of the local lodge of Knights of Pythias sent the following to The Republican for today's issue:

Brother A. T. Matthews will address local Pythians at the Castle Hall on Friday night. His subject will be "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," a most appropriate one at this date when we as American citizens honor the memory of the martyr. Bro. Matthews' style of oratory holds the attention of his listeners and we promise you that he has something worth while to say. Not only will the serious side of his life be presented, but the humorous as well. Bro. Matthews needs no introduction to us as he is a prominent member of the Garrett County Bar, occupies a place in the affections of everyone who knows him, is an efficient officer of the local lodge and holds the distinction of being a past master in the art of speech. In short his witty, convincing manner of speaking is inimitable, while his magnetic personality is incomparable. If you have missed these other good entertainments given by the lodge do not miss the best of its kind which will be the attraction Friday night. Let us see your smiling faces Friday night as we cut another slice of this melon.

On behalf of Garrett Lodge we wish to state that our hats are off to the Boy Scouts of America. We class the affair last Friday night as an entertainment royal, which gives a vague impression of what it really was. We beheld with wonderment the demonstrations of first aid training, the history of the flag we love, Scout signs of various kinds, signalling, map drawing and civil engineering in many forms. We have not the time or space to mention in detail each demonstration but we wish to commend both the scoutmaster, Scott Shirer, on his efficiency and Troop No. 1 on theirs. Peals of laughter greeted the exhibition of their athletic prowess manifested in the games they love. We offer our sincere appreciation for the evening's instruction and pleasure.

The Court of Honor was present, this body of gentlemen being an essential part of the scouts and contributing largely to their success. The name of Oakland Troop has spread beyond the boarders of our State for a large delegation from Alpine Lodge, No. 35, Terra Alta, was present and passed numerous remarks of a complimentary nature. Three cheers for the Boy Scouts.

Card of Thanks.

We desire in this manner to thank our many friends for their kind assistance during the illness and after the death of our dear mother, the late Mrs. Ella Walter.

THE WALTER FAMILY.

OAKLAND ROTARY

Addressed by Rotarian Charles Ream at Luncheon Friday

At the regular luncheon of the Oakland Rotary Club, held last Friday at the William-James Hotel, the members enjoyed a very interesting address made by Charles Ream, president of the Stanley Coal Company, whose operations are located near the town of Crellin. In his talk of a few minutes Rotarian Charley gave an outline of the history of the old Preston Lumber Company and its successor, the Kendall Lumber Company, and of the activities of the Stanley Coal Company, which is now a large asset not only to the Crellin community, but to all of Garrett county.

President Henry McComas presented as his guests Mr. Hardesty of the Evans Garage, and Mr. Alvie Gortner, of Oakland. A. T. Matthews presented as his guest Mr. G. D. Sprague, resident manager of the Oakland Creamery Company.

The Club quartet, composed of W. H. Hinebaugh, Henry Lauer, Walter Dawson and William Gibson, favored the club and the guests present with several selections. Their singing was entrancing.

President McComas distributed a pamphlet entitled "From the Junto of Franklin to the Oakland Rotary," which reads as follows:

1. Have you read over these queries this morning in order to consider what you might have to offer the Oakland Rotary, touching any one of them?

2. Have you met with anything in the author you last read, remarkable, or suitable to be communicated to the Oakland Rotary; particularly in history, morality, poetry, physics, travels, mechanical arts, or other parts of knowledge?

3. Do you know of a fellow-citizen, who has lately done a worthy action, deserving praise and imitation; or who has lately committed an error, proper for us to be warned against and avoid?

4. What unhappy effects of intemperance have you lately observed or heard; of imprudence, of passion, or of any other vice or folly?

5. What happy effects of temperance, of prudence, of moderation, or of any other virtue?

6. Do you think of anything at present in which the members of the Oakland Rotary may be serviceable to mankind, to their country, or their friends, or to themselves?

7. Hath any deserving stranger arrived in town since last meeting that you have heard of? And what have you heard or observed of his character or merits? And whether, think you, it lies in the power of the Oakland Rotary to oblige him, or encourage him as he deserves?

8. Do you know of any deserving young beginner, lately set up, whom it lies in the power of the Oakland Rotary in any way to encourage?

9. Have you lately observed any defect in the laws of your country, of which it would be proper to move the legislature for an amendment? Or do you know of any beneficial law that is wanting?

10. Have you lately observed any encroachment on the just liberties of the people?

11. In what manner can the Oakland Rotary, or any of its members, assist you in any of your honorable designs?

12. Have you any weighty affair on hand in which you think the advice of the Oakland Rotary may be of service?

13. What benefits have you lately received from any man not present?

14. Is there any difficulty in matters of opinion, of justice and injustice, which you would gladly have discussed at this time?

PROHIBITION OFFICERS GET FIVE ALLEGED OFFENDERS

Fair Exhibit Building Found To Contain Still and Materials In Course of Manufacture.

About two months ago application to rent the fair exhibit building adjoining Oakland for the winter and spring months was made to the officials of the association by George Milton Edgar, who at that time was occupying a bungalow located on the abandoned State highway at Smith's store on the banks of the Deep Creek Lake, ten or twelve miles north of Oakland who stated to the official having the property in charge that he had leased his own property and desired to come to town to live. The deal was made and Edgar moved in.

A few weeks later the finger of suspicion was directed toward the Fair Association's new tenant, but no action was taken until Monday afternoon when Prohibition Enforcement Officer Cleveland D. Jarvis, accompanied by H. R. Stotler, of Keyser, W. Va., and J. J. Doerr, of Belington, W. Va., arrived in Oakland. In company with Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith the officers drove to the fair grounds and after an inspection of the exterior of the premises they entered and were confronted with one of the most modernly equipped moonshine establishments ever found in this county.

The basement of the building was used for the still, which was of 250 gallon capacity and as a storage place for raw materials. The first floor of the house was also packed with raw material and material in course of manufacture, the officers reported that they found 4500 gallons of mash in barrels and other containers, 2200 pounds of sugar, 5 cases of yeast and numerous empty mash barrels. All of this was destroyed, the officers first placing the sugar in the cellar of the house and then cutting a hole through the floor the mash was poured out into the basement. The still was chopped to pieces and made unfit for further use. There was also confiscated 1,200 pounds of grain.

Edgar and Stanley Merle Jeffers, who are alleged to have been the operators of the plant were arrested and brought to town and placed in jail. Edgar, who owns the Deep Creek property, went on Jeffers bond for his appearance, and Edgar was bailed out by Hobart Harvey, a farmer of near Sand Flat, for his appearance.

On their way to Oakland Monday, the enforcement officers stopped at the home of John Browning, near Thayerville, and placed him under arrest after finding in a recently constructed building a boiler and four 350-gallon vats, and in the barn 13 50-gallon barrels, one 5-gallon keg of liquor and a 50-gallon barrel containing ten gallons of whiskey. Browning was cited to appear before the United States Commissioner in Cumberland to give bond for his appearance at the District Court.

The officers also visited the former home of Edgar at Deep Creek in which they discovered a pump and 28 mash barrels and evidences of recent moonshine operations.

Continuing their search for alleged offenders on their way to town the officers stopped at the farm of William S. Cooper, or William S. Mitchell, as he was formerly called, located at the watering trough seven miles north of town. Here they found two stills, both in operation, one of 100-gallons capacity and the other of 50-gallons capacity, 350 gallons of mash, 150 gallons of whiskey, 13 50-gallon barrels and other material. The officers destroyed the stills and mash and arrested Cooper, who came to this section some time ago from the vicinity of Davis, West Va.

The Cooper raid was made by enforcement officers and Sheriff Casteel.

William Lucas, who lives on the Hahn place, a few miles south of Oakland, was brought in by the officers Tuesday night. Lucas is a Polander, and has been living in the county for several years. At his farm the officers found a 15-gallon still, 12 gallons of whiskey and 3 barrels of mash.

A dwelling on Oak street, recently vacated, was also visited and searched by the officers but nothing was found in it that would lead to the arrest of the former tenant.

Officer Jarvis works under the direction of H. M. Bradley, deputy Prohibition Administrator of Wheeling, West Va., and is the chief enforcement officers of Western Maryland, which is comprised of Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, while the West Virginia officers who accompanied him [illegible] his deputies.

POLITICS IN EVIDENCE 20 YEARS AGO STILL OBTAINS

The Shade of the Late Arthur P. Gorman Stalks in the State House at Annapolis Today

Paul Winchester, who for more than fifty years has been a leader in Maryland journalism, is tremendously happy at all times; he is superlatively so when the Maryland Legislature is in session for then Paul with his trenchant pen is in his glory and delights to wield it, and he has been working it overtime during the present session of the law-making body. He has a good memory and can place men and things in the niche where they belong. He has literally grown up at the State House and nobody there is a stranger to him or if he is they do not long remain strangers, for friend Winchester has the happy knack of making and retaining friends wherever he may be. All this is an introductory to what he has published in his own journal, The Marylander, on last Saturday:

(Paul Winchester in The Marylander)

The Legislative wheels are moving along in the same old hum-drum way, with the usual dynamite that it takes to jar the Legislators from their seats, ahsent. And then, too, the "black bag" is not yet in evidence, and some of the members are somewhat sleepy, which is not at all strange, when you come to think of it.

With just one-third of the session over, few committee meetings have been held, in fact none of importance until this week. Unquestionably the leaders miss the late Anthony (Tony) Dimarco, as he could always start things going, and sometimes finish them as well.

Strange is it not that the hand which has been dead for twenty-one years still controls the method of political dealing at the present day? The old political rules established by the late Senator Arthur P. Gorman are the ones that are being applied today by the leaders running the show of the great free state.

—o-o—

"To expect purity in politics is an iridescent dream," said the late Senator John J. Ingalls, and to verify this wisdom all would be necessary to say, was that so and so was seen at the State Capital today. But to give the names just now would make it sort of antedated, but they will be recorded in time. The old gum-shoe artists are beginning to appear in their long coats and worn hats, so it won't be long now before the order to shoot is given.

The principal subjects of discussion are Gasoline and Oysters. And those for and against the bills are starting to check the roll call in an effort to see just how they stand. As it is now those against the Governor's oyster measure say they have sixty-five votes in the House. I doubt it, as in the final analysis most men in the legislative circles crook the pregnant hinges of the knee in order that thrift may follow fawning.

In other words, it has been said that they worship the golden calf. As it looks now, the gasoline bill has a show of becoming a law, unless certain business men of Baltimore City organize and provide for the fight, which will, of course, help matters. The county members are found in large numbers in favor if the bill, as it will provide more money for roads, especially in Southern Maryland.

Whether or not the political leaders of the city will consider the small fellow who is still paying on his machine, is a matter of doubt. And then a contractor has just finished informing me that he used as much as one hundred thousand gallons of the devil's breath in a year.

State officials are evident in the crowd explaining legislation for the more efficient operation of their departments.

State School Superintendent Prof. Cook; the Chairman of the State Road Commission, Col. John Mackall, who hasn't given up his desire to be governor (and neither have others whom I know); Col. Edward Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden; Mr. Edward M. Thomas, Chairman of the Committee to rebuild Charlotte Hall; Mr. Bennett Darnall, Mr. Elmer Cook, Mrs. George W. Crabbe, and many other prominent and influential citizens were at the State House looking after various matters of public and private interest on Wednesday.

There are literally thousands of the taxpayers' dollars spent by State departments in getting out their annual reports, few of which are ever read, and very few that are read by the Legislators, in fact. However, they flood the mails each year telling of their accomplishments during the previous year. But few of them are self-sustaining, as well as necessary, however, in this great free State of Maryland, where none of the twenty-three counties have any local rights since the present administration's reorganization revolutionized the way of doing things. The days of County Commissioners are numbered. Soon one will have to go to Annapolis for what he may consider his local "State Rights."

What the politicians are saying about Dan Joseph and his coat of many bills, is unprintable. Their language is frequent, free and plain, and no word is too bitter for them to apply to this young and vigorous statesman whose latest move is to do away with Sheriff Potee's special deputies.

A look on the inside of Delegate Joseph's desk will surprise you, as he has many bills prepared which will make somebody sit up and take notice and to think he will come back in two years without having to be elected. "Of all the big mistakes made by the so-called leaders of our party," said a nervous public official, "was a fewer elections law."

—o-o—

Through a mistake at the office of the Baltimore Evening Sun democratic floor leader Lindsay was referred to as Speaker Lindsay in their headlines, but it was a prophetic mistake altho unintentional, for it is thought at the next session there is a strong possibility of that clean-cut young men occupying the Chair, as the present Speaker will probably be busy preparing his campaign for his way "upstairs."

TO ASSIST TAXPAYERS TO FILE INCOME RETURNS

Deputy Collectors of Internal Revenue to be Here Feb. 23-24

For the purpose of assisting taxpayers in filing their income tax returns for 1926, arrangements have been made by the Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Service, of Baltimore, to assign Deputy Collectors of Internal Revenue to the various sections and communities thruout the District of Maryland.

Following is the list of dates when the officials will visit points in Western Maryland: Cumberland, March 7-15; Oakland, Feb. 23-24; Friendsville, Feb. 25; Frostburg, Feb. 26-28; Mt. Savage, March 1; Luke, March 2; Westernport, March 3; Barton, March 4; Lonaconing, March 5.

Legionairres To Hold Dance.

Posters will soon be distributed announcing a dance to be held on the evening of February 22, under the auspices of Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion. A committee to complete arrangements for the affair was appointed at a regular session of the Post held on Monday evening. It is said that the committee in charge will arrange specialties in keeping with the season, the occasion falling on the birthday anniversary of George Washington.

"The meeting held on Monday was largely attended" stated Delbert Davis, Post Commander, yesterday, and continuing said, "the officers of the organization are enthusiastic over the seemingly new life that has been taken on by the membership, and they expect a great deal of progress and a number of newly affiliated members in the near future."

The next regular meeting of the Post will be held on Monday evening, February 21, at the City Hall. All ex-service men of the county are cordially invited to attend and affiliate themselves with the organization.

BILLS PROPOSE INCREASES IN COUNTY OFFICIALS' PAY

Salaries of Sheriff, Deputy Sheriff and County Commissioners Would Be Slightly Raised

Annapolis, Feb. 9—Increases of salary are proposed in bills for the Sheriff, deputy sheriff and court crier in Garrett county introduced in the Legislature a few days ago. The Sheriff's salary would be increased from $1500 to $1800 a year, the deputy sheriff's from $900 to $1200 and the court crier from $2 to $3.50 per day.

These bills are still in the hands of the committee to which they were referred.

Yesterday Senator A. D. Naylor introduced a bill increasing the compensation of the County Commissioners from $3.50 to $5.00 per day for the days spent in the discharge of their official duties.

A favorable report was made on the bill introduced by Senator Naylor at the beginning of the session giving Justices of the Peace jurisdiction involving amounts not exceeding $200.

Senator Hagner's bill, increasing the salary to be paid the court stenographer, was passed in the Senate and now goes to the House.

DIED.

MRS. ELLEN LITTLE WALTER.

Mrs. Ellen Little Walter, of Oakland, died very suddenly at her home in East Oakland, Saturday night, February 5th, at 10:35 o'clock after a lingering illness of diabetes. The deceased was a daughter of the late David and Elizabeth Little. She was united in marriage with the late Lewis Walter on April 15th, 1888, who preceded her in death more than five years ago. Seven children were born to the couple, five of whom, Albert, David, Philip, Julius and Mrs. Willian Turney, all of Oakland, survive. There are also surviving five grandchildren and two brothers and one sister, namely: Thomas Little, of Central City, Pa.; George Little, of Oakland, and Mrs. Eugene Baumgartner, also of Oakland.

Mrs. Walter was aged 60 years and was a life-long member of the Oakland Presbyterian church. The funeral was held from the family home on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock where services were conducted by the Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church of Oakland. The pall-bearers were O. T. Treacy, G. A. Fraley, Henry Lauer, A. T. Matthews, Guy Yutzy and James VanSickle. The flower bearers were Cecil Smith, R. E. Friend, Harry Stemple, Milburn Mann, Floyd Stahl, Ronald McIntire, I. R. Rudy, Harold Dawson, W. E. Yutzy, Carlton McComas, Donald Sincell, E. C. Liller, Neil Fraley, Chas. O'Brien, Arthur Naylor, Edward Kahl, Robert Hoffman, Robert Wolfe and Fred Peddicord. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

Those from a distance attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. James Kelley, Mrs. Bert Efaw, Benwood, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Friend, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Charles Pfeiffer and Leonard Fritz, Dayton, O.; Mrs. A. C. Cozad, Verona, Pa.; John Compton, Fairmont, W. Va.; Thomas Little, Central City, Pa.; Thos. J. C. Little, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mrs. Annie Pfeiffer and daughter Miss Violet, of Cumberland; Mr. and Mrs. Grover Compton, Terra Alta; W. O. Droege, Keyser, W. Va.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Jean Claire, aged 15 months, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Falkenstein, of Myersville, Md., died Sunday night last of pneumonia and croup at the parents' home after a brief illness. The funeral occurred Tuesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, the services being conducted in the Myersville Lutheran church by the pastor, Rev. C. A. Neal, assisted by the Rev. P. F. Blubaugh, pastor of the Myersville U. B. church, with interment in the churchyard. The sorrowing parents of the little one have the deepest sympathy of their many Oakland friends. Those who attended the funeral from here and elsewhere included Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Doman, of Riverton, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein and daughters, Mrs. Mabel Kahl, Misses Grace, Eva and Mary, of Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Falkenstein, Terra Alta; Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Leighton, Loch Lynn; Mr. and Mrs. Bean, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. O. T. Treacy was hostess at a 500 party given at her home on Second street Tuesday evening.

MAKING OUR HOMES CHRISTIAN.

Ephsians 5:15; 6:4.

Let us love one another, for love is of God.—I John 4:7.

OUR INHERITANCE.

We are not the makers of the Christian home; we have inherited it. When we came into this world we found ourselves within its care and a beneficiary of its life. When our fathers came they were in the same situation and merely passed on to us what they themselves had received. As we go farther back the Christian home emerges as merely the injection of a new spirit into an institution inherited from an earlier day. Push our way back as far as we may and homes still dot the social landscape. Even the cave man had one and the Bible's earliest picture is that of a home instituted among the trees and finding shelter under the stars. The home is God's earliest gift to society after He had inbreathed life. Before an altar fire was lighted there was a home. Before a government had risen there was a home. Before laws were framed as guides to human practice there was a home. It is the oldest institution, too hoary with centuries to reveal its first stopping place in earth, too vital to care where that place might have been. Out of it has grown all government and all society; every religion has been cradled within it and every other institution has been born in its embrace. Such is the position the home holds in the life of men. It is as old as He and as wide as the race.

Individualism has become a cult in America. With a civilization fashioned under frontier conditions and still dominated by frontier ideals, individualism is still inevitable. We glory in the achievement of the lone figure struggling against adverse fate and refusing to accept defeat. The individualistic spirit appears in our criminal tendencies that shock the world and surprise all other recorded areas. For the criminal is an individualist pure and simple. His own interests outweigh those of all the rest of the world. But with all our devotion to it it is a false assumtion and an outworn philosophy. For the individual is not the unit of society. Man alone or woman alone is unable to perpetuate the race and the home becomes the counter by which all social advance is measured. Celibacy is abnormal and the family a necessity.

OUR DUTY.

What shall we do with our inheritance. It comes into our hands as an institution that will be passed on to others after we have finished our own connection with it. Evidently our duty involves the improving of it so that the inheritance will not be impoverished by our touch,butenriched. And we are in the midst of quite new situations through which the home must go that the next generation may find it ready for bringing it to its best. Under the press of modern conditions the house itself has altered so that the living room of our fathers is no more, for each room is a living room, warmed and lighted, in which each individual member of the family may be comfortable. Diversified business, social and industrial life have affected it also in the demands for differing hours of leaving and return so that a definite meal time for all may happen not at all except on Sunday. The solidarity of family interests are assaulted by the social situation. Community cooperation is widening its walls. Instead of the cooking being done in the kitchen it is done in the town bakery, cannery, etc., and its washing at the town laundry. Summer and winter shiftings of location are part of present-day life in the experience of many,and the crowding of many families under single roofs are at the other end of the scale and each is imperiling the home itself. In the face of such radical changes in the last twenty-five years our duty becomes perplexing as to method but clear as to fact. The home must be preserved else society is doomed; it must be handled on improved methods else we have woefully failed.

OUR PRIVILEGE.

Paul is talking about the Christian home. It was being instituted among a pagan population in which slavery was an institution. And the slave was not a person, but a possession, and as such incapable of independent action. Yet through such conditions they passed on the home with the injection into it of the spirit of Jesus so that it was enriched. Now our task is not hindered by poverty of opportunity, but by richness of material assets. We are not the slaves of our possessions, but owners of them. And it is into this opulence that we have the privilege of thrusting again the spirit of our Lord. That is the urgency of Paul—that the love-life of Christ should be the dominating thing in the home. The husband is to love as Jesus loved and the wife to love as the Church loved its Redeemer. Put that into the practice of the household and a new day has dawned for the most fundamental institution of any and all ages. All material richness becomes subject to unselfish love. In such an atmosphere there is small room for breaking bonds and wrecking hearts. Government deriving its sanctions from such a spirit is always just and never galling. The homes become a democracy fostering the best interests of all—the srtong serving the weak, as the least able gives what power he has for enriching the total life. Whatever we may call it no place of living that does not throne the spirit of Christ is a Christian home. It may be in a Christian land, it may have each one of the family among the members of the Christian Church, and yet be as pagan as though our Lord had never lived. One of the greatest contributions of the Church to the world of other faiths has been the transporting of the Christian home into their midst. It has touched the life of varied lands as no exporting institution has ever done. And it has proven its vitality by leavening the family life wherever it has gone. It is our privilege to bring it to its best and so pass it on to unhorn generations able to cherish them into the richest life.

ACCIDENT.

Tigers Beat Midland Wildcats.

The Accident Tigers journeyed to Midland on Friday night of last week where they engaged the Midland Wildcats in a basketball scrap from which they emerged victors by the score of 19-18. Coit and Hobart Speicher did the scoring for the home team with 12 and 7 points respectively to their credit. The other members of the team were Dwight Speicher, George Miller and Arthur Scrogum. The game was exciting from start to finish, the score at no time during the contest being more than three points in favor of either side.

Parent-Teacher Social.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Accident High School will have a social in the school building, Friday evening, February 11. At 8:00 o'clock the faculty will give the one-act play, "Not Quite Such a Goose." Come and have a real good laugh and a hearty good time. Admission will be 10 and 15 cents.

Young Peoples' Society Meeting.

The Young Peoples' Society of Zion Lutheran church held the regular meeting of the organization on Friday night. The visitors present were Miss Pearle McGettigan and Miss Clara Margroff. A most enjoyable evening was spent and at a late hour dainty refreshments were served by Misses Amelia Miller and Rosalie Richter.

Valentine Day Social.

The pupils of the grammar grades of the local school are planning to have a pleasant Valentine Day by having a post office and other diversions. Valentines will be distributed to the pupils on that day and other social affairs carried out.

Personal Mention.

Those from Frostburg who spent the week-end at their homes here were Misses Hildegard Miller, Ruth and Nell Speicher, Mr. Arthur Speicher.

Miss Clara Margroff spent Friday evening with Miss Elma Georg.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haenftling and family were visiting in the Cove on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sutter and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wilburn on Sunday.

Miss Evelyn Wass, who is attending high school here, spent the week-end at her home near Addison.

Mr. Albert Holtsehneider and wife spent the week-end with Mr. F. V. McGettigan and family.

Mr. Coit Speicher, who is employed in Cumberland, spent Sunday at his home in Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Weimer and family are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Callis.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weitzell had as guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Junkins, of Deer Park; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hamill and family, of near Deer Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Harvey, of McHenry.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Weimer and Miss Hannah Callis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Browning.

Misses Grace and Ruth Speicher and Mr. Dwight Speicher spent Saturday in Cumberland.

Mr. Frank Callis spent Sunday with Mr. William Callis at Hoyes.

Mrs. W. A. Speicher, Mrs. Asa Beeghley and Mrs. John Hetrick visited the grammar grade room of the school on Monday. All the parents are heartily invited to visit the school at any time to see the pupils at work.

The enrollment in the primary department now reaches 32. Others are expected which will bring the enrollment up to 36.

Mr. Philip Bowman and son Woodrow were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Callis on Sunday.

Miss Mae Keller was visiting Misses Beulah and Mabel Savage on Sunday.

A bill has been introduced in the Indiana legislature which would authorize the Secretary of State to issue permits to children under sixteen years of age to drive their automobiles back and forth to school. This would also enable the youngsters to drive out into the country and get their lunch fresh from the cow.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Mary B. Dolly vs. John E. Dolly. No. 2718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The objeet of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by Mary B. Dolly from John E. Dolly, her husband.

The bill states that the parties were married on the 11th day of May, 1922, at Bayard, West Virginia, and lived together until July, 1925; and that although the conduct of the said Mary B. Dolly toward her husband, John E. Dolly, has always been kind, loving and affectionate, and her entire conduct has always been above reproach, that the said John E. Dolly has committed the crime of adultery with certain lewd and abandoned women in and about the States of Maryland and West Virginia, and that the said Mary B. Dolly is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been for more than two years prior to the filing of this bill, but that the said John E. Dolly is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 4th day of February, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in equity, that the plaintiff, Mary B. Dolly, by inserting a copy of this order in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks on or before the 25th day of March, 1927, give notice to the said John E. Dolly of the object and substance of this suit, warning him to be and appear in this Court on or before the 11th day of April, 1927, either in person or by solicitor, and show cause, if any he has, why the decree prayed and the relief sought ought not to be granted.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Malinda Jane Casteel vs. Sylvester S. Casteel.

No. 2715 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states—

1. That on the 23rd day of April, 1899, the plaintiff was married in Preston county, West Virginia, to the defendant, Sylvester S. Casteel, commonly known as Jacob Sylvester Casteel, with whom she resided as man and wife in Preston county, West Virginia, and Garrett county, Maryland, until about the year 1922.

2. That although the conduct of the plaintiff towards her husband, the said Sylvester S. Casteel, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Sylvester S. Casteel, while the plaintiff and defendant were living in Garrett county, Maryland, about the year 1922, did without just cause or reason abandon and desert the plaintiff and has declared his intentions to live with her no longer, and such abandonment has continued uninterrupedly for at least three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

3. That the plaintiff and the said defendant, Sylvester S. Casteel, have had eight children born unto them from said marriage, three of whom are of full age and married; three, namely, Lloyd, Goldy and Junior, now residing with their father, the said defendant, and two, Mary and Gladys, both minors, residing with the plaintiff.

4. That the said defendant has provided no support or maintenance for the plaintiff over a long period of time.

5. That the plaintiff has continued to reside in Garrett county, Maryland, since said separation, but the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and, the plaintiff is informed, resides for the most part in Canada.

The bill then prayes for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant, for general relief and for an order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 17th day of January, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of three successive weeks before the 19th day of February, 1927, give notice to the said of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 7th day of March, 1927, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

MT. LAKE PARK.

The delightful spring-like weather has brought the robins back and has encouraged Mr. R. C. Tassie to harness his horses and begin the spring plowing in the fields cultivated by the Association each year.

The father and son banquet, held monthly, will occur this (Thursday) evening at the C. S. May cottage. The members who attend these gatherings report profitable evenings.

The people of the Park are anxously looking forward to the return of the summer people and the program for the season of 1927.

Many of the older trees in the grove surrounding the Mountain Lake Hotel have reached an age when they are deemed dangerous and past usefulness, hence several have been cut down and are being reduced to firewood.

The unimproved streets in the Park are all but impassable since the frost has left the ground. Automobilists and others who have occasion just now to use any of the streets are extremely choicy of the route selected by them.

To continue with the the names of those who helped make the Park so successful we mention that of Dr. W. M. Frysinger, who became the second president of the Association; Mr. J. M. Davis, for many years secretary; Mr. C. W. Conner, one of the directors from 1882 until 1904, when he died. Rev. L. A. Rudisill was superintendent for thirteen years, followed by Rev. Thomas Long, Dr. W. W. Davis, the latter for three or four years. Dr. C. W. Baldwin was elected president August 28, 1883, and continued in the office until 1905. Then Dr. Goucher and Bishop Wilson were tendered the presidency, but both declined owing to the necessity of giving other matters their entire attention. Mr. G. S. Hamill, of Oakland, then became president, followed, upon the reorganization of the Association after its acquisition by the Board of Foreign Missions, by Dr. Archibald Moore, at this time head of the organization.

Dr. W. L. Davidson for many years made the Mountain Chautauqua a wonderful success. In 1904 the first failure on the part of the Chautauqua to meet its expenses was reported. This was caused by the lack of attendance and the fact that at this time Chautauquas were being held under tents and in buildings in many of the communities from which the Mt. Chautauqua obtained much of its support in a financial way.

Mr. D. F. Offutt, of Oakland, was both treasurer and director of the Association for several years, helping on with the work here both by his financial and splendid business ability.

Dr. T. D. Richards was also one of the directors for a time.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS"

His word is his bond!

A "personal guarantee" means very little to you unless you know the man who makes it.

Ninety per cent of the things bought for your home are selected by the lady member of the firm. She is the purchasing agent. Most men admit that she is a capable buyer, and the reason is this: She must be shown — convinced by proof — that an article is what she needs and is worth the price!

For that reason, she sees the advantage of dealing with a local merchant — a man whose "personal guarantee of satisfaction" means just what it says.

She knows that what he advertises in this paper is entitled to her consideration. Because she has confidence in her neighbor—the local dealer—she can safely invest the family funds in what he guarantees.

TEACHING NO LONGER A "STEPPING STONE" TO A CAREER.

Within recent years the attitude of teachers, as well as of the public generally, has changed considerably towards the vocation of teaching. In 1906, one hundred New York teachers were questioned, according to Superintendent William McAndrew, as to whether they had "entered teaching with the hope and intent of making it a career." Two per cent of them reported in the affirmative. Two years ago in a similar canvas in the same city, 89 per cent of those reporting chose teaching in preference to other callings because they considered it the most satisfying.

This change in attitude has had a positive influence on the increase in the number of teachers who are meeting higher professional requirements. That rural school teachers are among those seeking to improve their professional qualifications is shown in the data of two recent surveys. "The Professional Preparation and Supervision of White Elementary and Secondary Public School Teachers in South Carolina (Bulletin No. 184, of June 1, 1926, University of South Carolina, Columbia, S. C.) includes data showing that 40 per cent of the 3,807 rural elementary school teachers reported in that study had two years or more of college education. The survey of Utah (U. S. Bureau of Education Bulletin, 1926, No. 17) shows that 72 per cent of the rural elementary teachers had two years or more of professional training which is considered the standard amount of traning necessary for elementary school teachers. The study further shows that 45 per cent of the teachers in one-teacher rural schools, 68 per cent in two-teachers schools, 55 per cent in three-teacher schools, 72 per cent in schools of four or more teachers without high schools attached, and 81 per cent in elementary schools with high schools, had met these standards.

CHERRY TREE STORY IS NOT A MYTH.

The story of George Washington and the cherry tree, which some of our educators now declare to be merely tradition, is not a myth, hut an actual happening, according to H. O. Bishop, who writes about this incident of Washington's hoyhood in the current issue of the National Republic. The man who put the cherry tree story into print was "Parson" Weems, a distinguished Episcopal clergyman of Revolutionary days, who spent much time in the neighborhood in which Washington lived as a boy. Mr. Bishop continues:

"'Parson' Weems' book has been ridiculed because the author was not a professional historian, and his work, written more than a century and a quarter ago, is in the somewhat stilted style of that period. He was a minister of the gospel whose book appeared while hundreds of intimates of Washington, and even hoyhood neighbors, were still living, and it was more dangerous than it is today to tell a lie about Washington. He was also guilty of selling his own and other books through the countryside of Virginia and other states, but in so doing he was performing a real service in a day when books were scarce. If anyone doubts his ahility, let him read what 'Parson' Weems had to say about the American form of government, with a force and eloquence not often surpassed, as printed in this issue of the National Republic.

"I have made some research on the subject of 'Parson' Weems, his biography of Washington and the cherry tree story, and as a result declare the belief that what is declared a 'myth' by those who make a business of trying to uproot patriotic traditions, is no myth at all, but a true story—true in itself and true in the impression it gives as to the devotion of George Washington to the high virtue of truth-telling, especially when his honor was involved. If the attackers of this story have any proof of their assertions, let them come forward with them—but I venture the assertion that they have none. Here is the result of an investigation which I have recently made in the Library of Congress and various other sources."

REDS AND THE MINERS.

No men in America better realize the menace of communist propaganda in the United States than the leaders of the responsible labor movement of the country. An example of what communism does to labor was furnished by the recent strikes of the fur and garment workers in New York which practically bankrupted the unions and were brought to unsuccessful conclusions from the standpoint of the best interests of labor.

The latest drive of the reds was in the annual convention of the United Mine Workers held at Indianapolis recently. The red sympathizers had a program calling for the recognition of Red Russia and the formation of a labor party in the United States. Their program was decisively defeated by the delegates, many of whom asserted that the enemies of the union had waged their opposition campaign with money obtained from Russia. One leader declared that if the soviet labor agitators who have been stirring up strife in the American unions do not like the labor movement in this country they might go to soviet Russia to pursue their program. The mine workers, also by an overwhelming vote prepared for the expulsion of all communists from their ranks. It was said that the activity of the "reds" was both political and social and that they have actively been seeking to destroy unionism and replace it with communism.

It has been evident for some time that the conservative labor leaders of America are fully aware of communist labor activities in the United States, and for this every real American will feel thankful.

MORE MUSIC IN SCHOOLS

An unusual opportunity is provided by National Music Week, May 1 to 7, 1927, to promote music in school and home life, according to an announcement received from the National Music Week Committee of 45 West 45th Street, New York City, in the Bureau of Education, U. S. Department of the Interior. It is suggested that observance of the week offers the following opportunities: To introduce music into school systems where it has not been taught before; to sum up the year's music instruction; to acquaint parents and friends of the children with what is being done for them through music by having a parents' music day, and to organize a community music committee to lead in the promotion of music activities.

Suggestions for the observance of National Music Week and bulletins useful to those interested in the advancement of music may be obtained without cost by writing to the National Music Week Committee at the address given above.

While they declare that he hasn't any chance for the Democratic nomination for President, Gov. Ritchie's Maryland friends would prefer that McAdoo not make any more speeches anyhow.

OAKLAND BOWLING LEAGUE ROLLING UP LARGE TOTALS

Lutheran Brotherhood Making High Score Thursday Evening Maintains Lead.

The Bowling League of Oakland, composed of six teams representing churches and organizations, retains the intrest of the members of the various teams and many outsiders are becoming keen on the sport.

The games are being bowled at the Recreation alleys on Second street and being witnessed by large crowds of onlookers.

Thus far in the series the Lutheran Brotherhood stands at the top, with a score to its credit, made on Thursday evening last, of 1621, as against 1813 points made in the contest Tuesday between it and the Lutherans. The game Thursday evening was bowled by the Brotherhood against the Merchants, the score of the latter being 1607. The Rotarians took the Methodists on the same evening, the score being: Rotarians, 1459; Methodists, 1679.

The scores are as follows:

Elizabeth Workman.

The Wesleyan Pharos, published by the student body of Wesleyan College at Buckhannon, West Va., in its current number contains the following in memory of Elizabeth Workman, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Workman, who died on Wednesday, January 26, on the eve of her twenty-second birthday after several months of illness:

Betty would have been a member of the class of '26 had she been able to have graduated here. She was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Workman, who removed from here during her sophomore year and have, since then, made their home in Mannington. Betty also attended Marshall College.

Funeral services were held at the First M. E. church Saturday afternoon. The large number of town people and students present testified to her wide circle of friends.

Her's was a beautiful life and a still more beautiful death. Both her life and death gave testimony of her beautiful character. The passing of such a life leaves many sorrowing hearts, but it also leaves a gorld better for the fact that Betty has lived—and died in it.

Safer For Maryland Babies.

Last year was a favorable year for the babies of Maryland, according to the records at the State Department of Health, with 168 fewer deaths among children under a year old, than in 1925. The total number of baby deaths during the year was 1488; the total in 1925 was 1656.

Referring to these figures, Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, said: "It is only when we face squarely the total number of baby deaths that occur each year that we realize the tremendous task we have before us in order that we may make Maryland a safer place for the babies who are born in it. It is a task in which all forces have to help—health officers, doctors, public health nurses—all who are interested in the welfare of the community, and particularly the fathers and mothers.

"Somebody summed up the situation very aptly a few years ago in the remark that the business of being a baby is one of the most hazardous occupations. Babies as well as grown-ups, are protected by the safeguards that are thrown around the people of the State through the general work of the State Department of Health. But there are special activities carried on through the Bureau of Child Hygiene which center about the mother and baby and there has been a noticeable saving of lives as a result of these measures.

"Few people realize that nearly half of the babies who die slip away before they are a month old. This is true not only in Maryland but in every part of the country, and wherever public health work is done every effort is being made to help the mothers and to help tide the babies over this critical period. These babies who slip out of life so soon are not the unfit, but are the children who have not had a good start. Children as frail as this may survive their first year only to slip away soon afterwards. This is shown by the fact that when the number of baby deaths is reduced there are fewer deaths among the older children.

"It is obvious that the best way to give a baby a good start in life is through proper preparation and good care of the mother-to-be. And the next step is helpful advice in baby hygiene and baby care after the baby arrives. Both of these measures are available for the mothers an dbabies in Maryland."

Three Model Graces

When you say, "That man is a success" immediately you think of his money.

Of course money is not the only thing in the world, but without it success would have a faded and ragged appearance.

If you ask the "successful" man for his formula he will probably give you three basic rules to follow.

Work hard.
Spend wisely.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS.

Clarence Shope, of near Hoyes, was an Oakland business visitor yesterday.

During the present week many of the county people were in Oakland, the majority of whom came here for the purpose of interviewing the County Commissioners relative to roads in their respective communities. The Commissioners will be in session yet today expecting to adjourn the present sitting this evening.

The report comes to Oakland that one day last week as Mrs. Stephen Rhodes, of near Swanton, was going to the spring house from her dwelling, she was confronted by a three-foot snake which showed an inclination for battle, but was soon dispatched by Mrs. Rhodes. The informant vouches for the truth of this story.

W. A. Custer, one of the progressive young farmers of the Hoyes section and who suffered the loss of his entire crop last summer when his farm was devastated by a hail storm, was here yesterday looking upon the rosy side of life and is determined to make up this summer the loss sustained last year.

While attempting to board an eastbound Baltimore and Ohio freight at Terra Alta, ten miles west of Oakland, at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Leo Kidwell, eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kidwell, of Rinard, W. Va., fell beneath the wheels of the moving train and had his right leg crushed from the ankle to the knee. The lad was later taken to the Hoffman Hospital, Keyser, where the leg was amputated at the knee. The fate of young Kidwell should act as a warning to boys in this and other communities who make a practice of "hopping" trains.

Yesterday was the second Community Sales Day for the Oakland merchants, the first one being held on December 8th, at which time the volume of business transacted exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. Yesterday, however, the volume was not as large as on the previous occasion, the reasons for which are numerous, one being the almost impassable condition of the dirt roads and another the fact that just now is mid-season of the year. Merchants as a rule, however, expressed their satisfaction with the result of the day's business and another sales day is now being planned.

McHENRY

Miss Lena Harvey is employed in the Maffett store at this time.

Rev. White, the Methodist Episcopal minister, preached a very interesting sermon at the church here on Sunday morning.

Mrs. James Glotfelty and family were visitors at the home of Mrs. Elwood Harvey Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barnard and Miss Maud Harvey spent the week-end at the former's home near Swanton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Glotfelty and family and Rev. White were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Glotfelty.

Miss Dora Schlossnagle, of Flatwoods, spent the week-end with Miss Mary Reynolds in McHenry.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Glotfelty were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Glotfelty on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bowman and son Charles were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Glotfelty Sunday afternoon and evening.

Walter and Hubert Bowman made a business trip to Terra Alta one day last week.

Mrs. John Glotfelty and Mrs. Nelson Brenneman visited Mrs. George [illegible] Glotfelty one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Diehl and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Diehl.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maffett spent Sunday with friends in Oakland.

VIRGINIA TOWNS AUTOLESS

Traffic Officers and Even Horses Lack in Little Village.

Tangier has no traffic copps and the probabilities are it never will! Why? Because no automobile has ever been seen there and a horse is just as much of a novelty. This despite the fact the town has a population of 1400 and is within a hundred miles of the nation's capital.

Tangier is on Tangier Island, in the Chesapeake Bay, and was discovered about 300 years ago by Captain John Smith, who also named it. The Cornish fishermen who settled there have kept their race so pure that they still speak with accent peculiar to the first inhabitants.

Motor cars would have little space in which to operate, even if they were there, for the streets are only ten feet wide. There is scant vegetation. Hence, the absence of horses. The Bay surrounding the island continues one of the best fishing grounds in eastern United States and the sturdy Cornishmen have never given up their first calling.

Tangier's youngsters are trained to the water and boys may be seen pitting their skill against the waves.

Rakish masted fishing boats compose a veritable armada and the only other transportation vehicles are found in carts and wheel-barrows. Not far from the shore, on the southern end of the island, is the only part high enough above the tide for dwelling purposes. Here the houses, typical of an English fishing village, are crowded closely together along the main street.

So crowded is the small section that graves are to be found in tiny plots around the church and in the front yards of the dwellings, overhung with large shade trees.

The principal buildings are the school, the church and the postoffice. Of these the church is the community center. Every citizen is a church member.

A Man of Sorrows

In Memory, February 12.

They thought him but a clown, a tactless boor
Who filled his days and nights with quips and jests;
His hours were heedless as his purse was poor;
Without ambition, blind to worthy quests,
He dragged along his days; a human clod
Who scorned religion, mocked and flouted God.

How far they erred! A man of sorrows he,
Who bore within his heart a fatal wound.
Bereft of those he loved, the sympathy
He craved and hungered for could not be found;
The men with whom he walked from day to day
Knew not he trod a dark and lonely way.

A man of sorrows, born to pain and grief,
Yet would he not inflict his woes on men.
In jests and jokes he sought to find relief;
Thus gaining strength, he walked erect again.
Such was the man they called a wag and clown,
The bywood—and the glory!—of his town.

Lest We Forget

November 19, 1863.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who gave their lives that that nation might live. But, in a large sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it, far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have this far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of their devotion—that we here highly resolve that those dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation—under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Lincoln-Douglas Debate Greatest in Our History

Lincoln first attracted national attention in the Lincoln-Douglas debate in 1858. Concerning this debate a writer who heard it says: "Both with reference to the ability of the speakers and its influence upon opinion and events, it was unquestionably the most important in American history; that the speeches of Lincoln, published, circulated and read throughout the free states, did more than any other agency in creating public opinion which prepared the way for the overthrow of slavery." It was in speeches in that debate that Lincoln made frequent use of the declaration that "a house divided against itself shall not stand," a declaration that is both scriptural and self-evident in the application made by Lincoln: "I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the house to fall, but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing or the other. Either the opponents of slavery will arrest the further spread of it and place it where the public mind shall rest in the belief that it is in the course of ultimate extinction, or its advocates will push it forward until it becomes alike lawful in all the states, old as well as new, north as well as south." The position of Douglas on the question of slavery was one of indifference. In his speeches he severely criticized the declaration of Lincoln and his application of a "house divided against itself." Douglas advocated with all his power the doctrine of "popular sovereignty"—a proposition which, as quaintly put by Lincoln, meant that "If one man chooses to enslave another no third man has a right to object."

Both Giants In Intellect.

At the time of this memorable discussion both Lincoln and Douglas were in the full maturity of their powers, says a writer in the Indianapolis News, Douglas being at the age of forty-five years and Lincoln four years his senior. Douglas had long been recognized as an able and popular speaker. In congress and in the United States senate he had been accustomed to meet the ablest debaters of the state and nation. His friends insisted that never, either in conflict with a single opponent, or when repelling the assaults of a whole party had he ever been discomfited. His manner was bold, vigorous and aggressive. He was ready and fluent in language, elegant in diction, fertile in resources and especially familiar with political history. Lincoln was at that time a trained speaker, having contended successfully at the bar, in the legislature and in the congress, and before the people with the ablest men of the West—including Douglas, with whom he always rather sought than avoided a discussion.

Such were the champions who engaged in that famous discussion before the people of Illinois, with the whole nation as spectators and audience. The political passions then pending [illegible] the great question relating [illegible] combat, but extended through a whole campaign. The meetings were held in the open air, for no hall was large enough to accommodate the immense crowds that assembled at each place to hear the discussion. The speeches were published in all the principal newspapers of the country and were eagerly read by a majority of the voters in the United States. The attention of the people was thus arrested and the whole nation was aroused on this one vital question of the day as it had never been before.

Douglas secured the immediate object of the contest in retaining his seat in the United States senate; but the vigorous logic, the honesty and sincerity and the great intellectual powers exhibited by Lincoln prepared the way for his nomination and election to the Presidency two years later—which was really the goal of Douglas' ambition and the ultimate object of the Lincoln-Douglas debate.

Douglas' Patriotism.

It is a touching incident and happily illustrates the patriotism that inspired both of these statesmen, widely as they differed in political policy and keen as had been their rivalry, just as soon as the life of the republic was menaced they joined hands to shield and save the country they both loved. When Abraham Lincoln walked out to the east steps of the capitol to deliver his inaugural address and take the oath of office as President of the United States—facing a great crowd of people, among whom were many who would gladly have taken his life—the man who accompanied him and who stood close by his side, the man who was the first to take his hand and pledge his unqualified support in the great task Lincoln had assumed as President of a distracted country, was Senator Stephen A. Douglas. Unfortunately for the country, Douglas died a few months later—June 3, 1861—and the cause of the Union and support of the administration was deprived of his great influence.

In response to [illegible] Lincoln visited the cities of Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and other places in the East on his journey from Springfield to Washington—a journey that occupied about ten days, marked by official receptions and great crowds of people anxious to see and hear the man upon whom the destinies of the country depended. Every word of the President-elect on this journey was carefully scanned for some light by which to read the troubled and uncertain future. Measuring his words with unusual caution, he avoided any announcement of policy, but the country was nevertheless able to read between the lines that it had made no mistake in the man to whom it had confided the preservation of the government.

Pathetic Leave Taking.

Nothing in the history of Lincoln is more pathetic than the scene of his departure from Springfield on the morning of February 11, 1861, when he bade farewell to his old friends and neighbors. The scene is thus described by Lincoln's biographer:

"A throng of at least a thousand of Lincoln's friends and neighbors had gathered at the dingy little railroad station at Springfield to bid him goodby. It was a cloudy, stormy morning, which served to add gloom and depression to their spirits. The leave taking became a scene of subdued anxiety, almost of solemnity. Mr. Lincoln took a position in the waiting room where his friends filed past him often merely pressing his hand in silent emotion. The half-finished ceremony was broken by the ringing bell and rushing train. The crowd closed about the railroad car into which the President-elect and his party had entered. Then came the central incident of the morning. Once more the bell gave notice of starting, but the conductor paused with his hand lifted to the bell rope. Mr. Lincoln appeared on the platform of the car and raised his hand to command attention. The bystanders bared their heads to the falling snowflakes and standing thus his neighbors heard his voice for the last time in the city of his home."

May Have Foreseen Fate.

Lincoln's farewell address to his Springfield neighbors is expressed in words so chaste and pathetic that it reads as if he already felt the tragic shadow of forecasting fate. "No one," he said, "can realize the sadness I feel at this parting. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return. I go to assume a task more difficult than any that has devolved upon any chief executive since Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him I cannot succeed—with that assistance I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me and remain with you, and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will be well. To His care I commend you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me. I bid you an affectionate farewell." And as he waved his hand in farewell to the old home, to which he was never to return, the [illegible] response from many of his old friends: "God bless and keep you; God protect you." They were "Sorrowing most of all for the words he spake," impressed with a belief that they would see his face [illegible]

Country's Needs Ever First in Lincoln's Mind

Chauncey M. Depew, former United States senator, in an installment of "Leaves From My Autobiography," Scribner's Magazine, a retrospection of his childhood, youth and public service covering a period of eighty years, told some new anecdotes of Lincoln, Grant, Andrew Johnson, Seward, Chase, Commodore Vanderbilt and other notable men of Civil war days.

"I had a long and memorable interview with President Lincoln," Mr. Depew writes of a visit he paid to Washington in 1863 when he was secretary of state for New York. "As I stepped from the crowd in his reception room he said to me: 'What do you want?' I answered: 'Nothing, Mr. President. I only came to pay my respects and bid you goodby, as I am leaving Washington.' 'It is such a luxury,' he then remarked, 'to find a man who does not want anything. I wish you would wait until I get rid of this crowd.'

Some Lincoln Stories.

"When we were alone he threw himself wearily on a lounge and was evidently greatly exhausted. Then he indulged, rocking backward and forward, in a reminiscent review of the different crises in his administration and how he had met them. In nearly every instance he had carried his point and either captured or beaten his adversaries by a story so apt, so 'on all fours,' and with such complete answers that the controversy was over. I remember eleven of the stories, each of which was a victory."

Lincoln was always on the lookout for a good yarn, although he told Depew he never "invented" one.

One night there was a reception in the executive mansion. Rufus C. Andrews, surveyor of the port of New York and a confidential adviser of the President on New York affairs, attended the reception with Mr. Depew. As the procession of handshakers moved past, Lincoln stopped Andrews, and, leaning over, spoke very confidentially to him, delaying the ceremonies for some time. Momentous issues were impending. Lincoln was in the midst of the campaign for renomination, his cabinet was inharmonious, the war was on and decisive battles were about to be fought. Newspaper men and politicians buttonholed Andrews on his return to his hotel.

"Andrews made a great mystery of his confidential conversation with Lincoln and so did the press," Mr. Depew writes. "He explained to me when we were alone that during his visit to the President the night before he told Mr. Lincoln a new story. The President delayed him at the reception, saying: 'Andrews, I forgot the point of that story you told me last night; repeat it now.'"

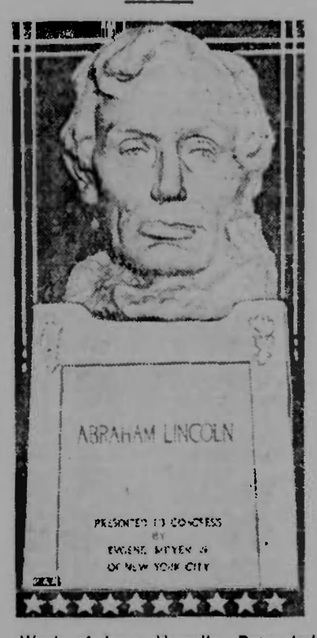
Appealed to "Plain People."

"'I am accused of telling a great many stories,'" Mr. Depew quotes Lincoln. "'They say that it lowers the dignity of the Presidential office, but I have found that plain people (repeating with emphasis plain people), take them as you find them, are more easily influenced by a broad and humorous illustration than in any other way, and what the hypercritical few may think, I don't care.'

"In speaking Mr. Lincoln had a peculiar [illegible] in his voice, caused by laying emphasis on the key-word of the sentence.

"In answer to the question how he knew so many anecdotes, he answered:

"'I never invented a story, but I have a good memory and, I think, tell one tolerably well. My early life was passed among pioneers who had the courage and enterprise to break away from civilization and settle in the wilderness. The things which happened to these original people and among themselves in their primitive conditions were far more dramatic than anything invented by the professional story tellers.



"'For many years I traveled the circuit as a lawyer and usually there was only one hotel in the country towns where court was held. The judges, the grand and petit juries, the lawyers, the clients and witnesses would pass the night telling exciting or amusing occurrences and these were of infinite variety and interest.'"

Inharmonious Cabinet.

Referring to Lincoln's adroitness in handling men and his personal humility, Mr. Depew says:

"No President ever had a cab[illegible] which the members were so ind[illegible]ent, had so large individual fol[illegible] and were so inharmonious. Th[illegible] dent's sole ambition was to se[illegible] ablest men in the country for [illegible] partments which he assigned without regard to their loyalt[illegible] self. One of Mr. Seward's sec[illegible] would frequently report to me the acts of disloyalty or personal hostility on the part of Mr. Chase with the lament: 'The old man—meaning Lincoln—knows all about it and will not do a thing.'"

"Lincoln's Best Story" Conveys Good Lesson

Sometimes we think the study of scientific agriculture is a new thing and only thought of within the last few years. Giants of intellect, like the great and dearly beloved Lincoln, saw far ahead of their times, even concerning such homely matters as the fertility of the soil. We give our readers below what is considered Lincoln's best story. It was told to an assembly of farmers at the end of an address. We commend it, and the lesson it conveys, to every thoughtful reader:

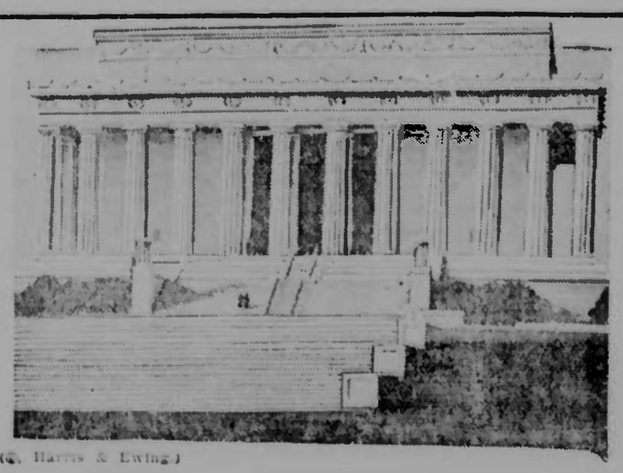
"An eastern monarch once charged his wise men to invent him a sentence to be forever in view, and which should be true and appropriate at all times and situations. They presented him the words, 'And this, too, shall pass away.' And yet, let us hope it is not quite true. Let us hope, rather, that by the best cultivation of the physical world beneath and the moral world within us, we shall secure an individual, social and political prosperity and happiness, whose course shall be onward and upward, and which, while the earth endures, shall not pass away."—Farmer and Breeder

Lincoln on Agriculture

To speak entirely within due bounds, it is known that 50 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of corn can be produced from one acre.

Take 50 of wheat and 100 of corn to be the possibility and compare it with the crops of the country.

Unquestionably it will take more labor to produce 50 bushels from an acre than it will to produce 10 bushels from the same acre; but will it take more to produce 50 bushels from one acre than from five?



More thorough cultivation will require more labor to the acre, but will it require more to the bushel?—Abraham Lincoln.

Public Sentiment First

Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed. Consequently he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes and decisions possible or impossible to be executed.—Abraham Lincoln.

ELMAN VALLEY R. R. BE EXTENDED SOUTH

n Grantsville Territory to Oakland, Thus Giving Rail Connection With that Town

(By G. W. Diefenbach)

GRANTSVILLE, Feb. 9.—The following news item of great interest to Garrett countians, especially those in Grantsville and Oakland, appeared in the daily press under a Philadelphia date line of the 3rd inst.:

"After some years of effort, coupled with a business tenacity that augurs well for future success of the undertaking, Smith H. Bracey, who built 5,000 miles of railroads for the Gould interests and others, now sees success ahead of him with the beginning of a 17-mile extension of the Casselman Valley Railroad from Jennings to Oakland, Md. The addition will tap some 80,000 acres of virgin timber and coal lands. The original road is now 14 miles and runs from Worth, Pa., to Jennings, Md., and until recently was a narrow gauge road. Now this has been rebuilt and changed to a standard gauge road and the promoters say increased business will follow. New hallast, ties and other equipment have placed the road in first-class condition.

"Mr. Bracey is now a modest capitalist and, with an eye to the future, has seen the broader scope and possibilities of this mountain railway that takes in some of the picturesque spots of the George's Creek region. From an original tonnage of 30 cars a month on the Casselman Valley R. R., the operators on the line have now built up a business calling for 300 cars a month. By the new addition to the road it is believed this coal quota will be much enlarged after the region has been developed. For a time, the railroad was shut down.

"One big feature of the new extension will be its easy grade, which Mr. Bracey says will be less than 1 per cent, which will be a big factor in enahling one locomotive to pull a train of coal cars instead of the usual three over and up a steeper grade. As he has constructed roads in 32 States in the Union and knows these engineering conditions as a railroader, coal contractor and builder, the fact that the new extension is to be built on these lines spells real success and progress in this region for the coal industry, his co-workers declare.

"A well known local coalman is one of the directors of the Casselman Valley R. R. in the person of Joseph B. Givin, secretary and treasurer of the Charles D. Norton Coal Co., with offices in the Stephen Girard Building. The headquarters of the railroad are at Grantsville, Md., in Garrett county.

"After being in operation for some time over the 31-mile route, it is believed that a passenger service will be developed along with the coal production."

The foregoing is certainly good news for the central portion of Garrett county, and especially the Casselman Valley. At present there are five producing operations actively engaged, namely: The Myers Coal Co. and J. C. Johnson, at Grantsville; the Morgart Coal Mine Corporation, David Ferrin and Huff & Durst, of Jennings. Mr. S. H. Bracey has been in Grantsville all winter directing rebuilding operations and recently Mr. H. E. Speyer, of Trenton, N. J., was appointed manager of the road. Mr. Speyer is now on the job and directing operations. Both these men are living at the National Hotel here.

Jacob Urich Dead.

Jacob Urich, a farmer residing on Keyser's Ridge, died suddenly in an automobile en route from Frostburg, last Saturday afternoon, having been in Frostburg that day to consult a physician. Last December Mr. Urich suffered a slight stroke of paralysis from which he was slowly recovering. On Saturday, in company with Henry Bach, his son George and John Taylor and Henry Weber, he went to Frostburg. It is reported that he was feeling well, ate a hearty lunch and enjoyed it and was in fine spirits on the way home. Before reaching Grantsville one of the occupants of the car observed that Mr. Urich gave a slight gasp and before the car could be stopped he was lifeless. The body was brought to Grantsville and prepared for burial at Winterberg's morgue. Mr. Urich is survived by his wife and the following named children: William, of Chicago; Rudolph of Akron, and John, Carl, Roy, Elbert, Marie and Margaret, at home. He was born in Switzerland and came to the States when 21 years of age. While in Pittshurgh he met Miss Tillie Hauft, a sister of Mr. John Hanft, of Grantsville, and they were married. Later the couple came to this county and took up farming on Keyser's Ridge. Mr. Urich was about 60 years of age. The funeral was held from the German Lutheran church at the Cove, of which he was a member, on Tuesday morning. His pastor, Rev. H. H. Finkenscher, officiated. Interment was made in the churchyard.

Charles C. Swauger Dies Suddenly

Charles C. Swauger, of New Germany, died suddenly on Sunday afternoon at his home in that community. He was in apparent good health until a few minutes before his death which occurred without warning. He had eaten his dinner and seemingly relished it and spent a portion of the afternoon in reading. He lived only a few minutes after being attacked. He was a life-long resident of the community, well and favorably known in his locality and had attained the age of 75 years. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Harriet Alice Green; by one sister, Mrs. Rachel Harvey, of Frosthurg, and by five children: Mrs. Ada Brenneman and Leland Swauger, of Frostburg; Mrs. Lottie Stahl, of Greensburg, Pa.; Stanley Swauger, of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Flossie Alexander, of New Germany. There are also a number of grandchildren. The funeral of the deceased was conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. E. Johnson, from the Methodist church at New Germany, and interment made in the church cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

John Kamp, a former resident of Keyser's Ridge and a brother of Wilson Kamp, of the Ridge, suffered an attack of ehronic indigestion on Saturday noon at the home of his son-in-law, George Engle, near the Finley quarry, east of Salisbury, Pa. The attack was reported to have been a severe one. However, his friends will be pleased to learn that his condition is reported as being favorahle now, harring further attacks.

Musicale by Springs Chorus.

The musical program rendered by the chorus from Springs, Pa., at W. O. W. Hall, Grantsville, Wednesday evening of last week under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, was of a pleasing and entertaining character and was splendidly rendered. The attendance was excellent, the hall heing filled to overflowing. During the intermission and at the close of the program the members of the Society sold refreshments, which contributed materially to the financial success of the occasion. The following program was rendered:

with a Shout and a Laugh and a Song

An explanation in justice to the members of the original Springs Male Chorus, in desiring to explain past news items and advertising regarding it the present organization, was given the name of the original chorus by error, as the original organization is not functioning at present. The chorus which is singing now is not a part of the former but entirely separate, although there are several members of the original chorus in this organization.

Meeting of the Studio Club.

The Studio Club held its ninth program of the second year at the Holmes and Wallace Studios on Tuesday evening, when the following was the program:

Roll Call...Names of Compositions
Minutes .....The Secretary
Solo, Gypsy Dance.....Clyde Miller
Reading, The Eagle..LeRoy Shumaker
Reading, Sunset...Dorothy Edwards
Piano solo, Far from this Busy Throng
Clyde Bender.
Beethoven Study.....Mabel Younkin
Who were Deadalus and Icarus?
Answered by Clyde Bender.
Scale drill.
Speech drill.
Chorus, In Silent Night....Brahms

The club meetings are growing decidedly better with good attendance and much interest manifested. The club is studying the life of Beethoven, this year being the 100th anniversary of his death. The studios will give a prize to the member of the club who writes the best essay on Beethoven.

Women's Community Club Meeting.

The Women's Community Club met in regular session at the Casselman Hotel last Wednesday afternoon at which time the annual election of officers was held, the following being elected: President, Miss Mary C. Dorsey; vice-president, Miss Lou Shaw; secretary, Miss Ethel Broadwater; treasurer, Mrs. Harold Miller. The members of the general program committee are as follows: Miss Christine Winterberg, Mrs. Fred Livengood, Miss Ethel Broadwater and Mrs. J. U. Stanton. Miss Lola Belle Green, County Home Demonstrator was present and gave a demonstration of the steam pressure cooker by cooking a complete meal in fifteen minutes. A good attendance of the membership was in evidence. Roll call was answered by gems from Washington and Lincoln.

Suffers Broken Foot.

Mrs. W. E. Stanton will be confined to her bed for several weeks because of a fall she received in her home last week which resulted in a sprain and a quadruple fracture of her foot. The injured member was x-rayed at Cumberland and placed in a cast.

The members of the oung People's class of the Reformed Sunday school met at the home of Mrs. Ida Hershberger last Friday evening, combining a business and social session and laid plans for raising funds to increase the building finances. Refreshments were served.

Honor Rating in the Schools

Upon completion of the second term work in the high school, those students maintaining an average of "B" or better in each subject studied are given honor ratings. The students are closely ohserved and marked also in their attitudes and habits while about the school, reports R. W. Webster, the principal, comprising (1), initiative; (2), morale; (3), ethical self-control; (4), school spirit; (5), deportment, these being important factors in citizenship training. Those who received the honor rating are: Seniors, Ruth Emory, Helen Folk and Velora Swauger; Juniors, Floyd Zehner and Frieda Wiley; Sophomores, Ralph Buckle and Ethel Bittinger; Freshmen, Zola Folk.

Pupils in Grantsville school having a perfect attendance record for the period from September to December, inclusive, are: High school, Evelyn Younkin, Dorothy Edwards, Marion Wisseman, Gladys Durst, Daisy Shumaker, Freda Warnick, Iva Klotz, Zola Folk, Herman Klotz, Velora Swauger, Wendel Lohr, Lee Roy Shumaker, Margaret Hanft, Freda Wiley, Hlda Folk and Ralph Younkin. Elementary school, Evelyn Beachy, Allen Rodamer, Michael Whiteford, Rhoda Shumaker, Margaret Blocher, Betty Patton, Ralph Shumaker, LaRue Bittinger, Elwood Klotz and Jacob Miller.

Pupils in the Turner school, of which Miss Regina Loraditch is the teacher, who made perfect attendance records for January are Ora Warne, Virginia Warne, Annie Merrbach, Sara Turner, Laura Turner, Carl Hutzel and Byard Newman.

The sixth and seventh grade pupils of Engle school, of which Miss Esther Zehner is teacher, held a debate last Friday, the question being: Resolved, That corn is more important than cotton. The negative side won. Those taking part were: Affirmative, Howard McKenzie, Stella Beachy, Ruth Orendorf, Mannong Bowers; negative, Frieda Durst, Harold Setzer, Mildred Bowers and Anna Setzer. Harold Setzer and Mildred Bowers have perfect attendance records for the school year.

The sixth and seventh grade pupils of Grantsville school have formed a Citizenship Club, the object being the training for and the promotion of good citizenship. A monitor is appointed each week whose duties are to inspect desks for tidiness and the members for good health habits. The officers are: President, Clyde Bender; vice-president, Allen Rodamer; secretary, Mildred Paul; treasurer, Beulah Younkin.

At the meeting of the Town Council, held Monday night, routine business was transacted.

Master John Blocher, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Blocher, and a student in the local high school, underwent an operation for appendicitis one day last week at Allegany Hospital, Cumberland. It is reported that the lad is improving following the operation and that he will be enabled to return to his home very shortly.

Irvin Beachy, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel A. Beachy, recently opened a sales and service depot at Wilkinsburg, Pa., handling Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles. Mr. Beachy is a young man of pleasing personality and used to hard work, having been employed for several years as salesman for Ford products by a Pittsburgh firm. He spent the week-end here with his parents, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Walter Beachy, of Pittsburgh, having made the trip with him.

Church Notes.

The regular quarterly conference of the Methodist charge was held on Sunday at Mt. Zion by Rev. J. E. Johnson, assisted by Rev. Arbogast, of Friendsville.

Dr. Theodore A. Herman, from the Theological Seminary at Lancaster, Pa., will fill the pulpit of the Reformed church here on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The Sunday school will meet at 9:30 a. m.

There will be Sunday school at 1:15 and worship at 2:30 p. m. in the Lutheran church and Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. and Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. in the Methodist church.

In the Catholic church services will be held at ten o'clock Sunday morning.

Messrs. C. H. Bill and C. C. Wisseman were Oakland visitors on Monday.

Mrs. N. J. Miller is quite ill at this writing.

Harry Edwards and son Cecil are visiting relatives in Morgantown, W. Va., this week.

The regular monthly meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society was held last night at the home of Mrs. Harry Edwards.

Mrs. Mary Livengood and Mrs. Ira Wright are reported on the sick list.

Mrs. Catharine Opel is quite ill. A nurse is in attendance and Miss Anna Opel, of Meyersdale, Pa., has come to assist in the care of her mother.

Because of the favorable weather the tapping of sugar trees is the order of the day.

Quite a large number of men of Grantsville and vicinity are taking advantage of the opportunity to get their clothing right at home. This has been made possible by the display of a large variety of serviceable and stylish fabrics and the season's best styles, coupled with a personal service which assures a perfect fit, thereby providing a service for the community which has not been available for a long time. This convenience is being provided by G. W. Diefenbach, and in addition he is showing a nice line of made-to-measure raincoats for men, women and children. "Let George Do It" is not only a catch phrase, but a real community convenience.—Advertisement.

Teacher Assaulted.

While returning from his school one evening recently, Oscar Brenneman, teacher of the Casselman school, was attacked by two young men who had some grudge to satisfy. A considerable scuffle ensued, but so far as can be learned no one was seriously hurt.

Sugar Making Under Way.

Some of the wide awake camp owners of this section got busy last week and put their sugar plants into operation, and as a result a considerable quantity of maple syrup was made.

A representative of the Carey Sugar Rendering Company was in this section last week arranging for the purchase of the season's crop of maple sugar and syrup.

Mrs. Gustavus Stanton returned to her home here a few days ago after a six-weeks visit to Akron, Ohio.

Ralph Jinkins, of New Germany, representing the Raleigh Products company, was calling on his customers in this neighborhood a few days ago.

After having resumed operation for one day following an accident which closed the George Kurtz saw mill, near Bittinger, another mishap occurred, which obliged another shut-down on last Friday.

Simon Brenneman spent last week visiting in the vicinity of Grantsville.

County Commissioner Harvey Gortner, of Grantsville, spent some time recently in this neighborhood inspecting the condition of some of our roads, and it is hoped that some relief will be forthcoming.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mrs. Naomi Barnard is suffering as the result of a stroke of paralysis, she having been stricken last Monday night.

Mr. Groundhog probably saw his shadow the other day; if he didn't he missed a good chance.

Mr. Charles Queer wishes to inform the public that he is not such a "cow" as to fall on the ice as was stated in a recent issue.

The Pleasant Valley school children were very busy the past week taking the mid-year examinations. The highest averages were made by Carlton Sembower and Earl Tressler.

Miss Eugenia Athey and Mrs. Mary Custer spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. O. C. Bittinger.

Misses Dorothy and June Sembower, Erma Whittington and Blanche Barnard and Messrs. Edward Sembower and Oscar Kisner spent Sunday evening "listening in" at the home of Mr. E. O. Wonderly.

The Pleasant Valley Grange met on February 3 and elected officers for the following year as follows: Master, B. H. Friend; overseer, A. O. Riley; lecturer, H. L. Porter; steward, E. O. Liller; assistant steward, Harrison Sembower; lady assistant steward, Dorothy Sembower; chaplain, Mrs. Mary Custer; treasurer, Milton Riley; secretary, Paul Friend; Ceres, Mildred Bowers; Pomona, Mrs. Mabel Lee; Flora, Alma White; pianist, Dorothy Sembower. The officers request as large an attendance as is possible in the future. "Come all ye Grangers, and let us make '27 a banner year."

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stahl and family were visiting at the former's parents' home on Sunday.

HOW I WONDER.

I wonder what I was before I came to be
What now I am;
I know that time has always been and always is to be:
So, Sam,
I wonder what I was, whither upward going
Or back to be a lamb.

If I have lived before, I do not know it
As I know it now;
I feel brand new, just beginning, superfine,
So that is how
I want to keep myself, keep on living,
As I am doing now.

I'm full of health, of life and love,
A joy in their progression;
I don't believe in hell, life's extinction,
Or in retrogression;
If I thought I was going back to what I was
When still unborn,
My heart would sigh to see oblivion
nigh,
And life a hope forlorn.

If we believe that at the grave
All life that's conscious ends,
May it not be that in our thinking,
doing,
Is what life depends on what one sows;
So I shall go on thinking, hoping,
And trust Him to tell, who only knows.

Birth and death are mysteries
That make us pause and doubt,
Yet better for us, perhaps,
That life's secrets will not out;
We see that life and mind from elemental matter
Lifts and grows,
But how full of life and mind is crude matter,
God only knows.

All nature's parts cooperate, coordinate,
And harmoniously entwine.
So 'tis no accident that gives us life
And makes the sun to shine;
For man alone the seasons eternally come and go,
The building spring and summer heat
Life's sustenance to grow;
After autumn's harvest, winter comes to purify
With ice and snow.

Thus all things are made for man's Immediate and eternal good.
And I would not change the cosmic plan,
Providing that I could.

Behold the stars their courses run
And ever on schedule time;
This spectacle is to me
Most wondrous and sublime,
Removing chance as cause
And proving one great design,
So back of it all a designer is,
Omniscient and benign.

All created things are means
That serve a far-off unseen end,
But to exalt self-conscious life
Does all creation tend.
We see but the outer parts
Of life's great passing show,
It's inner works we wonder at,
But never fully know.

Mother earth's been kind to me:
Right here, I want my soul to be
Where I can live and love,
On something solid stay;
Let life grow me new bodies
As my old ones pass away.

The more I learn, the more I keep on seeking
And the more I wonder
Where I was, what I was,
And if my end means going back yonder. —F. F. CORLISS.

I LOST YOU, SO WHY SHOULD I CARE?

The beautiful story is ended.
Our wonderful romance is through;
I might have known it was only a dream,
For it all seemed too good to be true;
For the wrongs that we do we must suffer,
And that's just the reason we met—
You came that I might make atonement;
Through you I must pay every debt.

Oh why should I care what becomes of me now—
I had nothing to live for but you:
Oh why should I care if I fall by the way
When I know no longer you're true;
My sorrows are sending me down to my grave,
'Tis greater than I can bear;
If they bar me away from heaven
some day
I've lost you, so why should I care!

SWANTON.

The Civic Union of Election District No. One held its first regular meeting at 7:30 o'clock on Friday evening at the Swanton school house.

The meeting was fairly well attended and some very important business having to do with the activities of the association was transacted.

A committee consisting of Mr. W. I. Rilings, Mr. Walter N. Welch and Miss Helen DeWitt was appointed to act as the entertaining committee.

The organization has been formed for the purpose of furthering the interests of the people of District No. One along civic, political and general improvement lines. The officers expect to have lectures and other forms of entertainment at various times during the course of a year.

They are going to work along all civic betterment lines looking to improved roads, better and more sanitary school buildings and telephone and other modern conveniences.

Any citizen of the district, 18 years of age or older, may become a member of the Union.

[illegible] of R. F. [illegible] A. H. Green was appointed to bring certain phases of the work before the Board of School Commissioners and the Board of County Commissioners.

County Agent McGlone will be in attendance at one of the meetings in the near future when he will make an address upon a subject of interest.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, the 18th inst.

The Late George T. Beckman.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I have been requested to write a few lines on the life of the late George T. Beckman.

I knew George for about 45 years, and being neighbors with a common cause which we exercised from youth up until middle age, hence we were friends in our youthful days which continued through early manhood and terminated with his death in middle age. Having lived by him for 39 years, we never had the least difficulty to mar that friendship. He was always ready to extend the helping hand either in busines or in a social way, which trait he unknowingly practiced until he was called hence. The last fifteen years or more of his life we were separated, he inheriting his father's home and continued farming, while I was otherwise engaged.

In October, 1926, at his earnest request, I visited him. I found him an ill man, but having hopes of a future life. I next visited him in November, 1926, and seeing his serious condition I remained with him until the end. I will say, so far as human mind can judge, George passed away a saved man. He requested us to pray with him and asked that we continue to pray for him. I heard him pray, "Lord, have mercy upon me." His mind was active until the last breath.

His great concern was for "Mama," as he called Mrs. Beckman. Time and again he said he was ready to go. When the pain became very acute the last thing he said was, "I know the Lord has power to receive me." Thus our good friend left us, but not without hope of meeting again if we live as we should.

There is a vacancy in the hmoe that nothing but the Holy Comforter can fill. May the mother and children cling to that thought and eventually meet George in heaven. P. H.

GORTNER.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein and children and Miss Lela Mosser spent Sunday with the Lichty family.

Misses Bertha Lee and Anna Bender and Mr. Noah Yoder visited Miss Fannie Yoder on Sunday.

Miss Florence Miller and Mr. Jacob Miller, of Norfolk, Va., spent Monday and Tuesday with friends here.

A number of our folks attended singing at Mr. Samuel Beachy's Sunday evening.

Misses Mary Beachy and Anna Bender and Messrs. John Burkholder and Ross Lichty spent one evening of last week at the home of Miss Bertha Lee.

Mr. Simon Swartzentruber and his family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schrock on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Artie Dodge and daughters spent the week-end at Morgantown.

Mr. S. J. Lichty has purchased a tract of land from Mr. William H. Smouse, which extends from Mr. J. D. Swartzentruber's farm to the Andrew Miller farm.

Miss Verbel Stutzman and Mr. Ted Beachy, of Salisbury, Pa., were guests of Miss Emma Burkholder on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Schlossnagle, Mrs. John Hoff and Miss Ruth Schlossnagle were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smouse near Loch Lynn on Sunday.

Word was received here Monday of the death of Walter Slabach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Slabach, of near Eglon. The cause of the young man's death was given as pneumonia.

Roy Lee, who has been ill with a severe cold, is able to be up again.

Mr. Perry Lee recently arrived here from Morgantown to which city he had been summoned several weeks ago on account of the illness of his wife. Mrs. Lee is improving at this writing.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Tendered President McComas of The Rotary Club Friday

The Friday evening luncheon of the Oakland Rotary Club at the William-James Hotel, in charge of the entertainment committee of the Club, was an occasion which will remain as a pleasant memory by everyone surrounding the festal board and which under the direction of the entertainment committee of the Club was given in honor of its president, Dr. Henry W. McComas, as a testimonial of the high esteem in which he is held by every individual member of the organization. The occasion also marked the anniversary of the honor guest.

Walter W. Dawson, a member of the entertainment committee, was also acting president and directed the proceedings at the dinner.

Following up a false clue with a yarn string as his guide, the Doctor went on the hunt of a dog "with his ears cut long and his tail cut short," but arrived at the starting point without his quest and even the yarn string missing. From then on until the attempted cutting of the birthday cake, a wonderfully attractive mass of tinware and artistic icing, the handiwork of Henry Lauer, the mystery deepened until the man, who has participated in surgical opreations of every manner, had to give up the dissecting of his own birthday cake, and when it was removed from the table beneath it was the pup.

The menu consisted of turkey with all that goes with the noble bird, ice cream and cake, coffee, etc. The table was profusely decorated and at each place there were favors of seasonable design artistically made and decorated. An emblem of the coming spring, pussy willows nearly full blown were also at each place, which called for the singing of President Doctor's favorite Rotary song, "Pussy-Willow."

Joseph E. Harned made the address of the evening in which he reviewed the activities of the honor guest over a long term of years and paid a glowing tribute to him as a professional man and public spirited citizen.

Special selections by the Rotary Quartet, Henry Lauer, Wade Hinebaugh, Wm. Gibson and W W. Dawson were sung as the set program for the evening required them.

Dr. McComas had as his guest during the evening, Mr. E. E. Friend, the Garrett County Register of Wills.

4-H Club Holds Second Meeting.

The second meeting of the 4-H Club was held in the Court House on the 14th inst, with a program of interest to the young ladies who were present.

After the regular session of business, the membership was instructed in the making of pillow-slips.

The next meeting of the organization will be held on Saturday, February 26th, at which time a program of interest will be given and will include a debate on "why girls should belong to the 4-H club." The affirmatives are Mildred Stemple, Bernadine Canty and Geraldine Nordeck, and those on the negative side of the question are Bernadette Maffett, Sara Catherine Stanton and Agnes Helbig. Short addresses by Monica Maroney and Rosella Hinebaugh are also slated for this occasion. The club extends a cordial invitation to other girls to join with them in their organization.

Four Presidents Have Changed Their Names.

Calvin Coolidge is the fourth President of the United States to change his name from the one given at birth. In each case, a middle name became the first name by the change, and what is sometimes called "a name parted in the middle" was avoided. "A name parted in the middle" means one in which a first initial, a middle name and a last one are used in the form of J. Huntington Smith.

It is said that Hiram Ulysses Grant changed his name to Ulysses Simpson Grant because as a youngster he was teased about the combination which his initials made.

Stephen G. Cleveland became Grover Cleveland early in life because of his personal preference.

Thomas W. Wilson grew to manhood as "Tommy" Wilson. Later he dropped his first name and used only his second and last names, so that the world knew him only as Woodrow Wilson.

President Coolidge was named for John Calvin, the famous Protestant reformer. But he liked only the Calvin name, so dropped the first name entirely and avoided being called either J. Calvin Coolidge or John C. Coolidge.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE AND ITS WORKINGS TODAY

Hurried Legislation Prevents the Discovery of Snakes Hidden In Many Bills.

(From The Marylander)

The legislature is going on according to the preeedents of the past century and a half. The routine is substantially the same, and the changes that have been made from time to time since the revoluiton of 1776, as the records all show, have not been materially of any great importance. Efforts have been made at the beginning of every session to bring about changes, but before a month of the session had passed the work was back in the age-old rut, as it is now, and this age-old way is probably as good as any other way would be, and no improvements are necessary and none are desired.

Almost daily during this, as was the case i all previous sessions, newspaper critics, as well as other faultfinders, have solemnly raised their protests, because, as they say, "nothing has been done at Annapolis." The truth is the members are not to blame and rarely ever are for the delays ineident to the work of the session. A large proportion of the time is taken up with the consideration of measures presented by various official and other bodies from every section of the state, the largest proportion of which come from the municipal authorities of Baltimore—none of which have been sent in. Next in importance are the great masses of local bills from the twenty-three counties—they are not on hand, and probably will not be until late this month. Next comes the large number of measures prepared by the Bar Association. They are never in before the first of March, and, while what are known as the State Administration measures, are supposed to be in, the chances are that there will be many more of that character, and they will be coming in to the end of the session. In addition to all the above classes of measures, there are always all sorts of amendments to charters, many in number, and practically none of them are not even formulated up to the present time. And it should be remembered that the legislature is really a court, that its business is to decide what laws should be passed, and that it is not expected that the members should prepare the proposed laws—that is the duty of the officials and others who represent the various municipalities and other organizations, whose executives are familiar with the needs of the public—not forgetting the large number of those who represent private and semi-private interests, who have axes to grind, and who may need legislative action to further, and give legal sanction to all sorts of schemes, legitimate and otherwise—and these matters require time for consideration, and few of them have appeared at Annapolis, many of them never appear until late in the session—and it should be taken into consideration that a large proportion of the evils and mistakes that arise from the work of the legislature are brought about by haste on the part of those who wish to get measures throught without proper care and careful consideration—all of which takes time. Hurried legislation is apt to be ill considered and bills with snakes concealed in their folds are usually those which are rushed through by means of deals or other questionable methods. The longer a bill is delayed in its course through both houses the more likely it is that defects or questionable features will be discovered, and lead to its amendment or defeat. The greatest dangers in legislation, therefore, arise from ill considered haste. And nine times out of ten the haste does not arise from any fault of the legislators but from the delay in the introduction of the measures caused by those whose duty it was to have them at Annapolis long before the session was nearing its final stage. Bills cannot be taken up and examined until they are before the committees, and when the law department of the City does not begin to prepare its long list of bills until the session is half over, while the Bar Association never takes up its long list of amendments and repeals, until the middle of March, when the County Commissioners of the twenty-three counties do not make up their minds as to what they want, and when dozens of other associations and bodies, both public and private, never realize what they desire, often not before the first of March, there is auro to be a legislative jam, and the members who have been ready for work for several weeks cannot be blamed or criticized for neglect of duty when others were guilty of the neglect. If all legislation was prepared and submitted to the two houses soon after they had completed their organization so that the committees could go to work, there would be some reason to expect speedy action on a majority of all bills, but now, more than a month after the opening of the session, after the committees have all been appointed and organized for several weeks, few bills, except those prepared by the Governor have been presented, and, it is safe to assert, that not one-tenth of the measures that will be on the calendars of the two houses have been prepared, or are in course of preparation, and a large proportion of them will not be sent to Annapolis before the end of the present month, and many of them not before the middle of March. And the records of every session, going clear back to the dawn of the State's history, show that such has always been the case. And further the same state of affairs exists and has always existed in all other legislative bodies, not excepting the most important of all American legislative bodies, the Congress of the United States.

The longer legislation is before the members and before the public for consideration, the less likelihood there is that mistakes will be made. Even the most ordinary members will be able to learn something about it; the newspapers will have time to present it to the public at large, and there will be no reasonable ground for lack of knowledge as to what it means. Delay in the passage of bills at Annapolis is the greatest safeguard of the State against unwise and evil legislation.

ICE CREAM CORPORATION FILES BOND MORTGAGE

Imperial Company To Borrow a Million for Corporate Needs.

A bond mortgage for $1,000,000 under a deed of trust executed by the Imperial Ice Cream Company, a West Virginia corporation, to the First National Bank of Marietta, O., has been filed for recording in the land records of this county.

The Imperial Ice Cream Company operates a chain of plants in West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio and Maryland, one being located in Oakland.

The corporation desires to issue bonds for corporate purposes. The mortgage is to secure payment of these bonds. It is understood that the corporation plans extension of its business into other states.

The bonds are to be issued in $500 and $1,000 series for a term of years and to bear 6½ per cent interest.

The mortgage filed gives a description of the properties owned or under lease in various towns and cities. The company conducts ice cream plants or creameries in twenty cities.

ROBBERS GET AROUND $4.00 AT TREACY'S GARAGE

Forced Two Doors To Make Entrance. Reward Offered.

Forcing their way through a door in the rear of the Treacy Garage, robbers made their entrance to the office of the garage and rifled the register, escaping with something in the neighborhood of $4.00 in cash, early Sunday morning.

The entrance to the garage was made through a door on a slanting runway upon which cars are driven from an alley in the rear of the garage to the second floor of the structure, where, in the summer months the work shop is located. After gaining admission to the main part of the garage it was necessary for the intruder to remove a pane of glass from a door leading into the office, which was accomplished with little effort, so it would seem.

The cash register was forced open with a screw driver, which was found lying near the register the following morning.

It is supposed the robbery took place in the early morning hours, as Sheriff W. D. Casteel, who has a stall in the garage for his car and who has a key to the structure, had driven his car into the garage at about 1 o'clock that morning, and it is said at that time he saw nothing that would lead him to believe that the place had been entered by intruders for the purpose of robbing.

James P Treacy, proprietor of the garage, has offered a reward of $25.00 to the person who gives sufficient evidence to apprehend and convict the guilty party or parties.

PYTHIAN ANNIVERSARY AND LADIES NIGHT

Will Be Observed Friday Night At Castle Hall.

A cordial invitation is extended to the Pythian Sisters of Garrett Temple No. 17, the members of Garrett Lodge No. 113, their mothers, wives, daughters or sweethearts to meet with us Friday night, February 18th, when we will assemble to pay homage to the founderer of our beloved order and to celebrate the sixty-third anniversary of the founding of the order of Knights of Pythias.

So phenomenal has been the growth of the order that from a humble beginning and obscure position it has now assumed astounding proportions from a numerical standpoint. When Justus H. Rathbone laid the cornerstone of our organization, little did he dream of the possibilities or of the colossal magnitude such a fraternity might attain. Could he but take a peep at the merrymaking Friday night, what a revelation it would be to him. Could he have caught a vision of what power for good the disciples of Demon and Pythias would be? Could he have pictured in his mind a loyal band of untiring, enterprising ladies, the indispensable auxiliary of the order—the Pythian Sisters? Garrett Lodge wishes to honor the Pythian Sisters on that night as well as mothers, wives, daughters or sweethearts of the Knights. If you so desire you may come with your male escort in time for lodge and remain in the club rooms until about 8:15, when the entertainment will begin. If you prefer to come alone at the later hour you will be in time for the entire program.

Such an evening of entertainment we will have! Many short addresses will be made by prominent speakers. Mr. Joseph E. Harned will deliver the principal address of the evening. Mr. Harned's remarks will be well worth your hearing as he is an orator of note and extremely concise. Prof. R. R. Gilbert and his orchestra will be on the job with their dreamy melodies. The Rotary Peerless quartet will sing several selections. Numerous specialties will be introduced, the nature of which will not be divulged until the proper time. That useful artist, Wilmer Brown is expected to exhibit his musical propensities. Do not fail to hear him on his accordeon. There will be many other things worth hearing. "Bill" Gibson will tickle the ivories to your hearts content.

We used to see an ad. worded as follows: "When words fail, send Dolly Varden chocolates." We confess words fail to describe fully the actual weight or far reaching effect of the address on last Friday night as given by our esteemed brother A. T. Matthews. Instead of sending chocolates we will send our profound apologies for the limitation of our vocabulary. We will make a feeble attempt, however, by saying that his oratorical efforts were effective; his array of historical data noteworthy; his scholarly bearing was impressive; his modest, unassuming manner of presentation, admiral. So zealous are we in praise of Brother Matthews that you will pardon us if we declare that in comparison, all students and exponents of history fade into utter significance. All who missed hearing him deserve to be chastised severely.

As a final word to all who are to be the guests of Garrett Lodge, we have reserved perhaps the most important announcement until last. Refreshments will be served and they will be something worth while. With all the proposed features incident to the evening's festivities, certainly it is a program strong in appeal to everyone. We hope to see the Castle filled to overflowing.

Please pardon the use of the following verses. They are to the ladies. Eats will be served, a la Garrett Lodge.

By chivalric, noble Knights.
Join with us, let's make merry—
Be vivacious, enjoy the sights.

And the night shall be filled with music.
And the cares that infest the day
Will fold their tents, like the Arabs
And as silently steal away.

MILLIONS OF STATE MONEY PUT IN OFFICERS' HANDS

Writer Terms Action of House Extravagance As Bordering On Crime.

(Paul Winchester in The Marylander)

The House Chamber this week has been one of extravaganza, and I sometimes believe it is a crime, for few are capable of realizing what they are doing. Millions of dollars being put into the hands of officials for spending purposes, State expenditures of course and satisfactory to some, it is true, but on the whole very unnecessary. It appears beneath the surface, not clearly evident to the public, by reason of the fact that the dailies are either interested or uninterested, that the old game of gammon is beginning to show itself.

The little statesmen are playing the game, so often played by beginners, that of button who has the button, only they are playing with a resolution and not the button, for had it been a button instead of a resolution to investigate the so-called Conowingo deal, they could have swallowed it and thereby lost the evidence, as swallowing evidence is not a new trick among politicians, for rather than betray his chief the famous Danny Loden found it convenient to do a little sword swallowing, which proved successful.

However, as the boys are telling the story in this language, I will repeat it:

"They had a meeting, the Speaker, the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, United States Senator-elect, and a few others, at which the resolution, introduced to cause His Excellency some embarrassment, was talked about, and having other important matters to decide the new United States Senator is supposed to have said 'give me the order and I will see what can be done with it.' And now the resolution is lost, but Delegate Berman promises another one. And then it often happens that a hill, an order or a resolution sometimes goes on a route other than the one intended for it."

—o—

Quite a few of the Baltimore City Delegates are suffering from savoir faire. It is amusing to watch them, they are so obedient. In event that Speaker Brooke Lee happens to turn his head to the door on his left, so do they; then should he decide to look to the right, they do likewise. When the Speaker stands, they pull their chairs close to their desks and appear serious. Should the Speaker tire of standing and take his seat, they relapse and smoke. When voting they continue to obey orders and vote as he votes. Evidently the orders are to "watch the Speaker."

—o—

What appears to be the most essential thing next to the State House to the members of the General Assembly is the thought of their stomachs. They seem to have a gnawing feeling, and just as soon as the two Houses adjourn the door opens with a bang and they go out with a mad rush, helter-skelter down the hill to "Guicnot's," their special eating house. And on Wednesday of this week the Baltimore boss, Frank Kelley, led the mob as they lined up for their "boulli."

—o—

The one paper that the country members seem to read and swear by is the Hagerstown Almanac and even though there are many bills to be read they find much time to devote to the days they will have to spend in a few weeks on their farms.

But as has often been said of the country members of the House, there is little evidence of their just being dumped off a hay wagon in front of the State House, as I find many of them are educated and are thoroughly competent to perform their duties. There are some, however, who are backward and act shy, but not dumb, they are rather like certain classes of scholars who possess all sorts of learning and never give any out.

—o—

Usually in the House of Legislation the halls are filled with women who are not hard on the man's eyes. They are from every section of the State, as each Senator has the appointment of a stenographer, or clerk, (at the State's expense, of course), and very often a lady fills the job. There are many of these on hand at this session, but the number is far below the average, in the way of employes. However, those who are on hand are no "Dolly Vardens." Their styles are the very latest, and some wear a balzarine, but mostly all fine silks, and then again some remind one of the old Indian squaw.

Lobbyists so far have not shown up well at this session, the only fund of any size, if the report be a sound one, is that which the moving picture men who favor Sunday movies, are supposed to have. And it is being circulated among the delegates that they have as much as one hundred thousand dollars. If that is so they should have little trouble in securing the legislatoin they desire—that of Sunday movies.

"Why, for that amount they could buy the whole State House," said an old familiar character and member of the third house.

At this time the Sunday movie bill introduced by Senator Ambrose Kennedy has little chance of passing. It will probably be killed before it can reach the House Chamber, and the same may be said of such a measure in the House.

—o—

Strange as it may seem, while voting on an amendment to increase the portion of a million dollar loan to be allotted to Baltimore City from one-fifth to one-third, three city delegates, Campbell, Kennedy and Greenwell, who occupy front row seats in the House, voted against the measure. The tax rate had been fixed in the bill and should the amendment offered by Delegate Joseph passed the city would have received a greater part of the loan, without further taxation. However, the three City Delegates decided that Baltimore City was better off with the lesser amount.

In the estimation of some of their colleagues, they should have the back seats and let Delegates Callan, Horsey and Gray move up front.

The Republican members of the Assembly have not been acting like themselves; that is, not like Republicans as a whole, for they have been voting with the administration rather lively. The real test will come, however, on the gasoline tax and the oyster question. Most of the Republicans hail from the Western section of the State and are not so interested in what should be done with the oyster.

However, if they act like Republicans they will not join the Democrats. But they all seem so much alike that it really makes little difference. When the Governor blows his whistle they all fall in line. They sort of look upon him as a superhuman being, and obey his orders before realizing their position. There is no question about it, there are some mushrooms brought from the dunghills among both parties and dumped at the State House steps.

MT. LAKE PARK.

To The Editor of The Republican:

I think that I will not ask you to publish any more than this letter I am sending you at this time, but hope I may be able in the future to make notes of wonderful happenings here.

This letter, as you see, hitches onto my letter of last week. I could give you facts enough to cover quite a number of printed pages, but do not think it just fair to take up so much of your space. However, in fairness to Dr. Goucher and the Missionary Society, I will be glad to see the enclosed article in print in todays Republican. Respectfully,

J. A. E.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., Feb. 17. 1927.

Dr. John F. Goucher, who was one of the original stockholders, and who was present when the first officers and directors of the Association were elected, reported that he had secured the official seal for Mt. Lake Park Association. This meeting was held September 27. 1881. He built a neat bungalow, which he called his cahin, and which is now owned hy his children. He devoted much time and thought in developing the Park, and also gave much of his time and means to establish the college in the city of Batimore, which still bears his name. If possible, however, he had a still greater interest in the mission interests of his church, especially in Corea, where he started and assisted largely in financing the work in that needy field.

He saw the great need of a suitable place in America to train workers for the foreign enterprises of his church, as well as a resting place for the over worked missionaries while on furlow, he also saw the need of a home for the retired workers from those foreign fields. He could think of no more suitable place for that purpose than Mt. Lake Park.

Knowing that he, as well as most of the others who had founded the Association, were too far advanced in years to carry out his splendid program, He thought the best plan was for the Foreign Missionary Society to own and operate a place suitable for the retired. So in 1919 he took this matter up with the stockholders and the Missionary society, and the society agreed to take it over if it could be turned over to them as a present with all the hills against the property paid. Dr. Goucher's splendid plan was made known to the public, which caused a great deal of enthusiasm and substantial subscriptions as well as cash money was forth coming. So hy July 1920, the entire amount was provided for and the property was turned over to the Missionary society of the M. E. Church.

The great Centinary movement at this time promised so much for the future success of the society, showing the need, more than ever, for such a recruiting station. Had Dr. Goucher lived it is firmly believed that he would have seen to it that the plans he had laid down, with his financial resources, would have made good.

I think the Missionary society has done well in doing as much as they have in keeping up the work here, when the facts are known that they can only use the means that are put in their hands by the church, especially when millions of dollars pledged have not been paid into their treasury.

The property is still here, however, and is in pretty good condition, and, if proper effort is made by the public, Mt. Lake Park can be made what one has recently predicted: "It shall become the great gathering place for all protestant denominations."

So, not only thousands, including the writer on his 77th birthday anniversary, can say, but many more will be able to say:

There is a spot to me more dear
Then nature's vail or mountain,
Twas where I first my Savior found
And felt my sins forgiven.

Dr. T. D. Richards said "this place should never go out of the ownership of the Methodist Episcopal church, for it was the church that started it, and it is the ardent desire that the church will both take care of its own and make what it has a greater blessing to the world."

THE ENLOW FAMILY

A Brief History of the Garrett County Branch.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Since the history of different families of the earlier settlers of this part of the country have been given in the public press, the writer thinks it may be of some interest to give the readers of your paper some of the facts concerning the Enlows who settled in this State. Much of the information herein given was gained from the late Isaac Allen Enlow, who was careful in making his statements.

Sometime during the seventeenth century there were three brothers who came to America. Someone writing from Minnesota, who spelled his name Enloe, for information about our branch of the family, insists that the three brothers came from Germany, but we had always been informed that they were natives of Scotland.

One of these brothers settled in the western part of Pennsylvania, he being probably the youngest. A son, named John, came to this county and established a home on the south side of Bear Creek near the present location of Hoyes. He was born about the year 1800. He was married to Elizabeth Frazee and their first son was born in 1820, whom they named Jeremiah. After arriving at manhood he purchased a farm on Sang Run where he spent the remainder of his life. His brother Jacob settled in Ohio, opposite Wheeling, West Va., and another brother, Ahraham, settled near Philippi, west Va. A sister Hannah married Jacob Faulkner, who settled west of Friendsville. Deborah married David Vansickle, who lived near the Faulkner farm, and Elizabeth, another sister, married Lewis Ringer, whose farm was near the homes of the other sisters.

When Jeremiah began to look about for a life companion, he and Meshack Browning visited the McMullen family. Here they were smitten with the charms of the two daughters. Mary became the wife of Meshack and Rachel was married to Jeremiah. Their sister Virginia became the wife of Nathaniel Casteel, who was their neighbor, so the three sisters became the wives of near-by farmers. Jeremiah's children became farmers and lived not far from the old home place with the exception of Isaac Allen who remained a bachelor and continued to reside at his old home. The others all reared families whose descendants to the sixth generation are still residents of Garrett county.

It is not my purpose to write particularly of individuals, but of them as a family, who have not filled many of the top or higher positions in public life, but all, with rare exceptions, have been honest, industrious, law-abiding, with emphasized desire that others should obey the existing laws of the land. Many of them were importuned to take positions of trust and responsihility in the schools, in church and state. Some of the older ones were great nimrods as well as citizens with a good deal of pep. All were good livers, not rich but cheerful and well-to-do people, often making their homes ring and the hills echo and re-echo with their whistling or singing as they pursued their daily occupations, as nearly all of them were and are yet good singers.

Descendants of these three brothers, known by different names, are to be found in nearly all the States of the Union, and it is a source of no little satisfaction to the writer that not only many of the given names are yet bestowed upon the younger generations, but in the main their reputation compares favorahly with the general run of folks.

One of the boys while visiting Swallow Falls last summer saw an old prophet as old as the hills, who prophesied rain within twenty-four hours hy drops of water standing out on his face and it rained within twelve hours. What was the name of that prophet? J. A. ENLOW.

BITTINGER.

None escape vile gossips blight,
Nor be from censure free,
But this at least, I think we might
Be what we seem to be.

After a shut-down of two or three weeks while necessary repairs were being made, the George Kurtz saw mill, operating near this village, resumed operations last Monday morning.

Sheriff William Casteel was in this village on official business one day last week.

Last Sunday night, about mid night, an unoccupied dwelling, owned by the Morgart Coal Mining comapny, and located at their mine No. 1, between this village and Jennings, was burned to the ground. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, was called to this village a few days ago to attend Mrs. Lawrence Fortney, who is suffering from an attack of tonsilitis.

Prof. C. M. Friend visited his home folks at Friendsville over the last week-end.

Miss Elizabeth Powers, teacher of the Beachy school, spent last Saturday and Sunday with friends in Grantsville.

Messrs. Clark Brenneman and Earl Stark, who have been employed for some time at Maidsville, West Va., returned to their homes here last Saturday afternoon.

Olive Brenneman, who is employed in the home of Henry P. Miller, near Grantsville, visited her parents here last Sunday. Miss Brenneman was accompanied by Misses Alberta and Mary Martha Miller.

Clayford Deitrick, a student at the Accident High school, is now at his home here assisting his father in the operation of his sugar camp.

Rev. E. E. Campbell is actively interesting himself in arranging plans for the improvement of some of the local roads in the spring.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp made a business trip to Oakland one day last week in company with the Rev. E. E. Campbell.

Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp, accompanied by her son-in-law, Mr. Asa Orendorf, motored to Frostburg last Friday afternoon on business.

O. C. Buckle is erecting a new furnace in his sugar camp, preparator to beginning the gathering of the seasons crop of maple sweets.

Miss Nellie Beachy is now in charge of the Bower school recently vacated by Mrs. Gibson.

for you and your family

Bottled carbonated beverages really are food as well as drink. That's why doctors prescribe carbonated drinks and hospitals serve them regularly.

Besides finest sugar, our beverages contain only pure water and wholesome test-tempting flavors. It's the health-insuring process of corbonation that gives that tangzy zest, and prevents lurking germs.

Scientists state that the sugar, which is the food basis of your favorite bottled carbonated beverage becomes, by chemical action, what they term "invert sugar." This nourishing pre-digested food is instantly whisked into the blood stream. It banishes the feeling of fatigue and brings a flow of energy.

In our modern plant, every bottle is thoroughly sterilized and hermetically sealed.

Order your favorite carbonated beverage by the case, and keep a few bottles away on ice.

There are TEN FLAVORS from which to select.

The Editor's Reward.

The Editor died and went to Heaven
But stood outside the gate
Because he hadn't the nerve to knock
And thought that he would wait
'Til some other mortals came along—
He'd see what they would do
And if they entered the pearly gate
He thought he might slip through;
He watched the vast procession pass
Up to the portals wide,
While Peter told some they were up too high
And others he took inside.

The Editor, weary of waiting so long,
Finaily got in line
To see if Peter would accept him there
Or would with thanks decline—
He heard the sweet voiced angels sing
His eyes filled to the brim,
He shivered and shook in agony
Knowing his chances were slim—
"Ah, ha," said Peter, "An Editor here?"
(He laughed with pure delight)
"Why certainly, you may come right in
For all you did was write."
—"Slim Jim."

Library Benefit Picture.

Ryan's Glade Grange.

On Tuesday evening, January 25th, the newly elected officers of Ryan's Glade Grange were installed as follows: Master, Boyd Steyer; overseer, C. E. Shillingburg; lecturer, Le-Moine King; steward, Elbert Shockey; assistant steward, Leon Steyer; lady assistant steward, Miss Nellie Harvey; chaplain, J. B. Shockey; treasurer, Carlton Shillingburg; secretary, Scott Harvey; Ceres, Miss Scott Harvey; Pomona, Miss Nellie Steyer; Flora, Miss Hallie Harvey.

Miss Inez Scott was initiated in the first and second degrees on February 5th at the meeting of the Grange held upon that date.

Every member is requested to be present on February 22nd to attend the oyster supper which the Grange will serve that evening. R.W.H.

Two Successful Card Parties Held.

A benefit card party held for the Scouts by the Women's Auxiliary at organization, on last Thursday night, proved to be a great financial social success. A great many were sold to persons who could not present at the affair, however, the hall was crowded by those who had bought tickets and were able to attend. Five Hundred, Bridge and Flinch were the games played and refreshments were served by the ladies of the auxiliary. The winners of the respective prizes were: In bridge, 1st prize, Mr. J. C. Renninger; 2nd prize, Miss King, county health nurse; 3rd prize, Miss Burnadette Hart. In Five Hundred, 1st. prize, Mr. Sprigg Tower; 2nd, Mrs. Joseph Helbig; 3rd, Mrs. Alvie Gortner. In Flinch Mrs. Joseph E. Harned won first prize and Mrs. Anna Smouse won second.

The Pythian Sisters, of Garrett Temple, No. 17, held a benefit card party at the Knights of Pythias hall on Tuesday evening. There were 24 tables of players and the evening was an enjoyable one for those who were present. Prizes were given to both the gentlemen and ladies who made high score and the winners of the prizes were: Miss Emily Johnson and Mr. J. C. Renninger in Bridge; Mrs. Charles D. Bosley and Mr. Geo. D. Sprague in 500.

Crellin To Observe Thirtieth Anniversary Of Building Of Church.

Arrangements are being completed for the formal re[open]ing of the Crellin church. The building was erected in 1896 during the pastorate of J. L. B. J[ones] and the people of Crellin have been planning for several months a thirtieth (pearl) anniversary celebration. They have remodeled their church at a cost of about $1000 and are now planning for the formal reopening. The date that has been set is Sunday night, February 27th. Rev. William M. Shultz will preach. The committee in charge is J. C. Kendall, J. Frank Ashby and Homer Shaffer. A history of the Crellin church will be published next week.

Sunnyside Grange Notes.

At our last meeting, held on February 9th, we had a very enjoyable evening. Mr. Wilmer Brown, of Mt. Lake Park, entertained us with music from his accordion. We extend our thanks to Mr. Brown for his excellent renditions and invite him to come again. We had four visitors present, including County Agent McGlone, who seems to be a live wire. We had election of officers with results as follows: Master, George Brininger; overseer, Patsy Ridder; Lecturer, Paula Mae Brininger; Asa Nethkin; assistant steward, Mac Ridder; chaplain, Jennie Sanders; treasurer, J. H. Dunithan; secretary, B. Ba[ker]; gate keeper, Arthur [Ce]res, Lola Belle Green; Po[mona], Jessie Fulk; lady assistant stewar[d], Pope Moon.

We hope to see all members of the organization take an active part and assist the officers in making 1927 a booster grange year.

The oyster supper held on February 11th was a success. The proceeds go toward paying a debt owed on the piano. The committee wishes to extend their thanks to all who aided in the success of the supper. At our next regular meeting, which will be held on the 23rd inst., we will have installation of officers. In the near future we are expecting to have some movies.

Let's keep the ball rolling,
Do what e'er you have to do
With a true and honest zeal;
Bend your sinews to the task, and put your shoulder to the wheel.

Hutton Grange Notes.

Those members of the Hutton Grange who failed to attend the meeting on February 24th, surely missed an enjoyable time. An excellent song service was the main feature of the evening. Everybody present took a hearty part in the singing. Mr. J. A. Connell gave a splendid recitation of Longfellow's beautiful poem, "The Day is Done." Past Master B. C. Scott, Master-elect N. C. Sanders and others took part in a discussion of ways and means to make the Hutton Grange more interesting and helpful to the members and the community during the coming year. All members are asked to bear in mind the next meeting comes on the evening of February 28th, and are urged to be present as that occasion as the newly elected officers will be installed and a meeting of much interest will be conducted. Due to an oversight, no lecturer was elected. Therefore, the friends of the present and efficient lecturer, Mrs. Jessie Paulic, should attend and reelect her to another term.

Some Activities of The Bureau of Child Hygiene.

A course of four lectures for physicians on recent studies in subjects connected with the health of young children, will be given in different sections of the State during the winter under the auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health and the local medical societies, according to an announcement by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the Department.

Established in 1922, the Bureau of Child Hygiene is the youngest of the eight Bureaus of the State Department of Health. Its activities are limited in accordance with the laws under which its operates to advisory care of mothers and children under school age. Care of the health of older children with special reference to the control of catching diseases and the medical inspection of school children is included among the activities of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases.

The child hygiene work in each county is carried on in co-operation with the Deputy State Health Officer or the local health officer with the assistance of the local public health nurse. Much of it radiates from the child health conferences that have been organized in every county and are held at intervals. Each year there has been a steady increase in the number of children who have been brought to the conferences and a constantly growing interest on the part of the mothers in the advice that is given on the general health and care of the children. No medical treatments are given at these conferences. A report of each examination is always sent to the family physician.

In 1926, over [2]000 conferences—an increase of [1]/3 over the number in attendance in 1925, were examined. Of the [3]000 examined in 1926, nearly half—2907—were prospective first graders, children from five to seven years old who were given a health examination during the summer months in preparation for admission to school. The rest ranged in age from a few weeks or months to five years. The number of conferences held during the year was 358, or 48 more than in 1925. The number of places visited was 205, an increase of 14 over the number in 1925. Every county was visited.

The Republican Commercial printing department is one of the best equipped plants you will find. The work done in it is strictly high-class.

DISTURBED SLEEP
Caused From Bladder Irritation Is Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

Joseph Dow, R. 55, Trenton, N. J., says: "My rest at night was disturbed 10 to 20 times. Lithiated Buchu has relieved me of that terrible burning and smarting. I was told there was no help for me. I want others to know and will tell or write my experences."

Lithiated Buchu is not a patent medicine. The formula is on the package. It acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out abnormal deposits, lessens excessive acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "disturbed sleep." Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores. OPPORTUNITY FOR
Salesman or Salesmanager
To Sell Bonds In Garrett County

On or about February 27th, an old established New York Bond House will appoint its Garrett county distributor. This represents an opportunity for some salesman (with experience in securities) to associate himself with a live, well organized, reliable bond house, whose unusual co-operation has placed many men in the successful, financially independent class. No investment of money is required; no underwriting or other commitment need be made.

We have many successful men throughout the country who established themselves in the bond business in their own community, and, due to the liberal commissions we pay and the real help and assistance we give our men, are making an unusually attractive income themselves with full safety to the investor.

If you are one of those who are seeking a better and more profitable connection this year and for years to come, file your application now.

was a week-end visitor in Pittsburgh, Miss Anna McClain, of Frostburg, was the week-end guest of Miss Ruth Keller.

Mrs. Virginia Gutherie, of Meyersdale, was the guest of Mrs. T. O. Broadwater last week.

The members of the Lutheran Church council were entertained by their pastor, Rev. S. D. Sigler, at the parsonage in Salisbury, Pa., on Monday evening with a 7 o'clock dinner. The dining room was decorated suitable for the day—St. Valentine's—and the place cards were heart shaped. Those present were Dr. L. P. Young, Prof. H. K. Reamer, Rev. S. D. Sigler, of Salisbury; the members of the council present were H. P. Miller, William Winterberg, Wm. J. Wright, E. A. Beachy, Harvey Gortner and G. W. Diefenbach. Following the dinner, the regular monthly business meeting was held in the pastor's study.

The Sophomore class of the High school and their adviser, Miss Marion Price, gave a Valentine party to the Seniors. About 45 were in attendance. The decorations were suitable to the occasion. The entertainment of the evening was varied—progressive game of Hearts, followed by Cupid's Carnival and Lovers' Lane, with booths featuring; Dr. Ray's Love Machine, Game of Love, Pierced Hearts, Course of True Love and Pining for You, were enjoyed. Decorated hearts were used for tallies, and invitations and the favors were paired hearts. Valentine favors were presented to the Seniors. Refreshments were heart and love nut cookies, served by the Queen of Hearts; fruit punch and candies, served by the Witch. The prize was a heart shaped cake and was won by Frieda Warnick and Gordon Boucher.

Ward Beachy, the local decorator, is the fortunate owner of a piece of Colonial money, it being a paper fifty-cent piece, issued by the Colony of Maryland in 1774. Mr. Beachy found the piece among his father's papers. The seal of Maryland is printed on one end of the bill and this statement: "This indented bill of half a dollar shall entitle the bearer hereof to secure bills of exchange, payable in London in gold and silver at the rate of 4 shillings and six pence Sterling per dollar for the said bill, according to the directions of an Act of Assembly of Maryland, this 10th day of April, Anno Domino, 1774." The note bears a number put on with ink and two signatures, the names not being clear.

Prof. R. R. Webster entertained the 500 Club at the National Hotel on Monday evening. There was an extra table, the guests being Messrs. C. A. Bender, Otto Bender, W. E. Stanton and John Zehner. The Professor served oysters, any style, agreeable to the guests. Otto Bender won the prize and Mr. I. M. Staley won the consolation token.

Mr. George Hone, of Selbysport, spent several days with his sister, Miss Gertie Hone, this week.

Napoleon Had Planned Unification of Europe

But though dismisses Fouche from his ministerial post and has the watcher watched, Napoleon cannot get on without him and talks to him about the most private matters.

"Since my marriage people fancy that the lion is asleep. They will soon learn whether I am asleep. I need 800,000 men and have them; I shall tow all Europe in my wake. Europe is nothing more than an old woman and with my 800,000 men I can make her do whatever I please. . . . Did not you yourself say to me, 'You let your genius have its way, because it does not know the word impossible'? How can I help it if a great power drives me on to become dictator of the world? You and the others, who criticize me today and would like me to become a good-natured ruler—have not you all been accessories? I have not yet fulfilled my mission and I mean to end what I have begun. We need a European legal code, a European court of appeal, a unified coinage, a common system of weights and measures. The same law must run throughout Europe. I shall fuse all the nations into one."—From "Napoleon, the Man of Destiny," by Emil Ludwig.

Originality Shown in Ordering of Funerals

Two Englishmen and one English lady, who certainly did not know each other, decided practically at the same time to have fantastic funerals, Pierre Van Paasen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. Harry Armour, one of them, twenty-four years old, who committed suicide, left a note in which he ordered that he was to be buried in hunting costume, booted and spurred, with rifle in his arms and a plentiful supply of cartridges in his coffin. Then there was Colonel Samson of Hastings, who demanded that his corpse be dumped in the middle of the channel. We learn from the Dover Gazette that his funeral had at least the compensation of a "jolly trip on a bright, sunny day." In London, a young lady, Miss Edith Koll, aged twenty, asked that she be laid out in her best evening gown, with dancing slippers and a small grumophone in the casket. She personally selected a number of jazz records, which were buried with her. All three expressed themselves believers in the resurrection of the body. The lady is the most orighal of all. When that last morn comes, and Gabriel blows his trumpet, she wants to organize a two-piece orchestra, no doubt.

Dog's Smart Trick

An old hunter says that on one occasion a small dog belonging to him chased and caught up with a very large raccoon. The dog flew at his enemy and tried to shake him, but the raccoon, being quick, caught the dog by the side of the head.

His teeth were sharp and his hold firm, so that the dog found it impossible to break loose. Suddenly, as if a bright idea had occurred to him, the dog began to drag the raccoon into a neighboring creek.

Once in the water the dog held the raccoon under the surface, adroitly keeping his own nose out, until the raccoon released his grip. Then the dog easily mastered the half-drowned animal.

Not in This World

Men and women do not get along well. The quarrel is mainly about money. A woman never seems to care much because her husband isn't as much of a lover as when they were first engaged. She doesn't expect it; and realizes she has cooled off, too. We have learned that these things are natural, but men are still shocked at the extravagance of women, and women are still shocked at the stinginess of men. Is there any way of coming to a better understanding on this subject money?—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Comedienne

Here's another one on Allen. A visitor recently dropped in a restaurant on the "main drag" and after perusing the menu, ordered the native dish of sauerkraut and spare ribs. There must have been an unusually heavy run on that savory platter, for the Pennsylvania Dutch waitress shook her head and said: "All." Wishing to be funny, the man returned: "All what?" She: "All over." He: "All over what?" She finally: "All over with."—Philadelphia Record.

First Fossil

What is probably the first fossil to have been collected by man is in the possession of Barnum Brown, associate curator of fossil reptiles in the American Museum of Natural History. The priceless relic is an elephant's tooth dating back around 5,000,000 years and was picked up by Mr. Brown in the ruins of the Asklepieion, the medical school of ancient Greece, where Hippocrates, the father of medicine, carried on his studies.

Roman Numerals

The Romans had no symbols to indicate mathematical processes and operations. Orginally they expressed every process and operation in words of full length. Their mathematical calculations were never simplified further than to abbreviate centum, 100, into C; mille, 1,000, into M, and so on. The Romans were never reputed specially good mathematicians and they contributed little to the science.

All Knowledge Not Possessed by Youth

Dear me, with all their superior knowledge, how ignorant the younger generation, one might say the youngest generation, is about some things. A new story came into the house and mother essayed to read it aloud. It was about "gypsies." Hardly had she begun when a chorus of small voices asked, "What's a 'gypsy'?" And it was hard explaining about a covered wagon, for the next question was, "What's a 'wagon'?" And some didn't even understand what a "pair of horses" was. Never did mother have it brought home to her so keenly that this was an automobile age.

And there is nothing that makes a high-school pupil feel that her mother is more ancient than to have that sar mother say, "There were no autombiles in my high-school days; we always went buggy riding." Instantly the high-school maiden thinks of her mother, as dated some time before the Civil war, and one high school child had the nerve to question her mother as to her experiences during the Revolutionary war.

Mother came back at daughter a bit, though. She said casually, "There was no such thing as a radio in your life until you reached high-school age, was there?" Daughter tried to prove that radio only happened the other day, as it were, but mother emphasized her point that inventions are coming along faster than people are.—Springfield Union.

Credit for "Want Ad" Goes to Englishman

In 1672 John Houghton, a fellow of the Royal society, established a weekly paper for the improvement of husbandry and trade, and undertook to educate the merchants of England in the art of advertising, says World's Work.

First he established a bureau for supplying servants to masters and masters to servants, carrying on operations through advertising. From this he went into the advertising of schools, houses and lodgings to let and so forth, laying down the idea of what has grown into our present "want ads."

He instructed the public class by class, inducing lawyers, physicians and farmers to use his columns and built up a large miscellaneous patronage for his paper. The clergy in particular found his columns an excellent medium for securing or disposing of second-hand sermons, for there were no Monday morning papers in those days, with ever-present reporters, a sermon could be preached around various parishes until it was worn

Jewels in Watches

Watches do not have even numbers of jewels. If a watch has 23 jewels then the going barrel or center and third wheel, the fourth wheel escape wheel, the lever and the balance have a whole jewel at each end which make 14. The balance, the lever and the escape wheel have end stones as well, which make 6 more. Then there are 3 jewels in the escapement, which make 23. If the movement has 21 jewels, then the hole jewels of the going barrel have been omitted. If 19, the end stones of the escapement wheel have been omitted also. If the watch has only 7 jewels, they usually consist of the 3 escapement jewels and 2 end stones for the balance arbor.

Legend of Faust

Faustus (D. Johann Faust) was a person born at Kundling, Wurttemberg, or at Roda, near Weimar. He is said to have died in 1538. He was a magician, soothsayer and astrologer, and boasted of having performed the miracles of Christ. It was believed that the magician was carried off by the devil, who had lived with him in the form of a black dog. Legends say that this event occurred on the night between the twenty-third and twenty-fourth of October, 1538. Goethe's tragedy (published in 1808) is based on the Faust legends.

Must Have Pulled Hard

The occupation of dentistry is not really rated as dangerous. Unless a dentist snaps at a dentist while the latter has with one of the former's molars, and even does a patient act in such a way, it is small hazard to the profession.

Nevertheless at times accidents do occur. A man tortured by toothache called up a dentist and begged him for help. The office attendant replied that Doctor Soanso regretted to state he would be unable to take patients for some days to come as he had sprained his wrist pulling a tooth.

Beauty in Dislocation

A peculiarity of the Siamese dancing girls is the position of their fingers, which are held at all times turned upward as much as possible. Not turned up to heaven, but turned the way opposite to the normal bend of the knuckles. This is considered very beautiful, and dancing girls spend long hours pressing their fingers against their knees to the point almost of dislocation in order to induce the desired back curve.—Adventure Magazine.

Music and Literary.

The members of the Dramatic Club of the Holmes & Wallace Studio gave a very pretty and entertaining program at the studios last week. It was divided into four parts, the first being a scene, "The Wedding Morning" from "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan; the second was three scenes from "Her Letter" by Bret Hart; the third was two illustrated ballads, "A Bunch of Cowslips" by Wakefield and "The Clang of the Hammer" by Bonheur, and the last was a farce, "Mrs. Willis's Will". Incidental piano music throughout the evening was played by Miss Mable Younkin.

The Editor's Reward.

The Editor died and went to Heaven
But stood outside the gate
Because he hadn't the nerve to knock
And thought that he would wait
'Til some other mortals came along—
He'd see what they would do
And if they entered the pearly gate
He thought he might slip through;
He watched the vast procession pass
Up to the portals wide,
While Peter told some they were up too high
And others he took inside.

The Editor, weary of waiting so long.
Finally got in line
To see if Peter would accept him there
Or would with thanks decline—
He heard the sweet voiced angels sing
His eyes filled to the brim.
He shivered and shook in agony
Knowing his chances were slim—
"Ah, ha," said Peter, "An Editor here?"
(He laughed with pure delight)
"Why certainly, you may come right in
For all you did was write."
—"Slim Jim."

Miss Inez Scott was initiated in the first and second degrees on February 5th at the meeting of the Grange held upon that date.

Every member is requested to be present on February 22nd to attend the oyster supper which the Grange will serve that evening.

wo Successful Card Parties Held.

benefit card party held for the Scouts by the Women's Auxiliary organization, on last Thursday, proved to be a great financial social success. A great many were sold to persons who could present at the affair, however, hall was crowded by those who d bought tickets and were able to attend. Five Hundred, Bridge and Flinch were the games played and refreshments were served by the ladies of the auxiliary. The winners of the respective prizes were: In bridge, 1st prize, Mr. J. C. Renninger; 2nd prize, Miss King, county health nurse; 3rd prize, Miss Burnadette Hart. In Five Hundred, 1st. prize, Mr. Sprigg Tower; 2nd, Mrs. Joseph Helbig; 3rd, Mrs. Alvie Gortner. In Flinch Mrs. Joseph E. Harned won first prize and Mrs. Anna Smouse won second.

The Pythian Sisters, of Garrett Temple, No. 17, held a benefit card party at the Knights of Pythias hall on Tuesday evening. There were 24 tables of players and the evening was an enjoyable one for those who were present. Prizes were given to both the gentlemen and ladies who made high score and the winners of the prizes were: Miss Emily Johnson and Mr. J. C. Renninger in Bridge; Mrs. Charles D. Bosley and Mr. Geo. D. Sprague in 500.

Crellin To Observe Thirtieth Anniversary Of Building Of Church.

Arrangements are being m[illegible]ay completed for the formal re[illegible]ning of the Crellin church. The building was erected in 1896 d[illegible]g the pastorate of J. L. B[illegible]s and the people of Crellin h[illegible] been planning for several[illegible]ns a thirtieth (pearl) anniversary celebration. They have remodeled their church at a cost of about $1000 and are now planning for the formal reopening. The date that has been set is Sunday night, February 27th. Rev. William M. Shultz will preach. The committee in charge is J. C. Kendall, J. Frank Ashby and Homer Shaffer. A history of the Crellin church will be published next week.

Sunnyside Grange Notes.

At our last meeting, held on February 9th, we had a very enjoyable evening. Mr. Wilmer Brown, of Mt. Lake Park, entertained us with music from his accordion. We extend our thanks to Mr. Brown for his excellent conditions and invite him to come again. We had four visitors present, including County Agent McGlone, who seems to be a live wire. We had election of officers with results as follows: Master, George Brauninger; overseer, Patty Ridder; lecturer, Pearle Moo[illegible]rd, Ivan Nethkin; assistant steward, Mac Ridder; chaplain, Jennie Sanders; treasurer, J. H. Dunithan; secretary [illegible] B. Ba[illegible]r; gate keeper, Arthu[illegible] Ceres, Lola Belle Green; Po[illegible] [illegible]ssie Fulk; lady assistant stewa[illegible] [illegible]pe Moon.

We hope to see all members of the organization take an active part and assist the officers in making 1927 a booster grange year.

The oyster supper held on February 11th was a success. The proceeds go toward paying a debt owed on the piano. The committee wishes to extend their thanks to all who aided in the success of the supper. At our next regular meeting, which will be held on the 23rd inst., we will have installation of officers. In the near future we are expecting to have some movies.

Let's keep the ball rolling,
Do what e'er you have to do
With a true and honest zeal;
Bend your sinews to the task, and put your shoulder to the wheel.

Hutton Grange Notes.

Those members of the Hutton Grange who failed to attend the meeting on February 24th, surely missed an enjoyable time. An excellent song service was the main feature of the evening. Everybody present took a hearty part in the singing. Mr. J. A. Cornell gave a splendid recitation of Longfellow's beautiful poem, "The Day is Done." Past Master B. C. Scott, Master-elect N. C. Sanders and others took part in a discussion of ways and means to make the Hutton Grange more interesting and helpful to the members and the community during the coming year. All members are asked to bear in mind the next meeting comes on the evening of February 28th, and are urged to be present upon that occasion as the newly elected officers will be installed and a meeting of much interest will be conducted. Due to an oversight, no lecturer was elected. Therefore, the friends of the present and efficient lecturer, Mrs. Jessie Paulie, should attend and reelect her to another term.

Some Activities of The Bureau of Child Hygiene.

A course of four lectures for physicians on recent studies in subjects connected with the health of young children, will be given in different sections of the State during the winter under the auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health and the local medical societies, according to an announcement by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the Department.

Established in 1922, the Bureau of Child Hygiene is the youngest of the eight Bureaus of the State Department of Health. Its activities are limited in accordance with the laws under which its operates to advisory care of mothers and children under school age. Care of the health of older children with special reference to the control of catching diseases and the medical inspection of school children is included among the activities of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases.

The child hygiene work in each county is carried on in co-operation with the Deputy State Health Officer or the local health officer with the assistance of the local public health nurse. Much of it radiates from the child health conferences that have been organized in every county and are held at intervals. Each year there has been a steady increase in the number of children who have been brought to the conferences and a constantly growing interest on the part of the mothers in the advice that is given on the general health and care of the children. No medical treatments are given at these conferences. A report of each examination is always sent to the family physician.

In 1926, over 6,0[illegible] children were brought to the [illegible]erences—an increase of [illegible] than a thousand over the [illegible] in attendance in 1925, [illegible]97 were examined. Of the 5,000 examined in 1926, nearly half—2907—were prospective first graders, children from five to seven years old who were given a health examination during the summer months in preparation for admission to school. The rest ranged in age from a few weeks or months to five years. The number of conferences held during the year was 358, or 48 more than in 1925. The number of places visited was 205, an increase of 14 over the number in 1925. Every county was visited.

The Republican Commercial printing department is one of the best equipped plants you will find. The work done in it is strictly high-class.

DISTURBED SLEEP

Joseph Dow, R. 55, Trenton, N. J., says: "My rest at night was disturbed 10 to 20 times. Lithiated Buchu has reduced this and entirely relieved me of that terrible burning and smarting. I was told there was no help for me. I want others to know and will tell or write my experences."

Lithiated Buchu is not a patent medicine. The formula is on the package. It acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out abnormal deposits, lessens excessive acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "disturbed sleep." Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores. OPPORTUNITY FOR
To Sell Bonds In Garrett County

On or about February 27th, an old established New York Bond House will appoint its Garrett county distributor. This represents an opportunity for some salesman (with experience in securities) to associate himself with a live, well organized, reliable bond house, whose unusual co-operation has placed many men in the successful, financially independent class. No investment of money is required; no underwriting or other commitment need be made.

We have many successful men throughout the country who established themselves in the bond business in their own community, and, due to the liberal commissions we pay and the real help and assistance we give our men, are making an unusually attractive income themselves with full safety to the investor.

If you are one of those who are seeking a better and more profitable connection this year and for years to come, file your application now.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially for Readers of The Republican by Rev. U. S. Wright, D. D.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1927.

SERVING IN AND THRU THE CHURCH.—Matt. 5: 13; Acts 2: 42-47.

e are God's fellow-workers.—I Corinthians 3:9.

WHAT IS THE CHURCH?

Here is an institution that vitally affects all the life of the community of which it may happen to be a part, for like the leaven it refuses to be content with any less circumference. And it is daringly determined to reach the whole world in the same fashion. What do we have in our mind as we use the term Church? Manifestly not simply the Lutheran, Baptist, Methodist or any other denominational section of it. Nor is Catholic or Protestant any better. And there are far more people in the Mohammedan or the Buddhist churches than in the audacious group of Christians who are set on sweeping all mankind within their circle. Paul called it the Temple of God. That old building had been the passion of every Jew and it was meant to be the shrine in which God dwelt. Its glory was that Holy of Holies in which gleamed the Holy Fire. But that building passed and God needed a new house in which He might live among the people of earth. The Church in which each member is a living stone become such a dwelling place for the Almighty and only as He dwells in it is it in any sense His Church. Again it is the body of Christ who is its head. And here each member becomes a living organ necessary to the completeness of the form and the whole body is the essential means by which Christ may express His life among men. Or it is the family of God, the household of saints. What a complete picture and how fascinating it is! From oldest age to helpless baby-hood there is both room and need in the family life. Each shares all that is possessed by any and each gives something to that life that is included within the term. So Paul was continually trying to bring to the minds of those among whom he worked some picture that would help them to understand this new movement in which he was trying to have them share. Certainly anything less than the inclusion of every sharer of the life of God is too limited to apply to the word Church and any division among these that hinder the completest expression of the life of God is destructive of the whole Church just as a bit of diseased tissue may destroy the whole body after impairing its complete serving of the will of its Head.

HOW CAME THE CHURCH?

In every one of the figures applied to an interpretation of the term it is the indwelling spirit that gives vitality to it. If the Spirit is not there it it but an empty shrine, a lifeless body, a disrupted family. Jesus gathered about Him a group of believers who followed Him during the days of His flesh and continued to fellowship after the Cross. The growth of the organization is perfectly simple for it proceeded along the lines of all other social groups. Those who best understood Jesus and had been most intimate with Him assumed leadership because they were the constant answerers of the questions arising among all the group. With the increase in numbers there were added details to care for and each of these called for some one to care for it so that the Church has been a growing organism ever since with the changing form that becomes necessary to meet new conditions as they arise. There is no sacred machinery in the Church but there must always be effective machinery. It is a part of our task to discard outworn bits that need alteration. But the living Church is not found in its machinery, however perfect for the attainment of its ends it may be. In that old picture in Genesis God made the body of man and then breathed in him a living soul and humanity began its conquest of the earth and its forces. In precisely the same fashion Jesus formed the early body of the Church of God. It was merely a dead body or, if one uses the evolutionary terms, a body that was in search of a soul. Then came Pentecost. There was breathed into the body the living Spirit and the Church began its quest after the fashion of its earlier prototype. And the inbreathed Spirit is the only security for the continuing life of the Church. Jesus very clearly indicated that the economic world would find its bond in the following of the Golden Rule. Within the life of any community the bond was to be the loving of others as one loves himself. But one thing distinguishes the Church form all other groups in the world, for its members are to "love one another as I have loved you." And that is the Spirit of Christ in the heart of the Church.

WHAT IS THE CHURCH FOR?

In those words of Jesus its members were to be the saving salt of earthly life. And it is just as true now as then that the real light and salvation for society is in the following of the teachings of Jesus. Where it goes it prevents decay in the social order. Where it goes it drives out the things that darken the social life. In the slight sketch we are given of the workings of it in the warm fellowship of those early days in Jerusalem there was the swift coming of joy among them all so that grief was banished as they shared each other's worship. For they all shared in it and every member of the group found development for the new Spirit that burned in his heart. There was teaching, for they continued in the Apostles' Doctrin. This could only be learned by listening, observing and expressing so that the first Church was a school. There was a new social life for they went from house to house, they ate together, there was abundant fellowship so that the Church was a big family with wholesome social expressiveness. The recreational side of life that is being emphasized today was the earliest expression of the Church in terms many of which can be a part of its life now as then. It was sheer wholesome joyousness. It was a sharing of possession. No one was compelled to part with anything that was his but the love was too much the life for one to see another's need and not seek to meet it. They gave eagerly, joyously and generously so that there was no lack among them that could be supplied. In worship they used the old forms and the old places but they were radiantly changed in this singing shouting group of lovers of both the Lord and of folks. So there was in that early day some of the things that should characterize the life of the Church in all the days. Its worship was spontaneous and sincere. Its teaching was definite and clear. Its social life held no class barriers and ministered to every need of the friendship side of living. Its giving was equal to the needs to be met. It was sacrificial always and was based upon the idea of personal stewardship for no one said that what he had was his own. And it set its face toward the making of Jesus King of the world by making Him the complete ruler of every part of every life, a goal we need to keep before us.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Mary B. Dolly vs. John E. Dolly.
No. 2718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonn by Mary B. Dolly from John E. Dolly, her husband.

The bill states that the parties were married on the 11th day of May, 1922, at Bayard, West Virginia, and lived together until July, 1925; and that although the conduct of the said Mary B. Dolly toward her husband, John E. Dolly, has always been kind, loving and affectionate, and her entire conduct has always been above reproach, that the said John E. Dolly has committed the crime of adultery with certain lewd and abandoned women in and about the States of Maryland and West Virginia, and that the said Mary B. Dolly is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been for more than two years prior to the filing of this bill, but that the said John E. Dolly is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 4th day of February, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in equity, that the plaintiff, Mary B. Dolly, by inserting a copy of this order in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks on or before the 25th day of March, 1927, give notice to the said John E. Dolly of the object and substance of this suit, warning him to be and appear in this Court on or before the 11th day of April, 1927, either in person or by solicitor, and show cause, if any he has, why the decree prayed and the relief sought ought not to be granted.

WHERE WILL THE PLUCKING STOP?

The Baltimore Sun of Sunday, realizing what the proposed gasoline tax means to the pleasure seekers, the truck drivers or others who use this commodity daily, well ask the question set forth in the caption of its editorial, given above, and continues:

A tax as easily raised as that imposed upon gasoline presents an irresistible attraction in the search for revenue, the only limit likely to be placed upon it being a rate at which it ceases to be productive. Presumably, the five-cent tax now proposed comes within the range its advocates believe will not reduce consumption. At this time it is to be noted that a bothersome fraction of half a cent may be disposed of, not by dropping the figure to four cents, but by increasing it to five, the half million dollars more thus to be taken out of the pockets of the motor vehicle owners being looked upon as a bagatelle.

It is new money the State is finding, and it is not likely to be reflected in decrease in taxation in other directions. The motorist will bear the cost of improving lateral roads, abutting property will take on additional value and assessment, the taxable basis will go up and while the rate may not increase the total sum taken from taxpayers will.

The additional burden is placed upon those who are now contributing more than $5,000,000 to maintain highways. It admittedly falls with great injustice on certain classes of business and on certain individuals. The law would change methods of building lateral roads long in vogue and against which little serious objection has arisen, always an inadvisable thing to do unless the advantages of the change are many and obvious.

These methods have been a check upon lateral road-building at an unwarranted pace because of the local incidence of taxation for it. There is no assurance, in the event it is discovered that the motor vehicle goose can be plucked without a squawk which must be listened to, that more feathers will not be taken from him for an enlarged program of lateral road construction or for any other purpose the State wishes to advance. The fact that the proposal involves one of the higest rates of gasoline taxation levied in the United States in itself suggests the unwisdom of it.

ADVERTISING

Advertising lowers the cost of merchandise for the reason that it increases turnover of merchandise. A merchant must turn over his goods several times a year to enjoy a profitable business. Goods on the shelf mean nothing until sold, for they become shelf-worn and out of date. The unsold goods often represent huge losses.

The time to sell merchandise is when it is seasonable and new. The proper advertising which constantly calls attention to new goods, new styles, etc., creates a demand and sells merchandise. Turn over of goods supplies new capital with which to restock.

Newspaper advertising is the merchant's greatest friend, a huge magnet which attracts people to his store. And unless used regularly, it is sure to lose much of its pulling power.

Nearly every merchant of the present day believes in advertising, but many do not have the courage of their convictions to advertise consistently. They do not come to the point where an appropriation is set aside for regular use. Some people believe they have saved money by not using newspaper space. Show us a merchant who is a consistent buyer of newspaper space who is not a successful business man. Statistics show that 85 per cent of the business failures of 1925 were non-advertisers. It is not impossible to do business without advertising, but it is impossible to reach the goal that should have been theirs. Frequently you will see merchants who are doing a successful business who are not advertisers. But what might their business not have been if they had used it year after year? Perhaps, instead of a small store, a large department store might have grown in its place, or on the other hand, the merchant might have been retired for the rest of his life instead of worrying over business today.

Wrigley did not make millions on a five-cent article by keeping his commodity a secret. He spent his last dollar on his first advertisement—it pulled and he continued it until today his product is known all over the world. And it is just a five-cent article. Doesn't a merchant with hundreds of different article have a greater opportunity than Wrigley?

The statement that 85 per cent of the business failures of 1925 were among non-advertisers certainly speaks volumes. Could there be a more convincing argument for advertising than that?

A School Traffic Court.

A patrolman interested in children and a parochial school with a good spirit of co-operation have started something in one Cleveland locality that might well be copied elsewhere—Oakland, for instance.

The school has its own traffic court to which offenders are brought and tried and, if convicted, sentenced to some punishment—perhaps staying after school and writing out traffic rules one hundred times.

The school has its own police force of 19 pupils, mayor, elected council, judges and jurors. There are even public defenders to help the arrested pupils if they need such legal aid. Punishable traffic offenses include items like these:

Hopping on wagons or trucks;
Not crossing streets at cross walks;
Dodging through traffic.

Well, the workings of that system are nothing short of marvelous, in the opinion of a city judge who visited the school recently to observe the pupils carrvingout their responsibilities. They are learning lots of things such as safety rules, city traffic regulations, the connection between violating a rule and punishment, good citizenship and co-operation with the blue-coated traffic officers of the police force. It is an excellent list of things for school children to learn, and the process does not interfere with their regular schooling, either.

Dairy Meetings To Take Place Next Week.

"We are assured of the dairy meetings we have been expecting for some weeks," said Mr. W. Z. Hendrickson the other morning. "The meetings are being billed for the 21st at Sunnyside Grange Hall and at the Accident High School auditorium on the 23rd inst."

The correspondence which he has had with Mr. H. C. Weghorst, of St. Louis, informs him that in place of the contemplated lectures there will be substituted a play, "Joe Guess Wins $1,000. The purpose of the play is identical with that of a lecture, namely, to arouse an interest in better feeding methods among the farmers and dairymen and to show each dairyman how he can produce milk at a lower rate per gallon. But the facts are dressed into an interesting form with plenty of sketches of comedy to make it really an evening of entertainment as well as information.

Mr. Weghorst will take the part of Bob Profit, the leading character in the play. The other characters are Joe Guess, Bill Know and Mr. Shaw, the Banker. Joe Guess, the dairyman, who does not believe in better dairy methods, is the chief comedian with his laughable comments each time Know and Profit attempt to show him better methods.

The play is given at Sunnyside under the management of W. Z. Hendrickson and at Accident it will be under the management of the Unique Milling Company of Friendsville.

O. H. S. To Honor Washington Tomorrow.

Nine dollars was realized by the Biology class on Monday afternoon, when that class presented a Valentine play entitled "Changed Valentines." The play was under the direction of Miss Janice Fulgham, and was a pleasing entertainment and enjoyed by the pupils of the school. The proceeds will be used for more equipment for the Biology department of the school.

The O. H. S. Glee club traded the old victrola for a new Victor Orthophonic, which is a dandy. Come and hear it.

A bronze medal was awarded Miss Pauline Smouse by the Underwood Typewriter company for accomplishing the wonderful feat of writing correctly forty-seven words a minute. A certificate of honor was awarded to Miss Ruth Kepner for writing thirty words a minute.

Program For Friday.

In honor of the first President of the United States, Section A of the third year history class will present on his birthday anniversary, "The Love Affair of George Washington From Seventeen to Sixty-one," in the High school auditodium, on Friday, February 18th, at 2:30 o'clock. The characters will be as follows:

George Washington ..Lester Winters
The Loveland Beauty, Louise Michael
Frances Alexander, ..Beryldean Fulk
Martha Curtiss, ...Evelyn Bosley

This play promises to be very entertaining and we hope you will come to see it. Admission is free. We are only too happy to entertain our friends and patrons whenever possible. It is up to you to make it possible. LITERARY SECRETARY.

MARRIED.

Walker-Everhart—Yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Lutheran Parsonage here, Miss Mary Louise Everhart, of Elkins, West Va., became the bride of William Daniel Walker, Jr., of Kitzmiller, Md.

The ceremony was preformed by the Rev. Charles A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, who used the ring ceremony.

Miss Everhart will be remembered by many in this community as an instructor in English and French in the Oakland High school last year. She was this year a student at the Fairmont State Normal school.

Mr. Walker is at present assistant foreman for the Hamill Coal & Coke company in Kitzmiller.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Walker left Oakland for a few day's honeymoon, after which they will return to Kitzmiller where they will reside.

The Pythina Sisters wish to extend their thanks to all who attended their card party, and especially those who loaned their tables and assisted at the party Tuesday night.—Adv. 1t.

Members of all denominations are cordially invited to hear Miss Otto at the church above named.

Fire of undetermined origin was discovered beneath the floor of the Nally building at four o'clock Friday morning hy James Nally. Upon investigation it was found that a gas pipe had become disconnected and in some unaccountable manner the gas had ignited. The flames from the open pipe had ignited some of the woodwork but no serious damage resulted.

Mr. William Lawton was at Beaver Falls, Pa., last Wednesday and Thursday. As he was returning home on Thursday his automobile skidded on the snow at a point near Sand Flat, six miles north of town, and before the driver could regain control of the machine it had left the roadway and brought up again a stump some distance in a field. Fortunatley the driver escaped injury and the machine was but slightly damaged.

Fined For Assault.

Harry Rodeheaver was fined $25 and costs and Delphi Rodeheaver was fined $5 and costs last Friday by Magistrate E. I. West for having committed an assault on Jehu Landis at Deer Park a day or two before the hearing.

The assault was committed, it is said, because of the outgrowth of a quarrel the men had more than a year ago, and which was over the setting of some steel traps by Landis. Sheriff Casteel made the arrest after Landis made information before the Magistrate. All the men are from near Deer Park.

Kenmore House to Be Preserved for the Nation

George Washington's Virginia kinswoman was present to bid visitors welcome to the one exhibit at the Sesquicentennial where floated the flag of the Old Dominion.

She was very much at home there, Miss Fannie Washington, for the exhibit of the Kenmore association in the Palace of Education was a reproduction of the backporch of the mansion at Fredericksburg, Va., where once dwelt her great-great-grandaunt, Betty Washington Lewis, George Washington's oldest sister.

Her great-great-grandniece, George, sat on that pleasant porch through many a summer twilight in the days when as a young man he used to visit his sister at Fredericksburg or drop in from his mother's home, right next door.

Generals Met on Porch.

And when he virtually had achieved the independence of his country George Washington invited all the generals who had helped him win the battle of Yorktown to visit Fredericksburg and to meet his mother and sister. There on that porch they talked over the great victory and the happy days that dawned ahead.

At the exposition, Miss Washington, who comes from Fauquier county, Virginia, sat on the steps of Great-Great-Grandaunt Betty's house, looking out into the bit of garden before the door, where ivy grew from four of Washington's Virginia homes, and strummed a banjo, and sang old songs that have been handed down in the family since the days of her great-great-grandfather, Samuel Washington, George Washington's brother.

She is a Carter as well as a Washington—her mother descended from "King" Carter, a baronial Virginian of early days, who earned his title by the way in which he ruled over the destinies of the colonists of the Northern Neck, a great domain ceded to him by his monarch and personal friend, King Charles II.

Many strange vicissitudes did the old mansion suffer before the Kenmore association was formed, four years ago, to rescue Kenmore and preserve it as a historic spot.

Site and Mansion Bought.

The site and the mansion now have been bought, thanks to gifts of $30,000, from a host of generous donors. But further funds still are needed to complete the work of restoring the garden to its pristine state—that's the reason why the Kenmore association [illegible] at the Sesquicentennial. The managers have proud right to say that not one dollar of the funds given ever has been used for "overhead expenses." The service of the association's administrators is all volunteer service.

When George Washington's sister, Betty, married Fielding Lewis, the bridegroom was a man of wealth—quite the richest man in old Fredericksburg. He provided a fine home for his wife—a capacious mansion with brick walls two feet thick and with a slate roof, set in the midst of a plantation of 851 acres. Brother George surveyed the site and himself designed the beautiful plaster ornamentation, in elaborate Georgian modeling, which enriches the ceilings and panels about the fireplaces. He sent Hessian prisoners to execute this work—after the battle of Trenton.

At the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, Colonel Lewis made the first guns for the Colonial soldiers. Toward the end of the Revolution, when funds were low, Colonel Lewis raised £40,000 to aid the cause of independence. He himself advanced £7,000 of his own funds for the guns that won the battle of Yorktown—and never was repaid! He died two weeks after the battle of Yorktown, and the old house was seized for debts.

The old Kenmore house at Fredericksburg, Va., upon which porch General Washington spent many twilight hours dreaming and planning.

George Preserves Mansion.

But George Washington, the richest American of his day, came to the rescue of his sister and her seven children, and saw to it that the mansion remained their home till all the young folks were grown.

The mansion and the plantation eventually passed into other hands. At last only two acres of the original 851 remained attached to the house. Meanwhile Fredericksburg had grown—it now has some 7,000 inhabitants—and there was talk of tearing down the old mansion or turning it into an apartment house.

Then patriotic Virginians came to the rescue. The Kenmore association was formed, to protect this house, as an important historic monument of the Fredericksburg Washington called "the place of my growing infancy," the Fredericksburg where Washington threw a Spanish dollar across the Rappahannock, the Fredericksburg opposite which was the Ferry farm, his boyhood home.

Mrs. Fleming Heads Society.

The president of the Kenmore association is Mrs. V. M. Fleming of Fredericksburg. Its field secretary is Mrs. Fleming's daughter, Annie Fleming Smith—Mrs. H. H. Smith—herself great-great-grandniece of Patrick Henry and Dolly Madison. Mrs. James Starr is chairman of the Pennsylvania branch of the Kenmore association, and there is a chairman in every state.

In the Kenmore association's exhibit at the Palace of Education photographs were shown of many details of the gracious and dignified interior and exterior of the old mansion, of its historic furnishings, many of them Washington family heirlooms, and of a horse-chestnut tree still flourishing next to the house—sole survivor of 15 planted there by Washington himself, to shade his mother when she walked over from her home next door.

There were historic pieces in the exhibit, too—such as the side-table once used by Mary Ball Washington, the mother of George Washington, when she dwelt next door to Kenmore.

"Having seen the porch of Kenmore, now don't fail to pay a visit to Kenmore itself!"—so Miss Washington and Mrs. Smith adjured a visitor to the Kenmore association exhibit at the Sesquicentennial.

Historic Battle Scenes.

They promised much reward in such a visit, a sight of the Rappahannock valley, of the rare picturesqueness and natural beauty; a chance to visit the scenes of the battles such as Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania and the two battles of Fredericksburg—all fought during the Civil war, within fifteen miles of Fredericksburg; and a chance to see the home town of the Washingtons and the Lees, of John Paul Jones, and the seven generals of the Revolutionary war—the town, too, where Madison and Monroe were educated.

Also the scene of the first American Declaration of Independence. The Declaration was adopted at a meeting in Fredericksburg of a committee of which Colonel Lewis was chairman, on April 29, 1775, fifteen months before a certain well known Fourth of July, and two days before the Mecklenburg (N. C.) Declaration of Independence.

THE NAME OF WASHINGTON

Some of the youth and the truth of a nation,
Ye that are met to remember the man
Whose valor gave birth to a people's salvation,
Honor him now, set his name in the van.
A nobleness to try for,
A name to live and die for—
The name Washington!

Calmly his face shall look down through the ages—
Sweet yet severe with a spirit of warning;
Charged with the wisdom of saints and of sages;
Quick with the light of a life-giving morning.
A majesty to try for,
A name to live and die for—
The name of Washington!

Though factions may rock us, or party divide us,
And bitterness break the gold links of our story,
Our father and leader is ever beside us.
Live and forgive! But forget not the glory
Of him whose height we try for,
A name to live and die for—
The name of Washington!

Still in his eyes shall be mirrored our fleeting
Days with the image of days long ended;
Still shall those eyes give, immortally, greeting
Unto the souls from his spirit descended.
His grandeur we shall try for,
His name we'll live and die for—
The name of Washington!

—George Parsons Lathrop.

Washington From Human Viewpoint

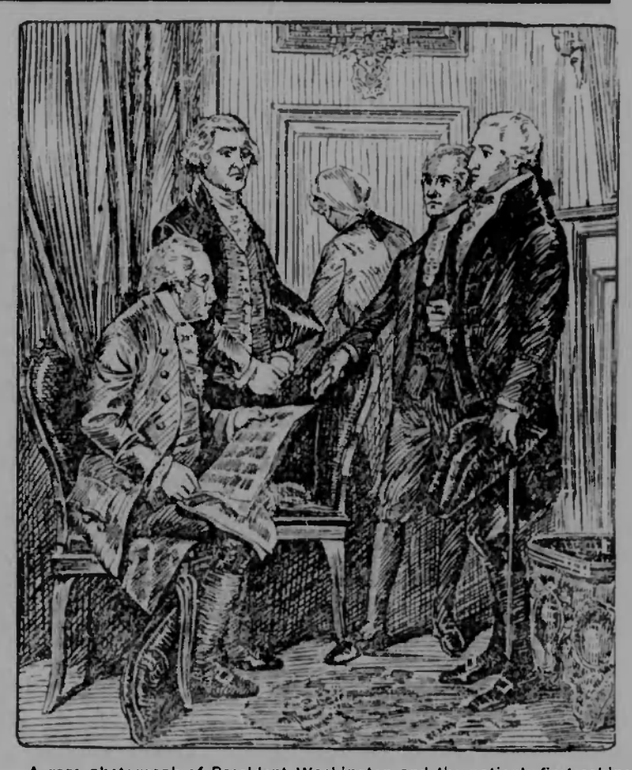
Mr. Charles Moore of Washington, on the occasion of the recent unveiling of a Washington statue, admonished the assembled spectators not to keep Washington on a pedestal, but to bring him down among them, for he was one of them, human, as they were human.

All the heroes of history had their weaknesses, their human limitations. Their greatness is only greatness when considered from this human point of view.

On the other hand it is neither desirable nor necessary to dwell unduly upon their faults when there is such inspirations in their virtues. There can be no just quarrel with Mr. Rupert Hughes, who is doing merely what others have done in reminding us that Washington had a high temper, that he swore on occasions, that he played cards along with other gentlemen of his time, that he partook of liquor, also in keeping with the custom of the day, or that he was not unfailing in his attendance at church. Washington was a gentleman, but as a soldier he had, in his earlier days, experienced some of the roughest going of frontier life. He knew the profane vocabulary of the time, and while there is no record that he was gratuitously profane, "cussing" merely for the sake of being emphatic, it is a matter of record that he could go into a rage and draw on that vocabulary. Perhaps the most noted of the tongue-lashings that have gone into history was that which Washington gave Gen. Charles Lee for the latter's incompetence and ignominious failure at the battle of Monmouth, for which he was court-martialed and dismissed from the army.

No higher tribute ever was paid Washington than by his intimate associate, Thomas Jefferson. In that tribute Jefferson says: "His temper was naturally irritable and high-toned, but reflection and resolution had obtained a firm and habitual ascendancy over it. If, however, it broke bonds, he was most tremendous in wrath. . . . On the whole his character was, in its mass, perfect, in nothing bad, in a few points indifferent; and it may truly be said that never did nature and fortune combine more perfectly to make a man great, and to place him in the same constellation with whatever worthies have merited from man an everlasting remembrance."

MARKS MOTHER'S GRAVE



The first monument erected to a woman by women—the monument to Mary Washington, mother of George Washington.

Owned First Mule

There's good authority for the statement that George Washington owned America's first mule. The mule was a present to Washington from the king of Spain, and was named Royal Gift.

WASHINGTON AND FIRST CABINET

A rare photograph of President Washington and the nation's first cabinet, men whose names have since become revered in the nation's history. In the photograph are, from left to right: Secretary of War Henry Knox, Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson, Attorney General Edmund Randolph, Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton, and President Washington.

Monument Is Nation's Tribute to Greatest Son

The idea of a monument to the memory of George Washington originated in the house of representatives. It was the ultimate outcome of a resolution introduced by John Marshall in 1799 "that a marble monument be erected by the United States in the capital, at the city of Washington, and that the family of General Washington be requested to permit his body to be deposited under it; and that the monument be so designed as to commemorate the great events of his military and political life." Before this, however, the Continental congress, in 1783, had adopted the resolution "that an equestrian statue of General Washington be erected at the place where the residence of congress shall be established."

In considering these two resolutions congress amended the former so as to provide that a "mausoleum of American granite and marble, in pyramidal form, 100 feet at the base and of proportionate height shall be erected in the city of Washington." Meanwhile, the equestrian statue mentioned in the resolution of the Continental congress culminated in the statue by Greenough, which was placed in the rotunda of the Capitol in 1841. But it was later moved to the east front of the Capitol; and more recently to the Smithsonian museum.

Reproduction of the Original Design of the Washington Monument.

No definite steps were taken toward the erection of the monument until 1833. During that year the Washington National Monument society was organized, with the idea of erecting a monument by popular subscription. In 1836 the society invited American artists to submit designs for a monument. The only requirement was that any plans submitted should "harmoniously blend durability, simplicity and grandeur." The cost of the proposed structure was to be not less than $1,000,000.

Proposed Memorial.

Many designs were submitted. The one selected was that submitted by Robert Mills, a prominent architect of his time. This design, known as the original design of the Washington National monument, is reproduced in the accompanying illustration. The plan, as shown, was a circular colonnaded building, 250 feet in diameter and 100 feet high, from which was to spring an obelisk shaft 70 feet square at the base and 500 feet high.

But funds for the monument accumulated slowly because contributions had been limited to one dollar a person. Thus, it was 1847 before enough money to justify beginning the building of the monument was accumulated.

In 1848 congress adopted another resolution authorizing the society to erect a [illegible] to be selected by the President of the United States and the board of managers of the society. That site on the public reservation near the Potomac river, where the monument now stands, was selected. The corner stone of the monument was laid on July 4, of that year. This stone was a block of marble weighing 24,500 pounds, and was quarried and presented to the society by Thomas Symington of Baltimore. The stone selected for the foundation was the blue rock of the Potomac valley, in blocks weighing from six to eight tons.

Design Changed.

When the actual work was begun Mills' plan of a circular colonnaded building at the base was abandoned and only the obelisk shaft, which was changed as to proportions, was retained. On this plan the monument was finally erected to a height of 150 feet, by 1860. Then the Civil war halted work on it. But at the end of the war further appeals were made to the public for contributions, and to congress for co-operation. It was in 1876 that the resolution was offered to that body for the completion of the monument. This act, as passed, carried with it an appropriation of $200,000. It provided for the transfer to the government of all property of the Washington National Monument society, and that the construction of the monument be placed under the joint supervision of the President of the United States, the supervising architect of the Treasury department, the architect of the Capitol, the chief engineers of the army and the first vice president of the society.

The first work on the resumption of the construction of the monument was the strengthening and enlarging of its foundation. This was because the original foundation was found to be inadequate to bear the proposed shaft.

Stands on Original Site.

The completed monument, which stands 555 feet high, was dedicated in February, 1885. The total cost was nearly $1,200,000. Thousands of pilgrims visit it every year, many of them traveling to its summit to view the marvelous panorama of their national capital.

Contrary to a rumor at one time, the Washington monument has never been moved. From the very beginnings of its construction it has remained on the present site. However, in one sense, the monument moves daily with the sun, turning upon an arc under the influence of the rays of heat. Likewise it moves under pressure of the wind. But despite these daily and occasional movements there never has been the slightest disturbance of poise.—Pathfinder Magazine.

IN HEROIC PROPORTIONS

The members of the Lutheran Church council were entertained by their pastor, Rev. S. D. Sigler, at the parsonage in Salisbury, Pa., on Monday evening with a 7 o'clock dinner. The dining room was decorated suitable for the day—St. Valentine's—and the place cards were heart shaped. Those present were Dr. L. P. Young, Prof. H. K. Reamer, Rev. S. D. Sigler, of Salisbury; the members of the council present were H. P. Miller, William Winterberg, Wm. J. Wright, E. A. Beachy, Harvey Gortner and G. W. Diefenbach. Following the dinner, the regular monthly business meeting was held in the pastor's study.

The Sophomore class of the High school and their adviser, Miss Marion Price, gave a Valentine party to the Seniors. About 45 were in attendance. The decorations were suitable to the occasion. The entertainment of the evening was varied—progressive game of Hearts, followed by Cupid's Carnival and Lovers' Lane, with booths featuring; Dr. Ray's Love Machine, Game of Love, Pierced Hearts, Course of True Love and Pining for You, were enjoyed. Decorated hearts were used for tallies, and invitations and the favors were paired hearts. Valentine favors were presented to the Seniors. Refreshments were heart and love nut cookies, served by the Queen of Hearts; fruit punch and candies, served by the Witch. The prize was a heart shaped cake and was won by Frieda Warnick and Gordon Boucher.

Ward Beachy, the local decorator, is the fortunate owner of a piece of Colonial money, it being a paper fifty-cent piece, issued by the Colony of Maryland in 1774. Mr. Beachy found the piece among his father's papers. The seal of Maryland is printed on one end of the bill and this statement: "This indented bill of half a dollar shall entitle the bearer hereof to secure bills of exchange, payable in London in gold and silver at the rate of 4 shillings and six pence Sterling per dollar for the said bill, according to the directions of an Act of Assembly of Maryland, this 10th day of April, Anno Domino, 1774." The note bears a number put on with ink and two signatures, the names not being clear.

Prof. R. R. Webster entertained the 500 Club at the National Hotel on Monday evening. There was an extra table, the guests being Messrs. C. A. Bender, Otto Bender, W. E. Stanton and John Zehner. The Professor served oysters, any style, agreeable to the guests. Otto Bender won the prize and Mr. I. M. Staley won the consolation token.

Mr. George Hone, of Selbysport, spent several days with his sister, Miss Gertie Hone, this week.

Cow Testing Association Meets.

In the Agriculture Department of the High school the results for the first months' work of the Junior Cow Testing Association was announced as follows: 1st cow, belonging to Paul Wisseman, 53.8 lbs. butter fat and 960 lbs. of milk; 2nd cow, belonging to Henry Patton, 51.4 lbs. butter fat and lbs. of milk. The high by Clyde Beachy's ion will hold a meeti. ussing milk testing, fe the things pertaining to a ttle. Some of the boys will gi history of certain breeds. All pha s of dairying and dairy cows will be studied before the end of the year. The Calf club, recently formed among the boys of the High school, held a meeting last week to decide on the breed, age and price they would pay for the calves to be purchased. Four boys and one girl selected Guernseys and one boy a Jersey. The calves will be purchased during the next month. Prof. H. M. Whiteford, the instructor, and some of the members' fathers are planning to visit some leading breeders soon to look for the stock desired.

Plans Made For Sunday School Room.

At a meeting of the Lutheran Church council on Monday evening, plans and specifications were gone over for the proposed Sunday school and social room in the basement of the church. The plans call for the excavation of the entire basement, a large Sunday school and social room under the main part of the building with a modern heating plant, plumbing, kitchen and comfort rooms, which when completed will make a very complete and convenient church plan. Architect George F. Sansbury, of Cumberland, drew the plans and it was decided to submit them immediately for bids.

Beginning on January 30th, the Interstate Commerce commission allowed the Meyersdale rate on coal originating on the Castelman Valley, thus giving the operators in this region the same advantage as those in the Meyersdale, Pa., region, which is reported to be a saving of 20 cents per ton over former rates. It is reported that the W. A. Morgart's interest in the road has been purchased by Mr. Bracey and his associates.

Last Saturday evening a meeting was held at the National hotel by the mine owners and the officials of the road, at which time negotiations were opened for a two-and-a-half mile spur to be built up Shade Run, west of Grantsville, where there are now three producing openings and possibilities for several times that number. Mr. Speyer, the manager, is now in Grantsville and will direct the operation of the road.

Napoleon Had Planned Unification of Europe

But though dismisses Fouche from his ministerial post and has the watcher watched, Napoleon cannot get on without him and talks to him about the most private matters.

"Since my marriage people fancy that the lion is asleep. They will soon learn whether I am asleep. I need 800,000 men and have them; I shall tow all Europe in my wake. Europe is nothing more than an old woman and with my 800,000 men I can make her do whatever I please. . . . Did not you yourself say to me, 'You let your genius have its way, because it does not know the word impossible'? How can I help it if a great power drives me on to become dictator of the world? You and the others, who criticize me today and would like me to become a good-natured ruler—have not you all been accessories? I have not yet fulfilled my mission and I mean to end what I have begun. We need a European legal code, a European court of appeal, a unified coinage, a common system of weights and measures. The same law must run throughout Europe. I shall fuse all the nations into one."—From "Napoleon, the Man of Destiny," by Emil Ludwig.

Originality Shown in Ordering of Funerals

Two Englishmen and one English lady, who certainly did not know each other, decided practically at the same time to have fantastic funerals, Pierre Van Paasen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. Harry Armour, one of them, twenty-four years old, who committed suicide, left a note in which he ordered that he was to be buried in hunting costume, booted and spurred, with rifle in his arms and a plentiful supply of cartridges in his coffin. Then there was Colonel Samson of Hastings, who demanded that his corpse be dumped in the middle of the channel. We learn from the Dover Gazette that his funeral had at least the compensation of a "jolly trip on a bright, sunny day." In London, a young lady, Miss Edith Koll, aged twenty, asked that she be laid out in her best evening gown, with dancing slippers and a small gramophone in the casket. She personally selected a number of jazz records, which were buried with her. All three expressed themselves believers in the resurrection of the body. The lady is the most original of all. When that last morn comes, and Gabriel blows his trumpet, she wants to organize a two-piece orchestra, no doubt.

Dog's Smart Trick

An old hunter says that on one occasion a small dog belonging to him chased and caught up with a very large raccoon. The dog flew at his enemy and tried to shake him, but the raccoon, being quick, caught the dog by the side of the head.

His teeth were sharp and his hold firm, so that the dog found it impossible to break loose. Suddenly, as if a bright idea had occurred to him, the dog began to drag the raccoon into a neighboring creek.

Once in the water the dog held the raccoon under the surface, adroitly keeping his own nose out, until the raccoon released his grip. Then the dog easily mastered the half-drowned animal.

Not in This World

Men and women do not get along well. The quarrel is mainly about money. A woman never seems to care much because her husband isn't as much of a lover as when they were first engaged. She doesn't expect it; and realizes she has cooled off, too. We have learned that these things are natural, but men are still shocked at the extravagance of women, and women are still shocked at the stinginess of men. Is there any way of coming to a better understanding on this subject—money?—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Comedienne

Here's another one on Allen. A visitor recently dropped in a restaurant on the "main drag" and after perusing the menu, ordered the native dish of sauerkraut and spare ribs. There must have been an unusually heavy run on that savory platter, for the Pennsylvania Dutch waitress shook her head and said: "All." Wishing to be funny, the man returned: "All what?" She: "All over." He: "All over what?" She finally: "All over with."—Philadelphia Record.

First Fossil

What is probably the first fossil to have been collected by man is in the possession of Barnum Brown, associate curator of fossil reptiles in the American Museum of Natural History. The priceless relic is an elephant's tooth dating back around 5,000,000 years and was picked up by Mr. Brown in the ruins of the Asklepieion, the medical school of ancient Greece, where Hippocrates, the father of medicine, carried on his studies.

Roman Numerals

The Romans had no symbols to indicate mathematical processes and operations. Originally they expressed every process and operation in words of full length. Their mathematical calculations were never simplified further than to abbreviate centum, 100, into C; mille, 1,000, into M, and so on. The Romans were never reputed specially good mathematicians and they contributed little to the science.

All Knowledge Not Possessed by Youth

Dear me, with all their superior knowledge, how ignorant the younger generation, one might say the youngest generation, is about some things. A new story came into the house and mother essayed to read it aloud. It was about "gypsies." Hardly had she begun when a chorus of small voices asked, "What's a 'gypsy'?" And it was hard explaining about a covered wagon, for the next question was, "What's a 'wagon'?" And some didn't even understand what a "pair of horses" was. Never did mother have it brought home to her so keenly that this was an automobile age.

And there is nothing that makes a high-school pupil feel that her mother is more ancient than to have that sar mother say, "There were no automobiles in my high-school days; we always went buggy riding." Instantly the high-school maiden thinks of her mother, as dated some time before the Civil war, and one high school child had the nerve to question her mother as to her experiences during the Revolutionary war.

Mother came back at daughter a bit, though. She said casually, "There was no such thing as a radio in your life until you reached high-school age, was there?" Daughter tried to prove that radio only happened the other day, as it were, but mother emphasized her point that inventions are coming along faster than people are.—Springfield Union.

Credit for "Want Ad" Goes to Englishman

In 1672 John Houghton, a fellow of the Royal society, established a weekly paper for the improvement of husbandry and trade, and undertook to educate the merchants of England in the art of advertising, says World's Work.

First he established a bureau for supplying servants to masters and masters to servants, carrying on operations through advertising. From this he went into the advertising of schools, houses and lodgings to let and so forth, laying down the idea of what has grown into our present "want ads."

He instructed the public class by class, inducing lawyers, physicians and farmers to use his columns and built up a large miscellaneous patronage for his paper. The clergy in particular found his columns an excellent medium for securing or disposing of second-hand sermons, for there were no Monday morning papers in those days, with ever-present reporters, and a sermon could be preached around various parishes until it was worn

Watches do not have even n of jewels. If a watch has 2 then the going hand or cente and third wheel, the fourth wh escape wheel, the lever and th ance have a whole jewel at each n which make 14. The balance, the lev nnd the escape wheel have end sto as well, which make 6 more. Then there are 3 jewels in the escapement, which make 23. If the movement has 21 jewels, then the hole jewels of the going barrel have been omitted. If 19, the end stones of the escapement wheel have been omitted also. If the watch has only 7 jewels, they usually consist of the 3 escapement jewels nd 2 end stones for the bal ce arbor.

Legend of Faust

Faustus (D. Johann Faust) was a person born at Kundling, Wurttemberg, or at Roda, near Weimar. He is said to have died in 1538. He was a magician, soothsayer and astrologer, and boasted of having performed the miracles of Christ. It was believed that the magician was carried off by the devil, who had lived with him in the form of a black dog. Legends say that this event occurred on the night between the twenty-third and twenty-fourth of October, 1538. Goethe's tragedy (published in 180) is based on the Faust legends.

Must Have Pulled Hard

The occupation of dentistry is not ally rated as dangerous. Unless a pa t snaps at a dentist while the latter is with one of the former's molars, and om does a patient act in such a way, there is small hazard to the profession.

Nevertheless at times accidents do occur. A man tortured by toothache called up a dentist and ask him for help. The office attendant replied that Doctor Sonnso regretted to state he would be unable to take patients for some days to come as he had sprained his wrist pulling a tooth.

Beauty in Dislocation

A peculiarity of the Siamese dancing girls is the position of their fingers, which are held at all times turned upward as much as possible. Not turned up to heaven, but turned the way opposite to the normal bend of the knuckles. This is considered very beautiful, and dancing girls spend long hours pressing their fingers against their knees to the point almost of dislocation in order to induce the desired back curve.—Adventure Magazine.

The Editor's Reward.

The Editor died and went to Heaven
But stood outside the gate
Beeause he hadn't the nerve to knock
And thought that he would wait
'Til some other mortals came along—
He'd see what they would do
And if they entered the pearly gate
He thought he might slip through;
He watched the vast procession pass
Up to the portals wide,
While Peter told some they were up too high
And others he took inside.

The Editor, weary of waiting so long,
Finally got in line
To see if Peter would accept him there
Or would with thanks decline—
He heard the sweet voiced angels sing
His eyes filled to the brim,
He shivered and shook in agony
Knowing his chances were slim—
"Ah, ha," said Peter, "An Editor here?"
(He laughed with pure delight)
"Why certainly, you may come right in
For all you did was write."

Crellin To Observe Thirtieth Anniversary Of Building Of Church.

Arrangements are being completed for the formal re ing of the Crellin church. The building was erected in 1896 during the pastorate of J. L. B. J and the people of Crellin have been planning for several days a thirtieth (pearl) anniversary celebration. They have remodeled their church at a cost of about $1000 and are now planning for the formal reopening. The date that has been set is Sunday night, February 27th. Rev. William M. Shultz will preach. The committee in charge is J. C. Kendall, J. Frank Ashby and Homer Shaffer. A history of the Crellin church will be published next week.

Sunnyside Grange Notes.

At our last meeting, held on February 9th, we had a very enjoyable evening. Mr. Wilmer Brown, of Mt. Lake Park, entertained us with music from his accordion. We extend our thanks to Mr. Brown for his excellent renditions and invite him to come again. We had four visitors present, including County Agent McGlone, who seems to be a live wire. We had election of officers with results as follows: Master, George Breuninger; overseer, Baity Ridder; Lecturer, Paula Moon; steward, Asa Nethkin; assistant steward, Mac Ridder; chaplain, Jennie Sanders; treasurer, J. H. Dunithan; secretary B. Ba r; gate keeper, Arthu Ceres, Lola Belle Green; Po Jessie Fulk; lady assistant stewa Pope Moon.

We hope to see all members of the organization take an active part and assist the officers in making 1927 a booster grange year.

The oyster supper held on February 11th was a success. The proceeds go toward paying a debt owed on the piano. The committee wishes to extend their thanks to all who aided in the success of the supper. At our next regular meeting, which will be held on the 23rd inst., we will have installation of officers. In the near future we are expecting to have some movies.

Let's keep the ball rolling,
Do what e'er you have to do
With a true and honest zeal;
Bend your sinews to the task, and put your shoulder to the wheel.

Hutton Grange Notes.

Those members of the Hutton Grange who failed to attend the meeting on February 24th, surely missed an enjoyable time. An excellent song service was the main feature of the evening. Everybody present took a hearty part in the singing. Mr. J. A. Connell gave a splendid recitation of Longfellow's beautiful poem, "The Day is Done." Past Master B. C. Scott, Master-elect N. C. Sanders and other- took part in a discussion of ways and means to make the Hutton Grange more interesting and helpful to the members and the community during the coming year. All members are asked to bear in mind the next meeting comes on the evening of February 28th, and are urged to be present upon that occasion as the newly elected officers will be installed and a meeting of much interest will be conducted. Due to an oversight, no lecturer was elected. Therefore, the friends of the present and efficient lecturer, Mrs. Jessie Paulie, should attend and reelect her to another term.

Some Activities of The Bureau of Child Hygiene.

A course of four lectures for physicians on recent studies in subjects connected with the health of young children, will be given in different sections of the State during the winter under the auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health and the local medical societies, according to an announcement by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the Department.

Established in 1922, the Bureau of Child Hygiene is the youngest of the eight Bureaus of the State Department of Health. Its activities are limited in accordance with the laws under which its operates to advisory care of mothers and children under school age. Care of the health of older children with special reference to the control of catching diseases and the medical inspection of school children is included among the activities of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases.

The child hygiene work in each county is carried on in co-operation with the Deputy State Health Officer or the local health officer with the assistance of the local public health nurse. Much of it radiates from the child health conferences that have been organized in every county and are held at intervals. Each year there has been a steady increase in the number of children who have been brought to the conferences and a constantly growing interest on the part of the mothers in the advice that is given on the general health and care of the children. No medical treatments are given at these conferences. A report of each examination is always sent to the family physician.

In 1926, over 6,0 children were brought to the ferences—an increase of n than a thousand over the n in attendance in 1925, w 5,5 were examined. Of the 5,000 examined in 1926, nearly half—2967—were prospective first graders, children from five to seven years old who were given a health examination during the summer months in preparation for admission to school. The rest ranged in age from a few weeks or monhs to five years. The number of conferences held during the year was 358, or 48 more than in 1925. The number of places visited was 205, an increase of 14 over the number in 1925. Every county was visited.

DISTURBED SLEEP

Joseph Dow, R. 55, Trenton, N. J., says: "My rest at night was disturbed 10 to 20 times. Lithiated Buchu has reduced this and entirely relieved me of that terrible burning and smarting. I was told there was no help for me. I want others to know and will tell or write my experences."

Lithiated Buchu is not a patent medicine. The formula is on the package. It acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out abnormal deposits, lessens excessive acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "disturbed sleep." Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores. OPPORTUNITY FOR
To Sell Bonds In Garrett County

On or about February 27th, an old established New York Bond House will appoint its Garrett county distributor. This represents an opportunity for some salesman (with experience in securities) to associate himself with a live, well-organized, reliable bond house, whose unusual co-operation has placed many men in the successful, financially independent class. No investment of money is required: no underwriting or other commitment need be made.

We have many successful men throughout the country who established themselves in the bond business in their own community, and, due to the liberal commissions we pay and the real help and assistance we give our men, are making an unusually attractive income themselves with full safety to the investor.

If you are one of those who are seeking a better and more profitable connection this year and for years to come, file your application now.

VOLUME 52. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, FEBRUARY 24, 1927 NUMBER 1.

YOUNG MEN ARE ARRESTED FOR SHOOTING UP TOWNS

Rode Train Between Cumberland and Grafton and Shot At People Along The Route.

Two youths, charged with a series of crimes committed in Taylor and Preston counties, West Va., were arrested after a gun battle in the railroad yards in Grafton and are being held in the jail there awaiting trial on a number of more or less serious charges.

The youths gave their names as Roy Swiger, aged 19, of Clarksburg, and James Cochran, aged 18, of Mt. Clare, near Clarksburg. They were en route from Pittsburgh to their homes and were riding a freight train. The young men were both intoxicated and had in their possession a quart of whiskey and a rifle. As the train passed through Keyser, Bloomington, Tunnelton, Newburg and other towns along the route between Cumberland, at which point they boarded the train, and Grafton, the two youths amused themselves by taking pot shots at persons near the railroad tracks.

When the train reached Grafton officers, who had been notified by telephone of their presence on the train, attempted to effect their arrest. Baltimore and Ohio Officer C. F. Dunnegan and State Trooper J. W. Waddell were in the railroad yards when the train pulled in and made an effort to arrest the two men. One of them opened fire upon Dunnegan with the rifle and the officer returned the fire with his revolver. The two boys then leaped from the train and attempted to escape. They were captured on the banks of a stream near the railroad tracks after they had run a considerable distance.

Charges of transporting moonshine, possessing a high-power rifle, resisting arrest, promiscuous shooting and train riding were made against the pair in Taylor county.

Investigation has led to the discovery that Swiger is wanted for complicity in the robbery of a B. & O. railroad train at Wilsonburg some weeks ago. The youths are to be held in Grafton for hearings on the charge preferred in Taylor county and will then be taken to Kingwood to face charges of illegal shooting in the Preston county towns. They may also be taken to Clarksburg for trial on the train robbery charge at Wilsonburg.

Gorman Public School Notes.

The puhlic school of Gorman, under the supervision of Miss Edith Wainer and Miss Lena Hamburg, rendered a very delightful, entertaining and instructive program to a crowded house Tuesday evening. The subject was, "Parents' and Teachers' Meetings."

It was npparent that there is a cooperation of parents and teachers here and as a result directly traceable to this condition of affairs the schools are progressing nicely.

The evening was spent in rendering recitations, reading essays, hearing lectures, lessons and participating in a number of songs.

The women of the district had prepared a hountiful repast for those in attendance, which was served at the close of the program.

It was indeed an enjoyable occasion and all went away happy. A GUEST.

OAKLAND HOMEMAKERS' CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Mrs. D. S. Davis, President of Newly Formed Organization.

With a membership of twenty-six women the Oakland Homemakers' Club was organized at a meeting held in the Parish House of St. Paul's M. E. church here on Friday last.

The officers of the club, chosen at this meeting are as follows: President, Mrs. D. S. Davis; vice-president, Mrs. C. A. Shilke; secretary, Mrs. S. D. Whipkey; treasurer, Miss M. J. Roberts.

A constitution, governing the club, was presented, read and after making some changes and additions, it was adopted.

The club was formed under the direction of Miss Lola Belle Green, the County Home Demonstration Agent, working under the direction of the State Extension Department. Miss Green addressed the club and gave a very interesting talk on the properties of certain foods and the need of these properties to keep the body in a healthy state, dwelling especially upon the needs of children in their daily diet. This constituted the first lesson of the present year's work and was greatly appreciated by the members of the club. Miss Green in closing her address expressed the hope that she may please and interest the women so that Oakland may have a large and enthusiastic club of homemakers.

The lessons this year will deal with foods and their nutritive elements. A demonstration in which meat, three vegetables and a dessert, or a full meal, was cooked in fifteen minutes and was served to those present.

The second meeting of the club will occur at two o'clock on the third Friday of next month, when another lesson and demonstration will be given.

OLD NORTHWESTERN PIKE INTEREST ON THE INCREASE

West Union Joins In Project to Have the Highway Completed Through West Virginia.

The members of the West Union (West Va.) Kiwanis Club expressed their interest in the early completion of the Northwestern Turnpike at their regular weekly luncheon held in Kiwanis Hall last Friday evening.

Three members of the Northwestern Turnpike Association, Oscar C. Wilt, banker; N. R. Garland, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and J. E. Matthews, all of Clarksburg, were present at the meeting and all made addresses in favor of an early completion of this leading highway across the State east and west. They showed that their association is not only interested in the completion of the road at as early a date as possible, but the desire of taking up the matter of advertising this road which travels across the State, giving a much shorter route than any other and traverses one of the most picturesque and beautiful mountain sections of the entire country. These gentlemen maintained that the opening of this road across the entire State would mean more to the people along the route than anything else that could happen. The revenue derived from these tourists would be almost an incredible amount.

Mr. Wilt made the statement that it would mean more to the business interests of West Union alone than the payroll of the largest enterprise in Clarksburg. He urged the people, and especially the members of the cluh to get behind the movement and help push it across and then help to beautify this highway and tell of the wonders of this region to the world hy a thorough system of advertising. He urged the people to get ready for it and he prepared to give tourists a welcome and a good impression when they come so they will come back again.

A Massachusetts historian has found the name of another gentleman who came over with his fnmily on the original Mayflower. And judging from the number of Mayflower descendants there are in the country now the old boat must have been more commodious than Noah's ark.

Corinth Charge, M. E. Church.

Revival services are being held each night at Crellin. On Sunday, Feb. 27, special services will be held there in the morning afternoon and evening. Rev. W. M. Shultz will preach in the evening and hold the second quarterly conference.

BROTHERS IN STATE PEN DENIED PAROLE BY BOARD

Sent To Institution From Garrett County After Conviction of Assault on Aged People

Two brothers, Harry Preston and Meshack Preston, of Lonaconing, convicted in the Circuit Court of this county to serve five years in the Penitentiary at Baltimore after having been convicted of assault and robbing William H. Drane and his sisters, about eight miles north of Oakland, were denied paroles by the Pardon Board in session in Baltimore yesterday and they will therefore he compelled to serve out their full time.

The two men, according to the testimony at their trial, drove to the Drane home from Lonaconing one night for the purpose of burglarizing the Drane home, the occupants being Mr. Drane and his two maiden sisters, none of whom are under 75 years of age. After entering the house it was alleged at the trial that the men tied up the three aged persons and by threats of bodily harm forced them to reveal the place in the house where a sum of money was kept concealed.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

To Be Entertained hy Mr. C. W. Ream and a Crellin Delegation

Members of Garrett Lodge, No. 115, Knights of Pythias, will be entertained at the lodge room tomorrow night by Mr. Charles W. Ream and an imposing delegation of musicians from Crellin, who will be assisted by Col. James Mutt Bell, of Oakland.

Mr. Ream is well known as a successful business man and public spirited citizen. Whatever he undertakes usually goes, but one can never tell what Col. Bell will do. Perhaps the finest part of the evening's program will be along musical lines. All of these music makers are either students or graduates of the Mickey Conservatory of Music at Crellin. You are assured of a variety of entertainment, however, if Mr. Ream is reticent regarding details.

The fountain of youth was discovered last Friday night and as a result all who attended had a jolly time and went home feeling rejuvenated, Walter W. Dawson as master of ceremonies, kept the audience in a continual state of merriment. As he introduced each speaker or announced a number he either related a spicy anecdote or passed some personal remark—a peculiar blend of praise or censure. Chancellor Commander Paul B. Naylor received his share of the evening's honors at the hands of Mr. Dawson.

Mr. Joseph E. Harned gave an inspiring and timely address. He conveyed to his hearers the thought that happiness and service go hand in hand to make life worth while. He outlined the fundamentals and principles of Pythianism, emphasizing the importance of living with a definite objective in view. It was indeed an enlightened and appreciative audience who had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Harned.

Mr. Paul B. Naylor gave an impressive address of welcome and presented much data in connection with the history of Garrett Lodge.

Prof. R. R. Gilbert's orchestra rendered music of the very highest class. We cannot praise this orchestra sufficiently for the splendid harmony they dispense. Oakland should be proud of such a musical organization. Garrett Lodge is not lacking in appreciation of the cooperation of Gilbert's Orchestra.

We desire to make special mention of the efficient service rendered hy the young women of the Domestic Science department of Oakland high school, under the supervision of Miss Brown. The entire assemblage was served in record time, thanks to their united efforts.

Wilmer Brown, as an accordeon player, is deserving of special mention in his rendition of several selections.

The Rotary Peerless Quartette rank high as vocalists. Their songs delighted and thrilled all. One member of the regular quartet was missing, but the substitute did exceedingly well as did the other members of the organization.

As we sing the praises of the shining lights who make speeches and play music, let us not fail to laud the virtues of the refreshment committee, who sacrifice their pleasure and toil diligently that we may enjoy the dainties they prepare, such as was served Friday evening.

COMMITTEE.

GARRETT APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED BY GOVERNOR

Supervisors and Justices of the Peace For Various Districts—Proceedings Yesterday

State House, Annapolis, Md., Feb. 23.—The House of Delegates today rejected the proposed child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution, and voted in favor of petitioning Congress to enact legislation which would empower the various states to determine for themselves the percentage of alcohol to be contained in non-alcoholic heverage sold within their borders.

Rejection of the child labor amendment, which was a plank in the Democratic platform on which Governor Ritchie was elected last November, was effected with the adoption of the Marhury joint resolution, 93 to 17. The Senate has yet to act on the resolution.

The vote in favor of petitioning Congress to allow the states local control of the liquor problem came with reconsideration of the Callan joint resolution, which was defeated in the House yesterday, with nineteen members absent, by lack of a constitutional majority. Brought out for reconsideration today, the resolution found a constitutional majority behind it and was adopted, 64 to 47. It has not yet been acted upon in the Senate.

Lee Explains Stand

Explaining his stand in favor of the resolution, Speaker E. Brooke Lee said:

"This joint resolution asks national legislation to permit the several states to determine the percentage of alcohol in non-intoxicating beverages and it seems in line with the theory of local self-government and the return of the liquor question to the jurisdiction of the several states and I am supporting it on these general principles."

"If a statewide enforcement act or statewide re-enactment of the Volstead Act is offered, which in effect would be passing a local enforcement act for Baltimore City and several of the counties of the state, over the unanimous protest of their representatives in this House, I shall vote against such a statewide enforcement act as an invasion of the principle of local self-government."

"I shall further vote for reasonable local option or prohibition laws that have the unanimous support of the delegation from the county asking the law, again upon the principle of local self-government."

Joseph Again Starts Argument

Delegate Daniel Joseph, of Baltimore, once more threw the House into an uproar with the offering of an order which would require all reports to be held over for a day, to allow members to familiarize themselves with amendments. Over his protest, the order was consigned to the rules committees and what Mr. Joseph asserted would be a lingering death.

The furore over the Joseph order shook the House for nearly half an hour. Majority Floor Leader James J. Lindsay, who offered the motion to commit the order to the rules committee, said "this is another attempt on the part of Mr. Joseph to dictate the policies of the House."

Garrett Civil List.

At noon today Governor Ritchie, as required by law, submitted his list of appointments to the Senate for confirmation. The Garrett county appointments are as follows:

Election Supervisors: Wade H. Hinebaugh, Oakland; Frederick P. Miller, Accident; Ellsworth G. Naylor, Oakland.

Justices of the Peace: Wm. H. Turner, Swanton; Jasper Guard, Friendsville; George W. Diefenbach, Grantsville; James E. McGettigan, Accident; Nathan C. Browning, Sang Run; Edward I. West, Oakland; W. G. Williams, Germania; Peter J. Lohr, Deer Park; Grover C. Pool, Kitzmiller; William A. Gonder, Oakland; A. S. Teats, Oakland; G. B. Brown, Avilton.

Parent-Teacher Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Oakland grammar school will be held at the school building, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock when the following program will be rendered:

Song ....The Star Spangled Banner
Piano Solo.....Betty Broadwater
Piano Solo.....Virginia Kelley

YOUNG MARRIED MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN ROADWAY

Father of Three Small Children Died Suddenly on Monday

Adam Schroyer, aged 28 years, the father of three small children, was found dead along the roadway near White Rock, 7 miles west of Hoyes on Monday morning.

It is said that Schroyer was on his way home from the residence of a neighbor when he was overcome with an attack of epilepsy and died as a result of exposure.

The finding of the body of the dead man gave rise to rumors of various kinds, one being that he had met with foul play, having been seen with a companion at or near the spot where the body was later found. A post mortem examination was held yesterday by State's Attorney Renninger, who impanneled a jury of inquisition, the body rendering a verdict that death was due to natural causes.

UNION LENTEN SERVICES TO BE HELD IN OAKLAND

Protestant Churches to Participate In Gatherings Beginning Wednesday Evening Next

In order that the sacred Lenten season which solemnly commemorates the passion and death of the Saviour may be fittingly observed and that His great life and example may strike more deeply into the life of the community, the pastors of Oakland, thru their official church bodies, have completed arrangements for the holding of union mid-week Lenten services, beginning next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock and continuing throughout the season until Holy Week when union services will be held at the noon hour in the Presbyterian church.

The first of the mid-week services on Ash Wednesday, March 2, will be held in St. Paul's M. E. church. The speakers at these services will not be announced in advance and the services during the period will alternate between the Lutheran and the Methodist churches.

At each service scheduled to be held an earnest sermon will be preached setting forth some phase in the life and passion of the Saviour. Congregational singing and congenial fellowship will mark the meetings and an offering will be taken to defray the necessary expenses. Should a surplus exist it will be sent to the American Bible Society. Other announcements concerning these contemplated services will be made in The Republican in future issues.

It has been suggested by the ministers that the church in which these services are to be held should be well filled with earnest worshippers and that each individual in the community should arrange his affairs on Wednesday evening throughout Lent so as to be able to attend. Everyone will find a cordial welcome.

Deer Park 4-H Club News.

The Senior 4-H Club of Deer Park was organized January 29th. The members are working on "Own Your Own Room" project. The officers are as follows: President, Lola King; vice-president, Frances Thrasher; secretary, Mary Pysell; assistant secretary, Mary Sollars; treasurer, Mary Jankey; pogram committee, Lovenia Landis, Iretta Mosser.

At the second meeting of the club, which was held on February 19th, the making of summer scarfs was discussed and the following program was rendered in honor of the first President of the United States:

Business .....President
Recitation .....Mary Jankey
Reading .....Frances Thrasher
Address .....Lola King
Address .....Mary Jankey
Recitation .....Mary Pysell
Address .....Miss Lola Green

Social period.

All who have completed the second year's work are cordially invited to join this club. PRESIDENT.

The police raided the night clubs at Miami the other night and found a lot of guests, which indicates that in spite of all rumors Florida is not that broke.

Pomona Grange Meeting.

A meeting of the members of Pomona Grange of Garrett county will be held at Sunnyside Grange Hall on Thursday, March 3rd, at 10:00 a. m., and it is hoped by the officers that a very large attendance will be had at this meeting as it is expected to handle some interesting and important problems.

LARGE STILL NEAR WILSON CONFISCATED MONDAY

Unknown Man In Charge Made Get Away When He Saw Prohibition Officers Approaching

With the approach of Prohibition Enforcement Officers Cleveland D. Jarvis, of the Maryland Division, accompanied by Agent H. R. Stotler, of Keyser, West Va., one man was seen to run through the woods from a hut located in a valley through which a mountain stream flows four miles east of Wilson, Garrett county, Monday afternoon, hence the only quarry captured as a result of the investigation made by the officers was the capture of a 200-gallon still, 1000 gallons of mash, 75 gallons of whiskey, 300 pounds of sugar, 500 pounds of grain and 5 cases of yeast, all of which the officers destroyed before leaving the scene by setting fire to the building and seeing that it was completely consumed, following which they made a report of the capture to their superiors and returned to their base of operations.

The officers, prior to their visit to Wilson on Monday afternoon, had reason to suspect that a still was located in that community and going on a still hunt it was located after a short survey of the ground through which they were traveling.

LOCAL BOWLING LEAGUE ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Splendid Scores Being Made by Individuals and Clubs.

The local bowling league, composed of representatives of the various organizations and churches of town, remains a center of attraction on each Tuesday and Thursday evening at the Recreation bowling alleys where good scores are being made by individual members of the various teams and hence larger scores are being piled up by the teams.

Last Thursday evening's scores resulted as follows:

LAWLOR, THE CLEVER DETECTIVE

By KATHERINE HOWE

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

"YOU see Stella don't just exactly like my business," said John Lawlor to the comfortable matron who sat opposite to him in the tidy little living room of her home.

"Don't like your business?" she exclaimed. "Why, aren't you one of the best detectives on the force?"

"Well, the chief as good as told me that last week, and they raised my pay. But being on the police force doesn't strike Stella as being quite high-toned enough. She asked me if I couldn't get into the bank, or go into brokerage or something."

"Brokerage!" sniffed his sister. "She'd rather you'd make money—or rather swipe somebody else's money—that way than get it honestly the way you're doing."

"No! No!" he broke in emphatically. "Stella is as honest and as straight as a die—but—"

"But she's a snobbish little fool!"

"Mary!" he flashed out. "You know I won't stand hearing a word against Stella! You've got it out of me, and you've known all along she's the only girl in the world for me."

"Yes, John, I didn't mean to hurt you. But I haven't any patience with such notions. Just because her grandfather was General Barker, she seems to think she ought to marry a banker or a corporation lawyer at the least. Her father squandered every penny they had, and they've been poorer than Job's turkey all their lives."

"Well, you know 'what's bred in the bone,'" began John.

"That's all right," broke in Mrs. Frink, "but any girl who don't care enough for you to take you just as you are, isn't worth thinking about."

"Oh, but she's worth it! She's a bit notional about that one thing, perhaps, but she suits me," said John with the usual lover's enthusiasm.

"Oh dear!" thought his sister, as he went out. "I just wish something would happen to bring him to his senses."

Meanwhile Stella Barker, all unconscious of the wish hanging over her, went her way with the thoughtlessness and inconsequential ways of youth in general. She loved John, but not with the understanding and depth of a woman of more experience in the world might have done. She was only eighteen, very romantic, and a silly, shallow mother had not contributed much of real worth to her education.

Only about two weeks after the talk between John and his sister, a letter came to Stella telling her she had inherited about forty thousand dollars through the death of a distant relative. It was not an enormous sum, as fortunes go these days, but enough to draw around the girl a good many new acquaintances, and would-be suitors. There had never been anything more than a kind of tacit understanding between John and Stella, but the young man had never given up his determination to win her.

The change in Stella's fortunes seemed somehow to also alter their relations. He could never get any time alone with her now. Her mother meant that she should now see some "real society," and entertaining absorbed the two completely. Even a more sensible young head than Stella's might have been a trifle turned by the new order of things.

A new admirer of Stella's named Cecil Brent began to pay very assiduous attentions. Mrs. Barker regarded him with favor. His manners were so polished, "so English" she was sure he must belong to a very "high family." Brent was certainly something of a dashing figure. Good looking, exceedingly well dressed, of ready wit, and pleasing address, he might have captivated a much more sophisticated young woman than Stella. He took her to the theater and suppers a few times, and spent money freely.

John felt that the time had come for an understanding. If Stella preferred this man to him, he must know it. He came in his usual straightforward way, and asked her if she was engaged to Brent.

Stella looked a bit conscious, then she laughingly asked: "What makes you think so?"

"Well you're going about with him a great deal, and—"

"And what?" she smiled.

"Most anyone would think so."

Some vanity, and a good deal of deviltry, natural to almost all young things, came to the surface.

"Let them think so if they like."

"Do you wish me to think so?"

"Why John!" she parried. "Does it really make much difference to you?"

"Does it make much difference to me?" he repeated in slow amazement. "Why you know it does!"

"I—don't know how I was to 'know' it," she again parried. "And anyway suppose I did. What is the harm in having a good time?"

"No harm," said John. "But with him—I don't see how you can."

"What have you to say against Mr. Brent?" she asked indignantly.

"He doesn't ring true, he is not what he seems!"

"Oh!" she answered with pointed sarcasm. "Is that your acute detective talent, or just simple, unadulterated jealousy?"

"Neither one. Ordinary common sense."

"In which I must be woefully lacking," she added.

It was in vain that John tried to convince her there were good grounds for his assertion; she maintained it was nothing but miserable jealousy, and declared she would not be dictated to, while John, feeling that Brent had entirely supplanted him, left with a desperate resolve to never see her again unless she asked him to come.

Stella realized after he had gone that she had not meant to really send him away for good and all; but Cecil Brent's attentions becoming more persistent, they were engaged, and she became the proud possessor of a diamond ring.

John in his efforts to forget his heartbreak, applied himself more steadily to business than ever. One day at police headquarters he was introduced to a young lady, and was told she had become a valuable assistant in the detective service.

"Miss Remson," said the chief, "thinks she has a clue to those counterfeit tens and fifties."

"One of the men I have my eye on is an elderly man masquerading as a clergyman," said the girl detective.

John Lawlor and Miss Remson were detailed to work together. They found where the "elderly clergyman" lived, and kept a close account of his going and coming. One day John saw him leave the house with a dress suit case. He followed him to the station, and took the same train, not meaning to lose sight of his man for one instant. Had he only been aware that an automobile was leading the train a close race, and had seen the occupants, he might possibly have lost sight of the man in clerical clothes.

As the train slowed into the first station, the automobile whizzed past. If John had not been so intent on watching his man, he might have seen the people in the car. The reverend gentleman walked to a small hotel, with John closely in his wake. He saw him assigned to a room, and as soon as he went up with the bellboy, contrived to get a room for himself quite near the other. He read on the register the name of "Rev. Joseph Baker," and concluded he had not come to this little town for nothing. John intended to find out what that errand was.

He had been in his room about half an hour, the short winter day had drawn to a close, he had turned on the light and was reading, when he heard speaking in the hall. The voices were so subdued he could make out nothing, and almost instantly a door closed shutting them off. He went out softly to investigate. Pausing at the minister's door, he heard low conversation within. As he paused to listen, he heard someone coming down the hall, and was obliged to go on, as no one in the house knew the nature of his business, and for the present, he did not mean they should. Miss Remson might be way off in her suspicions; it was just possible he was shadowing a perfectly innocent man.

When the coast was again clear he glided up to the minister's door. Though the tones were low, he heard distinctly the words of the Episcopal marriage service.

John had never felt quite so foiled and foolish in the course of his detective career. Here he had been taking a wild goose chase after an innocent old gentleman who had evidently come out here at the solicitation of some friends to marry them, and the dress suit case had probably contained his cassock and prayerbook. The detective was leaving the door in disgust when he noticed that no light came through the keyhole or under the door.

Why was this marriage ceremony being performed in the dark?

The next instant he heard the words: "I, Cecil, take thee, Stella—"

John rapped loudly on the door. The voices ceased. There was no response. He knocked again still louder. Then a man's voice asked: "Who's there?"

"A friend! To warn!" said John.

The door was opened by the clergyman, and carefully closed.

Dark as it was, he at once recognized the couple going through the marriage service. They were Stella Barker and Cecil Brent.

"Friend!" sneered the bridegroom. "John Lawlor, you've only come here to stop this ceremony, but you can't do it. Now go!"

When his name was mentioned John had noticed the look that came into the clergyman's face, also the nervous way his hand went to his head. He was wearing a wig.

"I will go, but I shall have to trouble you to go with me," said John to the minister.

"I am at a loss to understand," he said with dignity. Then seeing the business end of a revolver looking towards him, he added resignedly: "Very well. But Mr. Brent, as I could not finish the ceremony, I will hand you back your fee."

John was a bit too quick for Brent, and snatched the money.

"One hundred and twenty dollars," he said. "Rather a large fee, Mr. Brent I'll have to ask you to come, too."

After John had handcuffed his two men, and safely locked them up pending the departure of the next train, he sought the frightened girl in the hotel parlor.

"I will see that someone takes you to the train," he said. "I've got two of the slickest counterfeiters in the business to look after."

"I haven't any money for the ticket. He has six hundred dollars of mine."

"No, he hasn't. Here it is." And John passed her the notes.

"Oh, John!" she sobbed. "Forgive me! I want you!"

"Not for—just gratitude. There must be time to think," he said.

Stella must have thought hard, for in less than three months the wedding cards were out.

Whooping Cough.

When whooping cough—or any of the other so-called children's diseases breaks out in your neighborhood, you want to be especially careful to safeguard the babies and the other children under three so that they don't catch these diseases from their older sisters or brothers, or from their little neighbors, is the advice of Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases of the State Department of Health.

"It is a mistake," he said, "to think that the children should have the so-called children's diseases and have them over. Every one of these diseases is full of great danger for the very young children, especially the children under school age. As a matter of fact, the records of the State Department of Health show that over half of the deaths from measles; one-third of those from scarlet fever and nine out of every ten of the deaths from whooping cough occur among the children under three years old.

"As whooping cough has been prevalent in every section of the State this winter, I feel that this is the time to urge upon parents the importance of safeguarding the babies and young children from exposure to this disease which is particularly hard on the children under school age. The disease is caused by a germ found in the discharges from the nose and throat of the child who is sick. It is scattered far and wide whenever the sick child coughs or sneezes; or it may be spread through the use of a family handkerchife, or towel, or through the interchange of playthings, or of cups or spoons or dishes between the sick and well.

"Whooping cough is catching even in the early stages before the 'whoop' begins to be noticeable. Because it can be so easily mistaken, at this early stage, for an ordinary cold, it is much safer to regard every cold as a possible danger signal and to act accordingly. If your child develops what seems to be just a cold, watch that child carefully; send for your doctor; follow his advice as to the care to be given to the sick child, and take every precaution to keep the other children—your own, or the neighbors' children—from catching his germs.

"Just as in measles, one of the most frequent and serious complications of whooping cough is bronchial pneumonia.

"The first thing to do if a child shows symptoms of whooping cough is to send for your doctor. He will tell you what to do next."

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank my many friends for the bountiful shower of greetings that came to me on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14th, that also being my sixty-seventh anniversary. Wishing you all many happy birthdays, I am,

GRANTSVILLE.

Fish and Game Association Meeting.

Grantsville, Feb. 23—The Grantsville Fish and Game Protective Association held a meeting on Thursday evening to review the various game laws of the State and made a number of recommendations to Delegate Arthur Green regarding the repeal of certain laws and the retention of certain others. The Association has been instrumental in stocking a number of streams in this vicinity with fish during the past two years and protecting game. It also maintains a gun club with trap shooting reserve for practice in season.

Heavy Snow Impedes Traffic.

Traffic on the National Highway has been considerably hindered by the heavy eastern snow which came down on Saturday and Sunday, with from fifteen to eighteen inches of snow on the level, and in windy locations drifting has occurred. The State Road snow plows have been going almost continuously to keep the roads passable.

Highway Booster Association.

The National Highway Booster Association held a meeting last week in Wheeling, W. Va. The action taken there should be of interest to every person living near the old National Pike. Recommendations were made that the highway be used to erect beacon lights for the proposed model airway across the country. A large number of planes follow the course of the pike every month, and it would seem logical that this route would be quite advantageous for the erection of beacons. Should this be done, it would be a simple matter to light the roadbed as well and thereby make a most excellent highway for both day and night driving.

Personals.

Miss Mary Kinsinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Kinsinger, is convalescing at her home from an operation in a Cumberland hospital recently.

Miss Harriett Wilson, primary teacher in Grantsville school, is ill at the Casselman hotel. Mrs. C. O. Bender is teaching for her.

The condition of Mrs. Catherine Opel is reported as somewhat better, although she still continues seriously ill.

Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Johnson have gone to Oakland to the home of their son, because of the illness of Mrs. Johnson.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Noah Frickey on Sunday morning.

Messrs. Otto Bender, Frank Getty, Enos Folk, Misses Virginia Kalbaugh and Vivian Powers attended the Towson-Frostburg State Normal Basket Ball game in Frostburg on Saturday evening, the Frostburgers defeating the Towson team. Floyd Miller, a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Miller, was the star of the game, making four field goals. Mr. Miller plays center.

The Womans' Community Club will hold its March meeting on March 2nd, at the home of Mrs. Annie E. Getty.

Services in the churches next Sunday as follows: Methodist: Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. Reformed: Sunday school at 1:30 and worship at 2:30 p. m. Lutheran; Sunday school at 9:15 a. m. and worship at 10:30 a. m.

Mr. Emmons Younkin, of Pittsburgh, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin, here.

BITTINGER.

A heavy fall of snow, accompanied by a strong north-east wind, rendered last Saturday the most disagreeable day of the winter in this section and the ground is now covered to a greater depth by snow than it has been at any time this season.

Last week was a busy time with the owners of maple sugar groves and many gallons of fine maple sugar was made.

It is said that the sawing of timber on the Henry Wiley farm will be completed this week and the saw mill will be moved from this section.

Misses Leonora Wiley and Ethel Bittinger motored to Cumberland to do some shopping last Saturday.

A number of spring birds were seen in this section last week and one of our neighbors reports having heard the croaking of frogs in the swamp lands hereabouts. The presumptuous frogs are now no doubt repenting their indiscretion beneth several inches of snow and ice.

All services in the village church were abandoned last Sunday as the roads leading to it were impassible by reason of the deep snow which fell the day and night preceding.

A very decided electrical storm was one of the experiences of the past week.

We hear the usual early spring complaint of bad roads, but this time the complaints are very well founded, and it is hoped that the County Commissioners will consider this great need of this isolated community and will be generous in their levy of funds for our highways.

SPRING GLADE.

Mr. Ivan DeWitt spent the week-end at his home here.

John Miller, who has been employed in Pennsylvania for some time, is home for a few days visiting his family and friends.

A surprise party was given Ivan DeWitt at his home Saturday night. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holtschneider, Eunice George, Nellie French, Velma Corrick, Pierce Lee, Ellen Flanigan, Merle and Mildred Hamill, Violet DeWitt, Harry Lee, James Flanigan, William Hamill, Ivan and Wibert DeWitt.

Robert O'Brien is moving to the Scott Tasker farm.

Mr. Albert Holtschneider says it is more pleasureable to motor in summer time than bucking the snow drifts in February as he has had occasion to do recently.

Miss Velma Corrick spent the week-end with Miss Nellie French.

Miss Merle Hamill, who spent several months at Clarksburg, has returned to her home here.

William Hamill, who has been employed in Morgantown for some time past, spent a few days recently at his home in this community.

Faced by the necessity of supporting her family when her husband became a hopeless invalid, Mrs. Alice Foote McDougall, of New York, opened a restaurant and as time went on prospered so greatly that last year she did a business of two million dollars. Yet unexpectedly she is quoted as saying that women should not go into business and that if she had her way "all women would be just ornamental." Doubtless the family so much indebted to her regard her as an ornament as well as a tower of abiding strength.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Mary B. Dolly vs. John E. Dolly.
No. 2718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by Mary B. Dolly from John E. Dolly, her husband.

The bill states that the parties were married on the 11th day of May, 1922, at Bayard, West Virginia, and lived together until July, 1925; and that although the conduct of the said Mary B. Doliy toward her husband, John E. Dolly, has always been kind, loving and affectionate, and her entire conduct has always been above reproach, that the said John E. Dolly has committed the crime of adultery with certain lewd and abandoned women in and about the States of Maryland and West Virginia, and that the said Mary B. Dolly is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been for more than two years prior to the filing of this bill, but that the said John E. Dolly is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 4th day of February, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in equity, that the plaintiff, Mary B. Dolly, by inserting a copy of this order in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks on or before the 25th day of March, 1927, give notice to the said John E. Dolly of the object and substance of this suit, warning him to be and appear in this Court on or before the 11th day of April, 1927, either in person or by solicitor, and show cause, if any he has, why the decree prayed and the relief sought ought not to be granted.

PRIMARY ON DEFENSE

In the forty-four states whose legislatures meet this year efforts are being made to repeal the primary laws. For the first time since the primary struck the country almost a genration ago, the proponents of the primary are on the defensive. It used to be that the drives were launched against the convention system. Now the primary is held up to us as the horrible example.

The reason must be apparent. The primary has failed to live up to advance notices. Instead of giving us more representative government as its friends claimed, it has given us more scandal and less representative government.

The final argument, and the one which is the most effective against the primary, seems to be that it brings about vast expenditures by office seekers. This is inevitable. In order to gain the acquaintance of the people of a great state lots of money must be spent. Advertising rates and traveling expenses are greater than ever before, hence the great cost of the primary.

But there is a greater evil in the primary than its expensiveness. It has brought about not representative government but personal government. Party lines are eliminated, there is no responsibility to organization and little running on political principles. Personalities, pure and simple, come to the front in primaries and instead of the representative idea we have the Mexican idea of irresponsible personal leadership.

Doubtless the primary idea will get a lot of severe blows in many of the states this year and deservedly so. As the Chicago Tribune has aptly put it:

> The American system of government still depends on representative authority and party responsibility. Both are maintained in the nominating convention. Both are eliminated in the direct primary. The convention theory accords with the American system of government. If the results of the direct primary, nevertheless, were better, the better theory would be discarded. Experience proves that results are not better. They are worse. They are confused, scandalous, irresponsible and with little evidence of good judgment."

Oakland High School Notes.

The second year girls' music class will give a charming operetta in the school auditorium this (Thursday) afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, entitled, "Eensy Meensy Minsy Mo." The characters are as follows:

Virginia Lee.....Adeline Sincell
Mercedes Penn.....Blanche Gilbert
Elizabeth Rannel..Dorothy Stevenson
Madge Cross.....Evelyn Shaffer
Isabel Arms.....Nancy Franklin
Miss Grundy .....Wilda Adams
Sammy .....Iona Kelley
Mrs. Lair.....Dorothea Sturgiss
Bob .....Ralph Blake
Maid .....Helen Leighton

Eensy Meensy Minsy Mo is a modern musical comedy telling the story of a young girl who has very good times—and two beaux, one of them in Japan for an extended stay, the other ever-present. Before she can, in any way, make up her mind which is the right one, the mother of one of the boys arrives and announces that she has come to take the girl with her to the wedding. The girl is amazed, but agrees with her classmates that Japan is too far away from the U. S. A. However, Bob arrives in time to save the day and the girl knows her own mind and decides to go "traveling with him."

A rehearsal of a Japanese operetta opens the way for a display of a box of robes from Japan, adding a picturesque feature.

The comedy is lightened by Sammy, the colored boy, who likes to "sing oh de Souf'lan" but doesn't like to work.

Everyone must come and see this musical comedy. It promises to be great. There is no charge. It is free to all.

Benefit Matinee.

A benefit matinee, proceeds to be divided between the schools and Maryland Theatre, will be given to the school children on Friday afternoon. "As No Man Loved" is the title of the picture and is based on Edward Everett Hale's story, "The Man Without a Country." LIT SECRETARY.

RITCHIE SEEN AS CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

General Belief Among Politicians that Coblentz, Lee and Others Will Not Oppose Him.

(By PAUL WINCHESTER)

Future political schemes usually have their Inception during the biennial sessions of the General Assembly. Aspiring and ambitious candidates usually survey the future and consider the chances for the attainment of their ambition, and deals which are to be carried out in the near and often rather distant future also, are generallly planned at Annapolis, and this custom has been followed every session since the State of Maryland was organized into a sovereign commonwealth a century and a half ago.

The present session will not be an exception to this time-honored rule. Already, with the half of the term gone into history, the usual scheming is under way, and prospective candidates for the National House of Representatives and for the Senate to be elected next year are heard of in goodly numbers in all parts of the State, while the number of able gentlemen of more or less prominence and popularity who desire to succeed the present Governor is greater than usual; and these distinguished Marylanders following the time-honored custom are taking time by the forelock, as all their successful predecessors have done on the well-established theory that those earliest in the field usually have the best start in the race for the gubernatorial nomination.

Yet over and above the gubernatorial dreams of all these ambitious young men, for all are comparatively young, looms the dark cloud caused by the uncertainty of the future plans of the present Governor who is now for the third time reigning in the place, two of which terms should have been awarded to others, according to the ancient, unwritten rule of Maryland politics. These gentlemen are not afraid to join issue with each other. Mr. Lee, Mr. Coblentz, Mr. Mackall and Mr. McIntosh have no dread of a fight with any one or any two of those who may enter the lists, but all fear that a sign from Governor Ritchie that he may desire to serve at Annapolis for a fourth term would scatter all their forces, leave them naked before a political wave and present to them the spectacle of the present Governor, standing alone and unchallenged in the field with all his willing competitors scattered in confusion around the political horizon. He has already done this and he has done it three times with such ease and with so little apparent effort that his success heretofore will, no doubt, encourage him to a renewal and thus enable him to clear the way before himself and permit him to make a fourth truimphal march to the ancient home of Maryland's reigning executives. It is the deeply seated belief that this will take place in 1931, that the campaign in that year will be a repetition of the one last year; that Governor Ritchie will desire at the end of his present term to remain at Annapolis, and that no one will have the hardihood to stand in his way, which renders mute the several gentlemen who would like to be Governor of their native State. All are afraid of Ritchie; they all have in their minds what he has already done; that he has broken all the historic precedents of the commonwealth, and that he will find less difficulty in breaking precedents in the future than he has in the past and that he will not hesitate to do so, should it be his desire and that all indications now are that such will be his desire and that when the time comes his desire will be gratified. And, as a prophecy of the future, the Speaker of the House of Delegates, Major Lee, who in a large measure possesses the qualifications to make a good candidate for the guhernatorial succesSion, and, who would unquestionably fill the place with honor and distinction, recently, when asked as to his aspiration in that regard, said with emphatic promptness, "I am for Ritchie for another term when the time comes."

To the suggestion that by that time the Governor might have become a little shopworn, he expressed a decided dissent and repeated his former statement: "I am for Ritchie." How Messrs. Coblentz, Mackall and McIntosh feel about the fourth term is unknown, but the probahilitles are that they think as Major Lee does, and, if they do not thlnk so now they will douhtless do so three years hence, when the time for aetion has arrived, and, if the present Governor gets in the field all will scamper out of his way, believing that it will be as hopeless then to oppose him as it has been at any time during the past eight years.

"He will make mistakes," say many people who judge the present and the future largely by the past. "And durlng the ensuing four years his mistakes will have piled up to such a helght that he will not be considered in the running—not any more than have been his predecessors for years, none of whom were ever mentioned as candidates at the end of their terms."

"Of course he will make mistakes. He has been making mistakes—colossal mistakes—all sorts of mistakes, big and little, ever since he went into the State House seven years ago. But they have done him no harm with the masses of the people and he is not likely to make any more mistakes than those he has made in the past. He is the sort of a man who can make mistakes and get away with them. He can do all sorts of outrageous things and suffer no harm for the doing. People seem to overlook his mistakes and errors, and will continue to do so and they do not seem to do him the least harm in the yes of the voters, or of anybody else. No matter what he does, he gets away with it, and he will stay where he is as long as he wants to."

And these are the reasons why a dark cloud is hanging over the heads of the ambitious statesmen who would like to move into the Government House at Annapolis in January, 1931.

And nine out of every ten people met in a day believe that he will want to remain at Annapolis at the expiration of his present term and that his wishes will be gratified.

CRELLIN.

By DURWARD B. BROWN.

The Crellin Methodist Church.

Since the people of Crellin are observing the thirtieth anniversary of the building of their church, it is appropriate that there be published a record of the preachers who have served at Crellin. We have undertaken to secure this information concerning the Methodist preachers, and doubtless there will appear shortly a similar record of the United Brethren preachers.

The first preacher of whom we have any knowledge is one William Junkins, who preached at Crellin occasionally and baptized several persons who are now numbered among the older residents of the community.

In 1886, D. B. Orr, then on the Grantsville charge, began preaching regularly at Crellin. The work which he began over forty years ago prospered and services have been held here regularly since his time. D. B. Orr is still an active preacher, being now at Mount Clare, near Clarksburg, West Va.

In 1887, Crellin was transferred to the Aurora charge, where it remained for twelve years. During that period the preachers were J. C. Rexroad (1887-1890); A. A. Nichols (1890-91); T. R. Faulkner (1891-1895); J. L. B. Jones (1895-1899). John C. Rexroad died at Evansville, W. Va., September 22, 1892; Mrs. Jemima Rexroad, his widow, lives in Kingwood, West Va. A. A. Nichols died at Pond Gap, W. Va., May 2, 1911. Mrs Nichols lives in Wilkinsburg, Pa. T. R. Faulkner died at Albright, where his widow continues to reside, on August 30, 1923. J. L. B. Jones served on the work five years and it was during his pastorate that the present church edifice was erected. Mr. Jones had been a drunkard, we aretold, but after conversion became an effective minister. The present Methodist church at Terra Alta was also built under his pastorate, following that of Crellin. In later life Mr. Jones suffered from poor health. He transferred to the west and there became involved financially. He was convicted on a charge of forging a note for $20 and following his incarceration in the Nebraska penitentiary committed suicide while confined therein.

From 1899 to 1901, Crellin was on the Mountain Lake Park charge, J. H. Funk and J. S. Harvey being the preachers. J. H. Funk is now preaching at Wolf Summit, W. Va. Shortly after the conference of 1901 Crellin was again put on the Aurora charge.

J. H. Koch was pastor 1901-1903. He is now preaching in the west or northwest. L. A. McNemar was pastor 1903-1905. He is now living about five miles west of Grafton. R. O. Phillips was pastor 1905-1907. He is at present engaged in preaching at Sistersville, W. Va., W. M. Lister was pastor 1907-1908. He is living in Huntington, W. Va. A. M. Crabtree was pastor 1908-1910. He is now pastor of Stealey church in Clarksburg. E. G. Hutchinson was pastor 1910-1911. He is now pastor at Junior, W. Va.

In 1911 the Aurora charge was divided and Crellin, Corinth and other appointments were grouped together as the Corinth charge. The pastors have been:

D. L. Reid (1911-1912), who died March 4 of last year at Sayre, Pa., after having been in Tucson, Arizona, a few years; Theopilus McCoy (1912-1914), now in very poor health at Triadelphia, W. Va., near Wheeling; Nelson S. Hill (1914-1916), now on the Edray charge. Marlington, W. Va.; J. W. Idleman (1916-1918), now on the Boulder charge, Eagle Rock, Va.; Frank McCamie (1918-1921), now at Farmington, W. Va.; William Anderson (1921-1924); Durward B. Brown (1924-). On January 17, 1926, the Corinth and Deer Park charges were combined with D. B. Brown as pastor and William Anderson, associate pastor.

If errors should be found in the above record the writer will be exceedingly glad to have them pointed out to him.

J. C. Kendall, J. Frank Ashby and Homer Shaffer are the committee in charge of the thirtieth anniversary celebration. Under their direction the church has been extensively remodeled. The interior decoration is by R. P. Seaber of Westernport, Md.

The building will be formally reopened for worship next Sunday, the 27th inst., when services will be held in the morning, afternoon and evening.

GAUER.

The groundhog has surely been living up to his reputation judging by the weather we have been having the past week.

A new kind of car has been introduced into our community. It is known as the Autohorse. The main feature one notices about it is that it runs on a two-horse power propulsion.

Mr. W. P. Hines, who was ill, is now much improved.

Mr. D. O. Roth and son Russell were visitors here on Saturday.

Mrs. Floyd Shaffer was hostess at a quilting party on Tuesday.

Mrs. Elmer Shaffer was a visitor at the home of Mrs. Lemuel Reed last week.

A spelling and cyphering match will be held at the Gauer school on Thursday evening, March 3. The public is cordially invited to attend and take part. A festival will be held following the diversion.

You Will Never Regret It

You can't always depend upon the other fellow's umbrella when it rains.

And you can depend still less upon the other fellow's bank account in case of necessity.

But the thrifty individual who opens a savings account with us, and deposits something each week, will be able to raise his own umbrella when that rainy day comes.

Why not start this week?

We have a savings book waiting for you.

Rainbow Gold

THEY say that at the end of the rainbow you will find a pot of gold.

Many seek this treasure, wasting time vainly in visions of good fortune. No one has ever reached the rainbow's end.

The pot of gold is real only to those who attain their object by sound, practical plans.

Good fortune becomes a fact when you open a bank account and start regular deposits.

For steady financial progress, an easy and successful method is to make a deposit of one, two, three dollars or more every week.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS.

The South has too much cotton; Cuba has too much sugar and up here in Garrett county we have too much weather just at present.

Mrs. Walter Hardesty went to Pittsburgh Monday morning to visit her sister, who is a patient in one of the hospitals in that city.

Mrs. William Weber returned home Saturday evening from Clarksburg, West Va., where she had been on a visit to relatives and friends.

Mr. Harold Rook has returned to Oakland from a point in Indiana where he spent a week attending a reunion of his overseas company.

Mr. Elmer Harvey, of Ryan's Glade, was in Oakland Saturday, having brought to market a quantity of maple sugar and molasses which he manufactured in his sugar camp this year. Mr. Harvey is authority for the statement that the sugar made thus far this season is of a superior quality and the quantity produced compares favorably with former years.

St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood will meet in the lecture room of the church on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. President Henry Lauer announces that a very good program has been prepared, which will have in it a surprise for all who will come. The comic section will not be missing, neither will the good things to eat. Come. Good rousing singing to be led by Wade Hinebaugh and "Bill" Gibson.

Mrs. Mary Wallace, an aged resident of town, suffered a stroke of paralysis at her home on Monday afternoon. This morning Mrs. Wallace is slightly improved. Her son, Edward Wallace, who fell several weeks ago and broke his leg and who was taken to the home of his daughter in Grafton a day or two afterwards, arrived here Tuesday evening to be with his mother.

At the library benefit Monday evening in the Maryland Theatre the presentation of the picture was followed by an address delivered by Mr. Delbert Davis, who spoke of the benefits derived by the community in having a public library for its citizens. Several musical numbers were also rendered by Wilmer Brown and J. J. Gilbert and vocal numbers were sung by a quartet composed of Jesse J. Ashby, Henry Lauer, Walter Dawson and Wade Hinebaugh. The Oakland Orchestra furnished the music during the presentation of the picture.

All roads leading into Oakland were blocked from Saturday evening at an early hour until Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock by the heaviest snowfall experienced in this section during the present winter. The State road to Accident was piled high. The new rotary plow, for which great claims were made for its efficiency in moving snow from the roadways, proved a miserable failure, and after wasting much valuable time the machine was finally ditched and the work of opening the road was proceeded with by men with shovels. Sunday afternoon, Charles Peck, motorman on the rotary plow, was overcome by fumes from the exhaust of the motor and had to be brought to Oakland for medical treatment.

Manager Gonder of the Maryland Theatre wishes to announce to the public that he has secured John R. Van Arnam's Sueprior Minstrels for one night, March 2. Van Arnam's Minstrels, while only on their 7th season, comes with an enviable reputation of having played two consecutive years as an headline attraction over the B. F. Keith circuit of vaudeville theatres, being the only production giving the entire show on the Keith circuit.

Mr. Van Arnam has the only minstrel show on the road today playing to popular prices of 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.00. He believes in crowded houses and pleasing the public. As with all minstrel shows, there will be a street parade at noon and a band concert in front of the theatre before the night performance.

Reserved seats are now on sale at Gonders Pharmacy, Phone 6-9. Adv. 1

YEMEN, an independent country of Arabia, across the lower end of the narrow Red sea from the Italian colony of Eritrea, is the latest land to enter into treaty relations with Italy. As a result the likelihood is seen of the peaceful penetration of southwestern Arabia by Italian influence.

This reign, like all other parts of Arabia, was under at least nominal Turkish control before the great war; but since it has constituted an imamate, under the rule of the Arab Imam Yahya ben Muhammad ben Hamid al Din, who rules from Sabia. Yemen has the distinction and the good fortune to be one of the few parts of Arabia that are of agricultural importance. Under a stable government it would have an important commercial future. The British protectorate of Aden is one of the chief outlets for its produce.

Yemen's American fame rests principally upon the familiar name of an almost deserted city, Mocha, through which coffee no longer comes, where debris clutters the streets, where only mosques remain intact.

Coffee still is a major crop of Yemen, but it is exported largely through Hodeida, and in even greater quantity via Aden, port of the British protectorate to the south, which today is the commercial neck of the Red sea bottle.

Order coffee in Yemen, however, and you will not repeat the experiment. For the Arabians of coffee-land prefer the husks to the berries, and the brew therefrom has been compared to hot barley water. To the occidental mind this concoction affords neither flavor or stimulus. The Yemenite looks elsewhere for a stimulant—to khat.

The world knows almost nothing about khat. Our scientific books are nearly silent on the subject. Travelers who ought to have observed its uses write from heresay and usually with the most amazing ignorance. There are even Europeans in the Yemen, whose servants have chewed khat every day of their lives, with so little knowledge of native life and customs that after years of residence they ask: "Why, what is khat? We never heard of it." Yet no Yemen event is complete without its presence, and no Yemen Arab—man, woman or child—passes a day if he can help it without the aid of at least a few leaves of the precious khat.

When the European is weary he calls for alcohol to revive him; when he is joyful he takes wine, that he may have more joy. In like manner the Chinese woos his "white lady," the poppy flower, the Indian chews bhang, and the West African seeks surcease in kola. Khat is more to the Yemen Arab than any of these to its devotees. It is no narcotic, wooing sleep, but a stimulant, like alcohol. Unlike alcohol, it conceals no demon, but a fairy. The khat eater will tell you that when he follows this fairy it takes him into regions overlooking paradise. He calls the plant the "flower of paradise."

Catha edulis, as the plant is known botanically, grows to some extent in Abyssinia, but it is cultivated chiefly in the mountains of the Yemen interior behind Aden. The word khat is said to be derived from another Arabic word, kat, meaning sustenance or reviving principle, and refers to the most salient property of the plant, that of exalting the spirits and supporting the bodily strength, under extraordinary conditions, of one who eats its leaves. The researches of Albert Beltter of the University of Strassburg, seem to show that its active principle is an alkaloid in the form of crystals, very bitter and odorless.

Along the steep, terraced slopes of the mountains between Taiz and Yerim you will find the small plantations of the khat farmer. Not till you have climbed nearly 4,000 feet will you see the first one, and when you reach 6,000 feet you will have passed the last.

Varieties and Cultivation.

Bokhari is the best of all khat and by far the most expensive. The supply is so limited that it is never seen except among the richest merchants of Zebide, Ibb, Taiz and Sanaa. The commonest kind is Moqari, which grows in the district of Makatra, about four days' camel ride from Aden, and most of the 2,500 camel loads of khat which reach Aden in the course of a year is of this variety.

Khat cultivation is simple. The plant bears neither flowers nor seeds, but is grown from cuttings. After the farmer has flooded his field till the soil has absorbed its utmost of water, he covers it with goat droppings and allows it to "ripen" for a few days. Then he hurles the cuttings in shallow holes from 4 to 6 feet apart, with space enough between the rows for pickers to pass. But the Yemen cow and the sad-eyed camel, whose maw is never filled, have a nice taste in khat cuttings, and to discourage these marauders the former covers each hill with thorn twigs and spiny cactus leaves. Sometimes he trains one of the half-wild dogs which infest the village to guard that particular field.

At the end of a year the young shrubs are two feet high with a thickly spread green foliage 18 inches in diameter. Behold now the farmer going out into the dawn of each morning to gaze at his field and the sky in the hope of seeing the portents of harvest time. On a morning the air is thick with bulbuls, sparrows, weaver birds, shrilly clamoring. They rise and fall upon his plants, picking at the tenderest leaves. "Allah be praised!" cries the simple farmer, "the leaves are sweet and ripe for the market."

And now he calls his women and the wives of his neighbors to the crop-picking. Under a bower of jasmine vines, with plumes of the sweet-smelling rehan in their turbans, the farmer and his cronies gather to drink kishar from tiny cups and smoke the hubbuk, while the womenfolk bring them armfuls of the freshly cut khat leaves. What a joyous time it is for all the village; for always the farmer distributes the whole of his first crop among his neighbors.

The khat plant grows from 5 to 12 feet in height and then it stops. As the foliage thickens, the larger branches are pruned out to prevent crowding, and when the plant is sixteen years old the top usually dies. It is cut off about a foot above the ground, and from the stump new shoots spring out and the plant is reborn.

In Aden the arrival of the khat camels is looked forward to as the chief daily event. When they arrive, about noon, the market is filled with a restless, yelling mob. Bedlam has broken loose, but it is a merry, good-natured bedlam.

After the khat is weighed on the government scales and duly taxed, it is divided into bundles the thickness of a man's forearm. Then the sellers mount tables and auction it off.

In an hour the place is all but deserted and the foot-marked, earthen floor littered with debris. Now come the venders of firewood and all the despised castes, like scavengers, to buy the refuse for a few pice. But out in the streets may be seen hundreds happily wending homeward, a bundle of the precious leaves under each arm, their jaws working and their eyes full of a delicious content. It is close on to noon, and you will not see them again until after two o'clock.

Contrary to the general opinion, khat is never used as a beverage in the Yemen, but the fresh leaves are invariably chewed. The youngest leaves are the best. They have a sweetish, slightly astringent taste, not unpleasant to the European palate, but certainly not alluring. When brewed, they lose most of their strength and the flavor of the decoction is much like that of grapevine "cigarettes."

Just what is the exact toxic effect of khat on the human system has never yet been ascertained. It is certainly a stimulant with a lively and nearly immediate effect upon the brain and nerve cells; the gloomiest man becomes cheerful under its influence, the most enervated active.

Fete Days Dependent on Church Sun Dial

In 1743 a meridian column was set up in the old Church of St Sulpice, Paris, for determining the date on which Easter and other church fetes would fall. The column bears a long vertical mark extending down its center; this mark is prolonged on the floor. Together these two lines determine a vertical plane in space, which if sufficiently produced would include the earth's axis and through which the sun would pass at noontime as the earth rotated.

In order to make this event visible a small slit was cut through the roof of the church in the same meridian plane. Through it the sunlight penetrated, slanting downward toward the line below, and swept across it at noontime. As Easter approached, the sun's altitude in the heavens increased until the spot of sunlight finally crossed the line at the marked point. Since the other fetes followed Easter by an arbitrary lapse of time, the old meridian column, installed by Maurice de Sully, determined them all.—Scientific American.

Character Is Shaped by Means of Thought

Every day we are becoming more like our thoughts. If they are mean and selfish, we cannot prevent ourselves from becoming so. If they are unclean and evil, our character and conduct will inevitably be shaped by them. It is true that as a man "thinketh in his heart, so he is."

As Charles Kingsley says: "Think about yourself; about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch; you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you; you will be as wretched as you choose, on earth or in heaven either."

And on the other hand, loving thoughts will produce loving acts, and a generous, kindly way of regarding others in our own minds will bring us to a generous, kindly treatment of them in daily life.—Pentecost Herald.

Manners and Breeding

I make a difference between good manners and good breeding; although, in order to vary my expression, I am sometimes forced to confound them. By the first I only understand the art of remembering and applying certain settled forms of behavior. But good breeding is of a much larger extent; for besides an uncommon degree of literature sufficient to qualify a gentleman for reading a play, or a political pamphlet, it takes in a great compass of knowledge; no less than that of fighting, dancing, gaming, making the circle of Italy, riding the great horse, and speaking French, not to mention some other secondary or subaltern accomplishments, which are more easily acquired.—Jonathan Swift.

Post-Facto Postcards

The acme of preparation was attained by a woman whom the Boston Herald tells about. She had gone to a hospital to undergo an operation. Before the surgeon arrived she asked for two postal cards, wrote a short message on each, addressed them both to her husband and asked the nurse to mail the one it was best to mail the next day.

The nurse glanced at the cards and saw that one of them read as follows:

"My dear husband: I have had the operation and am doing nicely. Will be at home in a week or two."

On the other card was written:

"My dear husband: I have had the operation and am sorry to tell you that I did not survive."

Cassowary's Vengeance

A cassowary in New Guinea, after a formal magistrate's inquiry, was convicted of murdering two human beings. The criminal had been tethered in a native village as a pet, and, no doubt, had been thoroughly teased. Breaking away, it nursed its grievances in the bush until full grown. Then it came back and made war on the natives. A man named Tauno was killed in his own garden, and his mother, who went to look for him, was also murdered.

Such was the terrorism caused by the cassowary that people in the village were ordered not to go out alone.

Soft Bed Saves Sleep

If you earn your living mainly by brain work, you can save at least two hours of rest every night by sleeping on a good, soft bed. Such is the conclusion reached by Dr. Donnid A. Laird of the department of psychology, Colgate university, following a series of experiments with students. By measurements of mental reactions in terms of calories, says Popular Science Monthly, he found that a soft bed will build as much mental energy in six hours as a hard bed will build in eight.

China's Olympic Games

More than 5,000 years ago China had gladiators who met in a contest somewhat like the modern Olympic games. These gladiators amused and thrilled the crowds not only with fancy juggling, but with real encounters between champions, one defending himself with a scimitar while the challenger tried to plunge a long spear into his body. Their skill would hold the audience breathless. There is an effort on to revive these feats of skill and strength.

RECOMMEND HIGHWAY FOR AIRWAY BEACON LIGHTS

Boosters to Petition Congress to Designate National Road as Lighted Guideway for Ships

A proposition to have the Federal Government use the route of the National Highway for the beacon lights of the proposed new United States Mode Airway, was adopted at the recent meeting of the National Highway Booster Association at the Windsor Hotel in Wheeling, West Va.

All the members of the association including Tasker G. Lowndes, of Cumberland, and W. E. G. Hitchens, of Frostburg, who were appointed vice-presidents from Maryland, were urged to get in touch with their Congressmen in an effort to have the highway designated as the cross country lighted airway, which, it was pointed out, would mean much to the boosting of the highway.

The association plans an extensive campaign of boosting the National Highway to tourists for travel. A pamphlet, setting forth the National Highway's scenic beauty, many points of historic interest and other pertinent facts, is to be posted at headquarters of chambers of commerce, automobile clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and other organizations, to enable motorists who plan traveling east or west or other parts of the United States to be informed on the advantages of the National Highway as an artery of travel.

There were several hundred members of the association at the meeting, they being the guests of H. B. Mabson, of the Fort Cumberland Hotel, who is also proprietor of the Windsor Hotel in Wheeling.

BAUGHMAN WOULD ROUT HIGHWAY DAREDEVIL

Asks Cooperation of Road Users To Help Eliminate Dangerous Driver.

Cooperation of all the users of the highways in an effort to eliminate the daredevil operator of motor vehicles, together with the careless, indifferent and ignorant driver, was asked by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Baughman last week.

"Along with the daredevil, with his reckless disregard of safety requirements, there is also a small minority of others of equal menace," says Commissioner Baughman.

"This group includes the inexperienced week-end driver, who, in an entire year does not get as much actual driving experience as other constant users of cars do in a month; those who are not irresponsible but who have no realization of the tremendous danger which accompanies the operation of a motor vehicle.

Clutter Traffic Court.

"These people have no conception of what they are capable of doing in damage and death and injuries until they have come to grief. These, with the speed maniacs, are the ones who litter our traffic court and magistrate's dockets with a record of violations of all sorts.

"And, after all is said and done, the safety and well-being, which means in large measure the happiness of any community or of a whole State, is a very personal and individual affair. It lies with the individuals of the unit themselves.

"However, some people never are touched until they or some member of their family has, because of carelessness, indifference, reckless daredevilry or ignorance, been injured. Then, and only then, after the damage has been done, they will do their part in the community safety preservation.

"Why cannot the motorist who wants to help preserve safety on the highways develop this help along constructive lines by reporting all such bad driving practices as he or she sees? More than this, those observing citizens who want the roads made safer should be willing to go to some inconvenience and lose some of their time by pressing their charges.

"No person accused of an offense can be punished unless his accuser is willing to face him and substantiate the charges made. Hence, the mere report without the willingness to back it up with a personal appearance is, in many instances, practically valueless."

LETTER TO FARMERS—No. 1

Dear Sir:--

It isn't an easy matter making a living out of the soil. There are long hours of hard work, so that when you spend a dollar you want as much out of it as you put into it.

At this store you can spend your money that way for clothes.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx have been able to lower prices to an astonishing degree through specialization, immense buying power and volume.

You get the same quality in these fine clothes that you always did for as low as $25.00. You can't beat that anywhere. If you have more to spend, clothes at $33.00 or $45.00 give you just as much value in comparison.

We will be glad to show you how much we can save money for you. We guarantee satisfaction. Next time you're in town, come in.

Yours truly,
H. C. SINCELL

Making the Community Christian

Galatians 5:13-25.

Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.—Ephesians 5:11.

IS OUR COMMUNITY CHRISTIAN?

Who is a Christian? One who is controlled by the ideals of Jesus. Such a definition may eliminate some of the church members, but it seems that that would not be the fault of the definition. If we put such a test to the community made up of all types of men and women could we call ours Christian? For it would have to be controlled by Christ's ideals in order to measure to the full what such a conception gives. And in such a sense there is no such thing as a Christian community anywhere. It will be very profitable for one to apply the measure of Christ's ideals to the various factors making up the community life to see wherein the lack may lie. Take the question of education: are our schools completely Christian? Do rich and poor, white and black, have the same opportunities? Is the body of the teaching staff and of the curriculum all that the ideals of Jesus would approve? Consider the working conditions: are they Christian? There are many who openly question whether a commercial system built entirely upon the profit motive ean win the approval of our Lord. But aside from that are the wages proportionate to the profits of the capital invested? Are the conditions under which they are earned such that moral and physical health may he as much a product as the goods created? Certainly if Jesus sat at the superintendent's desk they would be. Look at the amusements of the community: are they Christian? They are becoming more and more a part of the every-day living of folks whose leisure nas been increasing with the passing years and their share will be an increasing one. Do they minister to the wholesome, healthful moral tone of the community? And to that of the participant? Evils and erlme are of course ruled out, for a thoroughly Christian community would have neither,but does ours have them? And is cur attitude Christian toward these that do exist among us? Are they present by our protest or by our connivance? Is the course we pursue toward those who indulge that which our Lord would take if He were in our place? He was always eager to cure the sinner rather than curing the sin, while we are apt to reverse the process. Are our churches Christian? In setting them up and in continuing their work, is our chief aim the meeting of the needs of the community or is it to foster denominationalism? What would be the verdict of Jesus? A study of the home life, church life and neighborhood activities and attitudes might waken in us new conceptions of how far below what is actually Christian our community standards are.

PAUL'S PROBLEM.

The problem of that Galatian community was the same as our own, but the contact differed. And it was not seen so completely as we visualize our own, for he was writing of a condition that affected the Christian section of it instead of the whole population. He would reach as we must the complete citizenship through the improvement of a part of it—always the road of progress. There had arisen among them the contention of the Judaizers who felt that the old rules of living should not be laid aside for the lawlessness which they helieved to be the heart of the Christian faith. The ear was good, but why throw away the husk in which it had been nourished? Forms were to be followed, else the new life would fall as a vine without a trellis. They did not minimize the life, but they exalted the trellis. Paul insisted that the new life was always more important than the form. Their new life was in the Spirit of Jesus and to follow His Spirit then as now is the safest guide to correctness of form. Love was to be their only law, as it was to become their life. Beyond that there could be no requirement unless it was mechanistic instead of Christly. And he fought for the liberty of sueh self-expression.

PAUL'S METHOD.

He began where we must all begin—with the individual. Redeem him and he will redeem his surroundings. Reverse the process and you get a man with more vigor but not necessarily with more morality. The Apostle would transform the spirit of the man hy the transfusion of the Spirit of Jesus Into hls life.

Then would the things of the flesh vanish. Sex debauchery, religious vagaries and neighborhood influences are the three groups listed here as opposed to the Spirit. They are still persistent things needing mueh to be fought and driven out of all living. And they must be before any group can become all that a Christian group should be. The lesson is particularly aimed at the existent drunkenness and the substitution of temperance and self-control. Both for one's sake as well as for the good of the community such self-indulgence is impossible. "It doesn't hurt me" is too flimsy an excuse to stand as is that much shouted slogan of personal liberty. We never have liberty to do wrong. The emphasis is never that merely of opposition to wrong things in the life of either individual or of the community, but always upon the positive virtues that would drive out the others by the "expulsive power of a new affection." Here again is a group of three, all fruit of the Spirit and all expected in each life. The first three belong to the individual alone and can not be shared with others. I can not have love for another, nor have joy nor peace for any other soul—they are my sole possession. When it comes to their active expression toward other they become long-suffering, kindness and goodness for these are what others see in my action. Faithfulness, meekness, self-control are the things that God is looking for in our living and link us with Him. If we allow the Spirit of Jesus to take possession of us then this will be the result in personal character. And such we should be.

PAUL'S URGENCY.

Paul had no belief in a quiescent Christian life. It must be an active expression of protest against all things that hindered its growth. The flesh would be crucified. It does not appear that he believed every vice would immediately be east out, but they would be rendered impotent. There is no hint of weakness in his creed, hut only of heroic immolation of appetites that would hinder the fullest life. I must make my own self the best possible. And continuing under the guidance of the Spirit I must walk among men as a Christ-like man or woman. That means witnessing against all wrongs in our community and the giving of our best efforts to dispossess them from its life.

GORTNER.

Mr. Christ Swartzentruber, of near Greenwood, Del., arrived here on last Thursday where he will be employed with his brothers.

Misses Vida and Ruth Miller and Messrs. Edward Cotter and John Burkholder left on Friday for Meyersdale, Pa., where they will sweeten up for a week or two in the sugar camps of numerous relatives in that community.

Boone Lichty is snowed up at or near Grantsville at this writing, but he doesn't care so long as his friends feed him and give him some place to sleep. Mr. Lichty was accompanied to Grantsville by Miss Anna Bender and H. E. Yoder.

Ted Beachy has returned to his home here from Salisbury.

A crowd of Gortner and Lynndale folks attended singing at Mr. Artie Dodge's on Sunday evening.

Mr. Daniel Splade, of Eglon, delivered a sermon for us Sunday morning on "Stewardship." Mr. Splade was a guest at the home of Mr. P. P. Gortner while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Galen Fike and Misses Opel and Vivian Fike spent Sunday with the Lichtys.

Miss Lela Mosser and Mr. Lee Slabach spent Wednesday evening with Miss Emma Burkholder.

Mr. D. L. Swartzentruber and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Norman Beachy on Sunday.

Among those visiting Mrs. Joel Slabach last week were Mrs. P. P. Gortner, Mrs. Anna Bittinger, Mrs. W. C. Welch and Miss Mary Lichty.

Master Gordon Sanders, accompanied Mr. Paul Welch to Grantsville on Wednesday.

Mr. Webster Slabach and sister Anna Virginia visited at the home of Mr. George Beckman at Lynndale on Sunday.

Mrs. John Hoff, Mrs. Anna Bittinger and Miss Ruth Schlossnagle spent Wednesday with Mrs. Kelley at Sunnyside.

Messrs. Scott and Lee Ridder recently visited Mr. Roy Lee in this community.

LOCH LYNN.

The Mountain Lake-Loch Lynn Women's Community Club met in regular session at the Ladies' Aid Hall last Wednesday afternoon. The officers for the new year were elected and are as follows: President, Mrs. J. E. Elliott; vice-president, Mrs. E. O. Fouch; secretary, Mrs. Britten Martin; treasurer, Mrs. H. M. Weeks. The members of the general committee are Mrs. Britten Martin, Mrs. E. O. Fouch, Mrs. C. E. Hardesty, Mrs. H. M. Weeks and Miss Mildred Ford. Miss Lola Belle Green, County Demonstration Agent, was present and gave an interesting demonstration on the pressure cooker by cookig a complete meal in fifteen minutes. The next meeting will take place on the third Wednesday in March. Each member will respond to roll call by giving a quotation from Lincoln or Washington. You are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Miss Orley V. Dunham and Mrs. C. E. Hardesty were shopping in Cumberland on Saturday.

The regular meeting of the Loch Lynn 4-H Club was held Saturday morning. The girls cooked and served a valentine luncheon at which Miss Green, demonstration agent, and Miss Mildred Ford, local leader, were the guests. Following the luncheon a business meeting was held. The officers are President, Helen Leighton; vice-president, Virginia Weeks; secretary, Helen Gibson; treasurer, Elizabeth Gibson; program committee, Betty Hardesty. Dorothy Stevenson is assistant local leader.

Rev. F. L. Fultz, returned to his home here from a visit to Buckhannon, West Va.

Mr. L. B. Crane, of Buckhannon, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Combs at their home in Loch Lynn.

ACCIDENT.

Father and Son Banquet.

The second annual father and son banquet of the department of agriculture of the Accident High School was held on Friday evening, February 18, in the school auditorium. The banquet was well attended in spite of the stormy weather. Between fifty-five and sixty fathers, sons and guests were present.

The supper, which consisted of fried oysters, fried chicken, sandwiches, bread and butter, pickles, coffee, pie and cake, started at 8:15 p. m. Throughout the courses and afterward the toastmaster, Mr. W. E. Tarhell, called upon the guests for speeches.

Mr. F. E. Rathbun, supenintendent of schools, spoke upon the condition and progress which the schools thruout the county are making and of his confidence in the progress and improvements yet to come, especially in regard to housing facilities.

Following Mr. Rathbun, Mr. Miller, principal of the Accident school, spoke briefly and then Mr. Whiteford, Mr. Graser and Mr. Carter, agricultural teachers at Grantsville, Oakland and Freindsville, respectively, were introduced, each giving a short talk and expressing his pleasure at being present. Mr. McGlone, the county agent, was also introduced, and he gave a brief talk upon his desire to be of service to the farmers of this county and his hope of having their aid and cooperation.

The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Archibald Moore, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland. His talk upon "Success" was thought provoking and inspiring. He left with the sons three words or keys for them to place upon their key rings of success. The keys were "Availability," "Concentration" and "Enthusiasm." He told them that they must avail themselves of the opportunities of this world as they present themselves, then to concentrate upon these opportunities with their entire enthusiasm. "No person," said Dr. Moore, "is born to be a failure in this life, but the amount and quality of success which one might achieve depends upon how he uses the talents with which he was born."

TO SAVE YOUR TIME—

Place Your Out-of-Town Calls by Number!

HAVE you noticed that the long distance operator has been completing many of your out-of-town calls while you held the line?

We can give you this almost as fast as local service when you know the number of the distant telephone. It makes no difference whether you call "anyone" or a particular person at an out-of-town telephone; in either case you'll get an extra-rapid service if you can give the number.

Suppose you don't know the number—

We'll complete the connection and tell you the number at the time. But to save your time we suggest that you make a list of the names and addresses of all the persons or firms whom you are apt to call. Mail it to our Business Office and we will promptly supply you with their numbers.

A Word of Explanation—There are two kinds of long distance calls: Station-to-station and Person-to-person. On a station-to-station call we connect you with the out-of-town number just as we do on a local call. On a person-to-person call we connect you with the particular person desired at the distant telephone; these calls take about 25 per cent higher rate.

QUIT GETTING UP NIGHTS

A Healthy Bladder Acts During the Day.

C. N. Shuman, Republic, Ohio, says: "Before taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) I had to get up six or seven times each night. Now I do not get up at all. You may use my name if it would benefit anyone with bladder trouble." Be careful not to take drugs that would check the action of the bladder. You may have to continue its use. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) increases the action during the day. It cleanses the bladder as epsom salts do the bowels, driving out foreign matter, neutralizing excess acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "Getting Up Nights." The tablets cost 2 cents each at all drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Sold locally at Gonder's Pharmacy, Oakland.—Advertisement 1-1t.

CONGRESS APPROPRIATES FUND FOR TRAINING CAMPS

Quota For Garrett County For The Summer Camp Is Set At Ten.

Sufficient funds have been appropriated by Congress as its current session to provide food, clothing, transportation to and from camps, training, etc., of 4,300 young men from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia at Citizens' Military Training Camps this coming summer. Announcement to this effect was made by Major General Douglas MacArthur, U. S. A., Headquarters Third Corps Area, Baltimore, Maryland.

Since the original encampment in 1921, this annual period of one month's physical training and citizenship instruetion has beeome increasingly popular. Applications to attend these encampments invariably exceed the number provided for and are gradually increasing with the development of new features. It has therefor become necessary to assign population quotas to the various counties, and to follow the "First come, first served" rule in approval of applications. A large number of applieations to attend this year's encampments have already been received. The entire quota for Garrett county, is ten.

In past years, Camp Mead, Maryland, has been one of the largest camps for this purpose hut will be supplanted this year hy other military stations in the Third Corps Area, to be announced in the near future.

Young men desiring to attend camp this year should make early application to the local representative of the Military Training Camps Association, or to The C. M. T. C. Officer, Headquarters Third Corps Area, Baltimore, Maryland, from whom the necessary information and application blanks may be obtained.

VIRGINIA AND W. VA. TO BUILD NEW ROAD

Traffic Will Be Increased On Improved Roads In The County.

A new short-cut improved road to the upper valley of Virginia and Southern points, through Romney, W. Va., is provided in an agreement between the state highway commissions of Virginia and West Virginia.

The plan is to connect with the National Pike and thus reach western points via Cumberland, going either through Uniontown, Pa., or via Oakland and Terra Alta, W. Va.

The agreement to make this road one of the conneeting links between West Virginia and Virginia, reached by Governor Byrd and Governor Gore at the recent Hot Springs conference, has been approved by the highway commissions and West Virginia will allocate the funds to build its end of the road from Mathias to the Virginia line in the famous Brock's Gap country, a distance of about sixteen miles.

Virginia itself has not so much work to do to make the connection. Its end of the new highway is eompleted within about three and one-half miles of the State line. The road passes through Brock's Gap, a picturesque level plateau in the mountains, and then taps the Valley pike at Mausy, about twelve miles north of Harrisonburg.

Virginia, however, is not going to stop at the task of completing the unfinished end of the highway. Plans are now being made to widen the road from Broadway to the Valley pike. This section of the paved road is now 12 feet. It is proposed to widen the right of way to 50 feet and extend the paved section from 12 to 18 feet, creating almost a boulevard on the eastern sector of the proposed new highway.

The proposed two-State highway will pass through Shenandoah National Forest and through the Brock's Gap Game Reserve, a 9,000 acre plot of land in the two States which has been set aside for the breeding of deer and other wild game in Virginia and West Virginia. The game commissions of the two States are now working joint rules and regulations for the contro' of this wild game preserve An effort will be made to repopula.e the Shenandoah and Alleghany Mountain with deer in this preserve.

Oakland High School Notes.

On Friday, March 4th, we will be entertained by the O. H. S. Agriculture Club. The program will be as follows:

Club Song ..... by Club
"Pete and the Peddler," a comic drama. Cast of characters:
Pete (colored servant), Welba Casteel; Pat Rooney (a peddler) Reginald Ford; Mrs. Bromley (a retired widow), Charles Dodge.
Song. ..... by Club.

This program will show in part what our club can do. Do not miss it. The play promises more fun than a movie, and the admission is only five cents. The proceeds to be used by the Agricultural Club. Don't fail to come.

The second year Girls' Music class has been requested by the Knights of Pythias to repeat the operetta entitled, "Eensy, Meensy, Minsy Mo," in their lodge hall Friday evening, March 4th. This operetta made a great hit with all who saw it last Friday afternoon in the High School auditorium.

Davis Triumphs on Court.

Last Thursday, February 24, there was staged in the Grand theatre the most interesting basket hall game of the season. The blue and gold of Davis High hooked up with the orange and black of Oakland, and Davis managed to squeeze out a victory. The game was featured by the spectacular shots of Jake Echard, who scored five douhle deckers from mid-floor. Maroney also gave a good account of himself with three two pointers. Sanders played a fine defensive game for Oakland. The score at the end of the first half was 13 to 16 with the locals on top. In the last half the Davis "Big Guns" opened fire and showed the "fans" some real basket ball. Zaltors, Shreeves and Joy scored four and three field goals, respectively, and nosed out O. H. S. finally carrying off the laurels. The score being 21 to 27.

The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen in the preliminary in a hotly contested game. Score: Freshmen, 20; Sophomores, 28.

LOCAL FIREFIGHTERS ADD NEW EQUIPMENT

One And A Half-Ton Capacity Dodge Truck Purchased—To Carry Chemicals Chiefly.

A new one and one-half-ton capacity Dodge truck has been added to the Oakland Fire department. This truck will be especially equpiped with chemicals, ladders and 500 extra feet of hose, and will be known at F. D. No. 2. This announcement was made known at the regular meeting of the Oakland Fire department Tuesday night.

The new truck will carry 110 gallons of chemicals, a complete ladder set, hand chemicals, 500 feet of hose, and a complete fire fighting equipment.

The fire equipment of the Mountain Lake Park department was turned over to the Oakland department at this meeting in consideration of the volunteer service which is offered by the fireman of this city. The equipment consisted of one $1050 truck, and some hose, which will be offered for sale, preferably to some small town wherein this kind of truck is most suceessful.

The department which now numbers 25 members were all outfitted with coats and helmets. The officers of the volunteer company are working with officials of the town in an endenvor to give lower rate on insurance premiums. The danger of loss by fire is considerably less than one-half of what it was formerly, officers stated. Cooperation by the residents of Oakland and vicinity in this connection will be appreciated, they concluded.

Safe-Blowers Fail At "Job" In Pierce.

Sheriff Casteel was called to Pierce, West Va., Friday, to conduct an investigation following an attempt to blow open a large safe in the Buxton-Landstreet building in that town during Thursday night.

On making his approach to the town Sheriff Casteel saw two suspicious looking youngsters along the highway, and after reaching the town and gathering information concerning these boys, their arrest followed. It was learned this morning that after a hearing before a magistrate at Pierce, the boys were held for the action of the Circuit Court.

The safe is used by the Davis Coal & Coke Company and also by the Post Master of Pierce, and it is said that at the time of the attempted robbery a large sum of money was in it.

It is said that nitro glycerine was used by the would-be robbers, and that the door of the safe was badly damaged.

Bus Line Under New Management.

A large bus has replaced the Studebaker seven-passenger touring car which has been running on a bus line between Mt. Lake Park, Oakland and Kingwood, W. Va., and it is understood that the Monongahela West Penn Traction Co., has taken over the line at a cost of $45,000 for the equipment and franchise, and have now a route from Mt. Lake Park to Fairmont, West Va., via Terra Alta, Kingwood and Morgantown, West Va.

DIED.

OLIVE IRENE SOELTERS

Olive Irene Soelters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Soelters, of Sunnyside, died Sunday, February 27, and was buried with services at the Red House Lutheran church, Tuesday afternoon. Mareh 1st. Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, officiated. Miss Soelters was aged 15 years, 3 months and 27 days. She is survived by her parents, a three year old sister and a wide circle of friends.

CALVIN GRIFFITH

Calvin Griffith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Griffith of near Cove in Garrett County, died at the Western Maryland Hosptial, Cumberland, on Sunday morning, where he had been a pntient and had undergone treatment for the past ten days. He was 24 years of age and is survived by his wife, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Harmon of the Little Cove, also an infant child. His parents and several brothers and sisters also survive him. The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the German Lutheran church in the Cove. Rev. H. H. Fickenscher, officiating. LEGISLATORS ON GOOD WILL TOUR TO BE HERE

Maryland General Assembly To Be Entertained At Dinner On Saturday.

One hundred twenty-five members of the Maryland General Assembly will arrive in Oakland Saturday afternoon and be entertained with a banquet given by the eitizens of the county, the Mayor and Town Council and various organizations of the town.

The visitors, after being entertained at dinner, along with the citizens of the county, will assemble in the Court House, where a program of interest will be carried out.

The members of the good will tour are making an inspection of Western Maryland and will visit Cumberland, Frostburg, Hagerstown as well as Oakland. Their headquarters will be made at Cumberland where they will spend Friday night, making both trips, to Frostburg and Oakland, by motor transportation.

The Legislators are coming to Oakland on invitation extended them by the citizens of the county, the Town Council and several organizations of the town. The party will be divided into three groups for dinner, one group each going to the William-James, Manhattan, and Frantz hotels respectively.

All citizens of the county are urged to be present at the meeting in the Court House, and to participate in the program.

The trip is being made so that the solons may become better acquainted with the coal situation in this part of the state and also to take in all the heauty spots of Western Maryland.

There is a possibility that the meeting scheduled at the Court House will not be held, however no definite arrangements can be made at this time.

Toxin-Antitoxin Clinic At Friendsville.

The next Toxin-Antitoxin Clinic will be held at Friendsville starting March 16th. This is a preventative for diphtheria and is given in three doses a week apart. Parents are urged to sign consent slips which they may obtain from the school if they wish their child to receive this treatment. This is for pre-sehool children as well as school children and will be given by the Friendsville physicians, with the help of the County Health Nurse, Rhesa M. King.

Library Benefit A Financial Success.

The motion picture given for the benefit of the Garrett County Free Public Library on Monday evening at the Maryland Theatre was well patronized, and the sum realized, including the sale of candy was $90.00. Expenses for the occasion amounted to approximately $50. Owing to the inclement weather, Mr. Bernard I. Gonder, manager of the Theatre, reduced the rental $8.

Mrs. Lawrence Fraley had charge of the candy selling, and Mr. R. R. Gilbert had charge of the music, which was the most delightful feature of the evening. Mr. Gilbert played a saxaphone solo. Wilmer Brown, of Mt. Lake Park, played the accordion, and the "Scrap Iron" quartette pleased the audienee with the rendition of several songs. Mrs. James P. Treacy accompanied the quartet on the piano.

Mr. Delbert Davis gave an interesting talk on the need of a free puhlic library in a small community as well as in a large one, and it is hoped hy the members of the library board and others interested in the library that the forceful remarks whieh he made will put the progressive citizens to thinking of the good a large and well equipped library, with text books as well as works of fiction, would do for the community.

"Such a library would do more good to the rural schools and isolated farming communities than the Ford automobile," stated an enthusiast of the library movement yesterday.

The library committee gratefully acknowledges the following donations from Mr. H. L. Miller, $5.00; Mrs. J. D. Hamill, $1.50; Mrs. C. V. Harvey, $2.00; Mrs. N. I. Broadwater, $2.00 and Mr. Horace Coldington, $3.00. They wish especially to thank Mr. T. O. White for serviees rendered gratis while moving the library from the K. of P. building to the Garrett National building.

The committee also courteously calls the attention of the public to the need of continued interest and patronage.

SHERIFFS GET FUGITIVE AFTER LONG CHASE

U. S. Marshall Returns William S. Cooper To County Jail For 90 Days.

After a chase lasting for two days and three nights, Sheriff Casteel and his deputy, Joy Griffith, captured a man by the name of Albert Walters, who is wanted by the West Virginia authorities for havng jumped his bond in that state after having made an appeal to the higher eourts when he was eonvicted of transporting liquor on a big scale between Garrett county, Md., and Preston and Taylor counties, West Va.

It is alleged that Walters has been a member of a ring of bootleggers operating between Maryland and West Virginia for a year or more, and when apprehended in Fairmont, West Va., two months ago by the State Poliee, he was given a hearing before the court in that city and was found guilty of possessing and transporting liquor. He appealed to the higher eourts and was given bond awaiting the action of the court. In the mean time, however, he escaped, leaving his bondsmen to suffer the costs, and it was through them that the arrest was made here.

Sheriffs Casteel and Griffith learned of the whereabouts of Walters and trailed him to the Deep Creek Dam section of the county, but due to alleged intereference on the part of some of the residents of that section, his arrest was made difficult and it was not until after search had been made in many residences that the fugitive was apprehended.

Captain Myers, of the West Virginia Police, came to Oakland on Sunday and returned that day to Fairmont with Walters.

Cooper Gets 90 Days.

United States Marshall Colner brought to the County jail, Monday morning, William S. Cooper, who was sentenced in the United States Court to 90 days in the Oakland jail for manufacturing illicit liquor.

Sentenced To Serve Two Years In Industrial School.

Upon complaint made by the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Friend, of Elder Hill, between Hoyes and Friendsville, Alvie C. Friend, aged 19 years, was committed to St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys at Baltimore for incorrigibility, and will remain in that institution until he attains his majority.

Young Friend is a cripple, having suffered an attack of infantile paralysis a number of years ago, and it is said that he expressed his willingness to go to the institution, as he did not wish to be under the care of his parents in the future, stating that his home life had not been as happy as he thought it should have been, and preferred to be in the institution selected by the Magistrate, E. I. West, who ruled in the case.

Warrants have been issued by order of the State's Attorney for the arrest of Leona and Anna Bowers, who reside with their parents near Deer Park, who, upon investigation, were found to be without proper care and with parents or guardians who are incapable of caring for them. The girls are in the neighborhood of 17 years of age, and upon a hearing, which will be given them by Magistrate E. I. West in the next few days, if the information received by the State's Attorney is correct, the girls will be committed to some institution in the state for their care, so it is said by the Magistrate.

Bowling League Holds Banquet.

At a well appointed dinner at the William-James Hotel on last Thursday evening the Bowling League, composed of several organzations of Oakland, banqueted for the first time since the league was formed a month or so ago.

It is the purpose of the members of the league to hold a banquet monthly during the period of play, and it is said that the three hotels of the town will be visited before the end of the season.

Those present at the hanquet were: "Bill" Parks, Alva Gortner, Ernest Hardesty, Carlton McComas, John Weber, Guy Yutzy, William Glotfelty, Rev. C. A. Shilke, Edward Kahl, Joy Griffith, James Carney, Jamet Kerins, James Hart, Edward Shaffer, Bob Hoffman, Bob Stewart, Harold Yutzy, Wellington Yutzy, Kenneth Stahl, Dannie Speicher, Fred Peddicord, Milton Sincell, Ralph Griffith, Cecil Smith W. NOTED SURGEONS TO MEET IN CUMBERLAND

Dr. Henry W. McComas, Local Physician Will Address Body On March The 22nd.

A public health meeting, which is expected to attract a large number of physicians and surgeons from Western Maryland counties, will be held in Cumberland on March 22 at the State Armory under the auspices of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society, in cooperation with the Cumberland Department of Health.

Noted surgeons, including Dr. J. M. Rowland, dean of the medical school of the University of Maryland; Dr. Thomas S. Cullen, president of the Medico-Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland; Dr. Dean Lewis, surgeon-in-chief of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, and Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, cancer surgeon and specialist of the Johns Hopkins Hospital faculty, are scheduled to take part in clinics and sessions of the health meeting.

Banquet In Afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the Allegany-Garrett County Medieal Society will be held in the afternoon, followed by a hanquet in honor of the visiting physicians and surgeons. The health meeting will be held at eight o'clock at night, the public being invited.

Arrangements for the meetings and the entertainment of the visiting medical men are being made by Dr. George Oliver Sharrett, who is chairman of the committee, and who will preside at the meetings. He will be assisted hy Health Officer Harvey H. Weiss.

The program will include Invocation hy Rev. Edward H. Roach, assistant rector of St. Patrick's Catholic church; an address of welcome by Mayor Thomas W. Koon, who is one of Cumberland's best known physicians, and an address of Dr. H. W. McComas, president of the medical society, who will extend the greetings of the medical society to the visitors.

Address On Cancer.

"What the Public Should Know About Cancer," will be discussed by Dr. Cullen, and "The Methods of the Medical Mind," will be the topic of an address that will he delivered by Dr. Lewis. Dr. Bloodgood will talk on "The Value of Periodic Examinations in the Prevention and Earlier Recognition of Cancer." The closing prayer will be given by Rev. William Owen, co-pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Music will be furnished by the Cumberland Municipal Band.

Judge Doub Decides Custody Of Child.

Judge Albert A. Doub eame up to Oakland last Saturday to hear a habeas corpus case of rather unusual interest, it being that of Florence Hayes, of Philadelphia, vs. William Poling of Grantsville. Mr. Poling had the eustody of Emerson Hayes, Jr., the small son of Mrs. Hayes, and has had almost continuously since the birth of the child about six years ago, according to testimony given in the case. Emerson Hayes, the father, was a son of the late Irene Hayes Poling, who died last November very suddenly while in the home of her mother at Grantsville, where she had gone early in the evening. Mr. Hayes made his home with his mother, who cared for his infant son. Since Mrs. Poling's death, Mr. Poling has been earing for him and his mother, Florence Hayes asked that he be put in her care, stating that she desired to have him placed in the home of her sister, a Mrs. Beaty of Westernport. A large number of witnesses from Grantsville were examined, aft which Judge Doub decided that the time being the child should re in the custody of Mr. Poling made recommendations for hi Attorneys Julius C. Renning William R. Offutt represent Poling and Attorney Brooke of Cumberland, represente Hayes.

SWEET, BUT NOT BITTER

By GEORGE HASKELL

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

"I GUESS this town ain't big enough fer you!" sniffed Mrs. Tucker.

"How long since has it been a 'town'?" laughed Jennie Ames, a slip of a girl with blue eyes that always seemed to be surprised or wondering, and fluffy yellow hair that was always blowing about her face.

"Wal, it's bigger now than some towns, if it ain't anything but a village," retorted the woman. "My, I wouldn't go down there to New York, not knowin' anybody, fer the hull world!"

"I shall know Miss Kraft," protested Jennie.

"Huh!" exclaimed Mrs. Tucker, "Miss Kraft is one of them sassiety folks. I guess she won't have much time fer—fer—"

"For me, you mean." The surprised look gave way to a defiant gleam in the blue eyes. "I am not going down there to be in society. Miss Kraft has found me a position, and I shall be too busy to be lonesome."

"Well, New York is an awful place for young girls, an' I hope—"

Mrs. Tucker had a way of pausing before a momentous climax. Jennie again supplied it.

"You hope I won't go wrong," snapped the girl. "Well, I guess I know enough not to get out of the straight and narrow path. I've never had anything all my life but narrow paths, and I ought to know one when I see it."

An audible masculine chuckle just inside the door of the store where they were standing made Jennie quickly take leave of Mrs. Tucker, enter, and pass rapidly to the farther end. She saw it was Joe Banks who had laughed, but she did not let him know she saw him. Joe was the son of the proprietor, Seth Banks, a skinny, shriveled, money-making machine who kept his sole heir very carefully in line with his object in life. Joe worked the farm part of the time, and helped in the general supply store at intervals. Before Joe's mother died she had stood by her son in his desire for an education, and so, much against the old man's parsimonious ideas, Joe had been allowed to go through the high school in the neighboring town. His taste for good reading was cultivated in his spare hours, and Jennie being somewhat like him in that respect, a mutual attraction had grown up between them. Then came Miss Kraft to visit the Stevensons, who lived in the most pretentious house in the place. She was a settlement worker in New York, and having accidentally met Jennie, she became interested in her; and when the girl told her of the necessity of finding work, and her desire to go to New York to try to earn something, Miss Kraft promised to see what she could do. This, however, was not till she had tried to dissuade the girl from leaving her home.

"But," reasoned Jennie, "there won't be any home pretty soon if I can't find something to do. There's just mother and me. She used to be able to sew, but she's not so very strong now, and the orchard that used to help support us has failed for two seasons."

Joe had very little sympathy with Jennie's desire for New York. She was perhaps foolishly reticent regarding the real reason, not explaining as she had to Miss Kraft. She thought he did not care. He did not ask her to stay. And Joe believed she wished to get away from the little village, himself included, to find in the great city the chance for excitement and the kind of life he loathed. So it was a misunderstanding all around. He did not know that one word from him would have kept her there, even though she had scrubbed floors for a living, and perhaps he had not yet thought of speaking that word.

So with the bitter memory of his indifference rankling in her heart, Jennie went down to the great city. The place Miss Kraft had found for her was that of a saleswoman in a cheap department store downtown. The pay was so small that though she shared a small, comfortless room with another girl, prepared her slender breakfast over a gas jet, and ate a ten-cent lunch, there was very little left at the end of the week. Out of this meager amount she sent something to her mother with reassuring words of a raise in her salary. At first it seemed to Jennie she would not be able to stand the privation and hard work; but pride and a determination to hold on kept her at it.

Miss Kraft conducted a club for [w]orking girls on the East side, and [h]asked Jennie to join. The mem[b]ers were mostly of foreign parentage. [A]t first Jennie, all unused to their [m]anner and mode of expression, un[k]indly held herself aloof. But she [s]aw them so bright, so responsive, [a]nd with such an eager desire to [l]earn, that soon all barriers were [b]roken. The subjects for discussion [h]ad all the way from domestic hy[g]iene to a study of Browning; and [t]he enthusiasm amounting to enthusiasm was [a]lmost shocking.

[W]hen the club discontinued for [t]he summer, Miss Kraft informed the [g]irls she was going to be married in [J]une and would not be back till [S]eptember. The firm that employed Jennie failed in August and closed its doors. Then began a discouraging search for work. When day after day of the weary tramp of the hot streets resulted in nothing and Jennie beheld her small store of money nearing the vanishing point, the only alternative of going home loomed up before her. As a last resort she went to the exchanges where women's work is sold, but it required money to buy materials, so she took the train for home.

Her mother, glad beyond expression to see her, could not, however, conceal the fact that finances were at a very low ebb. But Jennie, in the club and her tour of the exchanges, had learned a few things which she meant to put to practical use. There was still some fruit on the place, the plums were looking well, and wild blackberries in plenty were to be had for the picking. Jennie had arranged with two of the exchanges to try her jellies and jams, and while she did not know much about making them, she knew her mother did, and she could learn, so she set to work. The first consignment sold a bit slowly, but there was an encouraging call for more.

The next unheard-of thing she attempted was the forming of a girls' club for mutual improvement and social enjoyment. She had obtained permission to use the schoolroom for the first meeting. Either through a misunderstanding, overmastering curiosity, or sheer devilry, several of the girls' brothers and sweethearts drifted in and sat together in the back seats. The girls were up in front, curious and expectant. Jennie beheld the male contingency with just a touch of dismay. She also discovered Joe Banks among them. When she rose on the little platform the noise faded off into silence.

"I believe," she said, "we can get together for study and social evenings and have some very good times. In a small place like this, although we are thrown together a good deal, we never really know each other very well. It is not knowing each other that makes the miserable, foolish gossip, makes us say and do unkind things we never would if we knew. Where I've been I've seen what it did for the girls. Oh, you don't know how wonderful it was to me to see how the unselfishness, the kindness seemed to wipe out criticism and spiteful words among those girls, just from getting together and knowing each other in the right way."

The young men, who had come to have some fun, looked at the floor, or up at the lights, but remained quiet. Jennie went on to explain the business of forming the club, and added: "We had not thought of having gentleman members, but it may be a great advantage to have them." Here audible snickers came from the back of the room. They subsided when Joe Banks rose to his six feet of height and said:

"I think it would be greatly to our advantage if the boys were allowed to join, and I hope the ladies will amend their constitution."

Jennie promised that this would be considered at the next meeting. But it was all in such a formal, impersonal manner that Joe wondered if she had forgotten his existence. After the meeting he hung around to speak to her. He wondered how it was the great city had not spoiled her, but instead had opened into bloom a nature quite wonderful to him. In a stammering, ineffective way he tried to tell her this, but she stopped him with some businesslike questions relative to the preparation of the ground for spring planting. She meant to have a garden, and especially wanted to start small fruits. He asked her if he might come and give her any helpful service he could. She assented in a dignified manner more befitting the new president of "The Helpers" than the little Jennie Ames he used to know. Yes, decidedly, relations between them had changed. Jennie now knew that time and new experiences had made Joe less of the altogether essential factor to her happiness he was when she went away.

It was surprising the number of new facts that sprang up regarding the culture of small fruits, which made it necessary for Joe to call at the Ames cottage. The jellies and jams were selling well, and Jennie was much absorbed and happy in her work. Banks, Sr., had found his objections to his son's visits at Jennie's home so ineffectual he said no more. Joe was taking on masterful ways, but the decided efficiency that went with them had begun to convince the old man that he could no longer dictate.

One day when the autumn began to turn the greenery into gold and scarlet, Jennie asked Joe where she could find bittersweet. She remembered where there was some, but she wanted a great deal. She knew of an exchange that would take all she could send. Of course Joe knew, or at least he was pretty sure, and he arranged to show her.

Promptly to the minute a car drove up to the door. Jennie was somewhat surprised, but he assured her it was too far to walk. He had just bought the car, but didn't know how to run it yet, so kept the chauffeur.

It was a wonderful ride through the beautiful country roads, and Joe, not being entirely sure as to the location, they had to go a long way, but they found it at last.

"Bittersweet!" said Joe, holding up one of the fiery sprays, as they gathered them away from the road. "It's like my being with you. It might be just sweet to me if the bitter wasn't there—if I could think you—"

He did not finish. The look in her eyes made him take her in his arms.

BITTINGER.

Now the days are growing longer,
And the sun beams shining stronger,
While perchance we hear the robin sing.
Though March may bring her blizzard,
Yet we know that nature's wizzard,
Is working out the miracle of spring.

A typical snow storm, accompanied by a high wind, which continued for more than forty eight hours, was our experience of the closing days of last week and of the departing month.

Messrs. Clark Brenneman and Earl Stark motored over to Jenners, Pa., last week in quest of work.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bowser are rejoicing over the gift of a daughter, born to them on February 22nd.

Mrs. Nancy Hoover and her four children, of Jennings, were guests of Mr. John Stark, last week.

George Kurtz, of Addison, Pa., who contracted the sawing of the timber on the Henry Wiley farm, near this village, completed his contract last week and he returned to his home, but will not remove his mill until later.

In our last week's letter we reported the appearance of almost every variety of creature that comes in the spring time, and this week we have to add that Mr. Melvin Stanton, while at work in his sugar grove, one day last week, found a snake out in the open.

Clarence Oester is suffering considerably from the results of having a tooth extracted a few days ago.

Elwood Glotfelty returned to his home near here a few days ago after spending several days on The Bird Brothers farm, near Meyersdale, Pa.

Mrs. Edward Railey is spending this week with her son Thomas, of New Germany, who is confined to his home as the result of having trodden upon a nail, which penetrated the foot.

ACCIDENT.

Mr. and Mrs. William Miller and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Bushman.

Mr. J. Arthur Speicher, of Maryland State Normal school, Frostburg, spent the week-end at his home here.

Mr. W. E. Tarbell and Miss Marion Landis spent part of last week in Baltimore attending the state conference of vocational teachers.

Mrs. Allie Speicher and Miss Nina Peck were shopping in Oakland Saturday.

Miss Ruth Speicher and Miss Ola King, of Frostburg State Normal, and Mr. Russell King, of Cumberland, spent Sunday here.

Miss Zella Keller was the guest of Miss Beulah Keller over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. John Haenftling and Mrs. Charles Burkhardt spent Thursday in Salisbury, Pa., where they visited John Burkhardt, who is seriously ill.

Mr. Coit Speicher and Leland Northcroft, of Cumberland, spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Mrs. Effie Hetrick, who spent the last few weeks in Pittsburgh, has returned to her home here.

The entertainment and social given by the Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's Lutheran church in the high school auditorium last Saturday night was well attended. The entertainment consisted of a few comic songs, instrumental music and a two-act play entitled "Mrs. Jenkin's Brilliant Idea." The play was greatly enjoyed. The cast of characters were: Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. John Hetrick; Mrs. Rone, Mrs. Luther Keller; Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Adam Speicher; Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Asa Beeghley; Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Earl Ault; Mrs. Hodge, Mrs. C. C. Goehringer; Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Smith Friend.

After the play a social was held. Ice cream, pop, candy, sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee were served.

On Wednesday evening last, the Unique Milling Company, of Friendsville, gave a play entitled "Joe Guess Wins $1,000." The play was presented at the High school and was well attended and proved to be very helpful since it gave the farmers of this community many helpful ideas. Two measuring cans and a milk scale were given away as a means of advertisement. Mr. Everett Fearer and Mr. Frank George were the ones who were fortunate enough to get the measuring cans and Mrs. Jeff Diehl the milk scale.

MT. LAKE PARK.

The special meetings in the M. E. church have started off splendidly.

Rev. W. M. Shultz is to be here on Saturday evening to hold his third quarterly meeting.

We now have the heaviest fall of snow of the winter, which has interferred very much with traffic over the public roads, but the sun today removed it faster than it came. The street commissioner had the streets open in time for church Sunday morning and again before school time on Monday morning.

We are sorry to learn of the continued illness of Mrs. W. E. Landon, and hope for her speedy recovery.

The Parent-Teacher Association gave a splendid entertainment last Thursday evening with music and addresses suitable for the occasion.

A pleasant birthday surprise was given to Rev. Rowland Aspinall at the C. S. May cottage, recently

Mr. Travers has returned to his cottage in the Park.

Superintendent F. E. Baker was in the Park for a few hours on Monday. He was on his way from Chicago to Nek York.

Mrs. Connor has returned to her cottage in the Park from the Trickett farm east of Oakland.

Business and Trade Would Be Brought To City By Good Lateral Roads.

One of the odd characteristics of a large proportion of the people who live in towns and cities, is the prevailing belief on their part that the inhabitants of the surrounding districts are dependant on them, and not the contrary, which is really the case. The business and trade of the cities and centres of population are dependent altogether on the prosperity and welfare of the inhabitants of the sections whose borders are contiguous to the city. And the greatest asset to a city of any size is a large and industrious population connected with it by good roads, in order that communication may at all times be easy, safe and free. Without good roads, with the ability to go to and from the cities, from all sections, there would be no cities, for, while the country districts can live and prosper on their own resources, as they did for ages before there were good and convenient means of transportation, in other words, good roads, no city ever flourished except as it was the centre of a prosperous section with which it was connected on all sides by good roads. And yet it would appear from the howl they raise in Baltimore, because they are required to pay out a few extra dollars to help build roads in the counties all of which roads centre in Baltimore, and enable people to come to Baltimore to spend their money, that they were being robbed for the benefit of the country sections. Every new road that is built in the State is a greater asset to Baltimore than it is to the people of the immediate vicinity, for it opens up another avenue for trade to flow into the town.

In the early days the State built what roads there were: they built the first turnpikes, and the first railroads, and devoted unselfishly the resources of the State and counties to build roads to get to Baltimore, and Baltimore in those days never grumbled at giving up her share, to aid in securing the trade which flowed in over these roads. Meetings were held to raise money to build roads, all of which centered in Baltimore, and no complaint was ever heard that Baltimore was giving up an undue share, for Baltimore realized that it was the real beneficiary of all this expenditure, for Baltimore is the drawing centre which absorbs a very large part of all the money produced in the surrounding country—in other words, Baltimore and Baltimore business gets practically everything produced in the whole State, and a very large proportion of all the money made in Maryland is expended in Baltimore. The people from all sections, even from the Eastern Shore, do practically all their shopping in the Metropolis of their own commonwealth. The people from Western and Southern Maryland, yes, even those from Southern Pennsylvania, and not a few from West Virginia, may be seen on the streets day after day, and, as the lateral roads in all parts of Southern, Central and Western Maryland are made passable to connecte with the main highways, more and more of the denizens in all those sections will make frequent visits to the mother city of the old home State, where they will spend a large share of their money for all sorts of necesary supplies.

Throughout the history of civilization, in all parts of the world, it has been the policy of cities to extend their highways out in all directions, to encourage the dwellers to come in and trade. The more and better roads a commercial centre was enabled to extend out into the surrounding country, the farther out they could extend them, the greater was the influx of people who would come into trade. Commerce and trade, commercial prosperity and wealth in cities in all ages of the world depended on roads, and the better and more extended the roads, the greater the prosperity. The ancient cities of the plains of Mesopotamia, Nineveh and Babylon, thousands of years ago, built roads out into the country to attract commerce. Damascus, the great commercial emporium of Western Asia, had roads out in every direction long before any other city noted in history, and the remains of those roads are there today—and all built by the city. Rome, the great centre of commerce, civilization and trade, built roads to the remotest ends of Europe, and many of these roads, more than two thousand years old, are still in use, and they made Rome not only the ruling city of the world, but the greatest emporium of trade and commerce. In the north of Africa Carthage became the great business and trade centre by means of her roads to the interior and more than two centuries before Christ, became the powerful rival of Rome because of her commercial wealth and this commercial rivalry brought on the wars between the African trade centre and the Roman, which lasted more than a century—and the prosperity of both these great commercial Republics of two thousand years ago was brought about by their trade, by the roads they built into the interior and the ships that connected them with distant lands.

The great problems which face all cities and commercial centres are transportation problems—the problems of roads. It would be the best possible investment Baltimore could make—to raise the money and build the roads—hard roads of the best sort, into the remotest sections of the entire State. Every mile of road built into the populous parts of the State opens up the ways for more people to come into town and trade, and every mile of new road built out in connection with the main State roads into the towns adds to the value of every dollar's worth of property in Baltimore; and so far from kicking and squirming and squealing at the expenditure of a few dollars for the further continuation of the present admirable system the part of wisdom would be for the authorities to encourage the work and hasten it to a completion—the prosperity of the community depends on the roads; they bring trade and prosperity to all, and without roads and good means of communication cities dry up and die.

And Baltimoreans are apt to lose sight of the fact that Baltimore, while it exceeds the rest of the State in population, is in the State of Maryland, that the State of Maryland is not in Baltimore City. And they should also recall that the State was flourishing and prosperous long before the city existed—and that the city is the child and creature of the State.

The people who come to town, over the good roads, always bring more or less money with them, and rarely do they ever take any away. Practically all they have is left here, and it is within bounds to say that certainly half of all the money made by the people of every section of the State, finds its way into the trade channels of this prosperous old town—a town that is daily becoming more and more prosperous, because it is the centre of the best system of public highways extending out into the country possessed by any place in the whole land.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

TRUSTEES' SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
—AND—
PERSONAL PROPERTY
Located in Election District No. 8 of Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of the powers vested in me by the terms of a certain deed of assignment executed by Jacob C. Yutzy and T. Gilbert Yutzy and their respective wives, bearing date the 15th day of January, 1927, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 125, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and by certain orders of the Circuit Court of Garrett County, passed thereon in a cause standing on the dockets of said Court as No. 2716 Equity, authorizing and directing me to make sale of the property of the said Jacob C. and T. Gilbert Yutzy, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the dwelling house located upon the property along the Oakland-Red House State Road and about six miles South of Oakland, in Electon District No. 8 of Garrett County, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, all of the following real and personal property, to-wit:

1. All of that farm containing 79 5-8 acres, which was conveyed unto the said Jacob C. Yutzy by deed from Jonas Yutzy hearing date the 20th day of January, 1921, and duly recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 79, folio 415, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Said farm consists of two parcels, the first being a part of the tract of land called "The Glade," and contains 41 acres, and the second being a part of the tract called "The Royal Charlotte," both of which parcels are fully described by metes and bounds, courses and distances in the deed above referred to.

Said farm is improved by a dwelling, barn and other outbuildings, contains a fine orchard, is mostly cleared and would make a most excellent farm home.

2. All of the following personal property: One black Cow, 1 Heifer, 1 Road Wagon, 1 Mowing Machine, 1 Harrow, 1 set of Harness.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash on the day of sale, as prescribed by orders of the Court.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Mary B. Dolly vs. John E. Dolly. No. 2718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by Mary B. Dolly from John E. Dolly, her husband.

The bill states that the parties were married on the 11th day of May, 1922, at Bayard, West Virginia, and lived together until July, 1925; and that although the conduct of the said Mary B. Dolly toward her husband, John E. Dolly, has always been kind, loving and affectionate, and her entire conduct has always been above reproach, that the said John E. Dolly has committed the crime of adultery with certain lewd and abandoned women in and about the States of Maryland and West Virginia, and that the said Mary B. Dolly is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been for more than two years prior to the filing of this bill, but that the said John E. Dolly is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 4th day of February, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in equity, that the plaintiff, Mary B. Dolly, by inserting a copy of this order in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks on or before the 25th day of March, 1927, give notice to the said John E. Dolly of the object and substance of this suit, warning him to be and appear in this Court on or before the 11th day of April, 1927, either in person or by solicitor, and show cause, if any he has, why the decree prayed and the relief sought ought not to be granted.

LENT.

The word Lent is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "lenten" which, like the German "Lenz" signifies spring. However the ecclesiastical meaning of lent is expressed by passion or fast, therefore, in the broad general sense, Lent is that season of the church year which preeminently reminds the Christians of the suffering of their Divine Savior. Lent includes the cycle of forty days preceding Easter, and is itself introduced by three preparatory Sundays.

The earliest traces of the Lenten season leads back to remote antiquity in the church. The odd features of the middle ages were unproductive of any original contributions. To the church of the reformation is given the credit of restoring to Lent its original and adequate conception as the season of the passion and death of Jesus Christ.

Wednesday and Friday were anciently observed as half-fast days, when no food was eaten until after 3 p. m. This custom doubtless came from Judaism.

The Pharasees fasted twice a week, Monday because on that day Moses ascended Sinai and Thursday because on that day he returned. However, the Christians have always observed Wednesday and Friday. Wednesday was chosen to remind of the evil councils and bargains of the betrayer, and Friday commemorated the Lord's death.

The period of forty days has varied with certain thinkers and rulers. The minimum of 40 days was fixed by Gregory the Great. Doubtless the number of days was suggested by the fasts of Moses and Elias, and the forty days of temptation of our Lord in the wilderness.

Holy Week which begins with Palm Sunday was anciently observed with special preparation for Good Friday. The fast began at midnight on Palm Sunday and ended when the cock crew on Easter. The diet for the week was restricted to bread, salt and vegetables with water for beverage. On Friday, food was totally abstained. The clergy instructed alms to be given to the poor, masters to grant their slaves rest and time for instruction and attendance at church.

Good Friday was observed with the sacred watch, when the service consisted of special prayer and supplication, at night there was the scene of many baptisms, when mourning was turned into expectancy and rejoicing began.

Easter Sunday was a day of rejoicing, when the catechumen were examined and confirmed before the altar, where rejoicing was heard.

The observances of Lent as have come down to us are significant, and should find us truly observing this sacred season in some special way, thereby making more forceful the life and purpose of Jesus Christ.

INSTALLMENT BUYING.

In a monograph on the social and economical consequences of buying on the installment plan, Dr. Wilbur C. Plummer of the University of Pennsylvania includes an interesting section on the effects of the system on the character of the individual.

Some critics of the installment plan, under which "people buy more than they can pay for," denounce it as tending to create a generation of extreme spendthrifts. It is not proved, however, that installment buying is synonymous with overbuying or that it leads to extravagance. Once it was thought to do so and to be principally a device to enable the so-called poor to live beyond their means. Nowadays the odds are three to one that the purchaser of a new automobile is paying for it on the installment plan. Many well-to-do Americans wear expensive furs, jewelry and clothing bought on time.

It is contended, though, that the practice has a deteriorating effect on the character of buyers and, what is more important, that children reared without proper lessons in thrift are growing up with weakened economic responsibilities.

While it is true that under the installment buying plan hundreds of thousands of Americans are enjoying the use of credit in the purchase of things for which they could not conveniently pay cash, at the same time they are being educated in the responsibilities of credit, says the Chicago Daily News. They are learning system not only in their purchases but in saving to pay for their purchases. Meeting payments as they fall due is not conducive to extravagance.

In connection with the charge that installment buying leads to extravagance the figures on savings are instructive. In the decade that began with 1915, when the enormous expansion in the installment system started, the number of savings depositors in the United States increased from 16,125,000 to more than 44,000,000, and the total volume of savings deposits nearly tripled—$8,800,000,000 in 1915 and $125,000,000,000 in 1925.

Dr. Plummer concludes that, while there are abuses in installment buying that must be removed, the system performs a useful function in our economic structure and is here to stay. The extension of credit on the installment plan can be guarded quite as carefully as it can in any other form of credit. There is no reason why, properly guarded, it should lead to the disaster which its critics predict.

Vanities of 3000 B. C.

The archaeologists who are digging into the remnants of the ancient city of Ur are finding that the woman of 4927 years ago was much like her sister—one might better say her granddaughter one hundred and fifty generations removed—in the matter of improving on the beauty which nature granted her. They are finding rouge pots, combs, mirrors, cosmetic jars and all the other whatnots of the trade of the beautifiers in the forgotten graves of Babylonia. It goes to show that whoever it was invented the phrase "the eternal feminine" knew what he was talking about.

Wave by wave civilization has swept over the earth and one civilization has followed another in the aeons of time since the earth emerged from chaos, but woman has been woman from the beginning. Her love of the beautiful and her desire to be a part of the beauty of life is as old as humanity itself. Two years ago in the Valley of the Kings they were finding all these evidences of woman's yearning to embellish and decorate the inherent good looks with which she was born.

The compact, not the distaff, is the symbol of her sex, so the diggers at Ur and the delvers at Luxor have been uncovering recently, just as tho we had not known it all the time.

A Vest Pocket Essay on Saxaphones.

By OAK PIN.

A saxaphone is an alleged musical instrument which looks as if its ambition to get somewhere had been rudely interrupted by a hack saw. It has almost as many finger-keys as a centipede has legs and they are used about as freely. If kept in its case it is as harmless and innocent looking an affair as one would care to see. However, if hooked onto a leather-lunged enthusiast it will run the whole gamut of noises from a pig caught under a gate to a long-eared Missouri canary bird braying in a tin stable. The fellow who invented it had in mind an instrument partaking of the qualities of both a brass instrument and a clarinet. He succeeded all right, for the finished article not only combines the qualities of these instruments, but also the bass drum, the cymbals, the laughing hyena, and in fact the whole menagerie. The "sax" was originally intended for use in military bands, but when a cross-eyed world went delirious over jazz it was the only invention other than a hypodermic syringe that would produce the highest form of delirium, and thus it became the essential part of jazz orchestras. So far as we know, the inventor has never been apprehended and brought to justice. If some guy will only devise an efficient muffler for saxaphones he will receive the plaudits of those who have reached the age when their joints creak in protest when they endeavor to do the Charleston or Black Bottom.

If a saxaphone could be invented that would simulate the poo-oo-eg, poo-oo-eg, pi-i-ig, pi-i-ig, pi-i-ig of the hog caller, it would make a great hit in the swine world. A pig lives to eat as surely as he eats to live, and anything that makes a noise like the mess call would become most popular with him.

The Brotherhood of St. Mark's Lutheran church met in its monthly session Tuesday evening when about twenty-five men were present.

President Henry Lauer with the other officres had prepared a very excellent program. After a brief business period the men were addressed by Mr. Joseph Harned, proprietor of the Oakland Pharmacy, who in his usual pleasing and scholarly manner gave a very forceful and fitting address. The comic program was omitted and instead prayers were offered for the speedy recovery of the sick. Wade H. Hinebaugh and "Bill" Gibson led the singing which was enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be held April 5th.

NEW AMENDMENT ADDED TO GASOLINE TAX BILL

Would Exempt Commercial Vehicle Owners In Baltimore From 1 Cent Of Amount

The lateral roads gasoline tax bill, passed by the Senate yesterday was sent back to them today when the House approved it but added an amendment. The amendment would exempt owners of commercial vehicles and motor vehicles-for-hire in Baltimore from one cent of the proposed additional one and one-half cent tax. It was put over for consideration by the Senate tomorrow.

The two amendments already placed on the bill by the Senate making it an emergency measure, effective immediately upon signature of the governor, and giving city and county officials a hand in the expenditure of the revenue, were left untampered with by the House.

Senator Ambrose Kennedy, Baltimore, is opposed to the bill as in Delegate Joseph. It is argued that Baltimore would benefit materially from the tax and therefore the exemption of part of their vehicle traffic from paying this would be very unwise.

Crossing Bill Up.

The Senate also considered the one-cent gasoline tax increase for the elimination of grade crossings. Amendments were also offered for this bill by Senator Colgan which would eliminate the proposed tax entirely for grade crossings, substituting therefore a $1,000,000 bond issue contract for the elimination of crossings to be forbidden until the railroads have obligated themselves to pay half the cost, and provide for elimination of grade crossngs according to their proportionate menace to life.

Bills introduced solely affecting Garrett County were:

By Mr. Naylor—Authorizing Kitzmillersville, subject to referendum, to borrow $5,000 for wall to protect city from flood waters of Potmac River.

Mr. Naylor also introduced a bill making the taxes in Mountain Lake Park lien on personal as well as real property.

In the House Mr. Lawton presented a bill providing free transportation for High school pupils in Garrett County.

HEALTH FOR YOUNG MARYLANDERS.

In connection with the medical inspection of school children by the Deputy State Health Officers and the health conferences for the younger children held under the auspices of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, nearly 36,000 young Marylanders had the benefit of a health examination under the direction of the State Department of Health, in 1926.

Of the total, 30,000 were pupils in the primary and grammar grades in the schools; 3,400 were prospective first graders who were getting ready for admission to school and 2,000 were babies and their two, three and four year old brothers and sisters.

"All of these examinations were made," Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, said, "with the idea of checking up on the general health of the children and of pointing out conditions that could be improved or that might need correction. Examinations made by the State Department of Health reached children from babyhood up to the boys and girls in the upper grades. An additional number, mainly of high school students, were examined in preparation for athletic activities, through other agencies, by the State Board of Education.

"According to the estimates of the Bureau of the Census, the boys and girls under sixteen constitute one third of our total population. This gives us approximately 248,000 in the counties, in that age group—one of the most important group in our entire population—the one upon which the future health and prosperity of the State depend.

"We know now, that the sooner a child can be started right on the path to health, the better his or her chance to reach manhood or womanhood without physical handicaps, such as are caused by unwise feeding, neglected teeth, bad tonsils, defective sight or hearing, or by the habitual disregard of the rules of health. The prevalence of such conditions is indicated by the findings in the examinations of over 3,000 prospective first-graders—boys and girls from five to seven years old—by the Bureau of Child Hygiene, last year.

"Of the total of 3,231 children, 465 or 14 per cent—one out of every seven—were free from any condition needing correction; 1754 or 54 per cent, had tooth troubles and needed dental care; 1378 or 43 per cent had unhealth tonsils; 505 or 16 per cent had adenoids, and 117 or 4 per cent had bone troubles due to rickets. We hope that eventually it will be a matter of course for children to have these conditions checked up and cared for before they enter school-

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Tells You There Is Danger Ahead. A Healthy Bladder does Not Act At Night.

J. H. Dorton, W. Graham, W. Va., says: "I had to get up seven or eight times at night for forty years. I thought it was my age. After taking Lithiated Buchu a short time, I am alright." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller's Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Rev and Mrs. D. M. Funk and little daughter Mary, of Morgantown, West Va., are spending the day with Mrs. Funk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Thayer. They will return to Morgan own tomorrow morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stuck returned to Oakland the latter part of last week from a trip of several weeks to Florida. Upon their return they were accompanied from Point of Rocks, Md., by Mrs. Stuck's sister, Miss Jane Brown, who is now their guest.

Mrs. Fred Martin will go to Baltimore, and Mrs. Edward Pollock and infant son will go to Philadelphia, Pa., some time during the next week where they will make their homes. Mrs. Martin will reside with a sister, while Mrs. Pollock will join her husband, who is located in Philadelphia. The great number of friends of these two ladies will regret their departure from Oakland. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thayer have leased the Martin residence and will occupy the same shortly after it is vacated by Mrs. Martin.

The Bowling League still claims the attention of many citizens of the community, and on last Thursday evening the Merchants defeated the Knights of Columbus by 142 pins. The merchants had a total of 1542 pins, while the Knights had a total of 1400. The same evening the Brotherhood defeated the Lutherans by 207 pins, as the Brotherhood knocked down 1880 pins while the Lutherans were able to upset only 1673. On Tuesday evening the Lutherans defeated the Knights of Columbus by 201 pins. The Lutherans had a score of 1630 and the Knights a score of 1426. The second series of games staged on Tuesday was won hy the Methodists when they defeated the Rotary Club by 396 pins. The Methodists had a score of 1954 pins and the Rotary 1558.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Grantsville, March 2—Members of the Epworth League from Salisbury composed a sleighing party to the home of Mrs. James Younkin on Monday evening. About 35 members of the League were in the party, using two sleds for the trip. The evening was spent in games and stunts, followed by refreshments and a talk hy the leader reviewing their work and making plans for the coming year.

In Flood Area of California

In a letter recently received, John Livengood tells of his experiences on the west coast. At the time of the flood he was in San Diego, California, and was compelled to remain there about two weeks before travel by rail could be resumed. He reports that the only transportation available at that time was by boat; that he was comfortably housed in a hotel there and expected to travel northward, visiting the large coast cities.

High School Play

The members of the high school gave a piay on Friday and Saturday evenings in the W. O. W. Hall, entitled "An Early Bird," which was well liked hy the public. Those taking part performed their rolos well and are to be commended. The actors and actresses were Wendell Lohr, Walter Reichenbecher, Paul Wisseman, Leslie Stanton, Ralph Younkin, Luther Miller, Allen Baker, Helen Folk, Genevieve Pope, Velora Swauger, Gladys Custer, Dorothy Edwards, Ruth Emory and Mary Martha Miller.

Social

The Shakespeare Club held its meeting at the Holmes and Wallace Studios last Tuesday evening. The last two acts of "The Winter's Tale" were read and discussed. Misses Mary Dorsey, Christena Winterberg and Caroline Wallace gave impromptu character sketches of the leading characters in the play. The members of the club are much interested in their work.

Little Miss Edith Bittinger's 5th birthday was celebrated with a party given by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Zeller at their home last Thursday evening, which was attended by all of the little girls in town. A variety of games enlivened the occasion and Miss Margaret Jane Gortner won the prize in a guessing game. A Course of refreshments were served. Those attending were Eleanor, Ruth and Rozella Younkin, Rozella Hanft, Eretha Edgar, Alma and Johnnie Bittinger, Pauline Glotfelty, Margaret and Rheba Blocher, Helen, Vera and Margaret Miller, Mildred Paul, Mary Bevens, Pauline, Betty and Harline Patton, Margaret Jane Gortner, Betty Meager and Alma Schaefer.

The M. E. Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Earl Frickey last Friday afternoon. The Reformed Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Folk on Saturday afternoon and the Lutheran Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. William Schaefer last night.

The Woman's Community Club met in the home of Mrs. Annie Getty yesterday afternoon. Answer to the roll call was by memory gems. Miss Lola Belle Green, County Home Demonstrator, discussed "Malnutrition, Signs, Causes and Treatment." The members furnished a social program.

Miss Holmes and Miss Wallace were entertained on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Bender, also Miss Esther Zehner.

Dairy Notes of Interest.

The following item appeared in the Meyersdale Republican of last week which should be of especial interest to all dairy farmers of this locality:

"Much interset has been aroused locally in dairying since Banker Harshaw of Grove City made his interesting address at the Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce banquet, January 25th, telling what has been accomplished in that line at Grove City, Mercer county. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company's agricultural department has since made a survey of the dairy resources of Meyersdale and vicinity and found great possibilities here for milk production. Dr. Kelley, of the Scott-Powell Milk Co., of Philadelphia has also paid several visits to this section to study the possibilities of getting a milk supply here for the Philadelphia market. Dr Kelley's last visit here was last Friday, when a meeting of business men and farmers was held at the Chamber of Commerce to hear Dr. Kelley outline a plan for the establishment of a milk shipping station here and increase and improvement of the dairy herds of this section, promising, if this is dose, his company will take all the milk that can be produced here for export at prices that will put much money into circulation locally. Dr. Kelley said this could be done without robbing the local dairy plant of its milk supply. He predicted that the existing dairy plant would profit by competition and larger milk production. Dr. Kelley contends that in order to build up a milk shipping business successfully, it will be necessary to interest local capital. He said it would take about $30-000 to erect and equip an adequate milk shipping station. He thinks local business men and farmers should get interested to that extent, and he explained how the money could be raised and the investment made safe for every one. It was decided to hold three meetings at three different places—Meyersdale, Salisbury and Grantsville, on March 8th, 9th and 10th, respectively, and to have the proposition explained to farmers and

New Zealander Proud of His Native Land

As soon as you arrive in Auckland, New Zealand, you feel the peculiar character of this most original of dominions; a blissful land where the 1,500,000 British settlers—for the other nationalities form only small and transient groups—are producing and exporting precious raw materials and engaging in sports of every conceivable kind, which they pursue with incredible verve and enthusiasm.

They are also fully convinced of their superiority to the rest of mankind and of the unique privilege they enjoy in living in these islands. They have their reasons down pat.

We must not smile at the questionnaire to be filled before disembarking in New Zealand. In it you must promise before the Almighty to be good, to observe strictly the wise laws of the land, and, finally, to remember that the experience of spending even a brief period of your existence in these islands is something to be proud of for the rest of your life.

On making inquiries I learned that there is a little unemployment—not, to be sure, because there is no work, but because the English inhabitants prefer to leave hard labor to people of other nationalities. The several hundred Italians here all find good employment in building railroads.—Arnaldo Cipolla in La Stampa, Turin (Living Age).

Men Sought Means of Flying Centuries Ago

Flying in motor-driven airplanes had its birth December 17, 1903, on the sand hills near Kitty Hawk, N. C., when Wilbur and Orville Wright achieved the first authenticated flight in a heavier-than-air machine, but flying was in the minds of men centuries before that.

The story of man's longing to fly comes down in hundreds of legends, mixed with fact, about individuals who flew and those who tried it and died. Probably the original flying legend is the Greek story about Daedalus, who made a pair of wings with which he flew, and his son, Icarus, who took them out one day and came to grief when he got so near the sun that the wax wings melted.

Giovanni Baptisti Danti, late in 1400, is said to have flown across the Piazza of Perugia, Italy, in what seems to have been an authentic glider. It was about this time that Leonardo da Vinci began to study the possibilities of flight from the scientific angle and made a helicopter of paper, wire and springs that really lifted itself. Following this there were numerous experiments with gliders, some of them successful, but not until 1903 did the motor-driven plane conquer the air.—Milwaukee Journal.

Big Feet Caused Downfall

Difficulty in obtaining a pair of boots large enough for his feet led to the downfall of Rocky Whelan, once notorious bushranger of Tasmania. Rocky worked alone and had a nasty habit of shooting wayfarers in the back. He acquired his wardrobe by the simple process of taking whatever articles of clothing he needed from his victims. But he had very large feet and was unable to get a fit in his usual manner. So he went into a bootmaker's shop to buy a pair. A constable who had seen him in another part of the country spotted him as he entered the shop and followed, effecting a capture just as the outlaw was trying on a pair of boots. Whelan was executed a few days later on the gallows.—Sydney Bulletin.

Immortal "Serenade"

Schubert wrote the "Serenade" to suit the words of a poem by Ludwig Rellstab. A number of Rellstab's poems were originally sent by their author to Beethoven, who declined to do anything with them because of the state of his health, but who recommended that they be turned over to Schubert. This was done after Beethoven's death. In 1828 Schubert wrote a number of fine songs, which were brought out after his death under the title of "Swan Songs." "Serenade" is No. 4 of the Swan Songs, which include six others written to Rellstab's words. Schubert was born January 31, 1797, and died November 10, 1828.

Lucky

A woman with a particularly disagreeable expression had been holding forth to the man sitting next to her at the dinner party.

"Ah," she said at last, "my husband has always been lucky. As a child he was thrown by a horse, but wasn't injured; as a youth the ice broke beneath him, but he wasn't drowned; and as a young man he was caught in an avalanche, but escaped uninjured."

"Yes," put in the man, quietly, "but strangest of all he has now been married to you for 20 years and is still alive." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Nature Prodigal in Gifts to the Great

The great man has usually looked the part. Lowell said of Emerson that there "was a majesty about him beyond all the men I have ever known." Washington impressed those about him as being no ordinary man, and Dr. James Thatcher said "the strength and proportion of his joints and muscles appeared to be commensurate with the pre-eminent powers of his mind." Goethe was likened in his youth to an Apollo, and the physician Hufeland declared that never had he "met with a man in whom bodily and mental organization were so perfect." Tenayson was "one of the finest looking men in the world." Wordsworth was, according to the artist Hayden, "of very fine heroic proportions." Southey looked an ideal poet, Byron was as beautiful as his verse and was likened to "the god of the Vatican, the Apollo Belvidere." Leonardo da Vinci had a figure of beautiful proportions and a noble and engaging presence. Walter Scott was eminently handsome, "much above the usual standard" and "cast in the mold of young Hereules," with a "fresh and brilliant complexion and a countenance of great dignity."—Scientific Monthly.

Historians Skip Many Matters of Interest

An American history written in the old-fashioned way would never mention the rise of the motion picture diversion. The kind of histories to which we have been accustomed don't appear to be in the least interested in the ordinary life of the people, which is as much history as taking a fort or carrying an election, a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat asserts.

Between wars there is almost a blank interregnum; and—from the history—you would never know that a book had been written, a picture painted or a machine invented. We once knew a school history of the United States that did not mention the coming of the railroad; but every Indian chieftain from Massasoit to Sitting Bull was personalized.

These strange silences of formal history leave us to the historical novels for our general information of the times — the clothing our ancestors wore, their pastimes, their religious faiths, their literature, their customs and their modes of thought.

Heaven as a Republic

Dr. James Madison, second cousin of the President of the United States of that name, was elected president of William and Mary College when he was only twenty-eight years old. It was necessary, before he could assume office, to suspend a statute requiring that the head of the institution be not less than thirty years old. The young college president, who was ordained in the Episcopal ministry in 1775, was an ardent believer in the republican form of government. It is said that in his sermons he never would speak of heaven as a kingdom. He would always refer to it as the "great republic where there is no distinction of rank, and where all men are free and equal."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Embarrassed

He was enjoying the picture at a downtown theater recently when he was disturbed from his leisure by a coin rolling from his pocket. The coin hit the floor with a clink and continued its course to the orchestra pit. The rather embarrassed man was not sure of the denomination of the lost coin and proceeded to go after it. Being unable to find it, he summoned two ushers, who aided him with flashlights. At last, after quite a search, the coin was found, and when it was picked up, there in the finder's hand lay a shining penny.

Color Highly Important

Man has apparently become careless about one of the most important items in his environment—color. As soon as he realizes fully the inhibitive and repressive influence of drab, uninteresting color surroundings, the vistas about will be immediately transformed. Man has always conquered or changed conditions unfavorable to his best development. There is no reason to believe that he will not rise to the present situation and reinstate into his daily life the color which is so important to his well being.—Exchange.

Deadly "Milk Sickness"

Milk sickness, the ailment of which Abraham Lincoln's mother died, is a peculiar malignant disease occurring in part of the western United States. It affects certain kinds of farm stock, especially cows, and persons using the meat and dairy products of infected cattle. In man it causes uncontrollable vomiting and other serious symptoms. Its origin in cattle has been variously ascribed to the presence of certain plants in their food and to polluted water.

Best Known in America

Messrs. Smith, Johnson and Brown are the three best known individuals in the United States, a nation-wide search of city and telephone directories reveals. There are at least 1,300,000 Smiths in America, 1,000,000 Johnsons and 770,000 Browns. Then come the Williamses and the Joneses, with 685,000 and 658,000 respectively. The Millers, according to this unofficial census, number 620,000 and the Davises 538,000.

PRESIDENT COOLEDGE EXPLAINS HIS VETO

Washington, D. C. March 2.—President Coolidge has vetoed the McNary-Haugen Bill. In his message he set forth that the bill instead of aiding the farmer would injur him; instead of decreasing surplus it would tend to operate to increase surplus; that it imposed on the farmers as a whole fees, taxes and expenses for the benefit "of the men who grow cotton, rice, tobacco, swine or wheat and nothing else." The President discussed in passing that the bill would also impose hardships on the consumers and in addition he submitted an opinion by the Attorney General that the measure was un-Constitutional. His veto in the main was based on the fact that instead of aiding it would injure the American farmer and would encourage the farmer to grow protected crops and thus abandon the theory of diversified farming which is regarded as the real future for American agricultural life. The most general comment on the message was to the effect that it was a veto for the interests of the farmer.

The President's veto reads in part as follows:

"No one can deny that the price of many farm products have been out of line with the general price level for several years. Reasonable and constructive legislation to that end would be justified. The difficulty with this measure is that it is not framed to aid the farmers."

"The measure discriminates definitely against products which make up what has been considered a program of safe farming. The bill upholds as ideas of American farming the men who grow cotton, corn, rice, swine tobacco, wheat and nothing else. It signals out a few products chiefly sectional and proposes to raise the prices regardless—that thousands of other farmers would be directly penalized. The producers of beef cattle, sheep, dairy products, poultry products, potatoes, hay, fruit, vegetables, oats, barley, rye, flax are ignored. It is a bill for certain groups of farmers in certain sections of the country."

"The measure provides for the payment by the Federal board of all losses, costs, and charges of packers, millers, cotton spinners, or other processories who are operating under contract with the board. It contemplates that the packers may be commissioned by the Government to buy hogs enough to create a near scarcity in this country, slaughter the hogs, sell the pork products abroad at a loss, and have the losses, costs, and charges made good out of the pockets of farm taxpayers."

"It seems almost incredible that the producers of hogs, corn, wheat, rice, tobacco and cotton should be offered a scheme of legislative relief in which the only persons who are guaranteed a profit are the exporters, packers, millers, cotton spinners, and other processors."

"Clearly this legislation involves governmental fixing of prices. It gives the proposed Federal board almost unlimited authority to fix prices on the designated commodities.'"

"The chief objection to the bill is that it would not benefit the farmer."

"Under the stimulus of high prices, the cotton acreages increased by 17,000,000 acres in the last five years. Under the proposed plan, as prices are driven up irresistibly by the artificial demand created by the purchases of the board, the millions of farmers will do just what anyone else would do under the circumstances, plant and grow all they can in order to take full advantage of a situation which they fear is only temporary."

"Higher prices will make a decreased consumption. From 1917 to 1925 the per capita consumption of pork increased from 55 pounds to 86.3 pounds, but in the following year, when the price of beef rose by $3.60 a hundred and the price of beef rose only 40 cents a hundred, the per capita consumption of pork fell off almost 9 pounds. It is not inconceivable that the consumers would rebel at an arbitrarily high price and deliberately reduce their consumption of that particular product."

"A Board of twelve men are granted almost unlimited control and cannot only fix the price which the producers of five commodities shall receive, but can also fix the price which the consumers of the country shall pay for these commodities. There can be no appeal from the arbritrary decisions of these men."

After discussing the practical difficulties in creating a board of this sort which can function in a satisfactory way, the President says, "the bill will not provide a practical method of controlling the Agricultural surplus."

"In trying to find a solution for this fundamental problem of the surplus, the present bill offers no constructive suggestion. It seeks merely to increase the prices paid by the consumer, with the inevitable result of stimulating production on the part of the farmer and decreasing consumption on the part of the public. It ignores the fact that production is curbed only by decreased not increased prices. In the end the equallzation fee and the entire machinery provided by the bill under consideration will merely aggrevate conditions which are the cause of the farmer's present distress."

"The bill would impose the burden of its support to a larger degree upon farmers who would not benefit by it. The products embraced in the plan are only about one-third of the total American farm production. There are several million farmers who do not produce any of the designated products, and they must pay the premium upon the products designated in the bill. In some commodities such as corn and mill feed the farmers are practically the sole consumers. It is proposed to increase the price of corn and mill feed to American farmers, and therefore the costs to the dairy and cattle feeding industries whose products are omitted from the bill."

"The effect of this plan will be continuously to stimulate American production and to pile up increasing surpluses beyond the world demand. We are already overproducing."

"It is proposed that the administration of this plan shall be in the control of a board whose members are nominated to the President by agricultuar organizations for his transmission to the Senate for confirmation. That appears to be an unconstitutional limitation on the authority of the President, but, far more important than this, I do not believe that upon serious consideration the farmers of America would tolerate the precedent of a body of men chosen solely by one industry who, acting in the name of the Government, shall arrange for contracts which determine prices, secure the buying and selling of commodities, the levying of taxes on that industry, and pay losses on foreign dumping of any surplus."

"While the bill authorizes an appropriation of $250,000,000, it fails to restrict the contracts of the board within that sum and nowhere denies the liability of the United States for additional sums of money. If the board had begun operating in the 1925 cotton crop when prices were around 20 cents a pound and had then attempted to hold up the price on the 1926 crop at a level which induced the picking of the whole crop, the whole $250,000,000 would have been spent and great commitments beyond that figure have been entered into."

The President sharply criticises the provision of the bill which provides that State Conventions of the producers must be held.

"If all the producers," he writes, attended the convention the expenses which must be borne by them individually would be a tremendous addition to the operating cost, and if the majority of them did not attend the convention the deliberations would not represent the voice of the producers. It is impossible to see how such conventions of producers could ever be held. The bill does not say 'delegates,' it says 'producers,' the farmers themselves."

"That the equalization fee is not laid on the entire commodity is not apparent from a casual reading of the act. But a close study shows that section 10 provides that there shall be paid 'an equalization fee upon one of the following: The transportation processing, or sale of such unit.' There is no other way to collect the fee. If that stood alone, then all the corn would be subject to the fee unless it were used by the raiser, but section 15 (1) says:

"So, unless the corn is processed or sold for milling or other processing for market or is transported by common carrier, it is not subject to the equalization fee. But the great bulk of it which is neither processed nor transported by common carrier is free from the equalization fee."

"A feeder of cattle who had the necessary machinery to grind or crush his corn bought from other farmers for feeding purposes would be able to market his cattle free from the cost of the equalization fee, while another feeder would be compelled to market his cattle with the added cost of the equalization fee on the corn. This, of course, would be true as to swine, moreover, the feeder who had been compelled to purchase the ground feed would pay the fee on that, and when he sells his swine he pays an additional fee on that transportation. He pays twice."

"In fixing the amount of the equalization fee the board must necessarily estimate the crop. If either the estimate of the crop or the size of the fund needed should be inaccurate, so that there is collected many millions more than needed, there is no way to return it to the producer. Suppose there should be estimated an exportable surplus of 20,000,000 bushels of wheat and there is a surplus of but 10,000,000, the fund would be almost twice as large as it should be, and the board would have fifty-five or sixty millions more than needed of the farmer's money. There is no way to return it. Now, in the case of cotton there is provision that any excess that is accumulated for the stabilization fund shall be paid back to the producer. This is in Section 10."

"But there is no place in the law which provides for a return to the producer of other products where the assessment of the fee levies an amount in excess of that necessary for the stabilization fund."

"The main policy of this bill is an entire reversal of what has been heretofore thought to be sound. Instead of undertaking to secure a method of orderly marketing which will dispose of products at a profit, it proposes to dispose of them at a loss. It runs counter to the principle of conservation, which would require us to produce only what can be done at a profit, not to waste our soil and resources producing what is to be sold at a loss to us for the benefit of the foreign consumer."

"This measure is so long and involved that it is impossible to discuss it without going into details. Many other reasons exist why it ought not to be approved. The most decisive one is that it is not constitutional. This feature is discussed in an opinion of the Attorney General, herewith attached and made a part hereof, so that I shall not consider the details of that phase of my objection."

"This is not a measure to help cooperative marketing. Its effect, on the contrary, is to eliminate the very conditions of advantage that now induce farmers to join together to regulate and improve their own business."

"That there is a real and vital agricultural problem is keenly appreciated by all informed men. The evidence is all too convincing that agriculture has not been receiving its fair share of the national income since the war. Farmers and business men directly dependent upon agriculture have suffered and in many cases still suffer from conditions beyond their control. They are entitled to and will have every consideration at the hands of the Government."

"Surely, a real farm relief measure must be just and impartial and open the way to aid for all farmers. Surely, it must not contemplate, as this measure inescapably does, that farmers in some regions should be penalized for the benefit of those in other regions. Surely, it must be aimed to promote the welfare of the community at large. Agriculture must be helped and strengthened. To saddle it with unjust, unworkable schemes of governmental control is to invite disaster worse than any that has yet befallen our farmers."

"Many sincere and thoughtful people have expended a great deal of time and energy in working out this measure and are entirely honest and honorable in their advocacy of it. It is a great regret to me that I am unable to come to the conclusion that the bill would help agriculture, be of benefit to the country, and be in accord with the Constitution."

"Other plans have been proposed in Congress for advancement in this recovery, which plans offer promise of sound assistance to the farmers without these unconstitutionalities, invasions of Executive authority, this contracting with packers and flour millers and other manufacturers, this overproduction with its inflation and inevitable crash, without this indirect price fixing, buying and selling, this creation of huge bureaucracies. They are, on the contrary, devoted entirely to the principle of building up farmer-controlled marketing concerns to handle their problems, and applicable to all agriculture and not to a minor fraction. I have frequently urged such legislation. I wish again to renew my recommendation that some such plan be adopted."

DODGE

A surprise party was given to Irvin Riley at his home Saturday night. Those present were Misses Ruth and Mary Peck, Hazel, Helen and Willa Harvey, Ellen Flanigan, and Messrs. Judson and Jonas Peck, Luke Harvey, James and Samuel Flanigan, Fredlock Shenk, Iris and Leaura Riley.

Mrs. Bernie Pratt, who spent several days at Tunnelton, West Va., has returned to her home here.

Mr. William Chisholm, who has been employed at Everetsville for some time has returned to his home here.

Miss Hazel Paugh, who has been employed at Mrs. W. O. U. Paugh's for several weeks, has returned to her home.

Miss Ruth Peck visited her sister, Mrs. Lonnie Rodeheaver, one day last week.

Miss Marie Paugh is on the sick list at this writing.

Mr. Edward Harvey is on the sick list suffering with rheumatism.

Miss Nina Foster, who was bitten by a dog, is recovering.

Mr. Dick Paugh has returned to his home after having been employed at Shinnston, West Va., during the winter months.

Due to the bad condition of the roads Monday and Tuesday it was impossible to bring the bus down after the school children. We are honing that it won't get so badly drifted again.

COMPULSORY AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

By ALVIN E. YASTE

The adoption of nation-wide compulsory automobile insurance, in its radical form, would prevent hundreds of thousands of people from buying automobiles and deprive them of the educational and recreational advantages of car ownership.

A large quota of the new-comers into the ranks of motordom, buy low priced used cars, and it is safe to assume that if, in addition to the purchase price of these cars, they were compelled to pay an initial compulsory insurance premium ranging from $25 to $30, it would often strain them to the point where they would give up the idea of ear ownership altogether.

The first blow would fall on the used car market, which would be severely stricken inasmuch as the prospective buyers would figure the cost of compulsory insurance as part of their outlay.

Although the used car market would be the first to be hit by compulsory blanket insurance, the effect of it would be immediately felt throughout the entire automobile industry. It is a well established fact that there is a definite ratio between the number of new and used cars sold. Eighty per cent of the time a man will not buy a new car unless he can dispose of his old one. New motorists are the prospects of the used car market and if the latter class are scared off, the gigantic automotive industry would feel the shock to its very foundation.

The shock would inevitably hit the oil industry; it would hit employment and its reverberations would be felt through much of our economic structure. Far too little attention has been paid to the serious economic aspects of compulsory automobile insurance. There might be some excuse for overlooking these phases of the question if compulsory insurance could be shown to hold a promise of helping promote safety. But even its ardent supporters have practically abondoned their claims in this respect, as their position is now mainly pivoted on compensation and not safety.

The economic results would be serious enough, but as a car owners' organization, the American Automobile Association is mainly concerned over the probability that compulsory insurance would diminish the use by the people of the greatest instrument of recreation that the world has ever know—the automobile. The add... of a large insurance premium to ... purchase price of a used car would ... many thousands of cases be ... st enough to prevent purchase.

The A. A. A. has now under consideration plans whereby the public may be protected from the reckless and financially responsible driver, without imposing mass burdens and without penalizing all and sundry because of the recklessness of the few and in order that the few may be assured of compensation. One of the chief planks in the A. A. A. program looks towards the adoption of the main features of the Uniform Motor Vehicle Law particularly the proviso for a strong, workable drivers' license law.

GORTNER.

Mr. Arch Baker, of Pittsburgh, is visiting his father Mr. J. W. Baker, at this writing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially for Readers of The Republican by Rev. U. S. Wright, D. D.

SUNDAY, MARCH 6, 1927.

SHARING THE GOOD NEWS—Acts 8:4-8; II Cor. 5:11-20.

Ye Are My Witnesses—Acts 1:8.

THE GREATEST NEED.

What is my greatest need? Is it Money? Is it position? Is it culture? Is it skill? Is it Knowledge? Is it wholeness of life? Certainly there are many needs but that which goes beyond all others is to live life whole. A sound body, if it is attainable, a sound mind, if it is possible; a sound attitude, if it is cultivable, and a sound spirit, if it is securable, are all parts of a whole life. Bread for my body, truth for my mind, friends for my attitudes, and God for my spirit are necessary things to make life all it should be. Mechanics have made famine impossible for my body, science for my mind, increasingly close contacts with folk thru the press, travel, radio, movies, etc., for my social attitudes; how may the famine for God be met? For He is being banished by the multiplied material impacts of today that leaves small time for the cultivation of spiritual instincts. We are rich in all things but in the consciousness of the presence of God. Yet there can be no whole life without that. in an age of attention to the body and mind such as was never known in all the years we are threatened by the submergence of the soul. Here is the urge of the Church, the only organization giving itself to the dissemination of things of the Spirit. Do we need God? Do we feel the incompleteness of life without Him? O, the sheer joy of realizing the truth that God is interested in me as well as in the universe. That was the thing Jesus struggled to bring to the consciousness of His day and if it is felt as a joy there is the same compulsion resting on us to share it with the world and upon Him. What is the people of a Doctor who a cure for cancer, for would hold it for It is the glory of every discovery and must be given is the standard w much more Christian. The hurch created joy over the he passion to make Him known to others. Handicapped by their Jewish minds they were slow to include all men but they presently reached that and carried the news wherever they went. The result is our own Christian faith. And my need as well as that of the other man is the sharing of my God with him.

THE EXAMPLE

Philip was a plain layman in that early group who was not particularly popular but remarkably efficient. One of the caretakers of the poor in the early organization, he had to leave town when persecution flamed and sought the one place a Jew would never suspect, Samaria, as his hiding place. But he found that they responded to his word about Jesus as others had done and he as well as they rejoiced that outcasts could be redeemed. The Church had to investigate the report and no doubt told him of the visit of a great Official in the Court of Candace who was not permitted to worship in the Temple because of physical unfitness and who had evidently not been received by the Christian community either. It is not strange that the big, brotherly heart of Philip warmed toward this other outcast and that the Spirit of Jesus got the message thru to him. He started across country to head him off before he would get entirely out of reach and go back without any word of his Lord. That was the passion that burned in his heart that made the gruelling journey seem a joy as he climbed hills and plugged thru the sand. It was no white-collar man who caught the caravan and still had energy enough to run after the imposing chariot of its chief. The man who had ridden miles across the desert to learn about God, had been rejected by both Jew and Christian at the end, was still in earnest endeavor to find out the truth thru an old scroll, reading as he rode. His desire leaped to meet the passion of Philip and his courtesy was equal to his desire so that the dusty runner was soon ensconced in the chariot. Philip knew his Bible and found any text a gate to the garden of the Son of God. So winsome was his word, so clear the truth, that eager acceptance followed and the open confession of conversation appeared in the baptism along the highway. Passion, pluck, persistence, knowledge, pressing for a confession and an act of acknowledgement mark the road along which his example of the early art of soul-winning went to the conquest of another life for his Lord. It is a road that needs to be much traveled today.

THE PROCESS

Paul is concerned here with the impelling of the evangelist to rescue the lost. It is a note that is being submerged under the less spectacular evangelism of preservation of the child. We conserve the good instead of allowing the youth to fling himself overboard and then stop the ship, launch the life boat, toss life belts and light flares in an attempt to rescue him from impending death. Keep the child in the Kingdom is the far wiser strategy of the present. But there must always be the readiness to indulge in the work of rescue for there will always be the need. Paul feels the compulsion of a great love which is our driving power always. And he beholds that greatest of all miricles, the regeneration of a soul. God alone can restore the image defaced by sin and there is a thrill in seeing it that comes from no other activity in the Christian life. Jesus spoke of it in the phrase. "More joy over one sinner that repenteth than oven ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance." Yet the ninety-nine mean far more to the Kingdom. The basic impulse is in the heart of the Eternal who loves men. "Sinners in the hands of an angry God" was the topic of a sermon that stirred all New England when Edwards preached it but it is a picture alien to the Gospel. For God was in Christ reconciling the world—God needed no reconciliation but an alienated world did and He would make the advance.

THE WORTH OF THE SOUL WINNER

The man becomes the ambassador of the Almighty. He is the representative of the Government of God. We have no more important official than this in our interrelated world life for he utters the word of his nation and where he is that nation is. Where the soul winner is there is God. A spot of the Kingdom abides there and he is Heaven's courtier and courier upon urgent business for His King. What he speaks becomes no personal word but is the utterance of all worlds and men judge God by the messenger as well as by the message that he brings. And that is one filled with high joy for it is "be ye reconciled to God." There is no word of more moment to the sinner that that, nor one that brings more glory to the bearer. Pity it is that we do not more often speak it and, with the passion of that early day, press it upon the attention of those who so greatly need its message.

O. H. S. GIRLS PRESENT PLAY AT CASTLE HALL NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Despite the inclement weather which prevailed last Friday night, a goodly number of the residents of Crellin including the famous orchestra of the Mickey Conservatory of Music appeared as per schedule and the night known as "Crellin Night" will long be remembered. Mr. C. W. Ream acted as the chairman and gave a very instructive but brief address concerning the activities in and around Crellin. He assured Garrett Lodge of the loyal support of the people of Crellin and supprest the hope that he might live to see the day when the boundaries of Oakland would unite with those of the industrial center which he represents.

Prof. Mickey and his youthful musicians furnished some fine music. Mr. Mickey must have some of the patience of Job in order to perfect and manage a band of musicians composed of youths of a tender age. Much credit is due him and every member of his organization. The fiddler and guitar accompanist delighted the listeners and were kind enough to play a special number for the benefit of Dr. H. W. McComas. Then they played a selection for Prof. F. E. Rathbun. Dr. H. W. McComas responded with a recitation and also made very special mention of the notable educator (meaning the Prof. himself) to the extent that words failed him and he made no response.

On behalf of Garrett Lodge we desire to thank Mr. Ream and each other person who had part in the program. We hope to be again favored with a visit.

Through the efforts of Prof. F. E. Rathbun the atraction for Friday night March 4, will be something entirely different from anything we have had. The spirit of cooperation is aboard in the land and as Garrett Lodge has been host on numerous occasions to various organizations, they in turn have been and are being kind enough to reciprocate. Oakland High School, The Boy Scouts, Our Friends from Crellin and many others have had a part in promoting good fellowship.

Brother I. R. Rudy, that energetic human dynamo, will be in charge Friday night and presides with characteristic dignity.

"Eeny, Meny, Miny, Mo"

The following play will be presented at the K. of P. Hall, on Friday night, March 4, by the Second Year Girls' Music Class.

The argument is as follows:

Eeny, Meeny, Miny Mo is a modern musical comedy telling the story of a young girl who has very good times, and two beaux, one of them in Japan for an extended stay, the other an ever-present. Before she can in any way make up her mind which is the right one, the mother of one of the boys arrives and announces that she has come to take the girl to Japan for the wedding. The girl is amazed, but agrees with her classmates that Japan is too far away from the U. S. A. However, Bob arrives in time to save the day and the girl knows her own mind and decides to go "traveling with him."

A rehearsal of a Japanese operetta opens the way for a display of a box of robes from Japan, adding a picturesque feature.

The comedy is lightened by Sammy, the colored boy, who likes to "sing ob de Southun," but doesn't like to work.

The characters are as follows:

Virginia Lee, favorite senior in school, Adeline Sincell
Mercedes Penn, a fun-loving junior, Blanche Gilbert
Elizabeth Rannel, Virginia's chum, Dot. Stevenson
Madge Cross, Miss Grundy's pet, Evelyn Shaffer
Isabel Arms, Who likes to make songs, Nancy Franklin
Miss Grundy, Mistress of the school, Wilda Adams
Sammy, Colored boy of all work, Iona Kelly
Mrs. Lair, Mother of Bob, Dot. Sturgiss
Bob, From old Japan, Ralph Blake
Maid, Helen Leighton

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Welch and son, Wellington, and Miss Erna Whittington were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. Edward Sembower.

In spite of the disagreeable weather there was a large crowd at the Methodist church Sunday morning.

Miss Eugenia Athey went to her home at Shepherdstown last Saturday morning, but will return on Wednesday.

Miss Gladine Elsey spent last Friday at the Bittinger home.

Mrs. N. K. Welch was a visitor of Mrs. Hosea Elsey, Sunday.

Delayed Last Week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Bittinger spent Wednesday in Oakland, shopping.

There was no Sunday school or church services at either church last Sunday due to the inclement weather.

Misses Lucille and Dorothy Sembower were unable to attend school Monday owing to the drifted country roads.

Miss Gladine Elsey was out riding horse-back for her health, Monday morning.

Several of the farmers of this vicinity have been hauling coal from the mines the past few days.

Mrs. Naomi Barnard is greatly improved, at this writing. It will be recalled that she had a stroke of paralysis a couple weeks ago.

Mr. Harrison Sembower and sisters, June and Dorothy, were callers, Tuesday night, on Erma Whittington at the Bittinger home.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Friend are rejoicing over the arrival of a son.

Mr. E. O. Liller has been busily engaged hauling stones for the new road which is being built.

Master Delton Elsey called on Master Carleton Sembower Tuesday afternoon.

The heaviest snow of the season is rapidly leaving. Today, Tuesday, the mercury stands at 48.

TO SAVE YOUR TIME—
Place Your Out-of-Town Calls by Number!

HAVE you noticed that the long distance operator has been completing many of your out-of-town calls while you held the line?

We can give you this almost as fast as local service when you know the number of the distant telephone. It makes no difference whether you call "anyone" or a particular person at an out-of-town telephone; in either case you'll get an extra-rapid service if you can give the number.

Suppose you don't know the number—

We'll complete the connection and tell you the number at the time. But to save your time we suggest that you make a list of the names and addresses of all the persons or firms whom you are apt to call. Mail it to our Business Office and we will promptly supply you with their numbers.

A Word of Explanation—There are two kinds of long distance calls: Station-to-station and Person-to-person. On a station-to-station call we connect you with the out-of-town number just as we do on a local call. On a person-to-person call we connect you with the particular person desired at the distant telephone; these calls take abor 25 per cent higher rate.

Mrs. Ella B. Keller accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Alice Getty of Meyersdale, are visiting relatives at Washington Court House, Ohio.

Mrs. Lillie Younkin spent last week with her brother, Dr. H. B. Ryland in Meyersdale.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Swauger, Jacob Simmony, Mrs. James Wilson and Mrs. E. E. Lewellyn, of Johnstown, were Sunday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swauger.

Rev. Holland Logsdon, of Rockwood, Pa., filled the pulpit of the Reformed church here on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Viola Swauger, of Cumberland spent the week-end with her parents here.

Services in the churches next Sunday as follows: Catholic: Mass at 10 a. m. Methodist: Sunday school, 10 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m., and worship at 7:30 p. m. Reformed: Sunday school at 10 a. m. Lutheran: Sunday school at 10 a. m.

Mr. Floyd Broadwater, of New Germany suffered a severe bruise on his leg on Tuesday morning while enroute to Grantsville, just west of the Little Crossings Bridge, by having a car come up from behind and bump into his sled, which caused the sled to lurch forward and sidewise, The neck-yoke was broken and the goods in the sled shaken up considerably. The driver of the car claims he could not get by because of another machine coming toward him and having bad brakes, could not stop quickly enough.

The five hundred club was entertained on Monday night by Otto Bender at the home of his brother, Allen. Mrs. Allen Bender served a two cours luncheon. The guests were W. E. Stanton, John Zehner and Enos Folk, Harry Bender was the winner of high honors and J. R. Gnegy drew the consolation prize.

The K. C. Class of the Lutheran Sunday school are planning for a comedy to be given on March 11th in the W. O. W. Hall, entitled "Art. For Hearts' Sake." Refreshments are to be served between the acts. The proceeds for the building fund.

GORMAN

A very interesting Parent-Teacher Association meeting was held at the Gorman school on February 15th, which was attended by a majority of the parents of the school children. The parents responded with much enthusiasm which helped to make the meeting a decided success.

The room was attractively decorated in the usual red and white valentine colors. Numerous valentines, cupids, posters and other holiday array were prominently displayed. The excited children, the eager parents and the decorations lent a festive atmosphere to the room.

After an inspiring prayer given by the Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Gormania, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Lena Hamburg. Mrs. Flo Schaeffer, president of the association gave an interesting talk and welcomed the guests in a few well chosen words. Mr. John Schaeffer, a well known citizen of Gormania, also favored us with a delightful speech, contrasting the schools of yesterday with those of today.

TRUE ORIGIN OF THE IRISH POTATO.

To the Editor of The Republican.
Dear Sir:-

The enclosed article speaks for itself. Statements from Smithsonian Institution are generally accepted as the last word in accuracy.

My recollection is that our local school books taught that the potato originally came from Virginia, but for some time I have doubted this and now I find my doubts confirmed by the highest authority. If you think the article worthwhile publish it in the interest of historical accuracy.

Sincerely,
CHARLES H. SHAFFER.
3443 Oakwood Terrace,
Washington, D. C.
February 24, 1927.

The literature of the past has led us to assume that the so-called Irish potato (Solanum Tubersum) was found growing wild in Virginia by the early settlers and was taken from there to England, by either Sir Walter Raleigh or Sir Francis Drake, about 1586. An article by W. E. Saford in the Annual Report Smithsonian Institution, 1925, just published, tends to show that this is wrong. According to this article Raleigh probably never saw a potato, and while Drake probably did see them on the west coast of South America, still there is no record of his bringing any of them home with him.

There is every reason for believing that the potato originated on the western slope of the Andean mountains, and specimens gathered from prehistoric tombs in that dry region show that it was cultivated there long before Columbus reached America. It never grew wild in Virginia or any other part of North America.

Thomas Cavendish, an Englishman, in 1587, found on the coast of Chili, potatoes collected for the Spanish and it is probable that they were used to provision Spanish ships on the return voyage, and in this way they were introduced into Spain about that time. From thence they were next carried to Italy. There is an authentic record of the plant being introduced into the Botanical Garden at Vienna in 1588. It is not known definitely when the plant reached the British Isles, but it mush have been soon thereafter for in 1663 the failure of the potato crop in Ireland caused much distress. The soil and climate of Ireland are peculiarly suited to its growth, and it evidently became one of the most important crops soon after its first introduction.

The potato did not reach the English colonies in North America until 1719, when it was brought from Ireland by immigrants who settled at Londonerry, N. H.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS TO STAGE BIG PARADE

Unique Affair Staged By Members of One of Contest Teams

A "blue ribbon winner" bull will head a torchlight parade to be staged by the "Bulls" of the Knights of Pythias lodge on the streets Friday evening, beginning at seven o'clock promptly.

The Crellin and Oakland bands will participate in the affair and the two "attendance teams" will be in line.

For some time past the local order has been running a contest for the purpose of increasing the membership and attendance at the regular meetings, and two teams were organized and are known as the "Bulls" and the "Bears." Each team is credited with so many points for having secured a new member for the lodge, and also are given a certain number of points for each member who attends the regular sessions of the organization. The contest, it is said, has created interest in all phases of the work of the Knights and is meeting with decided success.

Alvie G. Gortner is the captain of the "Bulls" and will be assisted by Charles W. Ream, captain of the "Bears" to make the undertaking of a large street parade a success.

After the parade the membership will hold a short session of lodge, following which Captain Gortner will preside at a program which is said will be the snappiest one ever rendered by the local organization.

Announcement is also made that the "two Bills", Bill Wharton and Bill Welch, will serve an old-style Virginia pig roast to the members and guests at the banquet rooms of the lodge tomorrow evening.

Taken To State Institutions.

Sheriff W. D. Casteel, accompanied by Miss Rhesa King, county health nurse, and Miss Lola Belle Green, returned from Baltimore Monday, to which city they had gone with two girls, Leona and Anna Bowers, and with Alvin Friend, a young man of 19 years. The Bowers girls were committed to the state hospital at Catonsville, where they will receive attention for mental derangements, and young Friend was committed to St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys.

Upon information received by State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger concerning conditions at the Bowers home, which is located on the Deer Park road near the Pysel farm, the two girls were taken into custody and were found to be deficient in their mental powers, hence their commitment to the state institution.

Alvin Friend, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Friend, Sr., of Elder Hill, was sentenced to serve two years in the industrial training school upon complaint made by his parents that the boy was unruly.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT MAKES GOOD SHOWING

Assets Increase Over Last Year And Indebtedness Decreased.

The annual financial statement of the corporation of the town for the year ending February 28 will be found on another page of The Republican today.

Upon examination of the report and comparing the same with the report of last year it will be found that the town has passed through a comparatively successful year relative to its financial condition.

It will be found that indebtedness on the City Hall has been reduced $1100 and indebtedness by orders on the town has been reduced $800. The report also shows that the fire department equipment has been enhanced in value 100 per cent during the year, which is realized when the report made in 1926 showed that the equipment was worth $3,000, while the current report states that it is worth $7,500.00.

It will be noticed also that a number of the larger figures in the disbursement column have been used for permanent improvements about the town, such as scales, a safe for the keeping of the records and other valuable papers of the council, fire hydrants, etc.

The balance in the treasury at the end of the year is increased over last year by more than $2,000

LOCAL WOMAN LOSES STEP-FATHER IN FLOOD

Theodore Tutt, Second Husband of Mrs. Wiesenmiller Was Drowned In California

Theodore Tutt, husband of Mrs. Anna Tutt, formerly Mrs. Anna Wiesenmiller, of Cumberland, mother of Mrs. Lawrence M. Fraley of Oakland, was drowned February 16, at Bell Canyon, Cal., during a great flood and storm, in which twenty-four other people lost their lives.

Mr. Tutt, who was caretaker of a ranch near Los Angeles, married Mrs. Wiesenmiller, widow of William Wiesenmiller, in New York early last summer. After the wedding they left for Los Angeles to reside.

Mrs. Tutt, following the death of her husband, went to the home of Christopher Eichner, Los Angeles, formerly of Cumberland, where she prepared to leave for her former home in Cumberland.

DIED.

MRS. MARY ANNA KAHL.

Mrs. Mary Anna Kahl, born October 11, 1868, died at her home near Oakland March 4, 1927, age 58 years. She leaves to mourn their loss her husband, H. W. Kahl, two daughters, Margaret Ellen and Mary Jane; five sons, Walter L., of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Albert W., Edward P., Karl F. and Herman L., all of Oakland. One sister, Mrs. Joe Martin, of Red House; two brothers, H. A. Schmidt, of Altamont, and Carl Schmidt, of Thayerville. One daughter, Elizabeth, preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held at the home Monday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating. Interment being made in the Oakland cemetery. Pallbearers were J. E. Herned, J. M. Falkenstein, Wm. M. Frazee, W. F. King, W. H. Hinebaugh and G. J. Alstetter. The flower bearers were Misses Norine Ault, Flossie Shaffer, Mary Falkenstein, Manona Thayer, Hazel Nine, Margaret Jane Mason, Helen Hinebaugh, Mary Hinebaugh, Pauline Hauser, Lavona Blamble, Martha Townshend, Burl Fulk, Mrs. Robert Stewart, Mrs. Hugh Teets, Mrs. Elinor Hoye and Mrs. Cecil Smith.

Quite a large gathering of relatives and friends were present to pay their last respects to one who was loved by all.

MRS. SIMEON GRACER

Burial services were held here on Monday for the remains of Mrs. Simeon Gracer, who died at Johnstown, Pa., on Friday.

Mrs. Gracer was formerly of Oakland and resided for a number of years on the Mansfield farm near Underwood and later moved onto the Bradley farm, which is now the Garrett County Fair Grounds, where she and her family remained for several years. Leaving Oakland the family went to Pittsburgh, Pa., and then to Johnstown, Pa., where Mrs. Gracer died.

She is survived by her husband and two sons, John and Simeon, and by a daughter, Miss Agnes Gracer.

Funeral services were held in a Catholic church at Johnstown, and the procession arrived in Oakland over the National Highway. Rev. John F. Eckenrode, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, officiated at the burial service.

MRS. ANABEL GARLETZ

Mrs. Anabel Garlitz, wife of Richard Garlitz, and a daughter of the late Charles Durst, of New Germany, died at her home in Lonaconing last Thursday morning at the age of 63 years. Services were held on Saturday morning in Lonaconing and burial was made in the cemetery of St. Anne's Catholic church, Avilton. Mrs. Garlitz was married twice, her first husband being the late Otho Garlitz, of Avilton. She is survived by seven children, Lon, of Avilton; Harry and Edgar, residing near Wheeling, W. Va.; Sarah McKinzie, of Lonaconing, and Wilmoth, Joseph and Lela, at home. The following named brothers and sisters also survive: C. C. Durst, Grantsville; Louis, of Terra Alta, W. Va., James and Elbridge and Susan Kolbfleisch, of Akron, Ohio; Catherine Ebaugh, Meyersdale, Pa.; Jane Roheson, of Avilton; Amelia Orendorf, of Greenwood, Del., and Sadie Lynch, of Akron, Ohio.

Mrs. M. C. Hinebaugh is visiting relatives in Baltimore and expects to remain in that city for a week or two before returning to her home here.

CUMBERLAND SEEKS COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

To Raze and Utilize W. M. Site —Would Issue $500,000 Bonds For Erection

A bill which would authorize the mayor and city council to issue $500,000 bonds for a public general hospital in Cumberland was endorsed at the council meeting Monday morning. It will replace the Western Maryland Hospital, which will be gradually torn down.

Seek Aid From State and County

Effort will be made before it is presented to the State Legislature to get financial help from the State and Allegany county. If this can be done the full amount would not be expended. Allegany county will be asked to contribute $100,000 to its erection, if not, the city will build it.

The hospital is also to be a memorial to the men who served in the armed forces of the Nation in the wars, and such a tablet will be erected in the building.

The bill creates a board of governors who will have a charge of its erection and management. It will be composed of Thomas B. Finan, Morris Rosenbaum, Arthur J. Weber, Tasker G. Lowndes, the Mayor of Cumberland and one other to be selected later.

Tear Old Hospital Down

Mayor Thomas W. Koon stated that as soon as the bill was passed, the present directors of the Western Maryland Hospital would turn that building over to the new hospital board. After the contract for its erection would be given out, the old center portion of the Western Maryland Hospital would be torn down.

A unit of the new building would be erected on the site and on its completion the patients and staff would move in. The remainder of the hospital, which includes portions erected in later years, would be torn down and the second hospital unit built.

The present hospital, erected nearly forty years ago, is antiquated and unsuited for modern hospital needs.

The mayor said the site would cost nothing, and that it is the proper location, according to the opinion of the local medical fraternity, being close to the railroads and on the National Highway. Tentative plans for such a structure have been submitted by architects who specialize in hospital construction.

Many Garrett county citizens will note with interest the proposed plan of Cumberland as the Western Maryland Hospital has been of valuable service to this county as well as to Allegany county.

998 BILLS PASSED BY THE 69TH CONGRESS

Total Of 24,417 Introduced During Sessions—Only about 200 of Those Passed Affect Nation

The record of the sixty-ninth Congress discloses that out of an avalanche of nearly 25,000 bills and resolutions only 998 succeeded in overcoming the legislative barriers to finally become laws.

In the number added to the statute books are hundreds of a purely private character and several hundred more pertaining to local or sectional needs, so that the number of new laws affecting the nation as a whole is probably not in excess of two hundred.

Members of the House far outstripped their less numerous colleagues in the Senate in the bill introducing melee. During the two sessions of the sixty-ninth, House members offered over 18,000 bills and resolutions while the number in the Senate was 6,417.

Of this number, President Coolidge signed 523 during the first session and 475 in the session which terminated last week, affixing his signature to 229 within the twenty-four hours before the gavel fell.

During the two sessions also House committees sent an even 100 special messages to the Senate, including his annual message, one explaining the Nicaraguan situation, and another outlining plans for another naval arms conference. Heads of various departments filed 1,055 reports with Congress.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sturgiss and daughter, Dorothea, drove to Meyersdale, Pa., Friday, where they were guests of relatives and friends for the day.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION TO BE HELD MONDAY

Citizens' Meeting This Evening To Select Ticket

Three persons to be members of the Town Council of Oakland and one person to be Treasurer of the town, will be voted upon and elected by ballot in the municipal election which will be held next Monday at the Council Chamber in the Municipal building on Third street.

The polls will be opened at 8 o'clock a. m., and will remain open until 6 o'clock p. m., between which hours all qualified voters of the town of Oakland may cast their ballot for the officials of their choice.

The retiring members of the Council are Arthur Lawton, who resigned as a councilman when he went to the Maryland Legislature, as a member of that body, on January 2; Edward Shafter and Samuel Aronhalt. The retiring treasurer of the town is Miss Frances Hamill.

A citizens' meeting will be held this evening at 7 o'clock for the purpose of naming a citizens' ticket, or if it is so desired by those present to put two or more tickets into the field, then the different tickets will be named.

It is thought by a number of the citizens who are interested in politics that but one ticket will be named at the meeting tonight, and if such is the case, it is hinted that several of those who are on the retiring list from official duties of the town will be nominated for re-election.

Play for St. Patrick's Day

On the seventeenth of March the biology class, under the direction of Miss Fulgham, will give a play entitled "An Irish Alibi." It promises to be even better than the Valentine play which was given by the same class. The admission will be only five cents. The proceeds to be used by the biology department. Everyone is welcome. Candy will be sold by Miss Brown's domestic science girls, so bring some extra money.

No Program This Friday

We will not have a program this Friday but will spend the time in perfecting the declamations that the boys have been preparing for the coming Dawson declamation contest.

Literary Society

Local Boy Honored.

Mr. James Fairfax Hamill, son of Mrs. G. Semmes Hamill, Jr., of Oakland, a graduate of Princeton and a second year law student at Harvard University, has received the honor of being appointed a delegate to the Institute of International Relations which will meet at Geneva in August of this year. Mr. Hamill will sail for Europe June 24th, and will travel extensively abroad, returning to America in September. While in Geneva, Mr. Hamill will be the guest of the Secretary General of the League of Nations.

Gun Club Organized.

The Youghiogheny Rifle and Revolver association was organized at a meeting of the Crellin sportsmen last Thursday evening. The association will erect a club house, indoor and outdoor range on the Youghiogheny river at Crellin, work on which will begin early in the spring.

The following officers were chosen: Lester C. Yutzy, president; William H. Hover, vice president; Robert C. Ford, secretary-treasurer.

When The Republican went to press last Thursday afternoon, all arrangements were made to entertain the members of the Maryland General Assembly by the County Commissioners and several local organizations. Friday morning, however, it was learned that the Assemblymen could not reach Oakland because of insufficient time for the trip, hence the disappointment to the citizens of the County.

UNWRITTEN RULES GOVERN LEGISLATURE

Old-Time Lobbyists Have Disappeared From Scene.

The sixty days, which it was decided by the Baltimore Sun would see the close of the session of the General Assembly, have passed, and those who are familiar with the habits and customs which have prevailed at Annapolis since the organization of the SState, expected would be the case, so far from being ready to adjourn, less than one-fourth of the work has been actually started on its way, and there is every indication that the usual jam will take place during the last few days, and the last night of the term, will, on Monday, April 4th, find the sergeant-at -arms turning back the clocks of the two houses, to prolong the legislative day beyond midnight, which is the constitutional hour for the end of business.

The legislature has its own ways of doing things—and it does them in its own time-honored ways, no matter what may be the views of newspaper writers and of the general run of citizens. It may change certain of its written rules of procedure from time to time in un-important particulars, the whole membership may be changed from session to session, but there are certain unwritten rules and customs which have not changed since the first session, after the adoption of the constitution of 1776. And no matter what may be the criticism from newspapers, bodies of citizens or individuals, the same old customs are followed, and the outcome is always about the same, for when the members of the two Houses are gathered together at Annapolis, whether the control is in the power of one party or the other, in all important particulars, the outcome is about the same, and the state goes on in its old-fashioned, peaceful way, the government averages about as usual, and the prosperity of the whole people of Maryland has never declined, but, slowly and surely, has continued to increase, from the foundation of the colony to the present time. Whether those in control in the olden times were Whigs, Federalist, or Democrats, and in these later days, Democrats or Republicans, the peace, progress and prosperity, scarcely ever varied, and a spirit of conservative justice, decency, and honesty, prevailed and still prevails from the mountains to the sea, and from the Mason Dixon,s line to the borders and waters of three centuries of her existence as a colony and later as a State, the commonwealth has been noted for her conservative polices, and for the conservative spirit evident in those who have been entrusted with her government, and, as a result, "peace and prosperity, truth and justice, rellgion and piety," have, as a general thing, prevailed in all her borders, From time to time during the hundred and fifty years of her history as a State there have been threatened outbreaks of radiealism, sections of popular sentiment have appeared dangerous to the peace and well-being of the people, but when the General Assembly has convened, after our election held at such intervals, the nurmal conservative record has been followed and no signs or traces of radicalism have left the slightest vestige in the legislation enacted. The laws which have been placed on the books, have been of the same safe and sane character, as all those which have gone through the test of the General Assembly ever since the colony became a soverign state, and, in the end all have been satisfied. And, despite all the warnings and prophesies of changes and unfortunate enactments, despite all the fears of evil and dangerous legislation, despite all the forebodings of extravagance and waste this legislature has passed two-thirds of its time without any really dangerous signs or tendencies of any sort. The oyster fisheries, as well as all other fishing and tide water privileges will remain subject to the riparian rights of those who dwell on the shores of the bays and inlets of the State; there will be no reckless expenditures of the public funds, Conowingo still remains under the control of Maryland laws, the public highways will continue to be improved, the Sunday laws will remain as they are, the State Prohibiiton laws will keep on being enforced in the mild and drastic manner the masses of the people prefer, and when the final adjournment takes place, at midnight on April 4th, the population of the commonwealth will find everything going on as it has always been going on, and there will be satisfaction evident on the faces of all

HER OWN HAD COME TO HER

By JOHN ELKINS

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

"FOR lo! my own shall come to me."

The little thin woman in the rocker, darning stockings, kept saying this over and over in spite of the protest on her daughter's face.

"Well, why don't it come?" asked the girl starting to set the table.

"Perhaps I haven't had enough faith. But I keep on trying." And the calm, sweet face again bent over the work with just the faintest shadow across the patient lines.

"I know mother, you are a dear. I wish, too, I had more faith. But some days I get just desperate. The little, mean eighteen dollars a week I earn at that typewriter only keeps us alive. And this street is enough to give one nervous prostration."

"My dear, I thought it was very quiet and decent."

"Yes—but I'm ashamed to ask anyone here. If we could only move into a better neighborhood."

"But we couldn't afford it, dear."

"I know of some new flats in Benton place for no more than we pay here."

"How much room?" asked the mother.

"Oh, two rooms, a kitchennette and bath."

"But we couldn't do with that."

"We could manage. And it's just a swell entrance."

"But here we have a little garden, and—"

"And chickens," finished Florence disgustedly. "Chickens that are an awful bother."

"But they furnish us with nice fresh eggs, and—"

"And get into the yard next door. It's all right as long as no one lives there. But just wait till there's a tenant, and there'll be a row. Lady Grey is determined to go over there."

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Bennett, "I don't see what has got into that hen."

"I know, mother, you like the little patch of ground and the chickens—but I do want some of the good times other girls have. I could go with the people around here—but you know I don't care for them."

"No, dear, you wouldn't be your father's daughter if you did."

A fashionable neighborhood meant more to the dwellers in this small city than a cosmopolitan can well understand. It was the sized place where one calls on the new neighbor when she moves into the same block. Holly street with the small, poor houses, in which the Bennetts lived was well-nigh a reproach to mention in the good society of Brentford. Poor little Florence Bennett, pretty, bright and well educated felt the ostracism caused by the neighborhood. On her father's death, three years previously, leaving them penniless, they had moved to Brentford where an old friend had given Florence employment in his office. She was now twenty years old, and saw little prospect beyond the stenographer's small wages in her future. Office work was not to her taste.

"Yes, I suppose," sighed the mother, "you might get to know some people—some of our own kind—if we lived in a different street. But I always believe, dear, that what is ours will come to us."

"Yes, I know you love that old poem."

"'For lo! my own shall come to me!'" quoted the mother.

"But not by way of Holly street."

"Yes, even Holly street. Still if you want to move into one of those flats—"

"You wouldn't be happy there, dear." Florence kissed the little woman, choked down the sob in her throat, and went on getting the dinner.

The next morning she turned back as she was starting out. "Mother!" she called. "They are painting the vacant house!"

"Why, so they are! I guess we're going to have neighbors!"

Workmen went in and out, and a man was preparing the ground for a small garden.

"Ah, ha!" cried Florence. "Now Lady Grey will have to go into retirement, or lose her neck."

"I'll watch her," protested Mrs. Bennett.

"Well, I don't want your job," laughed the girl as she swung off to the office.

That evening a tale of woe awaited her.

"Oh, Florence! Such a dreadful woman has moved in! Just a common creature with a thick brogue!"

"I told you your own wouldn't come to you by way of Holly street!"

Her mother being in the joking mood, went on: "She spoke to me—well, it was insulting!"

"I foresee Lady Grey made the first call."

"Yes, I thought I had stopped up that hole in the runway, but she got through, and the way that woman went for me. I don't know what we're going to do."

Two or three days after this, as Florence was taking a survey of their small grassy plot with its hardy annuals and shrubbery, a female voice hailed her over the fence. She turned and saw the owner gazing at her.

"Say, miss," she called, "I'd loike ye to look afther that hea o' yours, or as thru' as I'm talkin' I'll look afther her meself. Here's the row of phlox all mixed up wid the 'sturtions, an' the sticks layin' galley west. It's enough to be thryin' the patience o' a holy saint, so it is!"

Florence heard a door open on the other side of the fence.

"Yes," she agreed. "I should think it would be. Mother thought she had fastened in Lady Grey. I'm very sorry. Did she get over there again?"

"Whether t'was Lady Grey or Lady White, she's a divil of a hen, an' if she comes over again, I'll—"

Here the torrent of words came suddenly to a stop with a masculine voice breaking in: "Margaret! Margaret! what is the matter?"

"Well, if yer wantin' a garden, just ye thry havin' it wid a hen!"

"But the lady has said she was sorry."

"Yes, indeed," said Florence, "and I promise you you will not be annoyed any more."

Here a rather good-looking young man emerged from obscurity. More explanations followed, and the militant lady went into the house. When Florence related the incident to her mother, the latter rejoined:

"I suppose she's taking boarders, and it'll be noisy and unpleasant with men running in and out."

"I shouldn't suppose anything but day laborers would be likely to board in Holly street. But maybe he's a clerk on a small salary—still he spoke like a gentleman."

"A clerk can be a gentleman," added her mother.

"Yes," said the girl doubtfully. "He can be."

It was really quite astonishing, the way in which the acquaintance over the fence progressed, till one day Mrs. Bennett invited him in. Florence found she was glad he had been invited. When she found she was something more than glad, she began to be supremely disgusted with herself. Where were her dreams of a finer, fuller life? To marry a poor clerk meant to go on living in Holly street. No, no, it was unthinkable.

"This place must look very dingy to you after your shining new paint in there," she said to him.

"No," he said, "it looks very cozy, very homey." He took in the simple library table, the shaded lamp, the books, and the good pictures on the walls. "It looks very much as I thought it would."

"We've asked time and again to have this room papered and painted, but that miserable old skinflint of an owner won't do it. It seems he had to, next door."

"Did you ever see the owner?" he asked.

"No, I don't even know his name. The agent said he wouldn't."

"I think he will," said the young man.

"Mr. Royal! But how do you know?"

"Well, you see, I work for him in the silk factory."

"Does he own that, too? Well, he's worse than a skinflint!"

"No, he's a decent fellow, if he is a millionaire. It's the agent who's to blame."

The speedy way in which the cottage was overhauled, and everything done just as Florence and her mother wished convinced them that young Mr. Royal must have some "pull."

The love route is sometimes subject to fluctuations, but this one seemed to progress steadily. One day he put the important question:

"I'm getting only twenty-five a week now, but I'm promised a raise. Would you be willing to live on that?" he asked.

"I've got to think of mother," she answered. "If you'd let me go on with my typewriting—"

"No, no," he demurred. "I want to be mothered a little, and I want to take care of you both. I don't want you to work in an office."

"I must say for a poor man, you have some foolish pride," she pouted. Then the next minute: "I don't care if it's only twenty, we'll manage."

When Mr. Royal again found his voice he announced that he would bring his father to call.

The old gentleman scrutinized his future daughter-in-law so searchingly she began to feel uncomfortable.

"Miss Bennett," he said, "I feel it is my duty to inform you that this young man has been telling you a perfect tissue of falsehoods."

"Father!" interposed the young man glancing at the surprised face of the girl going white with the shock of the revelation.

"It's true he is getting twenty-five a week, but as to a raise—"

"If that's all," she cried, "I don't care. We can live on it. If there's nothing against Mr. Royal's character—"

"'Mr. Royal,'" sniffed the old man. "You rascal! you didn't even give your right name."

"What?" she gasped.

"Now, never mind, Miss Bennett: It was just a part of his quixotic game. He wanted to see if you really cared for him. You're the right sort. I shall be very proud to have you for a daughter. I tried out Jack to see what he was made of. Now, I'm going to make him superintendent."

"Superintendent!" she echoed incredulously.

"Yes, you see I'm the owner, and the old skinflint who owns the house. All I have will be the boy's. Just now I want him to take a vacation—for a honeymoon—and I want it to begin right away. Come here and kiss your father!"

Florence somewhat dazedly complied. Then she glanced at her mother who had taken the old gentleman's outstretched hand, and she knew her own had come to her.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially for Readers of The Republican by Rev. U. S. Wright, D. D.

SUNDAY, MARCH 13, 1927

Matthew 28:16-20; Acts 16:5-15

Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations.

THE IMPERIAL AUTHORITY.

That was a momentous gathering somewhere upon the hills of Galilee. It was the tryst to which the risen Christ had called His followers and He kept that word. Paul says that there were five hundred or more but it is possible that the count was not altogether by numbering. But there was a crowd drawn by obedience, by curiosity, by the word of others of what was to happen and they met Jesus. There were doubters among them evidently upon the fringe of the followers. Certainly it was not among those who had been intimately connected with events during that Easter week. Jesus never fails to meet those who wish to meet Him whatever the motive. He is always willing to keep tryst with men.

Then He took command of the situation with the assertion that all authority had been given unto Him in both Heaven and earth. Certainly somebody must be in command of this complicated machine we call the universe. No ship can find its way unguided nor can a train run without orders from some source. Jesus declared Himself the engineer for the most complex machine that has ever been known. And because He has power He has authority, for power creates both it and responsibility. Newell Dwight Hillis said, "God governs matter by force, animals by fear and man by fear or love. We may take Him at whatever level we choose." But He governs. And while love is His preferred method with men He still governs. It may seem that there should be a swifter pace but He must work thru human folks—very human folks. And like Alice in Wonderland playing croquet and finding the wickets moving where they pleased, God must play His game with human wickets moved many times by other things than the desire to please Him. Yet He rules and out of darkness the world moves toward the dawn.

THE IMPERIAL PROGRAM.

It would be very strange if our Lord had no program toward which He moved. His goal is the complete rule of the world by the spirit of love. His whole pressure was toward the setting up of the Kingdom in the hearts of those who were willing to have it come to pass. Very far are we yet from the rule of righteousness in all things but in just the fashion that wherever a citizen of the U. S. is there is a part of the government protected by its flag, so whether a real Christian is there is also the rule of God and a part of the Kingdom. The necessary succession to the expression of authority was a command linked with its power. "Go, make disciples of all nations," was the final word of the King. There is no consultation; no discussion is possible; it is the order of the King of all worlds. Whatever opinion we may hold concerning racial equality, of the advisability of missionary activity, of the possibitliy of social justice in all cases, there is but one thing for us to do and that is to obey our orders. If there is any mistake it is not ours but God's. And there is but one attitude if we refuse and that is the attitude of rebellion against the King. We are breakers of His command. We are challengers of His authority. Upon shipboard it is called mutiny and in the words of an old captain, "There can be but one commander on board this boat." And the next step is the making disciples, the bringing them to the open confession of allegience in baptism, the teaching them to observe "all that I have commanded you." Pretty teachers aren't we if we refuse obedience ourselves! The whole missionary Kingdom enterprise is bound up in our accepting the obligation of that first word, "Go ye." After that is the slow process of cultivation of the will and the instruction in the ways of the Kingdom.

THE IMPERIAL PRESENCE.

Notice the conjunction. Leaving out all intervening phrasing it reads, "Go and I am with you." No man goes alone upon God's errand. And no one stays in company of a going God. For He is on the march and if we would have His comradeship we must march with Him. No sitter-still no one whose heart does not travel to the far fields of conquest for our King can hope to have that imperial presence abiding beside his way and within his own soul. On that rare visit to the home land when David Livingston stood again upon the platform of Glasgow University and received distinguished honor at the hands of that [illegible] he honored in its acceptance came an impressive pat[illegible] stood the gaunt figure [illegible] one arm hanging limp f[illegible] the shoulder that had been crushed in a lion's jaws, bearing the marks of fever and travel and privation in every attitude. That throng of students looked up at him in reverence for the unflinching courage that had dared Africa's jungle deaths an hundred times. "Young men," he said, "would you like to know what sustained me during all the years of my wanderings? It was the consciousness of the fulfillment of that promise, 'Lo, I am with you alway'!" The Imperial presence is wherever the going Church or the going Christian may happen to be.

THE IMPERIAL METHOD.

We come to that strange journey of Paul in which he was so strangely guided across the stretches of Asia Minor to the sea and beyond into Europe. The Spirit of Jesus suffered them not to go—would not permit them to go into Bithynia, into Asia. Certainly, but how was the message couched? Paul had been sick and the low plains along the sea were full of his old malaria and he dared not at that season risk further attack upon his weakened body. It was the voice speaking thru the circumstances of sickness in which he heard the Spirit of Jesus speaking. Many a man has found a sick bed the door to God and the way of increased service. Then at Troas he found an explanation in the vision. It was here, too, that Dr. Luke called, it may be to minister to the sick man, perhaps urged him to visit Macedonia from which place he had just arrived. Jesus said, "The pure in heart shall see God." The heart with no selfish motive can see the face of God thru the veil of circumstance and can catch His speech in the din of the noise of the world. True it is that to the listening soul God will speak and to the seeker guidance will be given. "Can a man be sure in the hour of perplexity that he will be rightly led?" asked Boreham. "I am certain of it," cried his companion as he leaped from his chair, "if he will but give God time! Remember that as long as you live," he added. "Give God time!" And Paul was just as certain.

SAND RUN

(Delayed)

The P.-T. A. meeting was not very well attended last Friday night, due to the bad weather. We hope it will be better next time so every one can attend.

Several folks in this vicinity have opened their sugar camps and are quite busy making maple sugar and syrup.

Mrs. Dorsey Harvey and Mrs. Lee Ritchie were guests of Mrs. A. G. Cullers one day last week.

Misses Myrtle Ray and Marie Cullers attended the basket ball game in Bayard Saturday night.

D. M. Lower has opened the Biggs' sugar camp this year.

Paul and Willie Cullers were calling on friends in Bayard on Saturday night.

The following pupils of Sand Run school are on the honor roll for February: Dorothy Ritchie, Myrtle Lower, Marie Cullers, Elsie Deem, Florence Deem, Willie Cullers and Ruby Nine.

A penny could have saved him!

The man who owned this chick saved a penny. It would have cost him a penny more to have fed Purina Poultry Chows, and nine chances to one, Purina Poultry Chows would have saved the chick, but—the man thought he'd save a penny.

We want to see the man who likes to save his pennies. We can save him baby chicks—and dollars instead of pennies!

WAR ON CORN BORER WILL BEGIN IN WEEK

$10,000,000 Is Provided For Eradication Of Evil.

The world's largest experiment in ject control is now under under way. ongress appropriated $10,000,000 for rn-boer control a week ago, and within another week the legislatures in the five States involved will have enacted the necessary enabling legislation, it is expected, and the campaign will be on. By May 1 every one of the 350,000 farms in the area will have been inspected, and before June 1 the necessary clean-up work completed. The entire campaign will occupy less than three months.

When the cotton-boll weevil started on its relentless march northward and eastward from Texas and Louisiana a score of years ago no comprehensive plan was developed to check its progress. The San Jose scale, likewise, was permitted to spread throughout the country. Some success has been attained, it is true, confining the gypsy moth to the Massachusetts-New York-New Jersey area, and the advance of the Mexican pink boll Weevil was stopped a short distance this side of the Mexican border. But never before has the Government taken hold so vigorously and spent money so freely to fight an insect on such a large scale.

Cities Reason For Campaign.

The reason for this extraordinary effect against the corn borer just now is found first in the great spread westward noted in the last two years and, second, in the fact that the spread down the Ohio and Mississippi valleys would probabably be much faster once the infection reached the headwaters of these rivers.

It will be necessary to recruit a huge force to carry out the control project in three months in the twenty-three counties in Michigan, six in Indiana, forty-two in Ohio, fifteen in Northwestern Pennsylvania and five in Western New York. The leaders already have been chosen from the State and Federal extension forces. It will be the job of these men to train the county inspectors. Ten to twelve inspectors will be needed for each county, it is thought. In addition large numbers of workmen will have to be hired if it is found that any large proportion of farmers refuse or neglect to do their own clean-up work. In these cases inspectors will have authority to go into the fields with their own crews and machinery,do the necessary work and charge the costs back to the owner's taxes.

Each county will have a regulatory committee made up of five leading farmers. Each township also will have its regulatory committee composed of local farmers. The expectation is that these committees will shoulder most of the responsibility of getting each farmer to give his own lands the treatment specified to kill the borer.

Educational Work Planned.

A large share of the campaign will consist of educatonal work. Every kind of publicity medium will be used to call attention to the necessity of action on farms in the designated areas. Equally widespread will be the dissemination of information on what to do. In every local schoolhouse in the ninety-one counties, at least one meetnig will be held to explain just what farmers must do with their last year's corn fields. Three hundred sets of large charts have been made for circulation among these schoolhouse meetings. Posters circulars and newspaper articles will leave little opportunity for farmers in these counties to be ignorant of the fact that a vigorous and serious campaign is on or of knowledge as to just what the clean-up methods must include.

On May 1 comes the day of reckoning. The regulations provide that every farmer must have his clean-up work and corn land preparation work finished by that date. The inspectors will be watching for the laggards and the violators. In these cases the inspector will take their crews and equipment—some $3.000,00 worth of machinery is being purchased—enter upon the fields, destroy the old stalks and stubble in approved style and charge the cost back to the owner's tax bill. The respective State departments of agriculture are the source of this new authority.

Cooperating farmers who have gone to extra trouble to plow under or otherwise destroy last year's stalks and stubble will be rewarded by payments not to exceed $2 an acre. Nearly half the $10,000,000 will go for this purpose, it is estimated.

After the winged form of the borer begins to emerge—about May 25—further clean-up work is useless and the campaign ends.

Observation Period To Follow.

Then comes the observation period. A limited number of trained men will check up on the corn in contigous territory to see whether the methods used have been effective in stopping the spread of the borer.

Frankly this is an experiment. An unusually elaborate experiment, it is true. But no one knows whether this effort will really hold the borer in the present hounds. At least it will serve to cheek its advance and give our scientists more time to develop better eradication methods..

Ten million dollars seems like a lot of money to bet on a project of this kind. But it is not much to risk in an effort to protect our $2,000,000,000 corn crop now seriousy threatened.

Trade among Friends

NO matter what some folks say to the contrary, there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instance, makes more satisfactory sales than all the cleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not because its counters are arranged in a scientific way, but because the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful.

Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody can enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Mary B. Dolly vs. John E. Dolly.
No. 2718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vincoulo matrimonii by Mary B. Dolly from John E. Dolly, her husband.

The bill states that the parties were married on the 11th day of May, 1922, at Bayard, West Virginia, and lived together until July, 1925; and that although the conduct of the said Mary B. Dolly toward her husband, John E. Dolly, has always been kind, loving and affectionate, and her entire cor duct has always been above reproach, that the said John E. Dolly has committed the crime of adultery with certain lewd and abandoned women in and about the States of Maryland and West Virginia, and that the said Mary B. Dolly is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been for more than two years prior to the filing of this bill, but that the said John E. Dolly is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 4th day of February, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in equity, that the plaintiff, Mary B. Dolly, by inserting a copy of this order in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks on or before the 25th day of March, 1927, give notice to the said John E. Dolly of the object and substance of this suit, warning him to be and appear in this Court on or before the 11th day of April, 1927, either in person or by solicitor, and show cause, if any he has, why the decree prayed and the relief sought ought not to be granted.

Five Million Club Boys and Girls Have Done Much For Farm Life

In reviewing 4-H club work over the ten-year period, 1914-1924, following the passage of the Smith-Lever Act, it is clear that the 5,000,000 farm boys and girls who have been engaged in 4-H club work during this time have made a genuine and substantial contribution to the improvement of American farm life.

These boys and girls have not only enrolled for many different kinds of farm and home activities. A very large percentage of them have completed all phases of the project undertaken, and have accordingly received efficient training for later life, and been fitted to act as leaders to other boys and girls, and to take their places as progressive rural citizens.

The enrollment of girls has been somewhat larger than that of boys. In 1924 about 58 per cent of the total number of club members, or about 300,500, were girls. They were interested in such projects as clothing construction, food preservation and preparation, home management, gardening, poultry, dairy and home improvement work, both inside and outside. Almost 210,000 boys were enrolled in one or more club projects in 1924. This represented a considerable growth of membership over the previous year. The demonstration projects undertaken were limited only by the problems of the farm itself. Corn, potatoes, cotton and other crops, poultry, pigs, dairy and beef cattle and other livestock, were chosen by the greatest number of boys.

The money value of the club production of these boys and girls has been more than its cost, leaving a liberal margin for the club member's labor. Nevertheless, the educational influence of the work in establishing better farm and home practices is regarded as its main value.

After outlining in Miscellaneous Circular 80-M, the various club activities in detail, George E. Farrell, of the Office of Cooperative Extension work, points out that there are about 11,000,000 rural boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 18 in this country. Nearly 3,000,000 of these, chiefly between 14 and 18 years old, are not in school. This is an average of about 960 per county. These boys and girls are greatly in need of further preparation for life through public agencies. The 4-H club system is a most helpful agency for this service When it is sufficiently manned with trained leaders it can reach a great many in this large group of young people who are not in school, as well as a great many who are.

THIRD TERMS

Do the American people need to be protected from themselves by a congresional resolution declaring against a third term for any President? Such a resolution is occasionally presented to congress, the latest by Senator La-Follette.

Conceivably there might be a time when the nation might desire the services of a particular man as President for three terms. A President might show qualities that in the judgment of the voters particularly qualified him for some particular national emergency. Is there any reason why they should not be at liberty to choose him if a majority should be so inclined?

The President in America corresponds to the prime minisetr in Great Britain. In its long experience with cabinet government Britain never has felt called on to bar a man from further service at the head of the state because he already had served.

Gladstone was four times prime minister at intervals from the late sixties to the early nineties. There were plenty of Englishmen who opposed him, and who believed his government put British interests in jeopardy. But there was no opposition to him based on the fact that he had already served two terms as chief minister of the crown.

If the time should ever come when the liberties of the American people would be endangered by their electing a President for a third term, those liberties would hardly be worth saving. As for the La Follette resolution, however, it probably is to be explained as directed against President Cooledge, rather than against the third term principle in general.

First Wolf Killed

A large timber wolf was killed by Mr. A. N. Brown on his farm near Bayard Friday. Farmers in that section had been missing many sheep, and a trap was set, and the wolf caught and killed. It was brought to town and exhibited at the store of H. R. Fulk, where it attracted much attention, being the first wolf killed in this section for many years.

BITTINGER.

Bill bought a perfect rattle-trap,
A second-hand Ford,
The old boat sure could crack and snap,
The motor, how it roared.

Bill got quite completely T'd,
And drove her like "Sam Hill,"
Believing that from Hooche and speed
He'd get a perfect thrill.

But when the Hooche went to the spot,
Bill couldn't hold the car,
And so instead of thrills he got,
A most convincing jar.

Braving the March winds and cold, Madam Stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Brenneman last Saturday afternoon and presented Professor Oscar with a young son and the mischievous lads in his school will do well to be on their good behavior, lest the new daddy practice the spanking act, preparatory to the future development of his own son.

Herbert Buckle, of Gettysburg, spent the week-end with his home folks and friends here.

Asa N. Orndorf, with his wife and his wife's mother, motored to Meyersdale, Pa., last Saturday, on business.

Lloyd Hoover and a school mate, Master Klob, of the Accident High School, spent last Saturday and part of Sunday visiting here.

Professor C. M. Friend and family spent the week-end at their home near Friendsville.

Harvey Miller, who is employed at Big Pool, Md., visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Miller, at their home near here last week.

Frank Brenneman made a business trip to Somerset and other points in Pennsylvania last week.

Simon Brenneman spent last week with friends and relatives in Grantsville.

Unwritten Rules Govern Legislature.

except possibly a small portion of the people, who are never satisfied with the work of the General Assembly, no matter what course the lawmaking body may follow or what it may do. Ninety per cent of the people of the State are opposed to all radical changes in laws and customs prevailing, and their representatives at the State House are prepared to carry out their wishes. They realize that they are there in a representative capacity—that they are at Annapolis to carry out the popular will—and they can be depended on to do it, as their fathers have done before them.

Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the session up to the present time, is the complete absence of the old-time lobbyists—none of them are camped here, as they have been at all former meetings since the Civil War. It is true, there are a few of those who were called in the olden days "petty larceny lobbyists," but there seems to be little left for them to do of a profitable nature, and those who will admit that such is their business, complain that there is "nothing doing," and bewail the profitable sessions of the past. If there is any real work for the lobby, there is no sign of it, and the picturesque, and interesting characters of former generations, who dealt out champaign and terrapin, not to mention money and promises, appear to have gone forever. The usual corporation bills, are no more in evidence—the usual "prominent attorneys," who were here in days past are gone, "looking out for the interests of their clients," are conspicuously absent and while occasionally a lawyer of eminence appears on the scene, he satisfies himself by making an argument before a committee and then departs for Baltimore. And the "big games," which were part of former sessions are heard of no more. There is no appreciable drunkenness here now, and, possibly a member may occasionally take a drop or two more than is good for him, it is a rare exception to see anyone under the influence of any sort of liquor either at the State House or around the town. While a large proportion cannot be said to favor prohibition, there is no doubt but practically all are really temperate in their habits and whatever drinking is done, is moderate in its character, and none of the former scandals arising from drunkeness, are to be seen at the State House this winter.

Taking it altogether, the members of the present legislature are thoroughly representative of what is best and most respectable in the citizenship of the whole State, and Maryland will probably have no reason to feel ashamed of them, when the final adjournment takes place and the record is placed in the historic archives of the commonwealth.

GORTNER AND MT. LAKE JOIN BOWLING LEAGUE

Ladies Form Two Teams And Roll Fair Score For First Try.

Good sportsmanship was shown in the local bowling parlor last Thursday evening when the White Elephants, of Frostburg met and defeated the Oakland Collegians by a score of 3193 pins to 3136. Both teams found the centre of the alleys many times and made their first ball count three times very often.

The League bowlers rolled high scores throughout the entire week, and the final count finds the Methodists leading the league by five games.

All league games are played on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

The score by games for the different engagements during the last two nights of play follows.

Realities that spring from Plans

A GREAT building begins with an idea in the mind of the architect. It is developed in specifications on paper. Before the foundation is begun the plan shows every step necessary to complete the structure.

You can plan your financial future as the architect plans his work

By a systematic design for saving and investment you can look forward to the certainty of accumulating a comfortable fortune, even though your income is a moderate one.

The first step is a plan for saving small amounts regularly. An account with us enables you to make small deposits conveniently with the advantage of compound interest.

By deciding on a definite system of deposits you can tell in advance the exact amount of money that will accumulate in a stated period of time.

We shall be glad to give you definite figures showing how money increases at compound interest with small deposits of one dollar or more every week.

Congressman J. Chas. Linthicum will be pleased to forward a copy of the latest Agricultural Yearbook (1925 edition) to anyone who will write to him, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. As he represents a city district, he has few calls for this book.

Professor Russell Mills, pianist of the Regent Theatre at Pittsburgh, will play thru "Tell It to the Marines" featuring Lon Chaney in his greatest role, and the outstanding picture of the year, to be shown at The Maryland Theatre, Oakland, Md., Tuesday, March 15. Don't miss this treat.

Mr. Smith, who owns and operates a carnival, and who stored his equipment on the fair grounds last fall, is here having his equipment repared and repainted for the coming season, and will, if weather condtions permit in the early spring, open his shows for a week's run here before moving to another town.

Mr. Harry Loar has been engaged for the past several months as manager of the Loar Jewelry store in Grafton, West Va., while his brother, George Loar, has been on an extended trip to the south. Mr. Loar returns to his home on Second street usually every Saturday evening and spends Sunday with his brother and sister, Mr. Judson Loar and Miss Lottie Loar.

Great moments in Metro-Goldwyn's biggest picture of the year to be shown at Maryland Theatre, Oakland, Md., Tuesday, March 15, with Lon Chaney in his greatest role. The sergeant foils a desertion—The pretty nurse kidnapped—The prize fight at sea—The native Nautch Dancer starts trouble—The fleet in action—Bandits attack an American colony—Soldiers of the sea to the rescue—The battle at Hangchow Bridge and a thousand other thrills.

Mr. F. T. Fike, of near Selbysport, Md., was in Oakland Wednesday when he called at this office.

Mr. Paul Turney left Oakland Monday morning for Fairmont, W. Va., where he has secured employment.

Mr. Dave Walter, who has been confined to his home for the past two weeks with an attack of laryngitis, is now able to be out.

Mr. John McKone, cashier of the Tunnelton Bank, Tunnelton, W. Va., came to Oakland last week and purchased a Master four-door Buick Sedan from the Houck Auto Supply.

Mr. L. M. Falter, of Cascade, W. Va., was in Oakland last Friday, and while here purchased a Standard four-door Sedan from the Houck Auto Supply.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Yourison returned to their home in Pittsburgh, Pa., Monday after having spent a few days in Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. George Welling spent Sunday and Monday in Berkley Springs, West Va., where they attended the funeral of a relative. They returned to Oakland Tuesday.

Miss Anna Bolden, of Meyersdale, Pa., returned to her home in that city Monday after having been the guest of Miss Ella Helbig since last Friday.

Mr. Benj. H. Sincell, editor of The Republican, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is improved at this time, however his condition is such that he will be confined to his home for at least a week or two. Miss Beatrice Simmons, R. N., of the City Hospital, Martinsburg, West Va., is in attendance.

The second of the series of Union Lenten services, which are being conducted by the protestant churches of Oakland, was held last evening in the Lutheran church. Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the church, conducted the opening service while Dr. Archibald Moore, pastor of the M. E. church, preached and interesting and an appropriate Lenten sermon.

The church was well filled with earnest worshipers. Each week finds more and more of the folk grasping the opportunity of devotion, where they may worship the Christ upon whose passion and death we meditate during this savred season.

The Ladies Aid Society of the English Lutheran church at Accident will give a play on Tuesday, March 15, at 8 p. m. prompt in the Sunnyside Grange hall. Title of play is "Mrs. Jenkins' Brilliant Idea," with eight characters, accompanied by some instrumental music, singing, etc. This promises to be an evening which will be enjoyed by old and young.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Grantsville, Md., March 9.—By an act of Congress in 1920 it has been made possible for young men of this and all other communities of the state and nation to receive free of all expense, one month's training and recreation at one of the large U. S. army camps. The object of these training camps is to bring together annually for a month's training the best representative young American citizens from all sections of the nation; to give them the basis of military instruction, and that physical and moral development that will fit them to become influential leaders in their respective communities in times of peace, and leaders for national defense in time of war; to inculcate a stronger patriotism, and a wholesome respect for discipline and obedience to constitute authority; above all, to teach the young men of this generation their serious duties, responsibilities and obligatons to home and country. The requirements of each applicant are as follows:

1st. Between the ages of 17 and 24 years; 2nd: An American Citizen; 3d: Of good moral character; 4th: In sound physical condition.

A day's routine at camp is in order of the following:

7:30-11:30, drills, marches, field maneuvers; 11:30-1:00. dinner; 1:00-4:30, physical training, including swimming, wrestling, boxing, baseball, track events, tennis, etc.; 4:30-10:00, time devoted to rest, study and to individual recreation.

Garrett county's quota to this year's camp is ten. After that number has been accepted it is doubtful whether or not any additional applicants may attend. In 1926 Garrett county had six representatives, five others made application but failed to attend. The camp for this section is located at Camp Meade. not far from the Capital at Washington. To any young man interested, any of the following members of the Committee on enrollment will be glad to furnish an application blank or further information: Ralph R. Webster, chairman; A. C. Stanton, M. W. Whiteford, I. M. Staley, all of Grantsville; E. E. English, Friendsvile, Md.; W. H. Miller, Accident, Md.; E. C. Ryall, Kitzmiller, Md.; O. T. Gracer, Oakland, Md.

The club began its second year by electing the following persons as officers: President, Miss Telen Folk; vice president, Miss Dorothy Edward; secretary, Master Clyde Miller; program committee, Master Lee Roy Shumaker and Miss Mabel Younkin.

Attacked By Vicious Animal

Simon S. Miller, of near Springs, Pa., [illegible] very well known in this locality, had a narrow escape from death several weeks ago in his barn yard by being bumped over and rolled about in the mud by a borrowed Guernsey bull. He had the animal at his place for some time and he showed no signs of viciousness, but on this occasion he suddenly began to bow his neck and threaten to make a quick attack. Mr. Miller struck him over the head with a tin bucket hoping to frighten him away. However, he did attack and doubtles would have killed Mr. Miller, if it had not heen for Olen R. Bender, a son-in-law, who drove the animal away with a fork. At the time Mr. Miller supposed he was not hurt, but the following day he felt quite sore and hruised up from the encounter.

Calf Club Members Meet

The fathers and members of the High School Calf Club met at the school last week and decided to purchase Guernsey calves from Clyde & Davis, Guernsey breeders in Harford county. William Turner will hring the calves to Grantsville this week by motor truck. The members of the club are Clyde and Alvin Beachy, Henry Patton, William Turner, Jr., and Mildred Michael.

Social

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Loechel and daughter, Helen, entertained the members of the K. C. Class of the Lutheran Sunday School last Thursday evening with a taffy party. The members of the cast for the play "[illegible] for Hearts' Sake" [illegible] and spent the evening with various forms of entertainment. The play will be given in the W. O. W. Hall on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The True Blue Class of St. John's Refromed Sunday School held a very enjoyable and profitable five hundred party in the hall last Thursday evening. A large number of people from Salisbury and other out of town places attended.

Hot Lunches To Be Served at School

Arrangements have been made in the Grantsville school thru the Domestic Science Department of the high school, of which Miss Marian Price is instructor, to serve hot lunches to those pupils remaining at the school for their mid-day meal. The food and drinks served are provided at cost to the pupils. The principal, Prof. R. R. Webster, is to be commended upon this step forward in his school.

Thru proceeds of a play recently held and socials, one room of the high school was equipped with desk chairs of the latest approved type which were furnished by the Dulaney-Varney Company, of Baltimore, thus providing much needed equipment.

Entries are being made for the Boys' Declamation Contest to be held here early in April. The final county contest will be held in Oakland this year.

The percentage of attendance for the month of February in the high school was 92.3 and in the elementary schol 89. Those having a 100 per cent attendance record in the elementary school for February were Rozella Younkin, Eleanor Younkin, Betty Patton, Alma Bittinger, LaRue Bittinger, Paul Folk, Ralph Shumaker, Jacob Miller, David Paul, Elwood Klotz, Fern Baker, Evelyn Beachy, Mary Bevans, Pauline Hendershot, Mildred Paul, Helen Swaugger, Walter Younkin, Robert Younkin, Allen Rodamer, Glenn Miller, Blaine Bittinger, James Boeher, Clayton Edwards, Joseph Paul, Junior Shearer, Junior Suder, Earl Younkin, Rhoda Shumaker, Mary Miller, Edith Bittinger.

Parent-Teacher Association Hold Meeting

In the Parent-Teacher Association meeting recently held at the Turner school, the teacher, Miss Reginia Loraditch, presided; Mrs. Clyde Newman compared the duties of a teacher with those of a mother; Miss Miller spoke on the value of nature study; Miss Loraditch explained the compulsory schoool law and cited its advantages, which was followed by an open discussion on ways and means to beautify the school grounds; following this was the social hour with refreshments. The honor roll pupils of the school for February are Laura and Sara Turner, Virginia and Ora Warne, Bernice Beachy, Byard and Albert Newman.

Railroad Spur Being Built

The preliminary survey for the railroad spur from the Castleman valley up Shade Run, west of Grantsville, was started on Monday morning. This work was planned for several weeks ago, but was delayed because of the heavy snow. This spur will be about 2½ miles long and will tap the mines of the Myers Coal Co. of which Mr. C. A. Bender is president, the Yoder mine now owned by Hugh Carey McMahn and the mines of the Shade Run Coal Co. with openings on the farm formerly owned by Jacob J. Folk near the Pennsylvania State Line.

The Mutual Telephone Company has enjoyed a healthy growth of business since installing its central office in Grantsville. An extension has just been added to the switchboard and is being rapidly filled, because of the large number of private lines being used in the town and the demand from groups of business men outside of the town for strict business lines, thus avoiding the objectionable listening in which has been all too prevalent on country telephone systems.

Asks Support of Library Project

Dr. James Nydegger, a former resident of Oakland, and now a doctor in the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, has made a most generous offer to Garrett county, having offered to erect a memorial in Oakland to the memory of his parents who were residents of Garrett county, in the form of a fifty thousand dollar library building, sufficiently large to house five thousand volumes and supply a rural book service thruout the county by the use of a book car. Last week Mrs. E. Z. Tower and Mrs. Elwood Offutt, of Oakland, were in town presenting the proposition to the residents of the vicinity and on Monday evening a mass meeting was held in the school. Mrs. Wilda Fahey presided and presented the proposition, while Prof. R. R. Webster spoke on the great advantages to be gained for the school by having a sufficient quantity of reference on hand and a sure source from which to draw them. A petition is being circulated asking that the legislature pass an act authorizing the county authorities to appropriate the sum of three thousand dollars per year for the carrying on of the work of competent librarian and book distributi n thru the county.

Death of Mrs. Rachel Platter

Rachel Platter, widow of the late Henry Platter, Sr., died at her home in Jennings on Monday morning, age 80 years. The funeral is being conducted today at Jennings with interment in the Bittinger cemetery. Mrs. Platter is survived by five sons, Thomas, Jacob, Henry, Charles and Silas, and three daughters, Mrs. Lydia Bittinger, Mrs. Rachel Wilt and Mrs. Elizabeth Wilt.

Death of Samuel P. Lohr

Word has also been received of the death of Samuel P. Lohr, of Springs, Pa. Mr. Lohr was a former resident of Garrett county. Obituary will be published next week.

The community was startled by the very sudden and unexpected death of Mrs. Delbert Durst. At this writing details are unavailable. The obituary will be published next week.

Might Work Injustice on Deserving Ghosts

This is a callous and unbelieving age. A little correspondence in a contemporary on Christian ghosts has produced an assurance that it is perfectly easy to distinguish between a genuine ghost and a mere hallucination.

All you have to do is to squint at the apparition; if the poor ghost is really there "the distortion of the line of sight will cause it to be seen double." But if the apparition remains unaltered after this treatment it is proof that it is really an hallucination from within and not something which exists outside the percipient.

This habit of pulling ugly faces at what may be perfectly good ghosts, hardworking and deserving in every sense of the words, will be deprecated by all courteous and right-thinking humans, the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian comments. Moreover, the choice between a double ghost and a single one does not exhaust the possibilities from this harsh test. The apparition may give an eldritch shriek and vanish clean away. And what will that prove? Simply that the experimenter has squinted so vilely at the visitor that he has frightened the poor thing out of its wits.

Cold Weather Due to Dust in Atmosphere?

Seeing that volcanoes fling out molten lava and burn up everything near them, it may seem a queer contradiction to suggest that they can cause cold weather, but the explanation is this—volcanoes throw up vast masses of fine dust which floats in the upper atmosphere.

Dust cuts off an amazing amount of the sun's heat, and it has always been noticed that after any really big eruption or series of eruptions there is a period of cold, dull weather. In Humphrey's book, "Physics of the Air," a table of these is given, beginning with the frightful outbreak of Asama, in Japan, in 1783, and ending with the eruptions of Tomboro in 1812. There were three cold years after the first eruption and four after the second.

Some experts declare that the great Ice ages through which our planet has passed may have been caused by eruptions on a huge scale which cut off the life-giving rays of the sun and reduced the temperature of the whole earth.

So Silly

"Darling," he asked, as he drew her closer to him, "am I the only man you have ever kissed?"

"William," she replied, somewhat testily, "before we go any farther I should like to ask you a few questions. You are aware that my father is a millionaire, aren't you?"

"Y-yes."

"You understand, no doubt, that when he dies the whole of his fortune will be left to me?"

"Y-yes."

"You know that I also own nearly half a million dollars' worth of property?"

"Y-yes."

"Then, for goodness' sake, talk sense! What difference would it make if I had been kissed by a thousand men before I met you?"

Scotsman's Way

Doctor Hsieh (by the way, his name is pronounced "Tee-yee Shee") learned our language at Oxford, where his instructor was a Scotchman who insisted that the young student stick to words of one syllable in speaking English. He taught Doctor Hsieh that it was ridiculous to use big words when a small one would do just as well.

"For instance," explained the Chinese visitor, "he told me not to use the word 'preserve' (here a delicious Scotch burr crept into his speech, and the audience howled) but to use shorter synonyms, such as 'keep' or 'can.' So for a long time I found myself going around innocently saying, 'Heaven can us!'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Caesar's Personality

Historians say that Julius Caesar was tall and of commanding presence. His features were angular and prominent. He had a fair complexion, with keen, expressive black eyes. In later years he was bald; at no time of his life did he wear a beard. Though endowed with a constitution naturally by no means robust, he became inured to hardship and exhibited astonishing powers of endurance. In matters of dress, he was particular to the verge of effeminacy.

Here is a Bad One

The American goshawk is the fiercest, most destructive and most daring of all the hawks, says Nature Magazine. Because its breeding range is far north and it is fewer in number than the Cooper, the aggregate damage to poultry is less; though grouse and other game birds suffer greatly, mammals and insects are also taken. Because of the coloring, the depredations of the young birds are often laid to the harmless redtail.

Showing Off

It was a children's Christmas party and tea having been consumed each child was asked to sing or give a recitation. All went well until it came to Tommy Jones' turn.

"Come along, Tommy, we would like to hear you sing."

"I won't sing for you, for I have other kid in the room," was the spirtling reply.

Never was the supremacy of Fisher craftsmanship so evident as in the new Fisher bodies on the Most Beautiful Chevrolet. Paneled, beaded and finished in striking tones of Duco—graced by distinctive, new, full-crown, one-piece fenders and bullet-type lamps, they represent an order of style, beauty and luxury unique in the low price field.

Chevrolet has long been famous for powerful, smooth performance, rugged dependability, long life and economical operation. Yet, in the Most Beautiful Chevrolet these qualities have been enhanced as the result of numerous mechanical improvements. AC oil filter, AC air cleaner, improved transmission, larger radiator, sturdier frame, new tire carrier and gasoline gauge—these are typical of the highly modern design which is winning the world to the Most Beautiful Chevrolet.

Because it provides elements of style, quality and performance comparable to the costliest cars, and because it is offered at amazingly reduced prices—the Most Beautiful Chevrolet is everywhere acclaimed as the greatest sensation of America's greatest industry.

Come in! See and drive this greatest triumph of the world's largest builder of gearshift automobiles. Learn for yourself what amazing value is offered in the Most Beautiful Chevrolet—how closely, in style, quality and performance, it compares with the costliest cars.

TORCH LIGHT AND BARBECUE TO BE HELD BY K. of P's FRIDAY NIGHT

Owing to the illness of some of the characters taking part in the High School Operetta which was to have been given at the Castle Hall last Friday night, the play could not be given but the High School rendered a program consisting of many musical numbers and readings. Prolonged applause attended each musical interpretation. Particular mention should be made of the faultless rendition of the duet by Erval Ream and John Forman, accompanied on the piano by Miss Ruth Conley. That smiling, gesticulating, blushing sextette composed of blushing damsels of the local institution of learning, made one imagine they could see the bluebirds in flight, so vividly did they portray bluebird activities. Each reading was enjoyed as was the solo by Miss Conley. The two black-face laugh makers proved to be quite skilled in the art of negro impersonation. Tommie Graser should organize a minstrel troupe for so well did his proteges acquit themselves that it came near being Graser night. Garrett Lodge is cognizant of the fact that Oakland High School can be counted on as a staunch ally. It is our sincere wish that a mutual understanding may exist between Prof. F. E. Ruthbun and his efficient staff of educators and our local institution of fraternity.

Generally speaking, members of Garrett Lodge are a sober minded, level headed, deep-thinking, law abiding aggregation, but we are going to depart from the more serious things of life just for one night and give vent to our sportive instincts and be young again and gay. We are going to enter the playground of the order and make merry Friday night. Capt. A. G. Gortner, the popular leader of the team known as the "Bulls" has arranged for a stirring demonstration by that team and all members of the "Bears" are expected and invited to take part. In the first place we want to impress firmly upon your minds that you must be at Castle Hall before seven o'clock, Friday evening so the parade can start promptly at seven. Each member of the order regardless of his team must be in the parade and carry a torch. This parade will make the people of Oakland sit up and take notice. We want to urge the kiddies to see this mammoth parade and there will be a queer looking animal at the head of of the procession from Keyser and Friendsville who will march with us in the parade and latter join with us in the big feast at Castle Hall.

Immediately after the parade there will be a short session of lodge and then the fun begins.

Col. James Bell and his corp of expert assistants will put on such a minstrel as you never or perhaps never will see. They have been rehearsing faithfully for some time and are prepared to give us two solid hours of vaudeville performance fit for a king. The Charleston, clog-dance and other types of dancing too numerous to mention will be given. The personality of Jim Bell alone would make anyone laugh for he is a born clown and a prince when it comes to entertaining. Knights! this is going to be a real minstrel with an all-star cast. The names of the various characters will not be divulged but you might make a guess as to who they are after the performance. If you cannot laugh do not come to this show. Jim makes special announcement to the effect that he has secured the services of Zaza, prominently known as the Queen of Oriental Dancers who will be present. If Col. Bell and his fun makers cannot make you laugh you are a chronic grouch or a Johnny Bull who cannot see a joke.

After the minstrel will be a regular old fashioned barbecue. A tender porker will be roasted so brown that you will smack your lips for a week afterward for it will taste like more. All the trimmings that go with a pig roast will be served so do not eat too much supper else you will not have room for your share of the feast. We want to make this first pig roast a success and you have to give our brother Knights from Keyser and Friendsville a royal time and show them what a team of "Bulls" can do. Garrett Lodge has been having such treats every Friday night since the New Year was ushered in, but this affair is goin to eclipse any that has been held. We regret that we cannot share the evenings merriment with the public but the management has decreed that it shall be strictly a Stag affair, and their mandates must be obeyed.

Don't forget to be at Castle Hall before seven o'clock Friday night, March 11, and get your torch and join in the big demonstration and try to keep in step to the music for there will be two bands who will lead us in our triumphant march to the tune of Pig, Pig, Pig, We Must Have Pig. We will then proceed to enjoy Bell's Minstrels and then Oh, Boy, how we will eat, drink and be merry.

Let us see every Knight in line and make this the biggest demonstration.

DEER PARK.

Miss Thelma Harvey, of Cumberland, spent the week-end at her home here.

Born unto Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth George one day last week, a girl.

Walter Dawson and Scott Shirer, of Oakland, were in our community Sunday afternoon.

Misses Lola King and Mary Jankey spent Saturday in Oakland where they attended a meeting of the 4-H club leaders.

Mr Spencer Hardesty is still very ill.

The Adult Bible Class will hold a pie and cake sale on Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Mr. Clarence Murphy, our station agent, is visiting in Florida.

Mr. John Fitzwater and son are ill here at the home of the former's mother.

Mr. C. H. Browning, of Fairmont, spent last week at his home.

An attempt is being made to organize a Boy Scout troop. It will depend upon the men and women of Deer Park whether they are public-spirited enough and willing to give of their time and talents. It is a worthwhile task.

For who builds in boys builds in Truth,
And "vanished hands" are multiplied in power,
And sounds of living voices, hour by hour,
Speak forth His message with the lips of youth.

Here is the House of Hope, whose doors are Love,
To shape young souls in images of right,
To train frail wings straight upward toward the Light,
Such work as this God measures from above.

Granite may crumble, wind and wave destroy;
Urn, shaft, or word may perish or decay,
But this shall last forever and a day
A living monument—a BOY.

TODAY'S FORD CAR

Before you buy any make of automobile, let us show you TODAY'S FORD CAR.

You may consider that you know the Ford Car. You may have been a Ford owner for years and think you are familiar with the splendid satisfaction which the Ford gives, and yet unless you have made it a point to examine the Ford Car as it is BUILT TODAY—to drive it and note its improved engine performance—relax in it over rough roads, and experience the increased comfort which it affords, and to learn of the many recent improvements, you do not know the Ford Car as it is built today.

Many of the new Ford Car features are obvious—balloon tire equipment—wire wheels—pyroxylin finish—a choice of colors—improved upholstery, etc., but the big satisfaction to you, as the owner of TODAY'S FORD CAR is to be found in the way in which it will fulfill your expectations of what a modern motor car should be. You will be amazed at the increased power resulting from the new Vaporizor, the smoother engine operation, the increased gasoline mileage, the improved riding qualities, and above all, in the way in which this car handles and performs in traffic and on the open road.

In short, you must drive a new Ford Car to be a fair judge of present day motor car values.

We invite your inspection of TODAY'S FORD CARS.

SHERIFF AND AGENT RAID IN BITTINGER SECTION

One Is Held For Unlawful Possession, Operators Escape —Other Bittinger News

Ever since the passage of the prohibition amendment, which made the illicit manufacture and sale of intoxicating lipuors a temptingly profitable adventure, some of the dwellers in the hill country, near this village, have been carrying on that sort of business.

Always the winter months have been the season of their greatest activities. Many squalid mountain homes are said to have been converted into small distilleries and all through the winter lipuor has been fermented and distilled around and upon the kitchen stoves.

This nefarious product, conceived in the brain of the ignorant and vicious, concocted in the very cess pools of filth, and handled by hands that are never clean, finds its way by the Bootleg channel, to the outside world, to debauch, and degrade, and kill.

At scattered intervals, prohibition enforcement officers have visited these isolated sections, raiding with sometimes one and sometimes another measure of success. A few violaters have been apprehended, but many have escaped and those who were brought before the courts paid a small and inconsequential penalty and returned at once to the old practice, always on a larger scale.

We have a report that on last Friday afternoon, Sheriff Casteel, Deputy Griffith, Constable Joe Callis and a party of federal officers, visited the Bear Hill settlement and within a half hour of their arrival in that territory, there was not a man to be found within miles. The guilty were filled with fear, a fear which lent speed to their feet and they scurried away, running, leaping, bounding, tumbling, rolling and scrambling in very direction, anywhere to find cover. The officers are said to have ordered a halt and fired several shots, but the impetuous was too great and none were captured. A very large distilling apparatus was discovered on the Nelson Wilt premises, and was forthwith destroyed. Later in the afternoon an investigation of the premises of a Mr. Billmeyer, in Jennings, was made and 135 gallons of moon-shine whiskey was discovered hidden in his coal house, and the arrest of the proprietor followed.

Another raid conducted near Jennings netted the Agents a 100 gallon still, but the operators escaped on horseback. However, it is believed arrests will follow in the near future.

Personals

The fine, warm weather prevailing during the past week has occasioned a halt in actives in the local sugar camps, as conditions are not right for the production of sugar yielding sap, but the average citizen, wearied by the long gloomy winter months, is delighted to feel the warmth of the sun and hear the merry songs of the birds.

Mrs. Ed. Railey returned to her home near here last Saturday afternoon, after spending a few days with her son, Thomas, at his home near New Germany.

Miss Ruth Brenneman, of Meadow Mountain, visited her sisters here, recently.

Miss Ida Brenneman and a classmate from the Frostburg State Normal school, visited relatives in this village last Saturday and Sunday.

Herbert Buckle returned early last week to Gettysburg, where he will continue his studies.

Mr. Workman, of Frostburg, was in this section last week buying some young cattle.

Mrs. David Miller is spending this week with her daughters, Mesdames Agnes and Sarah Brenneman, at their homes here.

Messrs. W. E. Buckle, Earl Stark and Arthur Detrick motored over to Jenners, Pa., last week and are now employed in a coal mine at that place.

Miss Blanche Speicher, of Accident, was a guest of her sister, Mrs. George Stark, of this village, recently.

George Kurtz, of Addison, Pa., was a business visitor to this section last Saturday.

Miss Leonora Wiley motored to Grantsville last Saturday morning on business.

Prof. C. M. Friend and family spent the week-end with relatives near Friendsville.

The public roads in this section have dried off nicely and supervisors should get busy with their scrapers and drags.

MARYLAND DAY TO BE OBSERVED SUNDAY; 27TH

Dr. Thomas W. Koon, Cumberland Will Address Audience At Maryland Theatre

A program appropriate to Maryland Day is being completed by a committee from the local post, American Legion, and ineludes an addres to be made at the Maryland Theatre on Sunday afternoon, March 27, by Dr. Thomas W. Koon, Mayor of Cumberland, and well known by a number of citizens of Garrett county.

Maryland Day falls on Friday, March 25, but will be celebrated this year on Sunday by the program prepared by the Legion membership.

Besides Mayor Koon's address, several instrumental and vocal numbers will be included in the program, which will be free to the public. There will be no admission charges and no offering will he taken, but any expenses that might be incurred will be paid by the organization in charge of the affair.

The public is most cordially invited to attend the celebration on Sunday, which will commence at 2:30 o'clock, and which promises to be of interest to all who attend.

Legion Post To Hold Dance To-Night.

St. Patrick's day will be celebrated by a dance to be given this evening at the Grand Skating rink by Proctor Kildow Post American Legion. The affair will commence at 9 o'clock.

The dance will be conducted on the "park plan" and the general admission will be 25 cents.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Oakland Orchestra, which has been meeting with the approval of the local dancers.

Wm. Beachy, Grantsville, Sails For Hawaii.

New York, March 8th, William S. Beachy, son of Mrs. Ward Beachy, residing at Grantsville, Md., who recently enlisted in the Regular Army, sailed today from the Brooklyn Army base with 900 soldiers on the United States Army Transport Chateau Thierry for Hawaii.

The trip will include a cruise along the Atlantic coast to Colon, the port of Panama. Beachy will then sail through the Panama Canal, the greatest engineering feat in history, up the Pacific coast, and through the world-renowned "Golden Gate" to San Francisco. A week's voyage across the two thousand miles of the placid water of the Pacific will then bring him to his port of debarkation at Honolulu.

Beachy, who selected the infantry branch of the Regular Army for service, will be assigned by Major General Edward M. Lewis, commanding the Hawaiian Department to one of the regiments stationed in Hawaii.

Before sailing today Beachy was a member of the garrison at Fort Slocum, N. Y., an historical army post on Long Island Sound, where he received training as a soldier under the supervision of Colonel J. J. Bradley, the post commander.

Maryland Tuberculosis Association Clinic.

A clinic for diseases of the chest will be conducted in the Court House, Oakland, on Wednesday, March 23rd, at 10:00 a. m. Individuals complaining of any of the following: cough, expectoration of blood (spitting), tired feeling, loss of weight and appetite, indigestion, hoarseness, etc., should see their family physician and obtain permission to attend clinic at the place announced above.

Dress Form Demonstration

Mrs. Helen McKinley, State Clothing Specialist, will be in Garrett county March 28th and 29th for the purpose of demonstrating the making of The Dress Form.

On Monday afternoon, March 28th, at 2:00 p. m., Mrs. McKinley will give a dress form demonstration in the office of the Home Demonstration Agent, Court House. Everyone interested in seeing a dress form made is cordially invited to attend this meeting. The clothing leaders from the following clubs are especially urged to attend: Oakland, Loch Lynn, Hutton, Sunnyside and Pleasant Valley.

On Tuesday, March 29th, an all day meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. U. Stanton, Grantsville. A dress form will be made in both the morning and afternoon. Club members from the Accident, Friendsville and Grantsville Clubs are invited to attend this meeting. It is hoped that the Clothing Leaders from the above clubs will be present at this meeting.

DEFECT FOUND IN TITLE GIVEN ELECTRIC COMPANY

Sale Was Not Made In Accordance With Provision Under Bond Issue

A defect has recently been discovered in a title given the Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company by the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland for the sale of electric lighting equipment and franchise of the town which was made in August, 1922, and an act of the Legislature would be necessary to perfect the title.

At a meeting of the Council held Monday night, it was unanimously decided by that body not to recommend passage of a bill which was presented to Senator A. D. Naylor by the president of the West Penn System, for his approval and introduction in the Maryland Legislature, and to defer action in the matter until the meeting of the next Legislature in 1929.

The defect in the title which was given the West Penn Company was discovered when the records of a similar case, which was disposed of by the Court of Appeals, were scanned by a local attorney and the attention of his findings made known to the town officials. The case in question arose out of an attemnted sale by the Municipality of Snow Hill, and the records of that case disclose that a sale similar to that made by the Council of Oakland, to the West Penn Company, was made by the town of Snow Hill. In this case the Court of Appeals set aside the sale, declaring it defective and stating that it could not be made without an act of the Legislature. The contention which arises in the matter now of interest is that the present Town Council feels that a hasty sale of the property and franchise in question was made to the West Penn Company and that the citizens of the town were not permitted a voice in the matter of the disposal of the property, thereby making the sale unconstitutional and unfair to the citizens of the town.

The present Council feels that the title given the West Penn Company is null and void because of the fact that a bond issue was made by the citizens of Oakland for a specific purpose and that by the bond issue the electrical equipment bought at that time was the property of the citizens and to sell the same, it was stated, in a contract with the purchaser that a vote of the citizens must be taken in order to make a sale of the property and franchise valid.

The West Penn Company was represented in this matter before the Council by Attorney William R. Offutt.

MAP OF MARYLAND FORESTS PREPARED

A composite map of Maryland showing the density of the forest areas has been compiled by the Forestry Department for use in the department's educational work, Karl E. Pfeiffer, Assistant State Forester, said recently. The map is believed to be the only one of its kind in the country.

Until recently the Forestry Department had maps of the counties of the State showing the forest areas and their density. F. W. Besley, State Forester, had the different county maps arranged and lithographed into a single map through the Maryland Geological Survey.

Scale Is Eighty Miles To Inch.

Drawn to the scale of eighty miles to an inch, the composite map shows the eleven lookout towers in the State and State forests, as well as railroad lines and towns and cities of importance.

Mr. Pfeiffer said that the maps would be distributed to schools thruout the State in order to acquaint pupils with the location of the forests in Maryland. Members of the General Assembly also have been given copies of the maps. Individuals will be able to obtain copies on request.

Acreage Table Included.

A table giving the forest acreage of each county appears on the maps. The figures, based on a survey made last year, show that Garrett county heads the others with 271,483 acres of mixed hardwood and pine.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION WAS HELD MONDAY

Messrs. Whorton, Aronhalt and Davis Were Successful Candidates

Samuel Aronhalt was retained and William Whorton and Delbert Davis were elected as Councilmen in the Municipal Election held on Monday. Miss Frances Hamill, who had no opposition in the contest, was re-elected as Treasurer for the town.

Mr. Whorton received the largest number of votes of any of the candidates for the council, and it is said that his service to the town in the line of road and street building, and any concrete work that might be done will be invaluable, as Mr. Whorton is a successful contractor and a practical workman in concrete.

Mr. Aronhalt has been a popular Councilman and has been re-elected in this official capacity upon a number of occasions.

The election on Monday marks the first step of Mr. Davis into the political world, and as the ticket, which was in the field on Monday, was really a citizen's ticket and not a political one, it might be said that he has yet his initial political step to take, and that his induction into this officail that his induction into this official his genial manner and accepted business qualifications which have made him successful in his several business undertakings in the county. Mr. Davis was cashier of the First National Bank at Gormania a few years ago, since which time he has been engaged in the banking business as Teller in the First National Bank in Oakland.

The result of the election is as follows: Samuel Aronhalt, 244; Delbert Davis, 225; Harold E. Rook, 169; Edward A. Shaffer, 213; Lloyd C. Shaffer, 213; J. William Whorton, 302. For Treasurer, Miss Frances Hamill, 351. A total of 472 votes were cast.

The retiring members of the Council are Arthur Lawton and Edward A. Shaffer, and the members of the Council now are Dr. W. W. Grant, Mrs. E. Z. Tower, Grover C. Stemple, J. William Whorton, Samuel Aronhalt and Delbert Davis.

ARMY STAFF FRAMES LAW TO DRAFT WOMEN

Compulsory Service Of Nation's Feminine Quota In Next Conflict Promised

The General Staff of the War Department is now making a careful study of the ways in which women can be used in time of war.

When this study is completed it is possible the United States will follow the example of France in passing laws making women over twenty-one liable to conscription.

Miss Anna Phipps, placed by the War Department in charge of relations with women's organizations, made the preliminary study of women's work in time of war. She says 100,000 women took active part in the World War.

"It would seem France has established the principle of equal responsibility and privilege for men and women in defending their country," she said. "In the United States the general staff is now making a study, although legislation will not be introduced until the general staff and the Secretary of War are satisfied with the plan."

The plan contemplates registration of all women over twenty-one in time of war, with a questionnaire as to what type of work the woman has done, what she would be best fitted to do and what her preferences would be.

A very definite part of the plan which the War Department is studying is to give women military rank when they are definitely working under military orders and doing wartime duty. A woman doctor at the front would be recognized with the rank of Lieutenant, Captain or Major, or whatever she would be entitled to if she were a man.

MARYLAND ROADS TO BE RESURFACED EARLY

Work To Be Started April 1, Should Eliminate Inconvenience During Heavy Traffic

One-third of the macadam roads of Maryland will be oiled and resurfaced by July 1, it was announeed yesterday by John N. Mackall, chairman of the State Roads Commission. Weather conditions permitting, the work will begin April 1.

An early beginning will be made because re-surfacing done in the cool spring has been found to be more durable than that completed in the heat of summer. Since automobile traffic reaches its height in the middle of the summer, much inconvenience will be saved the vacationist by early surfacing.

Mr. Mackall put the cost at approximately $134,000.

Oakland Collegians Close Season

The final game of the season, between the Collegians and the Lafayette Club of Cumberland, resulted in the first defeat for the Collegians on their home floor. Altho on the tail-end of a 34-30 score, the Collegians deserve plenty of credit for a hard fought, well played game and with another minute or two of play Cumberland would have had plenty of cause for anxiety.

The Lafayettes were greatly strengthened by the addition of the former Oakland star, Henry "Turk" McComas, who managed to tally 24 of the winners 34 points, dropping the ball thru from nearly any angle. "Turk's" work was aided by Wolf and Wilkinson, who in addition to scoring the remaining 10 points never failed in their team work.

For awhile something seemed lacking with the Collegians, an inability to get started. Pudge Parsons and Graydon Lewis shared honors for the locals—the latter in the last few minutes of play—scored three beautiful field goals from beyond mid-floor that made things look rather bad for the Lafayettes for a while.

BRAWL SATURDAY NIGHT TO BE CARRIED TO COURT

Defendant Appeals Case Which Is Outgrowth Of Long Standing Contention

An appeal was taken in the case of Mrs. Rosie Glass vs. Mrs. Frank Westlake, when Magistrate E. I. West handed down his decision in the case finding Mrs. Westlake guilty of simple assault, and fining her $5 and costs.

The case, which was heard by Justice West on Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, was the outgrowth of a street brawl staged by the two previously mentioned women in front of "The Recreation," a pool room and bowling alley on Second street, between Alder and Green streets, on Saturday night about 8:45 o'clock, and resulted in Mrs. Glass receiving a hair pulling and an alleged bruised eye, which, however, cleared up before the hearing on Monday.

The contention which led to the fight on Saturday night is of long standing, and, it is said, was caused by the "alleniation of affections" of Mrs. Westlake's husband by Mrs. Glass, whom Mrs. Westlake charges with having enticed her husband to her home on the outskirts of Oakland and other places about the town upon a great number of times, and upon three occasions to Ridgeley, W. Va., where Mrs. Glass and her hushand, Robert Glass, were living for awhile several months ago.

Quite a bit of "soiled linen" was aired at the hearing before the Magistrate, and the case attracted the attention of a crowded court room.

It was hinted by the defendant's counsel that charges of perjury would be entered against Mrs. Glass, when she answered a number of questions concerning her relationship with Westlake in the negative. The counsel for the defense stated that is was impossible for him at that time to have witnesses present who would testify that Westlake had been seen upon a number of occasions recently in company of Mrs. Glass. He also stated that he would produce witnesses who would prove a number of accusations which he made at the hearing and which were denied by the plaintiff on Monday.

"Your Honor, I came down town Saturday night to administer a good beating to Mrs. Glass, and I ask you to give me at least 60 days for not having been successful in my intention," stated Mrs. Westlake at the hearing. Continuing, Mrs. Westlake said, "I have tried for three years to keep this woman, meaning Mrs. Glass, from my husband, and was illadvised by some friends to the effect that I could not present my case to the courts for proper disposal, and for this reason I committed the assault with which I am charged, and of which charge I am guilty. I do not ask the lenience of the Court, but I do promise that Mrs. Glass will wear a "wooden Kimona" in the near future." After this threat Mrs. Westlake was put under a peace bond by the Magistrate.

Westlake, the husband of the defendant in this case, has been beaten upon two or more occasions by Glass for having been in company with his wife. Twice has Westlake been nnder the care of a physician suffering from wounds inflicted by Glass and relatives of his wife, for having been in Glass' home with Mrs. Glass when Glass, returning unexpectedly, found him there. At one time it was thought that Westlake would not recover from a beating that he had received at the hands of Glass and his wife's relatives, for he suffered a punctured lung at that time, and pneumonia developed, which kept him bedfast for more than a month.

State's Attorney Renninger and William R. Offutt represented Mrs. Glass, while Ernest Ray Jones was counsel for the defendant.

Governor Ritchie Paroles Garrett County Man

Governor Ritchie announced on Tuesday the granting of nine paroles, recommended by Parole Commissioner Parrish, to become effective March 22, "unless sufficient reasons are shown to the contrary before that time." The Governors list includes Fred Green, who lived in Garrett county, a few miles west of Lonaconing, and who was sentenced to the Maryland Penitentiary for two years on December 18th, 1925, for having committed an assault with intent to kill a man by the name of John Wiland, 61 years of age at that time.

Objects of Aversion Hard to Understand

Even fruit and flowers have affected people curiously. The secretary of Francis I used to stop his nostrils with bread if he saw a dish of apples to prevent an otherwise inevitable bleeding at the nose. A king of Poland had an antipathy both to the smell and sight of this wholesome fruit, and a family of Aquitaine had a hereditary hatred of it. Gretry, the composer, could not endure the scent of the rose; neither could Anne of Austria. The mere sight of the rose was too much for Lady Heneage, bedchamber woman to Queen Elizabeth; indeed, Kenelm Digby records that her cheek became blistered when some one laid a white rose upon it as she slept. A violet was a thing of horror to the Princess de Lamballe, while tansy was anobinable to an earl of Barrymore, and Scaliger grew pale before watercress.

The harmless cat has frequently been an object of aversion. Henry III of France had so great a dislike to cats that he fainted at sight of one, and it was said of the duke of Schomberg, as it was said of another famous soldier of our time, that he could not sit in the same room with a cat.—John o' London's Weekly.

Woman Accorded High Rank in Intelligence

That Anatole France had a high regard for women may be gathered from the conversation which took place between himself and his secretary, Sandor Kemeri, and which is reported in her book, "Rambles With Anatole France."

"'The intelligence of the woman is very high and she is ready to go to all extremes in asserting herself,' he says. 'More than the man she is aware of the age in which she lives, because she carries it within herself. In our search for the history of the past it is the woman who shows us the way. It is she who makes us foresee the future. It is the woman, heroic, sentimental, romantic, emancipated, independent. She was taken from Adam's breast, near his heart, brought to life by his ardent desire. How could she be anything else but his image? Therefore the woman's destiny depends on the man.'"

Traders Made Own Coins

Mincing lane, London, the center of the wholesale tea trade, derives its name from certain tenements there once owned by the "minchuns," or nuns, of St. Helen's. There in the time of the Plantagenets lived a colony of Genoese traders called galleymen, because they brought their wines and other merchandise to Galley wharf.

They were a wealthy and powerful people and one time issued a sliver coinage of their own. These coins, known as "galley half-pence," were broader than the ordinary English silver half-pennies, but not so thick and strong. Their use was prohibited by an act of parliament in the reign of Henry IV.

Shopping in China

Finding one's way in Chinese cities has its difficulties. Capt. Robert Dollar, well known American steamship man, once set out to visit a wholesale store in Chefoo. He describes his experience as follows:

First we went through a grocery store into a courtyard containing beds of flowers and shrubs; from there we followed a crooked alley three feet wide into another courtyard, then through another three-foot alley into a small open square. Bordering this square was the wholesale establishment we were in search of. There is, however, nothing unusual in finding important stores in such obscure localities in that country.

Pupils Taught Poisoning

Both boys and girls are taught the poison arts in the jungle schools, and at the conclusion of each school it is customary to experiment on some member of the class. At the boys' school the victim usually is some unruly member of the class. At the girls' school, it is some iconoclastic maiden who has dared voice criticism of the tribal marriage customs. In case a child dies at either school, its parents are not apprised of the fact until after the close of the school, when the fetish doctor breaks a white bowl in front of their hut.

H. W. L. and the Telephone

It seems that Henry Wadsworth Longfellow inaugurated the voice-with-a-smile campaign in connection with telephone operators. No better proof can be had than the line in "A Psalm of Life," in which we read, "Tell me not in mournful numbers." And as for waiting for a number, the following is given in "The Courtship of Miles Standish": "Till some questioning voice dissolves the spell of silence." Does it not speak for itself?

Old-Fashioned Mothers

She looks to the affairs of her household and she cherishes her babies. She sings, and her songs are the joy-hymns of the mother heart; she cuddles her babies as mothers have done since the beginning; and she is proud of her kicking, crowing "latest" though she loves them all alike. She doesn't mind the [illegible] of the unfortunate [illegible] who fail to see in [illegible] type of peace and happiness that has been ordained by God.—Jackson (Texas) News.

Franklin Saw Day of Woman in Business

Although desiring a quiet life in his older years, Franklin could not retire. One political office after another sought him out. He tried his best to avert the Revolution, and his examination before the house of commons in February, 1766, marks the zenith of his intellectual powers.

In September, 1776, Franklin was appointed envoy to France and sailed soon afterward. Despite his seventy years, no other American could have accomplished the things he did. His reputation had preceded him to France. Great ladies sought his company; shopkeepers hung his portrait on their walls and the rabble worshiped him. Under Franklin's influence, money was loaned the struggling colonies. He won from France recognition of the United States and then the treaty of alliance. This was his last and most important work.

Biographers maintain that Franklin more than any other great American possessed the woman's viewpoint. Some even maintain that his great successes were achieved because of this quality; that the great French treaty might not have been brought about were it not for the homage paid the first civilized American by the great dames of Paris.

Certain it is that he was the means of starting the first American woman in business, and he was first in a movement that has changed the present-day life of 110,000,000 Americans.

Old Man in Picture Rather Out of Place

A landscape artist sold a picture to a wealthy woman. The latter soon became tired of it, because, she declared, it lacked animation. So she sent for another artist and asked him to paint a man or woman on the road that ran through the middle of the painting.

The artist did so, and when he met the man who had painted the original work he told him what he had done.

"I had the temerity to alter a landscape of yours the other day," he said. "It was one you sold to Mrs. Jones. She wanted a figure painted in, so I added an old man walking down the road?"

"Road? What road? There's no road in that picture!"

"Why, yes, there is," said the other. "A road runs through the middle of the canvas."

"Why," cried the first artist, indignantly, "that's not a road! That's a river!"

Wife's Faith in Columbus

If it be true that there is a woman in the background of every notable achievement, there seems to be justification in calling Dona Felipa, the wife of Christopher Columbus, that influence in the life of the man who was later to discover the Western world. When Columbus talked to her about his exploration enthusiasms, she was sympathetic and his ambitions appear to have found grateful nurture at their fireside. There is a tale of how Dona Isabella, Columbus' mother-in-law, produced an old box containing maps and logs—piously-kept relics of her husband's. It may be that something found in this box prompted in Columbus the conception, later to become a flaming article of faith, of a land beyond the horizon.—New York Times Magazine.

Royal Ear Wiggler

Empress Marie Louise, second wife of Napoleon I, used to shake her ears through some nervous effort, believing the practice would drive away wrinkles and make her beautiful.

"One of the greatest pleasures of the imperial evenings is to watch the empress turn her ears," wrote Mme. d'Abrantes, one of her ladies of honor. "This faculty is very extraordinary and I believe she is the only person who possesses it."

Marie Louise often shook her ears to amuse her friends, but Napoleon disliked the practice and it is said he slapped his imperial spouse several times for doing it.

Rich Soil

Two farmers were arguing about the fertility of the soil of their respective states.

"Why, the soil is so rich in my state," said one, "that a man with a peg leg daren't stand still for five minutes. The wooden leg will grow roots."

"That's nothing," the other farmer responded. "Back where I came from the land is so rich that all the peg-legged men carry hatchets so they can chop off the twigs that keep sprouting on account of all the nutritious dust in the air."—Exchange.

China Once "Cathay"

Cathay was the name for China which Marco Polo brought back with him from his travels in the Orient. It is supposed to have been derived by him from the Khitah or Khitan, a tribe of medieval conquerors of northern China. The term was long applied by Europeans to the Far East in general. The only language in which it survives as the customary name for China is the Russian, where it has the form Khitai.

Audrey's Opinion

Little Audrey gazed in rapt fascination at a contortionist in a vaudeville show.

"Mamma," she laughingly said to her mother, "That man has no more bones than a plate of ice cream."

Maryland's Highways Equal To Best In The Country

(From The Marylander)

It is becoming more and more apparent, as the days and weeks go by, that the overshadowing question before the people of the whole State (and the same is true of all the States) is the roads question—and all far-seeing citizens are beginning to recognize that this is the fact. Winter and summer, it is the great problem. The prosperity of the whole country depends on good roads—the very existence of the cities and towns of all sizes depends on the condition of the roads leading to them. The general convenience and welfare of the population everywhere depend on the roads, and the wise prophecy made by the late Senator Arthur P. Gorman, thirty-three years ago, that in the future the all-important question would be the transportation question, that it would overshadow and dwarf all other questions, is now verified in all parts of the world, and especially in those sections where the rapidly increasing population demands not only easy and quick methods of travel from place to place, but, above all else, quick methods of transporting all sorts of produce and manufactured goods and raw material out of which the necessaries of life are made can be carried all distances, both small and great, in the shortest possible time. In fact go where you will among all sorts of people, and in all sorts of paces, the dominant subject of discussion, now, is roads—and this is the case not only in the remote sections of the country, but also in the towns and cities. It is becoming evident to all that the very prosperity and comfort of all depends on the roads, and the means of transportation provided on these roads.

This State (and most other States) have spent several years in their endeavor to solve the problem of raising the money to finance the road building, as well as the road repairing, and, at last when the burden was becoming almost too heavy to be borne, when the tax levy was becoming unbearably severe, on account of the large sums necessary to carry out the plans in any degree of effectiveness, and to maintain the cost of the necessary repairs,—when the bond issues were piling up an indebtedness on the States and the Counties, which promised to bear heavily not only on the present but future generations, the gasoline tax was devised which would place the cost where it properly belongs—on the people who use the roads, and relieve the general tax levy of the greater part of the weight—for there are thousands of automobiles owned and operated by people who own no other property, and whose only contribution to the public treasury comes from the comparatively small sums they are obliged to pay as automobile owners. These people are among the most frequent users of the roads and the only way to get anything out of them is to collect a tax on every gallon of gasoline they use,—and another class, who are also frequent users of the roads are the tens of thousands of people from other States, who daily and hourly are traversing and wearing out the roads in their machines—and who now are contributing but a trifle to the expense of maintenance. There is no question but that the imposition of this proposed increase in this tax is the only just and equitable way in which those for whom the roads are largely necessary, and by whom they are almost exclusively used, should pay their proportional share of the great expense of the repairs and reconstruction of the highways, after the general tax payers of the commonwealth have built them, and are expected, in time, to pay the bonds already issued and to be issued, for what has already been done, and what will be done in the way of construction.

It is the prevailing opinion in all parts of the State and even in Baltimore City, outside of a small number of truck owners, that Mr. Mackall has devised the only really sensible and just way to carry on the large amount of constructive repair work that is provided in his plans. His long experence on the job, the tireless energy that he has devoted to it, the rigid determination with which he has been carryng out his program, despite the hostile criticism he has received (in which The Marylander at times vigorously joined) entitle him to much more consideration than he has been accorded, and his strenuous backing of this gasoline tax proposition which is, in the opinion of practically all those who have viewed it without prejudice, and whose views on the subject are of value, the only possible and reasonable solution in sight at the present time.

The State highways of Maryland are now admitted to be among the best in the entire country. They are the pride of the people, and justly so, and, in proportion to the size of the State and the amount expended, they equal in mileage (if they do not exceed) what has been accomplished in any State in the eighteen years since the work was started under the administration of the late Governor Crothers, and a very large proportion of this vast work has been done under the personal supervision of Mr. Mackall.

At times The Marylander has not hesitated to criticize his plans and methods of operation, but it has never criticized his ability and efficiency. That he deserves more credit than he has received from the public at large, is beyond question. That he has been hampered and restricted by local rivalries and local jealousies and ignorance, is also beyond question, but despite all these handicaps he has gone on with his plans, and should he be allowed to carry them out to a conclusion, the benefit to the transportation facilities furnished by Maryland will be beyond calculation, and it will be a shame and disgrace to the General Assembly should it permit a few truck owners in Baltimore City to prevent the enactment, or at least, vitiate, the proposed laws which will enable the Commissioner to continue what he has undertaken as the outcome of his long experience at the work.

H. R. Stotler Head Prohibition District.

It was announced this morning here by H. R. Bradley, federal prohibition commissioner for the northern area of West Virginia, that Col. H. R. Stotler, of Keyser, had been appointed temporary agent in charge of prohibition enforcement in the three contiguous counties of Washington, Allegheny and Garrett in Maryland. Mr. Stotler succeeds Agent C. D. Jarvis, resigned. He is one of the most active and efficient enforcement officers of West Virginia. He has been in the service, first the state and the federal, for the past 14 years, and has functioned on numerous occasions in this city and county. His headquarters will be in Keyser. Mr. Bradley and Mr. Stotler were here today to confer with local representatives of the department and to outline his policy to the agents in charge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9—The relief over the adjournment of Congress is genuine and general. During the last few days of that body the specter of a possible extra session flared before the country for a brief period. It is hinted that the possibility of an extra session being made necessary, operated in a way at least to expedite business in the closing hours, despite the filibuster. With the old Congress out of the way, all thought and attention is centered on the opening of the 70th Congress, which takes place December 5th, of this year. The new House will organize with Nicholas Longworth as speaker and with the same chairman on the most important committees. Tilson of Connecticut will continue the headship of Rules. The organization of the Senate is, frankly, in doubt. If Smith and Vare are seated it is generally assumed that the Republicans will organize that body, but in this connecton it can be said that even if both men are unseated the Democrats are not as yet making any positive claims as to what they are going to be able to do.

POMONA GRANGE

The Pomona Grange was entertained by the Sunnyside Grange on March 3rd at the Hall. Mr. David Lower called the meeting to order at 10:30 a. m. During the morning session many problems were discussed such as roads, community programs, meeting of State Grange in Garrett county this year and the value of the Grange to the farmers of this county. Following the discussion of the above problems election of Lecturer was held, this vacancy being caused by Mr. Jester leaving the county. Immediately after this election dinner was served.

The afternoon session was called to order about 1:30 p. m. A resolution was presented urging the completion of the road from Red Mouse connecting with the Northwestern Turnpike. Various members of the Pomona Grange expressed their opinion that this road would give the people of the county another gateway eastward.

Another resolution passed by the Pomona Grange was that a committee be appointed to try and have the meeting of the State Grange held in Garrett county in September, and that the Master, Mr. Lower, act as chairman. Mr. Lower appointed the following: Mrs. George Sprague, Mr. Dan Orendorf, and J. L. McGlone.

After the adoption of the resolutions the meeting was turned over to the Lecturer. Miss Lola Belle Green, Co. Home Demonstration Agent, gave a very interesting talk on Youth. She brought out the points that the older generation was getting away from the children, and in order to make this a better world to live in the parents must have a greater understanding of their children and help them with their problems. Mr. Carney gave a report of the State Grange meeting.

County Agent McGlone spoke on the Outlook of Garrett County and emphasized the importance of a County Program. Mr. J. A. Towler, who acted as Installing Officer, also gave a talk on the Value of Cooperation Among the Farmers. Mr. Towler showed that all kinds of information could be had from the University of Maryland Extension Service to help them with their many problems, but assured them that in order to benefit very much they must use this information and work together before any real goal could be obtained and their conditions bettered.

ALPINE LODGE, NO 35 TO BE HOST TO GARRETT LODGE MARCH 18

We want every Knight who can do so to accept the kind offer of Alpine Lodge No. 35, Terra Alta, and be entertained by them Friday night, March 18. Let every man be at Castle Hall at seven o'clock. There will be a short session of lodge and then we will proceed in a body to Terra Alta with colors flying and well represented. Instructions as to parking, etc., will be given in the lodge room before we leave. Each member is expected to provide a way of transportation so make your arrangements accordingly. Many ships will be anchored near Castle Hall among them being the Good Ship, Horace Dodge, Studebaker, Buick, Willys-Knight, but the majority will book passage and embark on the Good Ship, Henry Ford.

It has been said that the most popular and beloved poets are dead ones and the ones who wrote the least. Whether that be the case or not we will torment our readers with a few verses which may be recognized as poetry or not as the case may be. It hardly seems fair to be tormented before the time but such is life.

We wish to make the statement that it is hard for us to understand how any member of the team of the "Bears" can ever look a pig in the face again after the way they ate that porker Friday night.

Description of Parade and Pig Roast.

A big success was the 'Bull' parade
With nearly two hundred in line
The Knights, they marched, the bands, they played
We had a wonderful time.

Those wooly, shaggy, grizzly bears
Surely did strut their stuff
However, the "Bulls" are still in the lead,
This statement is no bluff.

The streets were thronged with people
Who cheered, gasped or hooted
The Crellin and Oakland Horn Bands
They tooted and they tuted.

Did you see who led the parade?
That blue ribbon first prize winner
We're proud of him nevertheless
The lazy overfed critter.

A rare thing in a torchlight procession
And seldom ever seen,
We beheld with admiration
'Twas a reality, not a dream.

Any one who viewed the parade
And made no honorable mention
Should be exiled to Siberia,
Or parked in the House of Detention.

Those self-made, modest, pious guys
Self-styled total abstainers
When the cider was passed around
They emptied six containers.

Jim Pell and his expert assistants
Simply cannot be excelled
Had they acted in school like they did Friday night,
They might have been expelled.

Bell was great, Towshend superb,
And the well beloved Bobby
The way he danced and curled on
He must have had a toddy.

A feature of the program
Was Gibson at the piano,
He played almost everything
But "Yes We Have No Banana."

That refreshment gang are jolly sports
Everyone a good fellow
Lauer and The Peerless Quartette
Had voices soft and mellow.

The time of our lives all of us had
But the feast was over too soon.
The way those "Bears" went after the pig,
We longed for a noiseless soupspoon.

The last verse we have reserved
For our noble [illegible]
Thanks for the big show, Gorgier,
'Twas a classy bill [illegible]

Guard Against Scarlet Fever.

"If parents could be taught to realize that the after effects of most of the so-called children's diseases are often more serious than the original illness, greater care would be taken to protect children from catching each others diseases," Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the State Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said in commenting on the prevalence of scarlet fever in the counties this winter.

"Scarlet fever," he continued, "is one of the most serious of these 'neighborly' diseases because of the damage it so often does to the heart, the kidneys or the ears. It is very contagious and grown-ups as well as children are likely to take the disease if exposed to it. Studies of the records show that one out of every two children who come in contact with scarlet fever, come down with the disease, and one out of every twenty grown-ups. Out of a total of 1383 cases reported to the State Department of Health in 1925, among people of all ages, over one half occurred among children from five to fifteen years old.

"Each new case comes directly from some previous case. A mild case is just as catching as the more severe cases and just as damaging in its after effects. The disease is spread through the discharges from the nose, throat and ears of those who are ill with scarlet fever. A number of cases have been traced, too, to milk handled by a 'carrier'—a person who had recovered from the disease or had been in contact with it.

"The first thing to do after a child develops any of the symptoms usually associated with scarlet fever,—a chill, vomiting, sore throat and high fever—is to send for a doctor and then to follow his directions. The sooner you get the doctor, the better. The sick child should be kept in a room by himself, carefully isolated from the rest of the household. Handkerchiefs or cloths used by the sick child should be burned; knives, forks, spoons, dishes or other utensils used in the sick room should be sterilized in boiling water. Only by the careful observance of these precautions and keeping all persons away from the sick child except the doctor and the mother or other person who is nursing the one who is ill, can the disease be kept from spreading to others."

USE THE NEWSPAPERS

The value of newspaper advertising is no longer seriously questioned by any economist. A realization of this value not only to the advertiser but to the consumer as well is now almost universal. The latest tribute to newspaper advertising comes from J. C. McQuiston, manager of the publicity of the Westinghouse Electric Company, and comes with the announcement that beginning April 1, the advertising appropriation of this company will be expended entirely among metropolitan and local newspapers.

"Newspapers," said Mr. McQuiston, "seem to offer the only medium by which we can both 'nationalize' and 'localize' our various sales campaigns, thus permitting us to conduct a nation-wide campaign on products and at the same time vary our program to fit the needs of specific districts.

"For many years we have been users of a considerable amount of newspaper space for certain of our merchandising lines, and the results so obtained have promoted us to expand this advertising to cover all of the many linse in which the company is interested.

"Our decision to concentrate on newspaper space came after a careful study of all factors entering into the marketing, selling and advertising situation. One important item was flexibility, whereby we could vary our plans to conform to various factors, such as weather conditions and peculiarities in the economic situation with respect to any particular district of the country.

"Certain cities present a greater industrial market opportunity than others. Others are outstanding in the character and extent of their new building operations. In still others a greater market is offered for certain products in our merchandising lines than others. The flexibility of newspaper space will permit us to cover all such points with advertising of a specific character."

The firm which fails to appreciate the value of newspaper advertising cannot hope to keep up with the progress and prosperity of the times.

Increasing The Standard.

Some interesting figures on the purchasing power of the dollar of today were given out recently by the National Industrial Conference Board. The figures show among other things that the present value of the dollar in purchasing power is sixty cents, when compared with the dollar of 1914. During the past five years the purchasing power has varied little more than five cents, fluctuating back and forth within that margin of difference so that it can be safely said that the dollar has been practically stabilized on this sixty cent basis when compared with 1914.

Average living costs as computed by the board were 1.8 per cent lower in 1926 than in 1925, but were 66 per cent higher than in 1914. But it is significant that the average weekly wage earnings at the beginning of the year were 116 per cent higher than in 1914, leaving the wage earner a great deal better off than he was in 1914 when his pay increase is compared with the higher cost of living.

So when you feel inclined to mourn for the good old days when things were cheap don't fail to remember that in those good old days wages were even cheaper by comparison, and the average American can buy approximately a third more goods on his present wages than he could with the lower prices of 1914.

It is small wonder then that our workers are gradually increasing their bank accounts and their standards of living. It is the modern American theory that the way to bring prosperity and to raise the standard of living is to pay high wages and so increase consumption and the demand for additional products which comes with a higher standard of living. This theory, of course, requires a protective tariff, and that it is working is proven by a comparison of conditions today in America and Europe.

BUTLER, AGAIN

The Press of the land today seems to find space for every sort of "muck" available, and there seems to be no scarcity of it. Sue for a divorce, and within twenty-four hours of the filing of the papers, some enterprising (?) journalist will be ready to syndicate the story; commit a murder, and some sentimentalist will color the story with a touch of pathos and paint you a hero in the eyes of the public. During the past two months we have had the Hall-Mills case, "Peaches" and Browning, Chaplin divorce, Lutz murder, etc., etc., for our edification, and now comes the great Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, securing space on the front page in bold face type, because he thinks he knows just what is wrong with America. As self-appointed spokesman for the White House and the Republican Party, he proceeds to tell us that any presidential candidate (and Party as well) must openly declare himself against Prohibition if he expects to be victorious. We are not partisan in our politics, but we'd like to wager the baby's shoes that the Party that "declares against prohibition" will find itself taking instructions for the next four years from the Party that declares in favor of it. The opinion of national voters is not made in New York City, nor is the national vote entirely controlled by a few wet advocates. However, we've seen Dr. Butler's prognostications fail so many, many times, that we have no great alarm concerning the Eighteenth Amendment. That New York reporter didn't commit such a great sin when he referred to him as "Dr. Nicholas Murray, butler of Columbia University."

Union Lenten Services Gaining In Interest And Attendance

The Union Mid-Week Lenten services, conducted each Wednesday evening by the protestant churches of Oakland, are gaining in interest and attendance.

The third of this series was held in St. Paul's M. E. church last evening with more than 200 people present. Dr. A. Moore, pastor of the church, conducted the service; Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, read the Scripture and offered prayer and Rev. Paul L. Folk, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Clarksburg, W. Va., preached the sermon, which was simple yet forcefully set forth the truth asked by the disciples of the Master "Why could not we cast him out?" The message was enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Harold Harned sang as a special number "Living He loved me, dying He saved me."

The next service will be held in the Lutheran church next Wednesday evening at 7:30. Another splendid sermon and services is insured. Our slogan—"Fill the church with earnest worshipers."

DIED.

MRS MARY KEARNS WALLACE

Mrs. Mary Kearns Wallace was born in Hampshire county, West Va., near Romney, in July, 1844, and died at her late residence on Third street early Sunday morning.

Mrs. Wallace was married to Thomas Wallace in Cumberland in 1865, and in the year 1900 this couple moved to Oakland where they resided together until the death of Mr. Wallace, which occurred in 1906.

Mrs. Wallace suffered a stroke of paralysis several weeks ago but was regaining her strength, until last Friday when she suffered a second stroke which proved fatal at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. She is survived by a son, Edward Wallace, and two grandchildren, Mr. Lewis Wallace, Danville, Ill., and Mrs. Geraldine Givins, of Huntington, W. Va.

Rev. Father John F. Eckenrode, pastor of St. Peter's church sang the Requiem Mass and used the text "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Thou has been faithful in a few things, I will place thee over many. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," in his discourse at the funeral services, which were held in the church. Interment was made in St. Peter's cemetery.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Patrick Garrett, Edward A. Shaffer, William R. Browning, James Carney, James Kerins and James Canty.

Relatives from out of town who attended the funeral services were: Mrs. Geraldine Givens and son, of Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. Anna Bolden, Meyersdale, Pa.; Charles Dyke, Keyser, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Paxton and son, Piedmont, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kearns and daughter, of Wheeling, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. John Gilingham and son, McMechen, W. Va., and Mrs. James Mitchell, of Benwood, W. Va. Mr. Lewis Wallace was unable to reach Oakland in time for the funeral.

ANNA MARIA SHAFFER

Anna Maria (Nordeck) Shaffer was born March 30th, 1849, and departed this life March 5th, 1927, age 77 years, 11 months, 5 days. She was united in marriage early in life to Henry W. Shaffer, and to this union were born 8 children, of this number two have preceded her in death, and the living are as follows: Edward, of Albright, W. Va.; Charles and Herbert, of Crellin; Mary, of Aurora, W. Va.; Harry, of Prunty Town, W. Va. and Elsie, of Grafton. Besides the above named children she leaves to mourn their loss 24 grandchildren, 2 great-grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends. She was converted to the Christian religion very early in life, and united with the United Brethren church, to which faith she remained faithful until death. She possessed a sweet Christian spirit, and was an inspiration to all who knew her, and just a few hours before her death, while in conversation with her pastor, she expressed a desire to go home to live with Jesus and her friends and loved ones, and seemed to be well composed and calm, just waiting for the call. Her husband preceded her in death a number of years ago, and at the time of her death she was living with her son Charles at Crellin. The funeral took place at the Mt. Carmel Lutheran church at Aurora, West Va., and was in charge of her pastor, the Rev. Floyd L. Fultz, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Groth, pastor of Mt. Carmel Lutheran church. Her body was laid to rest in the graveyard near the church to sleep in peace until that day when the righteous Judge shall return to call her forth to be with Him eternally in the home of the soul.

PAULINE FIKE

Our community was greatly saddened when the death Angel appeared last Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Fike, and claimed as its own their oldest daughter, Pauline. She was nearing her sixteenth year of age, and was in the first year of High school at Accident. Her illness was only of about three weeks duration, but was critical from the first, being a nervous complication.

All was done that a physician and loving hands could do, but to no avail.

She will be greatly missed in the church and in the Sunday school, wher she so willingly did her part. She will also he greatly missed by her schoolmates, but this sweet, gentle young girl will be mostly missed in her home. We extend our sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

A FRIEND.

New Type Telephone May Be Had By Local Subscribers

A new type of telephone instrument will soon be available to subscribers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, according to a statement just made by Eugene Bowers, manager. These instruments have the receiver and transmitter on a single handle and stand lower than the present instrument. There will be a small increase in monthly charges for these instruments plus the usual change of instrument charges to anyone desiring them. As regular production of the new type of telephone has only recently been started, a limited number only will be available for some months.

"These instruments are not better telephonically than the usual desk sets and wall sets but will be supplied to meet the wishes of those subscribers who feel they are more convenient," Mr. Bowers says. There have been experiments on hand sets in the Bell System for many years, but the engineers were not willing to adopt the hand set until one could be devised that would give the same high and uniform grade of service which the best desk or wall sets give. One of the reasons for poorer service of previous hand sets is that when the transmitter is on a movable handle, as it is in the hand set and that naturally may be held in any position, the transmitter will not work as well when it is in a desk or wall set designed to remain in an upright positon.

However, about five years ago, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in its Bell telephone laboratories, discovered a principle by which the difficulties of giving good service when using a hand set could be overcome. Even after the principle was discovered it took an immense amount of work to embody it in a hand set capable of manufacture on a large scale and at a price that would not greatly increase the cost of telephone service to those who wish to use the hand set. These problems have now been solved by the research engineers and later in the year as manufacture proceeds, the telephone company will be in a position to give an installation of hand sets in reasonable numbers.

New Circuit To Pittsburgh.

A new direct circuit from Oakland to Pittsburgh, Pa., has just been placed in service, according to Mr. Eugene Bowers, the Cumberland manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. This will enable local subscribers to obtain especially rapid service on their calls to both Johnstown and Pittsburgh.

Formery all calls to Pittsburgh had to be switched at Grafton, W. Va., to a Pittsburgh circuit. This operation necessarily took a little time, and the long distance operator was forced to delay working on the called telephone until the switching had been completed and the signal given to go ahead. Under the new arrangement, as soon as the long distance operator plugs in on the Pittsburgh circuit, she is able to get the Pittsburgh operator on the line without waiting for any switchnig operations.

The new circuit will have a capacity of 43 messages a day. The present estimate of traffic is 15 messages originating at the terminal point and 14 originating at other points in the route of the circuit; this allows a margin of 14 messages for the growth of the traffic, as Oakland telephone subscribers call Pittsburgh more frequently.

The total distance covered by the new circuit is 141 miles.

Club Work at the University of Maryland

Many people are of the opinion that club work is only for boys while they are attending grade or high school. This may in a sense be true and the old adage, "As the twig is bent so the tree inclines," again proves true at the University of Maryland.

Three years ago a group of students assembled and formed a livestock club. Even though the students are required to spend a certain number of periods in the actual handling of the stock this did not seem to hit the proper spot. The old feeling of showing the animals which they had since their club work came back and this was the reason the Livestock Cluh was formed at the University of Maryland.

The Livestock Club holds monthly meetings at which time various outstanding stockmen are invited to speak at these meetings. At one of the early meetings of the school year the animals are drawn for by the members. The care of the animals is in their hands until the show is held in the spring.

The date set for the show this year is may 14th. The show committee has written to all of the County Agents requesting them to extend to all the farmers and boys interested in livestock an invitation to attend the fair. The event will be held in the Byrd Stadium, Admission free. The committee promises the largest and best show ever held at the University and assures anyone attending same will be well pleased. The committee is also planning an auction and banquet in connection with the fair, plans of which will be published later.

The Agricultural Teachers, Mr. O. T. Graser, Mr. John H. Carter, Mr. W. E. Tarbell and Mr. M. W. Whiteford, and County Agent McGlone are planning a tour for farmers and their sons this spring. It is their desire to visit a large number of farms in Maryland and it may be arranged to attend this fair at the University. Anyone desiring information in regard to this tour may secure same from the Agriculture teachers named above, or the County Agent.

THINK

For a moment, kind reader, can there be any sickness where there is no cause? Will a river dam up if there be no obstruction? And if there be an obstruction so that the river bed below be dry and vegetation withering, what would you do? Remove the obstruction, let the water have a chance to revive the withering vegetation and everything is well. Just so with the human body. Put a pressure on the nerves that ramify a certain part of the body and that part will be deceased. Remove the pressure and the disused part is restored to health. Let us explain anything that may not be clear to you. A call at our office will give you the desired information.

The Labor of Months Lost in a Minute

A careless housekeeper threw the manuscript of Thomas Carlyle's "French Revolution" in the fire, and in a few seconds the masterpiece was lost in the flames. As the result of this accident it was necessary for Carlyle to begin again the work on which he had spent five months of unremitting labor.

The Pythian parade on last Friday night was a hrilliant affair, and will be remembered as an occasion which was admired by a large number of citizens of the county. There were at least 150 Knights in the line of march, and with the exception of the members of the combined bands, nearly everybody carried a lighted torch which illuminated the streets and produced a beautiful sight. The Crellin and Oakland bands furnished the music for the occasion.

Messrs. John O. Thayer, Oakland, and Robert L. Wilson, Kitzmiller, members of the Board of Education of Garrett county, and County Superintendent of Schools F. E. Rathbun left Tuesday night for Raleigh, N. C., to attend a conference arranged by the State Department of Education of North Carolina and fostered by the Maryland State Department of Education, for the purpose of studying consolidation of schools. The study concerns the one-teacher schools and methods whereby such schools can successfully be consolidated with a larger centrally located school, thereby giving the rural children advantages that they have heretofore been denied. The gentlemen expect to return to Oakland on Saturday or Sunday.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Smouse, on Saturday, March 12th, a son. Mr. and Mrs. Smouse were former residents of Oakland, but now reside in Myersville, Md.

Mr. George Hanst, who will be associated with The Republican after the first part of June when he will be graduated from the University of West Virginia, at Morgantown, accompanied by Mr. Henry Weaver and Misses Pauline Johnson and Harriett Harris, students at the University, drove to Oakland Sunday, returning to Morgantown later in the day.

Mr. James P. Treacy is improving one of his buildings along Alder street for the purpose of making more room for his supply of tires, tubes and automobile accessories which he has never before been able to display with any degree of succeess in the small room which he has occupied since entering the garage and accessory business. The room which he will use for the purpose of a show room is the one recently vacated by the Royal Confectionery.

The women of St. Mark's Lutheran church met in the Sunday school room on Tuesday evening, and after all had assembled went to the parsonage where they gave a complete and delightful surprise to Mrs. Shilke, it being the occasion of her birthday.

A very pleasing program was rendered. Miss Martha Townshend, Mrs. Louis Bush and Miss Virginia Giessman recited humorous selections; Miss Grace Falkenstein, accompanied at the piano by Miss Hazel Nine, sang In her usual pleasing manner "Sing Me to Sleep" and "Just a Song at Twilight." Mr. Ernest Townshend, Jr., entertained the group with a number of magic tricks and slight of hand performances. The numbers were greatly enjoyed by all. Light refreshments were served.

Mrs. Shilke received the congratulations of all and was also the recipient of beautiful flowers and many pretty and useful gifts. The occasion marked the deeping of the ties of friendship and love between the parsonage family and the members of St. Mark's.

Honors at 500 were awarded Mrs. Kemp and Mr. Stuck. Mrs. Hammond and Mr. Harned won high honors at dominoes.

Carl Frazee Takes Steps Toward Better Dairying.

Dairying is becoming more prominent each year in Garrett county and many dairymen realize that improvement must be made in Garrett county's dairy herds and barns before they will be able to meet the requirements which are being made by Health Officials. Mr. Frazee, realizing that the sooner the dairmen prepare to meet these better requirements, has recently improved his barn. He has completely remodeled his dairy barn by putting in a large number of windows to meet the light requirements, and has installed the latest type of stanchions, and concreted the floor. Mr. Frazee claims that all these improvements were made at a small cost considering how much it has improved conditions. He says that the stables can be kept cleaner, and can be cleaned in a shorter length of time, and the light keeps the cows from injuring themselves and makes working in the barn more pleasant. Mr. Frazee has also added to his herd a number of purebred Guernsey cows, also an outstanding herd bull, Masterpiece of White Hall sired by Elberan's Royal Masterpiece, Dam, Lady Ultra of Woodburn.

Frostburg Normal Arranges Schedule

The State Normal School at Frostburg will open its summer session on Monday, June 27, and close August 5. Twenty-one courses will be offered covering work in the subject-matter fields as well as the theoretical fields in public education. Five courses will be offered for advanced students, those who are Normal School graduates or the equivalent. A special course for those desiring to be critics or helping teachers will again be offered this year. A two-teacher elementary demonstration school will be provided as a laboratory for the courses in education.

Requests are coming in daily for information in regard to the summer session. Each year a larger group of students from counties other than Allegany and Garrett have been coming to Frostburg for the summer session because of its delightful summer climate.

The summer school booklet will be ready for distribution by April 1.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially for Readers of The Republican by Rev. U. S. Wright, D. D.

SUNDAY, MARCH 20, 1927.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE. John 14: 1-3; 2 Cor. 5: 1-10; I John 3: 2,3.

In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you.—John 14:2.

THE ASSURANCE.

More than any other faith Christianity is committed to the future life. The old Hebrew Scriptures leave the Jew with dimmed vision. The Koran holds hope for the faithful Moslem but its character is material instead of spiritual. The Vedas believe in innumerable reincarnations and the ultimate losing of personality. Confucianism has no certain note. But Christianity is built about the belief in immortality for the person. Where does its assurance come from? At the heart of it stands Jesus. And such is the conviction of His life that Peter's word, "It was not possible for Him to be holden of death," is about the best expression of its thinking. Such a life as His makes Heaven a necessity. "There are many rooms in my Father's house; if there were not, I would have told you." In the dark days of uncertainity that often came in his explorations in the heart of Africa Livingston once penned in his diary an expression that told of his trust in the word of Jesus. He could take that word as true because of what his Lord was and he acted accordingly. The character of Jesus is a Christian's assurance of the future. And His statement was one of the uttermost appeals to their confidence in Him. "If it were not so, I would have told you." He could not think of a contigency that would have kept Him from telling the truth. Of course He would have told them if it had been different but the whole drive of the piled-up story of Jesus is that He believed in a life in which the grave was only an incident and that the things told to the Disciples were true. To doubt here is to sweep away every foundation for the religion we profess. The whole being of Jesus is involved. If you wipe out the future life you destroy the character upon which our belief is based and make of Him a mere dreamer of dreams and a proclaimer of untruth. And the picture drawn in these words of John is thoroughly accordant with the proclamation of the family of God. "In my Father's house are many mansions," offers no understandable picture. For a mansion is a palatial house, how could many of these be packed in the one house? But the rendering, "In my Fahter's house there are many rooms," is clear as sunlight. It is the dwelling place not only of God but God's family in which as a member there will be a room for me. I shall have my own place. I shall still be a recognized part of the busy household of the Eternal.

THE TRANSFORMATION.

That picture of Paul's is drawn from his own experiences. "If this tent is taken down" then there will appear a "house" that is eternal. For a tent is always a temporary shelter, moving from place to place with the exigencies of the situation, and liable to be swept from its rope pinnings by the first big blow. A truly fine picture of life. But contrasted with that is the "house" that can not be moved but can only be occupied. One may range far but the house awaits the return and becomes the headquarters from which all the living is carried on. Such a change implies the moving up to a higher type of life. The nomadic tent dweller found the house an entirely different situation and from it has come our present city civilization. It brought new problems and man's mentality throve by their solution or the attempts at it that still persist. That new life will be marked by a tremendous advance that will rank with the differences between the desert and the town. Paul cites the gift of the Spirit as typical of what will be the character of that new living. The old body, wasted by disease, wearied by labor, weakened by indulgence, is the temporary thing only; it will be taken down at death and stored in the cemetary. Of what sort the new will be we have no clue. There is nothing in the experience of a worm to postulate that of a butterfly, nor of the water grub that of the iradescent dragon fly. We have absolutely nothing upon which to build our ideas of what that embodiment will be. If one remembers that we are mere cave dwellers who never see out or catch a sound directly but only by the interventlon of the sensory nerves one begins to understand something of the tremendous difference it will make when the "Me" crawls out of its indirect contact to the direct impacts of Spirit. Interpreting the whole universe as we do the mere inferences from the quiver of a nerve what must the open vision bring to view? The Bible is at its best in making no attempt to explain the unexplainable.

THE PREPARATION.

When one plans a stay, whether very protracted or not, in some strange land there is immediately interest in the customs prevailing and the attempts to familiarize ones self with them so that the differences will not be so conspicuous as they otherwise would. And we will be judged by the deeds done in the body. Of course for that is just what we do now. A stranger comes into town from Italy. We note his speech, it hasn't the American accent. We note his clothes, his food, his habits, all of which represent the deeds done in Italy. And we rate him accordingly. Now when we pass over into the land of Spirit the spirit we manifest will become the immediate basis of judgment of us because that was clothed here by the deeds done and these become the spiritual habits by which the Heavenly Acclimated Ones pass judgment upon us.

What do we actually know about the habits of the Spirit world? "When He is manifested we shall be like Him for we shall see Him as He is." If we really see any one as he is it must come thru an understanding spirit that can enter into his. The same is true here for we must have likeness before recognition. And with that as the hint of what we are to become we actively endeavor to purify ourselves even as He is pure. We do what Paul insists upon, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Jesus Christ our Lord." We attempt to think in the Jesus way, to have the attitude He had, and to catch the spiritual habits that He possessed so that we will not be so conspicuous when we are uncovered by flesh.

"Yet on earth clean men we walked,
Glutton and Thief and Lover;
White flesh and fair it hid our stains
That no man might discover."
"Naked the soul goes up to God, Brother, my Brother."

Only One Don't For Motorists Now.

"Don'ts for motorists" are one of the most numerous things in the world. They are written into the laws by the scores, into city ordinances by the hundreds; manufacturers write them into their instruction books, policemen shout them at the passing driver, and wayside signs proclaim don't this and don't that. In short, the motorist is don't-ed to death.

Now American drivers might well give a vote of thanks to H. M. Jewett, chairman of the board of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, who has just done his bit to dam the flood of don'ts. "Don't don't is Jewett's platform.

A large national industrial association recently asked Jewett to contribute, for a safety campaign pamphlet, "a list of a dozen or more things a motorist should keep in mind," suggesting that "a line of don'ts" would be most effective. Here is Jewett's reply:

There would be no use of my writing you a list of 'a dozen things a motorist should keep in mind'—for the kind of motorist who can keep his mind on more than one thing at a time is not the kind that causes accidents.

There is just one 'don't' that, if generally observed, would prevent most of the automobile accidents:

Don't Do Anything Suddenly.

Apply that to starting, stopping, backing, changing direction, turning, crossing railroads, entering street intersections, etc., and the cause of the accidents are eliminated.

A Little Talk On Thrift

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Are you making any effort to save something, no matter how small, out of your present income?

Bear in mind you can't spend your money and have it. We are all familiar with the old adage that "you can't eat your cake and have it." There is the wisdom of the ages in that simple admonition, and if people generally realized the truth of it, we would have far less poverty, crime and suffering in the world.

You can't squander all that you earn in days of prosperity and have a competency for the periods of adversity. You can't waste your time in idleness or ill-advised pursuits and hold your own in the race for success. You can't keep late hours, dissipate, over-indulge your appetite, or overwork to an unreasonable degree, and retain the blessings of good health. You can't associate with evil companions and retain the honor and respect of your worthy acquaintances. You can't be a miser in your practices and still have the vision, courage and good judgment to keep up in the procession of progress.

No, you can't waste your dollar and have it; but you can spend it prudently and have its equivalent. You can't waste your years and have them; but you can employ them usefully and have the priceless possession of a good name.

Today's sacrifice may be tomorrow's victory. Hard knocks are frequently blessings in disguise.

Guard your resources; conserve your strength; improve your opportunities. You can not eat your cake and have it. These are the truths of thrift.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Grantsville, March 16,—Last Thursday evening a meeting was held in the rooms of the First State Bank which has stirred a great deal of interest among the farmers. Dr. Kelly, of Philadelphia, representing the Scott-Powell Milk Company of that city was the principal speaker, who outlined a plan whereby the farmers of this vicinity may join in with the region around Meyersdale in shipping all the milk they can produce to Philadelphia, at much better prices than they have ever been realizing in this locality. The plan, as outlined by Dr. Kelly, would be to establish a milk plant at Meyersdale, to cost about $60,000. The milk company would furnish one half of this and the farmers would be obliged to pledge themselves for the balance, to be paid by the retention of a few cents from each hundred pounds of milk delivered to the plant. Other meetings were held at Meyersdale and Salisbury and the Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce is working to put the project through, as it is estimated that the farmers directly and the entire community indirectly, will be benefitted by this project, to the extent of a million dollars per year when it is in full operation. Mr. H. S. Yoder, of Grantsville, together with County Agent McDowell, of Somerset county, Pa., and R. H. Philson, cashier of the Citizens National Bank, of Meyersdale, have been named a committee to go to Philadelphia this week to look into the project further.

Cow Testing Proves Worth.

The result of the Junior Cow Testing Association of the Grantsville High school for the month of February are given below, by the secretary, William Turner, Jr. This work is supervised by Prof. M. W. Whiteford, teacher in the agricultural department. The first five cows testing highest follow: George Krause, owner of grade Jersey; 47 pounds butter fat, 937 pounds milk. 2. Edward Beachy, owner of grade Jersey; 39 2-6 pounds butter fat, 840 pounds milk. 3. Forest Michael, owner of grade Jersey; 37.8 pounds butter fat, 924 pounds of milk. 4. Norman Patton, owner of grade Jersey; 37.8 pounds butter fat, 660.6 pounds milk. 5. C. C. Wisseman, owner of grade Jersey; 36.8 pounds butter fat, 730 pounds milk. The highest herd is owned by George Krause, with an average of milk for the herd of 643 pounds and average butter fat of 32.8 pounds.

Calves For Club Arrive.

The members of the High school Calf club have recently received their calves, which are pure bred registered Guernseys. The club was financed by the First National Bank. The object of the club is to promote the raising of better cattle in this district. The calves will be carried by the members as vocational agriculture projects and accurate accounts will he kept for three years. By that time they will more than repay the purchase price. A number of the boys in the agriculture class who could not raise calves have organized a pure bred poultry club and will soon purchase chickens to start their project.

Mrs. Delbert Durst Died.

Mrs. Deibert Durst, a daughter of William E. and Laura Broadwater, of Avilton, died very suddenly at the home of her sister, Mrs. Blaine Vangilder, east of town, on March 7th. The cause being a ruptured heart. Dr. N. R. Davis was in attendance, but was unable to overcome the fatal condition. The funeral was held from St. Anne's Catholic church, Aviiton, on Thursday morning, following a short service at the home of the Vangilders, with the Rev. Father Clarence officiatnig. Mrs. Durst was nearing her 38th year and is survived by her husband, her parents, eight children, a number of them quite small. The children are Blaine, Gladys Daily, Vera, Glenn, Gideon, Ruby and Paul. The sisters and brothers are Mrs. Ruby Bowers, Mrs. Henry Miller. Mrs. Blaine Vangilder, Mrs. Harland Bordner, Miss Rosa, Paul and Enoch Broadwater. Mrs. Durst was a member of St. Anne's church, a splendid home maker and a devoted mother.

Samuel P. Lohr.

Samuel P. Lohr died at the home of his niece, Mary Lohr, at Springs, Pa., March 6th, of convulsions, having been sick but a short time. He was almost, if not entirely deaf but always had a smile for those he met and thus made many friends. He never was married and after the death of his parents many years ago, he made his home with his brother, Eli and family. He was aged 61 years. He was the last surviving member of a family of 12 children, six sons and six daughters of the late John and Eliza Judy Lohr, and was born near Bittinger, Md. After a short funeral service at the home of his niece in Springs, his body was taken to Bittinger for burial. The funeral services were held in the church there Wednesday morning of last week, Rev. E. E. Campbell, the pastor officiated.

Alfred Knepp

Alfred Knepp, of Sand Patch, Pa., a member of the firm of Knepp Lumber Company, operators of a saw mill on the C. C. Durst property, died in the Meyersdale Hospital on March 10th. Several weeks ago, while at work on the mill, he was taken ill and was removed to the hospital but his condition continued to grow worse until the end.

salesman, was about thirty years of age and married. His death was caused by acute indigestion.

Organization of Agricuitural Class

County Agent J. W. McGlone and M. W. Whiteford, teacher of agriculture in the school here, held a meeting last week which was well attended by the farmers of the community. The object of the meeting was to organize a class for a short course in some phase of farming. It was decided that dairying would be of most importance at this time, and have written to Dr. Devoe Meade, head of the dairying and animal husbandry department of the University of Maryland as to the time when he can give the course here. All those interested in this work may attend, the date when the class will meet will be announced later by Prof. Whiteford.

Church Services

Services in the churches next Sunday: Catholic: Mass at 10 a. m. Methodist: Sunday school at 10 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m., and worship at 7:30 p. m. Reformed: Sunday school at 10 a. m. Trade among Friends

NO matter what some folks say to the contrary), there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instance, makes more satisfactory sales than all the cleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not because its counters are arranged in a scientific way, but because the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful.

Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody can enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.

TRUSTEES' SALE
OF A VALUABLE
FARM PROPERTY
Meshack Mattingly Farm In District No. 6, of Garrett County

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, sitting in Equity, dated the 26th day of February, 1927, and passed in a cause wherein Martha Collins Dodge, Admrx. et al. were plaintiffs and William Mattingly et al. were defendants, the same being No. 2727 Equity on the docket of said Court, the undersigned trustee will on at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder all of that farm in District No. 6 of Garrett county of which the late Meshack Mattingly died, seized and possessed, as follows:

1. All of that tract of land known as "Fayette" containing 200 acres and Military Lots Nos. 4148 and 1677, containing 100 acres. These parcels being the same which were described in a deed from Catherine Townshend to Dominick Mattingly dated December 17, 1853, and recorded in Liber 11, folio 359, one of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and title to which became vested in said Meshack Mattingly by a series of conveyances mentioned in the papers in this cause and filed therein. Parts of Military Lots Nos. 1668 and 1669 containing 46 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Daniel Smith and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated September 30, 1869, and recorded in Liber 31, folio 184, one of the Land Records of Allegany county; part of Military Lot No. 4146 containing 16 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Samuel Ferguson to said Meshack Mattingly dated January 1, 1876, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 2, folio 337, one of the Land Records of Garrett county; part of a tract of land called "Warrington," containing 9½ acres and part of Military Lot No. 1498 containing 6¾ acres, described in a deed from Wm. Dewitt and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No 6, folio 418, one of said Land Records.

Excepting, however, those parcels of land which were conveyed by said Meshack Mattingly and wife to William Dewitt and Mary F. Sebold by deed dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 6, folio 485, etc., and September 17, 1881, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 5, folio 775, etc., of the Land Records of Garrett county, Maryland, and by Mary F. Mattingly, widow, and [illegible] W. Sebold by deed dated September 21, 1912, and recorded in Liber F. Z. T. No. 64, folio 247, one of said Land Records. The remaining portion of said farm to be sold containing about 316 acres.

2. The timber on the portion of the above farm bounded on the west by the land formerly owned by Hamill Casteel, on the south by the Marion Hoye land and on the south-east by George Sebold's land will be excepted from the above and will be sold separatey on the day of sale. Further information relative to this can be obtained by any interested person from the trustees.

The above farm is well located, a very considerable portion thereof is cleared and under cultivation; is improved by two dwellings, barn, stable and other necessary outbuildings, has a good orchard and would make an excellent farm home.

Terms of Sale:—As preseribed by the decree, one-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and one-third in twelve months, or all cash at the option of the purchaser; credit portion to bear interest and to be secured to the satisfaction of the trustees.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 52. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, MARCH 24, 1927. NUMBER 5.

FORMER U. S. SENATOR WELLINGTON DIES

Was Once Republican Leader In Maryland—Laid To Rest With Masonic Rites

George Louis Wellington, former United States Senator and former leader of the Republican party in Maryland, died Sunday afternoon at his home, 306 Washington street, Cumberland, of complications.

Mr. Wellington had taken his usual automobile ride on Thursday, despite the fact that he was feeling badly. He was to have spent a few hours on St. Patrick's Day in the country with friends, to whom he sent word that he would be unable to fill the engagement. That night he was stricken with pneumonia. Heart and kidney complications developed and with his weakened state, which came gradually from a long period of decrepitude, due to a paralytic stroke, his iron will gave in.

As late as Saturday afternoon however, he had talked with his son, John L. Wellington when his mind was clear and he expressed the hope of being out for his usual automobile ride the following day. He realized that being in the open helped him in his infirmity and he almost invariably took two long automobile rides daily despite weather conditions. It had then noticed in the past few months that his strength was waning.

The Senator Wellington became delirious Saturday night and early Sunday morning he lapsed into unconsciousness. The end was peaceful while by his bedside stood his daughters. Mrs. Gretchen Humbird and Mrs. Ethen Reinhart, who made their home with their father, and his only son, John L. Wellington.

Born in Cumberland on January 28, 1852, Senator Wellington was the son of John Adam Wellington. At the age of eleven years he went to work in a retail mercantile establishment, utilizing all his spare time in study. At the age of eighteen he became an accountant in the Second National Bank in Cumberland. About this time he became interested in public affairs as a worker in the Republican party. His political activities resulted in his becoming county treasurer for Allegany county in 1883, filling that office until 1887. In 1884 he was sent as one of the State delegates to the Republican National Convention.

By this time, Mr. Wellington had become a factor in State politics, although he never let politics interfere with his business interests. In 1889 he again was appointed county treasurer, but did not fill out his term, for in 1890 President Harrison appointed him sub-treasurer of the sub-treasury in Baltimore. This was an important step forward for Mr. Wellington, and he filled the position capably for the four-year term in the office.

In 1889, just prior to his appointment to the sub-treasury, his friends made a strenuous effort to have him nominated for Congress from the Sixth Maryland District, but failed. In 1892, this nomination was given him, but that was a Democratic year, and despite an active campaign, he was defeated by the late General William M. McKaig. He again came to the front as the Republican nominee from this district in 1894 and was triumphantly elected.

Until 1895, the Republicans had not elected a Governor in Maryland for a quarter of a century. That year his party nominated Lloyd Lowndes, friend and neighbor of Mr. Wellington. Mr. Wellington was made chairman of the Republican State Committee and managed and waged the campaign which resulted in the election of Mr. Lowndes and a majority of the State Assembly.

Taking cognizance of his leadership in the Lowndes gubernatorial fight, friends of Mr. Wellington supported him in his candidacy for United States Senator, to which high office he was elected in 1896. He was the only man from Allegany county to be elected a United States Senator, and he served his six year term with characteristic efficiency and capability.

His election to the Senate shattered the Eastern Shore precedent, which called for one Senator from that section.

Senator Wellington was well and favorably known by a large number of people in Garrett county. Among the older citizens of Oakland, he is remembered as a frequent visitor to this section of the county.

The funeral services were held from St. Paul's Lutheran church, Cumberland, on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. H. T. Bowersox, pastor of the church, officiated.

The funeral was in charge of Potomac Lodge, No. 100, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, of which lodge Mr. Wellington was the oldest past master. Antioch Commandery, No. 6, United Templar, had an escort. Burial was in the family lot in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Local Phyician Welcomes Doctors At Cumberland

At a meeting which brought to Cumberland a number of the most learned physicians of the country, Dr. Henry W. McComas, president of the Garrett-Allegany County Medical Society, made the address of welcome and spoke eloquently for that society.

Dr. N. I. Broadwater and Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, local physicians, were also present at the Public Health meeting.

Nationally known men who were present at the meeting, included Drs. Bloodgood, Cullen, Lewis and Rowland.

March Non-Jury Term In Session Monday

The March non-jury term of Court was in session on Monday when Judge Albert A. Doub, of Cumberland, presided. The session was of short duration and adjourned early Monday afternoon. The docket was called and judgments were entered in uncontested cases. In the case of James Nugent and wife against Louis Waingold, which case was tried during the December Term, 1926, at which time judgment of $500 was entered for the plaintiff, a motion by the defendant was heard for a new trial. The plaintiff remitted $100 on account of judgment and the motion for the new trial was overruled and judgment was entered for $400.00 in favor of the plaintiff.

During the December Term, when George E. Arthur was sentenced to a term in the Maryland Penitentiary for the abduction of Elva Kitzmiller, Miss Kitzmiller was paroled in the custody of Sanford A. Moon and sister. Mr. Moon and sister asked the Court to be released on Monday, and accordingly the Kitzmiller girl was paroled to the custody of William W. Harvey and wife, of Gorman.

DIED.

CLARA MIRANDA MOSSER

Miss Clara Miranda Mosser died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bennet, near Kempton, Wednesday, March 16th, after a brief illness. Miss Mosser was aged 56 years, 5 months and 21 days. She leaves two sisters and four brothers, Mary and Adam E. at home, Wm. C. at Ashland, Ohio, James E., Lakeville, Ohio, S. V., Mt. Lake Park, and Mrs. Elmira P. at McCleary Levels, W. Va.,

The funeral service was held Friday afternoon, March 18th, at 3:00 o'clock at St. Luke's Lutheran church, Red House. Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, officiated.

HENRY SHAFFER

Mr. Henry Shaffer, who was in failing health for several months, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ridder Wednesday, March 16th. He was aged 80 years and 20 days.

Mr. Shaffer was the last of his family. He leaves Messrs. Floyd and Elmer Shaffer,, nephews, and Mrs. Ernest Ridder, a niece, with whom he lived at the time of his death.

Brief services were conducted at the home Friday afternoon at one o'clock, the funeral sermon being preached in St. Luke's Lutheran church, Red House, at 2 o'clock. The church was filled with friends who shared this last rite. Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, officiated.

Oakland High School Notes

"Pa's New Housekeeper" is the title of the play to be presented in the High school auditorium Friday, March 25, at 2:30 o'clock. If you want to laugh come and see this play. The characters are as follows:

Pa Jackson, a widower, who has decided intentions, Harold Yutzy; Jimmie Jackson, his son, who disapproves of them, James Dodge; Jack Brown, Jimmie's chum, who helps to thwart them, Mitchell Franklin; Mattie Jackson, Jimmie's sister, who cannot understand them, Dorothy Stevenson; Molly Holbrook, her friend, who becomes involved in the affair, Pauline Smouse.

This play is well worth the charge of ten cents admission. The proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the Athletic Association. Be sure to come. Make no other plans for Friday afternoon, March 25.

WIND-STORM WRECKS CHURCH AT GORMANIA

Houses Unroofed, Trees Uprooted And Barn Destroyed Saturday

Accompanied by a torrential rain and hail storm, a wind of tornado-like proportions struck the Oak Grove section of the county Saturday afternoon, damaging homes and buildings and uprooting trees. Damage caused by the wind is estimated at several thousand dollars.

The storm, as far as can be learned, started in the Oak Grove section in the southern end of Garrett county, and traveled in an easterly direction until it reached Gormania where it seemed to center and where the most damage resulted.

At Oak Grove a large barn belonging to George Harvey was destroyed and parts of the frame were carried for a quarter of a mile or more.

At Gormania, West Va., which is across the Potomac River from Gorman, Garrett county, the Methodist church, a substantial frame structure, was lifted from its foundation, thrown over on its side, one end torn out and the steeple wrecked. The church is a total wreck. It was protected by fire insurance but not by wind insurance.

Considerable damage was also done to the store buildings belonging to C. W. Elrick. M. Aronhalt and T. G. Hanlin. A large bark shed, owned by the J. G. Hoffman & Sons Tanning Co., was torn down by the wind which also unroofed many dwellings and shattered windows. Fruit and forest trees in the path of the storm were uprooted. The wind traveled in a streak and houses on either side of its path were unharmed.

RED HILL CURVE CLAIMS TWO MORE VICTIMS

Two Killed and Five Hurt When Two Autos Have Head-on Collision

The famous Red Hill curve on the National Highway between Frostburg and Cumberland, claimed two more lives Tuesday evening about 5:30, when two automobiles met in collision, reducing both cars to a mass of junk. Samuel M. Everstein, 45 years of age, of Frostburg was killed outright and Miss Catherine A. Sullivan died last night at the Allegany Hospital, Cumberland as a result of the accident. The injured are, Salem B. Hayes, Frostburg; Blays Peddicord and Frank Peddicord, Cumberland.

Several Oakland people on their way to attend the Public Health meeting in Cumberland arrived at the scene a few minutes after the accident and were delayed in getting into Cumberland on account of the road being blocked by the wrecked machines. The electric trolley line between Cumberland and Frostburg was tied up for nearly an hour by the wreckage.

An Oakland man, Mr. Charles Liller, lost his life on Red Hill curve in a head-on collision on July 20, 1916.

Pythians Will Attend Theatre Party At The Maryland

The membership of the local order, Knights of Pythias, are to be the guests of Mr. Bernard I. Gonder, manager of the Maryland Theatre, at the show tomorrow evening. All members of the organization present at the regular session of the lodge tomorrow evening will be presented with a ticket of admission to the pictures and those present will go to the show in a body.

A large delegation of Knights of Pythias went by automobile to Terra Alta last Friday evening where they were guests of Alpine Lodge. A delightful program was arranged by the hosts and refreshments were served. Among the local members who were on the program were Mr. J. C. Renninger, Dr. H. W. McComas, and Mr. W. W. Dawson, all of whom delivered addresses. "Bill" Gibson entertained both lodges by many piano selections, and Prof. Mickey, who directed the combined bands of Crellin and Oakland, added much to the success of the evening's entertainment.

The membership of the local lodge expressed their thanks to the Terra Alta lodge for their consideration and the royal reception which was accorded them while in the lodge room and in the town of Terra Alta.

U. OF MD. BEEF SPECIAL TO BE HERE APRIL 4

Demonstrations In Meat Cutting And Lectures Will Be Given By Experts.

A special train, known as the "Beef Special," operated by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in conjunction with the University of Maryland, is scheduled to be at the B. & O. depot in Oakland on Monday, April 4.

Exhibitions of live cattle, various cuts of beef; demonstrations in the cutting and preparation of meat, and lectures by Government and State experts will be features. The event is open, free to the general public.

J. L. McGlone, County Agent, and Miss Lola Belle Green, County Demonstrator, are in charge of the local arrangements for the visit of the special train and will assist those in charge of it.

Lectures To Interest Farmers

The "Better Beef" special will consist of a flat car for demonstration purposes; two cars of cattle, showing the five different marketing breeds; a refrigeration and express car containing cuts of meat, and two lecture coaches.

Each exhibit in the various cars will be fully explained to the visitors.

The lectures will be as follows: "Meeting of the Market Demands," by K. A. Clark, of the University of Maryland; "Quality in Meat," by an official of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry; "Selection and Preparation of Meats," by Miss Inez S. Willison of the National Live Stock Board.

The train will arrive at the station here, as near as can be determined at this time, at 10 a. m., and will remain the entire day.

DRY ENFORCEMEUT IS PUT ON ITS OWN LEGS

Sweeping Orders Issued Divorcing It From Bureau Of Internal Revenue After April 1

Prohibition enforcement will cease to be a government "side issue" after April 1.

Sweeping orders were issued recently by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon providing for absolute divorce of prohibition from the Bureau of Internal Revenue and setting up in the treasury of an independent dry bureau.

The prohibition machine henceforth must move along on its own steam. Duties of the new prohibition commissioner will be routine, simply carrying out of orders issued by Andrews and Mellon.

Mellon's orders marked the start of the supreme effort of the government to dry up the country, equipped with sufficient machinery, and fairly effective laws, the prohibition army, assuming a "now or never" attitude, admitted that if the national prohibition act can't be enforced under present conditions it probably never can be.

Pythian Sisters Hold Initiation

Last Monday evening the Pythian Sisters of Garrett Temple, No. 17, initiated a class of candidates into the mysteries of the order, and it is said that the degree team performed their duties in a most commendable manner. After the initiation ceremonies the refreshment committee, composed of Mrs. Milburn Mann, Mrs. C. A. Whorton and Mrs. Charles Newman, served delicious refreshments.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire in this manner to thank those who were so kind to my mother during her recent illness, and also those who so kindly expressed their sympathies after her death and assisted in so many ways to make the burden lighter. To those who loaned thoir cars for the funeral, I feel indeed very grateful.

EDWARD WALLACE

Mr. Walter W. Dawson, delegate to the convention of Rotarians which was held in Salishury, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and Mr. Joseph E. Harned and Prof. F. E. Rathbun, who also attended the convention, returned to Oakland Wendesday morning. At the convention Mr. Ridgley P. Melvin, of Annapolis, was elected governor of the 34th District, of which the Oakland Club is a member. York, Pa., was selected for the 1928 conference.

GARRETT COUNTY GIRLS POPULAR AT FROSTBURG

Miss Casteel and Miss Custer Interested In Many Activities At State Normal.

The following items, which are of interest to a host of friends in Garrett county of both of the young ladies mentioned on the Frostburg page of the Cumberland Daily News in its edition of Sunday last, regarding their various activities in the State Normal school of Frostburg, are clipped for the readers of The Republican:

Among the out of town students, who have been residing at the State Normal School during the past two years is Miss Virginia Casteel, of Oakland, who graduated from the Oakland High School in 1925 and entered the State Normal in the Autumn of the same year. She is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret E. Casteel and a girl who is well and favorably known in Garrett county.

Among the activities in which she has figured most prominently at the State Normal School are the following: Treasurer of the Y. W. C. A.; member of the Glee Club; secretary of the Student Council; Member of the Dramatic Club; business manager of the Athletic Association. Last December Miss Casteel took the stellar role in "Sunset", the Christmas play presented by her section of the Senior class.

The State Normal School has proved most attractive to Garrett county and no town in the county has sent more students than Grantsville.

Miss Myra (Billie) Custer, a graduate of Grantsville High school with the class of 1924, is one of the Grantsville girls now in attendence at the State Normal School. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Custer and is well known in Frostburg and in various sections of her home county.

Miss Custer was a member of the chorus of the Elk's Minstrel, which was held in February, and has been greatly interested in the various activities of the State Normal School. She is chairman of the third section of the Senoir class; member of the Dramatic Club and secretary of the Science Club. Miss Custer took part in a specialty number presented in connection with "The Fortune Hunter," a play given last Autumn by Normal students under the direction of Miss Carrie Ricketts.

Lateral Road Bill Signed

Governor Ritchie last night signed the 1½ cent gasoline tax increase bill for the construction and maintenance of lateral roads. The measure becomes effective, as an emergency measure, on April 1, by the Governor's direction. Estimated revenue from the tax is $1,500,000 per year, of which twenty per cent will be allotted to Baltimore City.

Local Option Bill

The Governor also placed his signature on twenty-five other bills. Included among them are the Garrett county local option bill, which prohibits manufacture of intoxicating liquor in the county. In affixing his signature to the measure the Governor issued a statement explaining his action.

"The local law of Garrett county," he said, "adopted by refrendum to the people in November, 1914, already prohibits the sale and keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors. This bill prohibits their manufacture under the same penalty. It is considered by the Garrett county delegation as necessary for the county under present conditions, and as desired by the majority of the county people."

"The Democratic platform of 1926 favored enforcement of the various local laws on this subject. For these reasons, I am approving the bill."

Sleuth's Salary Increased

The Governor also signed Delegate Harris' bill to place an expert in charge of the Bureau of Identification in the office of the State's Attorney of Allegany county at an annual salary of $2,000, and two bills by Delegate Etzler, which enables the town of Thurmont, in Frederick county, to borrow $20,000 for local improvements.

CARD OF THANKS

To the good neighbors and friends who were so kind and who helped during the sickness and after the death of our beloved mother, we tender our sincere thanks and appreciation, also the ones who contributed the beautiful floral offerings.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. SHAFFER.

FIRE DESTROYS CUSTER HOME NEAR GRANTSVILLE

Mother With Day-Old Baby Has Harrowing Experience—Other Grantsville News

By G. W. Diefenbach

Grantsville, Md., March 23,—Last Friday morning about 8:30 the farm home of Mr. Harvey Custer, located about a mile northeast of Jennings, was burned with a great deal of the contents. Fortunately, none of the family were injured, except Mr. Custer, who received a burn on the scalp.

Mrs. Custer was sick, there having been a child born unto her the previous day. Mrs. Custer first learned of the fire, which started on the upper floor, probably from a defective flue, and dragged herself from her bed and fled with her baby to the barn to notify the other members of the family. Mr. Custer immediately began removing such furniture as could be gotten out, but lost much of the contents, not being able to get anything from the upper floor. It is not known whether the building was insured or not. The Custer family is living with Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Custer until other arrangements can be made. Mrs. Custer is getting along well, according to latest reports, despite her harrowing experiences.

The K. C. Dramatic Club of the Lutheran Sunday school realized nearly a hundred dollars from their play, "Art, for heart's sake," which was given recently in the hall here. It was well played and the stage setting was much admired. They will give the performance again in Salisbury in the Grange Hall on Friday evening of this week, under the auspices of the Salisbury Grange.

The Senior class of the High school is making a special study of the conservation of our natural resources in so far as they apply nationally, our state in particular and Garrett county specifically. One most interesting fact has been discovered and that is that Garrett county leads all others of the state in forest acreage. Figures based on a recent survey show that we have 274,483 acres of mixed hardwoods and pine; Charles county is next with 171,547 acres; our neighboring county, Allegany, third with 163,832 acres; Kent county with 33,776 acres is at the bottom of the list. It was recently announced by Karl E. Pfeiffer, Assistant State Forester, that a map of the forests of Maryland has been made, on a scale of eight miles to an inch and has had a large number of them prepared for distribution to the schools of the state. These maps show the lookout towers in the state, railroad lines, towns and cities of importance. It is believed that this map is the only one of its kind in the country.

One much needed improvement has been started, which is the reconditioning of the flag pole. It has been taken from its former position, painted, and a gilded ball placed on top of it. It is to be reset on Friday, the 25th, Maryland Day, and the raising of a new flag donated by the aid of contributions of the school children, all with proper ceremony. It is to be hoped that the improvement meets with popular approval and a financial response when approached, to help finance the expense attached to the improvement.

On St. Patrick's Day, the Freshmen entertained for the Sophomores at the school with a delightful party. The decorations were in keeping with the day, the refreshments in abundance and a most enjoyable social time was experienced by all.

According to latest advice from the Civilian Aide to the Secretary of War for the State of Maryland, three applications have already been received from Garrett county for attendance in the Citizens Military Training Camps for young men, for a month's training at the expense of their Uncle Samuel. Those expecting to attend these camps should register immediately with a member of the committee of which Prof. R. W. Webster of Grantsville is chairman, as there are but seven vacancies and doubtless will soon be filled. It is understood that there will be no C. M. T. C. at Camp Meade this summer as was announced earlier. The Infantry camp will be Fort Eustis, Va., and the Cavalry camp at Fort Meyer, Va. For training, recreation and an opportunity to see a part of the country, this is a most exxcellent opportunity for young men.

Beachy and Mrs. Harold Boucher, who entertained jointly, with a delicious dinner. The work in hand was a quilting, which furnished a pleasant and profitable day for all. The annual election of officers was held, resulting in the following: Mrs. Marshall Beachy, president; Mrs. C. A. Bender, vice president; Mrs. Ida Hershberger, secretary; Mrs. Noah Warnick, assistant secretary, and Mrs. Harry C. Miller, treasurer. Those attending the meeting were, Mesdames Noah Warnick, Albert Warnick, Harry C. Miller, Byron Bender, J. U. Stanton, C. A. Bender, Jacob Folk, Fred Folk, John H. Folk, Noah Miller, Nevin Broadwater, Fred Livengood, Ida Hershberger and J. A. Beachy.

A party and taffy pull was held at the home of Daniel Gingerich on Negro Mountain last Saturday evening by Harry Gingerich and Walter and Paul Wisseman. The evening was spent most pleasantly with singing, music, games and stunts. The refreshments consisted of cake, lemonade, maple sugar cakes and taffy. Those attending were, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Wisseman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zehner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Miller and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Baird, Gertrude, Ethel and Alvin Beachy, Walter Maust, Viola Butler, Lucile Drybaugh, Forest Whitehouse, Emma Lininger, Ruth and Floyd Cramer, Roscoe House, Mildred and Edith Opel, Ruth Miller, Verona Maust, Ralph Wright, Walter Otto, Leroy Swauger, George Kolbfleisch.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the New Germany school, Walter Alexander teacher, held their regular meeting last Friday evening at the school which was very well attended. Miss Kate Banatyne, Helping teacher, was the principal speaker, who explained the advantages of grade supervision in assisting the teacher of the country school and thereby keeping the pupils throughout the county up to a standard at all times.

Mr. G. J. Gnagey, the genial clerk and general handy man for his son, Jacob R. Gnagey, proprietor of the National Hotel, was reminded that he had a birthday on Wednesday of last week when he went to dinner. Much to his amazement and pleasure, there was a cake literally covered with candles and a number of presents awaiting him, followed by a regular birthday dinner. His guests were, J. R. Gnagey, Prof. R. R. Webster and Prof. I. M. Staley.

On Tuesday, March 24th at the home of Mrs. J. U. Stanton, the Grantsville Woman's Community Club will hold an all day meeting. Mrs. Helen McKinley, state clothing specialist will be present and will make a dress form. This meeting is open to all women of the community who are interested in getting new and helpful ideas about clothing. In the afternoon the Accident and Friendsville clubs will be present also.

The Meyersdale, Pa., Fire Department is rehearsing for an old time Minstrel show to be staged in Reich's Auditorium on April 6th and 7th. There isn't any doubt about the quality of the show, for the best local talent in the surrounding community is being drawn upon. This show should be well patronized because this is one of the ways the fire laddies have of combining pleasure with a means of getting the funds necessary to maintain their organization in a high state of efficiency and making it helpful throughout the surrounding country; when necessary risking even their lives to save human life and property of our community from the ravages of fire. Give the boys a boost.

Many evidences of spring are at hand—balmy days, sappy sugar water, pussy willows and lilacs putting forth and the wild geese flying north, however overcoats and mittens were very much appreciated yesterday, the weather having turned quite cold with a little snow in the air.

Mr. J. W. Baird, of High Point Camp, has returned home from Meyersdale where he went to visit his daughter, Mrs. W. E. Jobes several weeks ago and was detained because of an attack of grippe.

Dr. T. O. Broadwater is practicing in Friendsville this week.

Services in the churches next Sunday as follows: Methodist: Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. Lutheran: Sunday school at 9:15 a. m., and worship at 10:30. Reformed: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m., and worship at 10:30.

A very well attended meeting of farmers was held last night in the W. O. W. Hall, there being nearly a hundred persons present to hear more concerning the milk marketing project which has been agitated considerably of late. Mr. A. C. Stanton, Cashier of First National Bank was chairman of the meeting and introduced the principal speaker, Mr. A. H. Murray, one of the owners of the Menzie Dairy operating at McKeesport and Braddock, Pa., and also interested in the Myers and Powers Ice Cream Co., at McKeesport. This concern, Mr. Murray explained, besides owning the Keyser Ridge Creamery have milk plants at Rockwood, Pa., and other points to gather the milk and cream in; that they can handle all of the milk that can be produced; that with quality and a steady year round production prices will become better, as they can operate more economically than at present. He further explained that all tests are made by The Dairy Laboratories of Pittsburgh, an organization not connected with any of the dairies, thus assuring the farmers a fair and honest test of the milk sold them; that they do not enter into contracts for milk, thus leaving the farmer free and unhampered to sell where he wishes. Following Mr. Murray, Mr. Lloyd Vought, of the New Meyersdale Dairy assured the farmers that much more milk could be sold if it were available. Mr. H. S. Yoder gave some figures which show that it is twice as profitable to sell whole milk rather than turn it into butter, as is done at present to a large extent.

Mr. McGlone, County Agent, pointed out to the audience that it would be necessary to gradually adopt more approved methods for producing and handling milk, but that they would be more than repaid for making the necessary changes. He also urged the farmers to investigate very carefully the various offers laid before them, that a much brighter future for dairying was theirs for the taking.

Prof. M. W. Whiteford, Agricultural teacher in the High school, gave his experiences in the dairy business with questionable equipment and also with approved equipment and methods, and the financial advantages of modern methods.

Several members of the Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce were present.

While no definite conclusions were reached, it is certain that if the majority of milk producers will arrange to furnish a year around supply of milk under sanitary conditions they will realize a handsome return for their efforts and they should immediately take steps to profit from the opportunity presented.

Beginning next Monday, March 28, and running each evening to April 1st, a course in Dairying will be given by Dr. Devoe Meade, of the University of Mryland, Dairy Specialist. The meetings will open at 8 p. m. and will be held in the High school. This course is open to all. There are no charges as Dr. Meade is employed by the Extension Service of the University. He should have a class of 100 men and women every night next week. It's to help the Dairyman—So Mr. Dairyman help yourself by attending.

Arthur Custer and wife motored to Hopemont, W. Va., last Sunday and made a visit to Mrs. Bertha Custer McCarty, who is a patient at that institution, and whose condition, we are glad to report, is much improved.

James Friend and family, of Friendsville, and Paul Dewitt, wife and little son, of Oakland, were among the number who spent Sunday at the home of D. C. Dewitt's.

Asa Friend and family were day visitors at the home of Ja Rush, near Accident.

Cecil Smith and wife were cal on the former's parents a few hour Sunday evening.

Goodyear's New Balloon Tire We Have It !

Ever since Balloon Tires were introduced, Goodyear has been experimenting with tread designs to develop a tread which would match the Goodyear Balloon Carcass made of Supertwist Cord.

Finally out of all these tests has come the new tire shown above.

It is the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread scientifically redesigned for Balloon Tire use.

The first big advantages of this new tread are traction and resistance to skidding.

The sharp edged diamond shaped blocks are placed in a semi-flat design so that they not only grip the road but they retain their usefulness longer than any non-skid tread ever before tried.

The second big advantage is long, slow, even tread wear as opposed to the "cupping" and uneven wear so noticeable in many other Balloon Tires.

And with these virtues of traction, non-skid and long wear this new tread is perfectly quiet and does not produce the vibration of many non-skid designs.

REVIEW: STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

If Ye Love Me, Ye Will Keep My Commandments.—John 14:15.

THE GREAT GAME

Just now the ball teams are busy getting ready for the season that lies just ahead and the papers are forecasting the winners among them. Some men have been signed up at unprecedented figures, others for less and some are dropped from the major rolls. And there is always a cogent reason for such shifts found in the quality of the men themselves. There are certain eommon principles that run thru all life whether it be that of the soul, of the body or of the mind and during these months we have been thinking of these as applied to God's players in the great game of the Christians life. The first six are concerned entirely with personal fitness for making the team.

They are men who feel the appeal of the call. Jesus was picking the members of that great team that all the world knows and Andrew, John, Peter and the rest signed up for life under his management. And down the centuries the same process has gone on and men of all races and tongues have heard as vividly as these members the summons to a place and have leaped to take it. They are given careful explanations of the spirit that must control the team; that of good will. Even when there is unfair treatment, when they are driven from the field by an unsportsmanlike crowd they are still to keep their attitude of good will as they go. "Love even your enemies," is the injunction of Jesus. They are furnished with a Rule Book, the Bible. This must be their constant study so that they may understand the rules of life that have been worked out by the masters of the art of holy living thru the long centuries in which only Hebrews played the game. In it are the stories of the victories won by Jesus and the first team He chose and of those who immediately followed them. Next comes the daily dozen, the setting up exercises of the soul in its prayer hours that personal fitness may be attained for the needs of the field. Then came the try-out for positions. Our Lord's tests for the place He was to fill are illuminating studies of the forms they take and the gruelling thoroughness of them. Finally there must be fair play in the sharing up of the gate receipts. Our Lord must be recognized with the money as well as with the management. If a player isn't honest here, there is a question of his final worth to the team.

The remaining six lessons are given over to the playing of the team whose members have been finally listed. Much depends upon their living quarters and upon them are based pretty nearly all the effectiveness of the members. In its close relationships are seen the developing spirit of self-sacrifice that is essential to a successful season. The church becomes the training camp in which is gained the technique of the game, the art of co-operation, and the effective team-play that becomes the means of securing pennants in the field. The community is the ball field upon which all the home games are played. If it fails to attract the entire population in some fashion then it has not done all that is expected of it by its Manager. If it fails to lift the whole life of the whole community to new levels of sportsmanship in all of life's relations the game has not been worth the investment in it by the supporters. Of course much of the successful working depends upon the publicity given to the work of the team and the importance of its improvement. So there is inaugurated a personal system of boosting that is meant to bring the last man, woman and child into loyal relationships and proud support on all occasions for "their team." If Christians can do that then the world is won for our Christ. Then comes the "World Series" for winning the allegiance of the entire race to the mastership of Jesus. It is a great game and if the scores are counted now it looks very far from being decided. Protestant Christians number only 10½ per cent of the world population and all Christian bodies only 35. The series is fortunately not finished and the bat of the Cross will yet bring in the winning run. The last lesson tells something of what comes after the season closes and the last game has been played. What joy there is in many a heart over that day of welcoming homeland and the greeting of the Lord of life.

SUGGESTIONS FOR REVIEWING

The beginners and primaries will use pictures in the working out of whatever plan may be desired. Perry's or Wild's are obtainable for a quarter, or some of the fine series that come from other houses that are more expensive may be used with large returns upon the money spent. Make the review as much a game as can be devised. The juniors respond to drill work and the things that have been emphasised during the quarter may become the item listed on cards to be drawn and the question answered by the drawer if he can, or by some other if he fails, the card to become the possession of the answerer. The one holding the most at the close will be the winner. The lesson number may be on the side of the card, the fact desired on the other and the drill may be to memorize the facts and recognize them from the numbers. Picking the team and playing the game may well become the guide for the thinking of a group of boys. The intermediates will follow the same suggestion with avidity and the qualities that bring successful life and the way of their expression in home, community, church and world life may offer another road to a real review. Contests are eagerly shared in and if inter-class arrangements can be made the interest will be deepened. For the seniors little essays on the Christian characteristics and their expression may be the best way of securing from each the reaction to the teaching of the quarter. A Christian Quality Chart may be made by listing the various items that have been considered during the quarter and checking off the ratings one gives himself against each. This is best given as a private assignment. It will be interesting if the scholars have sufficient belief in the teacher's fidelity to confidences to allow him to take their charts and make a class rating hy uniting the individual self-expressions. It would be a very valuable thing for the group. The young people and the adults might have a debate, Resolved: That the Christian Religion is to be the world religion. Listing the characteristics studied a comparative chart may be worked out for Mohammedism, etc., that will be vividly impressive. Above all things in all cases give the opportunity for the acceptance of Jesus as the Guide in the way of life we call Christian.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Andrew Beeman and Mary Beeman, his wife, by deed dated February 28, 1902, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 40, folio 406, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Also all that tract of land known as the "Hanekamp Farm," said property lying and being in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, about six miles from Lonaconing Town, in said State of Maryland, and described as follows:

Beginning at the beginning of the whole tract called "Savage Ridge" and running with the outlines of said whole tract, south forty degrees west, eighty perches, south fifty degrees east, one hundred perches, north seventy-seven and one-half degrees east, one hundred and three perches, north forty-five degrees east, one hundred and eighty perches to a stone pile, north twenty-two degrees east, fifty-six perches to a large stone pile and bounded chestnut tree, then crossing the whole tract aforesaid, north fifty-seven degrees west, one hundred and eighty perches to the given line of said whole tract, then with said given line to the beginning, containing three hundred and fourteen acres of land, more or less.

It being the same property whioh was conveyed unto William H. Green by Jacob Beeman by deed dated March 1, 1902, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 40, folio 507, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above two pieces or parcels of ground comprise all of one farm of a total of three hundred and sixty-three (363) acres, more or less, and contains the following improvements:

A six room substantial frame dwelling; a frame and log bank barn about thirty by fifty feet in dimensions; a wagon shed; an automobile shed; two springs of never-failing water situated close to the house. The soil is lime stone soil, and about one hundred acres of the same are cleared and under cultivation. There is an apple orchard of about sixty trees of an average age of twelve years. This farm will be offered and sold as a whole. It is situated about five miles from Avilton on Pea Ridge Road leading from Lonaconing to Avilton.

None of the timber upon the above farm will be sold, it having already been disposed of under certain contracts of sale heretofore executed, and the farm will be sold subject to the rights of the parties holding said contracts to remove the timber therefrom.

2. All that tract, piece or parcel of land known and distinguished in a sub-division of a tract of land called "Lochiel" as Lot Number Six, situate and lying in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, containing one hundred and sixty acres of land, more or less, which said property was conveyed to Ulysses S. Jackson by The Lochiel Lumber, Mining, Manufacturing and Improvement Company of Allegany County and others, by deed dated July 16, 1888, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, in Liber No. 41, folio 125, and being also a part of the same property which was conveyed by the said Ulysses S. Jackson and Susan L. Jackson, his wife, to Thomas J. Rayner and Mary E. Rayner, his wife, by deed dated September 23, 1914, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County aforesaid, and it being also the same property which was conveyed by Richard S. Bell, Assignee of Mortgage, to Rebecca Clark hy deed dated April 24, 1924, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County aforesaid in Liber No. 86, folio 599, reference to all of which deeds is made for a more full and particular description of this proprety.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green hy Rebecca Clark, widow, by deed dated May 26, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 88, folio 63, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above farm is improved by a five room log and frame dwelling house, a small barn and other outhuildings. The property contains a good never-failing spring near the house, and an apple orchard of about thirty trees of an average age of twelve years. The soil is of lime stone, and about fifty acres of it are cleared and under cultivation. The timber on this farm will pass to the purchaser, and will not be reserved at the sale.

TRUSTEES' SALE
OF A VALUABLE
FARM PROPERTY
Meshack Mattingly Farm In District No. 6, of Garrett County

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, sitting in Equity, dated the 26th day of February, 1927, and passed in a cause wherein Martha Collins Dodge, Admrx. et al. were plaintiffs and William Mattingly et al. were defendants, the same being No. 2727 Equity on the docket of said Court, the undersigned trustee will on

SATURDAY, APRIL 9th, 1927,

at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder all of that farm in District No. 6 of Garrett county of which the late Meshack Mattingly died, seized and possessed, as follows:

1. All of that tract of land known as "Fayette" containing 200 acres and Military Lots Nos. 4148 and 1677, containing 100 acres. These parcels being the same which were described in a deed from Catherine Townshend to Dominick Mattingly dated December 17, 1853, and recorded in Liber 11, folio 359, one of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and title to which became vested in said Meshack Mattingly by a series of conveyances mentioned in the papers in this cause and filed therein. Parts of Military Lots Nos. 1668 and 1669 containing 46 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Daniel Smith and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated September 30, 1869, and recorded in Liber 31, folio 184, one of the Land Records of Allegany county; part of Military Lot No. 4146 containing 16 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Samuel Ferguson to said Meshack Mattingly dated January 1, 1876, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 2, folio 337, one of the Land Records of Garrett county; part of a tract of land called "Warrington," containing 9½ acres and part of Military Lot No. 1498 containing 6¾ acres, described in a deed from Wm. Dewitt and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No 6, folio 418, one of said Land Records.

Excepting, however, those parcels of land which were conveyed by said Meshack Mattingly and wife to William Dewitt and Mary F. Sebold by deed dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 6, folio 485, etc., and September 17, 1881, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 5, folio 775, etc., of the Land Records of Garrett county; and by Mary P. Mattingly, widow, et al, to W. A. Smith by deed dated September 21, 1912, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 64, folio 247, one of said Land Records. The remaining portion of said farm to be sold containing about 316 acres.

2. The timber on the portion of the above farm bounded on the west by the land formerly owned by Hamill Casteel, on the south by the Marion Hoye land and on the south-east by George Sebold's land will be excepted from the above and will be sold separatey on the day of sale. Further information relative to this can be obtained by any interested person from the trustees.

The above farm is well located, a very considerable portion thereof is cleared and under cultivation; is improved by two dwellings, barn, stable and other necessary outbuildings, has a good orchard and would make an excellent farm home.

Terms of Sale:—As prescribed by the decree, one-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and one-third in twelve months, or all cash at the option of the purchaser; credit portion to bear interest and to be secured to the satisfaction of the trustees.

GEORGE L. WELLINGTON.

The passing of Senator George L. Wellington reminds us of the large part he once played in the politics and affairs of his State. His health broke 15 years ago and so he had not figured in the strains and strivings of the new generation, but while he was in the game there was action, and he was in the center of it.

He was a man of force and courage. His was the romance of the poor boy rising to riches and power. Practically without schooling he became a deep student and educated himself remarkably. He had the grit of the political speaker and held his audience. He became sub-treasurer at Baltimore, was elected to Congress in the Sixth district, and finally to the United States Senate, breaking the tradition that one of the United States Senators from Maryland should be from the Eastern Store. His greatest bit of political work in Maryland was his management of the campaign which elected Lloyd Lowndes Governor. The election profoundly affected the destinies of the State.

Being a financier and industrial leader, he prospered with the prosperity of Cumberland and was charitable with his wealth. There is sorrow over his death, not only among his old friends but among those who fought him politically and found him a worthy antagonist.—The Baltimore News.

SPEAKING OF DOGS

Following attacks on a number of persons a few days ago, by dogs believed to be mad, a general round up of stray dogs has been ordered by the Grand Jury of Baltimore county, to protect men, women and children from further injury by rabid or vicious animals running at large, and to prevent the spread of rabies—hydrophobia, as it is also called—among dogs and other animals.

Commenting on this announcement, Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, Chief of the Pasteur Division of the State Department of Health, said that measures of this sort have been a necessity in every part of the country as a means of checking the marked increase in rabies in dogs and other animals, and the corresponding increase in the number of persons bitten or otherwise injured by such animals.

In some places, he said, the Japanese plan of requiring vaccination of all dogs against rabies, is being followed. As this has not been undertaken in Maryland except by a few private individuals, the impounding of all stray dogs and the close observation of sick animals is a necessary safeguard.

Some idea of the increase of rabies in Maryland can be gathered, Dr. Rohrer said, from reports made to the State Board of Health. Since the Pasteur Division was organized in 1915, over 2,000 persons have been bitten or otherwise injured by mad or vicious dogs or other animals, and have applied to the State Department of Health for the Pasteur treatment, which, if administered in time, protects from the terrible and fatal consequences of injury by rabid animals. Of that total, nearly half—1012—were injured in the last two years. The total number applying for treatment in 1926 was 404 and in the case of 138 persons, the animals inflicting the injuries were found to be rabid and the Pasteur treatments were given, 37 by the Department and 101 by the family physicians.

The fact that not only dogs but other animals may become rabid was emphasized by Dr. Rohrer in explanation of his advice:

"Let all stray dogs alone. Don't fondle sick animals. Keep them under careful observation, and call in the nearest veterinarian."

Dogs, cats, dairy cattle, sheep, hogs, horses and one rabbit, were found to be rabid in tests made in connection with injuries to persons in Maryland in the last two years.

COMMISSIONERS' MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Md., will meet on for the purpose of transacting routine business. All persons having claims against the County are requested to file same with the Clerk on or before this date.

W. G. MEYERS, Clerk.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Carmel, N. Y. March 21.—The former Frances ("Peaches") Heenan today lost her suit for separation and alimony from her 'Cinderella man," Edward West Brwoning. Judge Seeger failed to find any of Mrs. Browning's charges of cruelty supported by the evidence and granted a separation to Browning on the ground his wife had abandoned "his bed and board forever."

Washington, March 19.—Cleveland's bid for the next Republican national convention was handed to President Coolidge today by Carmi Thompson, Ohio Republican leader. Mr. Thompson said Cleveland also was anxious to get the Democratic convention.

Little Rock, Ark., March 19.—Successive tornadoes left areas of suffering today in Southwest and Central Arkansas. At least 28 and probably more were dead. Visitors leaving the isolated town of Green Forest, had heard of 15 bodies found and of 50 to 75 injured. Twelve of the dead were named. Doctors and nurses have been rushed to the scene of the disaster.

Baltimore, Md., March 17.—A resolution recommending a state law requiring all teachers of public and private schools to take an oath of allegiance to the United States Government was adopted today by the Maryland state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Washington, March 22.—Additional federal judges for Maryland and Western New York will be named soon by President Coolidge. Several names have been submitted for each post but Mr. Coolidge expects to reach a decision at an early date. He is prompted to make the recess appointments by the crowded condition of the dockets in both states.

Shanghai, China, March 23.—A detachment of forty United States Marines this morning was hurried out to reinforce the British troops holding the Markham bridge, on the border between the international settlement and native district of Chapei.

Cumberland, Md., March 23.—Mrs. Ruth Pearl Franklin, now of Hagerstown, was granted a partial divorce from Dr. A. Leo Franklin, of Cumberland, in a decree filed yesterday in the Allegany County Circuit Court, by Judge Albert A. Doub. In bringing to an end the long pending divorce litigation, Judge Doub awarded Mrs. Franklin custody of her infant child, Ruth Yvonne Franklin, and $2400 a year alimony, payable in monthly installments, until further orders of the court. Maintenance and support of the child is included in the alimony allowance. Dr. Franklin was ordered to pay the costs of the litigation. The decree was passed by the court after Dr. Franklin withdrew his cross bill for divorce, abandoning his charge of infidelity. Mrs. Franklin filed suit for a partial divorce from Dr. Franklin last September, alleging that he forced her from their home and would not permit her to return. Soon afterwards Dr. Franklin entered a cross bill asking divorce on the grounds of infidelity. The main difference at the time the couple separated was over the custody of the infant daughter. The court finally awarding the child to Mrs. Franklin pending the outcome of the divorce litigation. Since that time Mrs. Franklin and her daughter have been making their home with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Funkhouser, in Hagerstown. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Franklin was Miss Ruth Funkhouser.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 23.—With the expiration of the present wage contracts ten days away, both union miners and operators in bituminous districts do not know whether a tie-up will occur on April 1st, and if it does, to what extent. Districts outside the Central Competitive Field, whose contract is a basis of all fields, have been discussing continuation of the present relations will determine the action of the policy committee. A general strike is regarded as likely, if operators representing less than 60,000,000 tons production reject that tentative agreement. The miners are pledged to stand firm on the present scale. While operators and miners in several outlying districts have agreed to continue temporarily the present contract, the Indiana overture is the first in the central field, the coal industry's battlefield.

Baltimore, Md., March 23.—Twenty new locomotives, to be delivered to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad by the Baldwin Locomotive Works next week, will be placed in passenger service between Washington and New York. The new engines will be painted olive green, striped with red and gold and will bear the names of Presidents from Washington to Arthur.

The Republican Job Printing Department is always ready to serve you.

BITTINGER.

All the signs of spring—song birds innumerable, myriads of croaking frogs, small boys seeking angle worms, housewives in the garden and plow-boys in the field, bring us welcome anticipation of the coming of the good old summer time.

The continued fine weather and mild temperature has seemed to have brought to an end the annual sugar making in this section, as it is reported that the sap has already begun to appear in the sugar trees, which impairs the flavor and quality of whatever syrup and sugar may yet be made.

Miss Violet Stephens, of New Germany, was the guest of Miss Ethel Bittinger, at her home here on Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Leonora Wiley was shopping in Grantsville last Saturday.

Mrs. T. B. Wiley, of Grantsville, spent the week-end with reatives here.

Roy Beal, of Coal Run, Pa., spent Sunday visiting his sister, Mrs. Elmer Shawley, at the Shawley home near hear.

F. M. Bittinger made a business trip to Accident one day last week.

Rev. E. E. Campbell, of this village, was called to Grantsville last week to assist in a series of meetings being held in the Lutheran church there. Rev. Campbell delivered the Friday evening sermon.

Mrs. Charles H. Wiley and children spent Sunday with Mrs. Wiley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brenneman, at their home at North Glade.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Platter, of Jennings, were callers in this village recently.

OAK GROVE

Everyone in this section is enjoying the beautiful March weather, but expect to see snow yet.

The farmers in this section have been busy plowing the past few weeks.

At this writing "sugar making" seems to be a thing of the past ,but we have had a fairly good season.

The hurricane on last Saturday did much damage to our community. It tore down a large hay barn belonging to Mr. Geo. Harvey, and carried some of it for a quarter of a mile. At Gormania, two miles from here, it completely wrecked the M. E. church and did considerable damage to the stores belonging to C. W. Elrick, M. Aronhalt and T. G. Hanlin, besides the many roofs it tore off.

On Thursday evening, March 10, Mr. Geo. Harvey had a "sugar boiling" which many from Gormania as well as from Oak Grove attended. The Oak Grove band furnished the music for the occasion and a delightful evening was spent by all present.

Mrs. C. L. Wilkins, of Mt. Lake Park, was visiting in our community a few days ago.

Master Jerry Harvey, of Bayard, was visiting his friend Wayne Harvey, one day last week.

William Shreve had a very narrow escape the other day while cutting timber.

The Oak Grove Boys' Band is doing nice under the direction of Prof. H. S. Mickey. They expect to make a tine showing this summer.

DEER PARK.

Mrs. Jennie Freeland has returned home after spending the winter at the home of Mrs. Dodge.

Mrs. G. O. Goss and children spent the week-end at Rowlesburg.

Miss Dorothy Welch, of Swanton, spent Saturday in our town.

Mrs. E. Fitzwater was given a birthday dinner on Sunday. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Beckman, daughter and two sons, Mrs. G. C. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fitzwater, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzwater, Mr. George Fitzwater, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. George and daughter, Eunice.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lipscomb have moved into a portion of the C. H. Browning house.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hardesty and children have returned to Bobtown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Soelters and two sons were visitors of Mr and Mr. Bert Welch at Oakland on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kemphfer and family, of Oakland, visited E. B. King on Sunday.

Mr. Walter Hardesty, of Morgantown, is visiting his mother, at this place.

Mr. F. N. Reis, of Baltimore, came to his home on Thursday and is now confined to his bed with a severe case of mumps.

The stereoptican slides, "Man, God's Partner," shown on Sunday night, made very plain the topic pertaining to Stewardship.

Lenten services will be held from April 3rd until Easter in the M. E. church.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Collars and Leslie Rodeheaver attended church at Crellin on last Friday night.

Miss Olive Chadderton, of Fairmont, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. Haines.

Miss Margaret Campbell spent Saturday in Oakland with relatives.

SPRING GLADE.

Our school is progressing nicely under the direction of Miss Nellie French as principal.

Miss Mabel Brown is visiting relatives in this community.

The Oakland callers from this community on Saturday were, Mr. DeWitt Minard, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller and Miss Nellie French.

Mrs. Ronald Michael was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller on Saturday evening.

Mrs. DeWitt Minard has been on the sick list.

Mrs. Edward Cooper spent Thursday at the home of DeWitt Minard.

Mr. Hugh Mayle spent a few days at Boiling Springs.

Home-Makers Club Hold Meeting

The Home-Makers meeting held at the Parish house of the M. E. church, last Friday afternoon was one of unusual interest.

The subjects for the day's discussion were relative to the causes and treatment for over-weight and underweight. The discussion was in charge of Miss Lola Belle Green, County Demonstrator, who laid stress on the importance of proper food to maintain good health. Dr. Roberts gave an interesting and comprehensive talk on the proper diet for the undernourished child, emphasizing the importance of the cooperation between the parent and the doctor regarding the child, and the observance of the rules set down by the doctor regarding the diet.

During a recreational period, a puzzle entitled "The farmer's love letter," was gaily solved under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Shilke.

U. S. Authority Sees Ample Motor Fuel for Long Future

HARRY H. HILL
©HARRIS & EWING

WORKERS IN GAS MASKS AT AN OIL WELL

MR. HILLS IMPROMPTU SKETCH OF AN OIL DOME

EXPERIMENTAL OIL SHALE REDUCTION PLANT

The U. S. Bureau of Mines is confident that motor fuel supplies will be ample for many years to meet all needs of the country's millions of automobiles. Harry H. Hill, chief petroleum engineer of the Bureau, here tells the reasons for this conviction, and sketches the advances in industrial methods which justify his opinions.

By HARRY H. HILL
Chief Petroleum Engineer, United States Bureau of Mines.

ONE reason why there is no reason to worry greatly about motor fuel for a long time ahead is, that people are worrying about it. Interest in such a question at the right time, is the best insurance against disaster. The President and the Federal Oil Corporation Board have done what was needed, at the right time.

We know that most petroleum has come from rather limited areas and that even from these only a small proportion has been taken out. Oil produced by gas pressure capable of lifting it to the surface when we drill holes is but a small proportion of all the oil contained in the sands. Even from the best pools recovery by the old methods is small, perhaps one-half in the most favorable conditions, oftener one-sixth, or one-seventh, or one-tenth. But a considerable part of what still remains in the ground can be recovered by methods now established as technically and economically practicable.

Producing oil from coal and shales and by mining the oil bearing sands is entirely possible. Experiments are going on in these directions, and if we ever have to fall back on these resources we will be ready. For a long time, however, the present methods of exploration and drilling, with improving processes to assure larger recoveries, are likely to suffice.

An Oil Dome Illustrated

I am no draughtsman, but maybe I can draw something that will help explain. Here'e a rough drawing of an oil dome. The shaded part at the bottom is a deposit of oil bearing sands—with an impervious rock stratum above. A wild-catter drilled the bole A-B and gas pressure caused oil and gas to flow. After a while the gas pressure wasn't sufficient to keep up the flow and they pumped until ultimately even this ceased producing.

Nevertheless, most of the oil was still left sticking to the sand grains. Then the operator drilled the well C-D, which flowed for a time, but most of the oil was still down there in the sand. If the gas pressure could be restored more would flow. So the operator injects gas into one well, restoring the pressure and causing the oil to resume flowing from the other. After a time the flow will stop again, but still much of the oil will be left. In some fields it has been possible to obtain additional amounts of oil by introducing water in some of the wells and forcing the oil to others. The addition of a chemical such as soda ash to the water may assist in removing the oil from the sand grains, but neither plain water nor water containing chemicals should be introduced into an oil sand except as a last resort, for it is likely that the water, which travels faster through the sand, will get to the open wells ahead of the oil and when the flow is resumed under pressure water will come out.

Everything Saved Nowadays

The gas escaping from an oil well carries with it a proportion of gasoline, which in the old days was lost. Nowadays it is extracted from the gas and saved, while the dry gas can be forced back into the ground to maintain pressure.

One of the menaces to most oil pools is the inflow of subterranean water. Water flows through the oil [illegible] and by surrounding the bottom of the well keeps the oil out. How to shut off the water and permit the oil to run out is a problem with which the engineers have long worked. They have made great progress and so increased recoveries.

In earlier times most oil producers carefully guarded all information about their wells and experiences, but latterly there is co-operation in these matters. Geologists and petroleum engineers, once derided by the "practical" oil men, are more and more accepted as guides and mentors. New knowledge is constantly increasing recoveries.

As to Mining for Oil

In Lorraine they have dug shafts down to the oil sands and actually brought the sands out, like coal from a mine. But it's costly.

Another mining process is to sink a shaft to the oil sands and from its bottom drive tunnels in all directions through the sands. From these tunnels small perforated pipes are driven into the sands, which drain the oil out of the sands. It flows to larger pipes back at the foot of the shaft and thence is pumped out. This requires installing an expensive plant, but in some fields the high recovery that is assured might justify the cost. I understand the process is about to be installed in a few fields in this country, some companies being convinced it is practicable and profitable.

Oil can be distilled from coal, and much work is now being done along this line. But more appeal has been made by the plan of extracting oil from shale. The shales of Scotland have been worked for three-quarters of a century, and they are almost unlimited in this country, richer in oil than those of Scotland. Kentucky, Ohio, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Wyoming and California are particularly rich in shales. It is just a question of the cost of extracting the oil. Congress has given $180,000, with which the Bureau has installed a plant near Rulison, Colorado, to distill oil from the Colorado River Shales. It is calculated that the shales mined at Rulison will produce about a barrel of oil to the ton.

The Use of Oil Shales

In Scotland they are working shales that produce about twenty-five gallons of oil per ton. The seams are from three-and-a-half to eight or ten feet thick. In Colorado are seams many times as thick and containing much more oil per ton. Reduction of shales involves an enormous mining operation, and after the oil is extracted the vast tonnage of refuse must be disposed of. So it is expensive compared with producing oil from wells.

Ben E. Lindsey of the Bureau of Mines Experiment Station at Bartlesville, Okla., is confident that exploration, better recoveries, better utilization and deeper drilling would furnish enough oil to meet all requirements for at least twenty-five to fifty years, if it could be extracted in that time. But as a practical matter this will not be possible. Within that period there will be times of shortage, when oil from shales will be needed to supplement the oil from wells, etc.

Meantime federal and state governments and the industry are co-operating in an astonishing range of investigations and studies. These activities cover such a wide field that even an enumeration of them would run into tiresome detail.

KTZMILLER ONE OF 663 COMMUNITIES CHOSEN

To Derive Benefit From Educational Plan of Chatauqua For The Coming Season

New York, March 22—Plans for a new approach to the public mind, which, it was declared, "will reverse the traditional method of education and begin with what people want to know rather than what others think they should be taught," were announced last night as the underlying policy of the National Community Foundation, which has been organized for the purpose of promoting a nation-wide program of popular education and culture for the town and country communities.

The announcement was made by Dr. S. Parks Cadman, General Samuel McRoberts, Will Irwin, and Albert Edward Wiggam, the New York committee, in making public the first formal statement of policy adopted by the trustees of the Foundation.

The statement of the board which includes among its members Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Charles F. Jenkins and Paul M. Pearson, declares that it is the Foundation's intent "to bring to popular education, both for adults and children, a new point of view" and that, in using Chautauqua as an agency it will endeavor to change the educational point of view of this institution as well as to improve its program.

"The methods used," the trustees declared, "will not be merely to impart information ,or to provide entertainment but to develop intellectual curiosity and cultural appetite, and to encourage and direct the impulse for self-expression—both individual and community self-expression."

The National Community Foundation's first project is to be worked out in 663 communities in fourteen states now served by the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association, of which Kitzmiller is one, and calls for an endowment of $5,000,000. This program is to be projected later through America.

"In each Community," said Mr. Irwin, Speaking for the New York Committe, "the people will form a local chapter of the Foundation. In order to insure that they will have a voice in the Foundation's policies their delegates will elect the national council which is to formulate the year's program. Such work is now being done in Kitzmiller, with the view of making the affair successful in that community.

"The actual Chautauqua program of three to seven days duration provides, once a year, a festival atmosphere in the towns and small cities which is best fitted to stimulate the enthusiasm of the adult and the youth in those matters which affect their future wellbeing and prosperity. By crystallizing this enthusiasm and interest in education and cultural subjects into group activities, study groups, dramatic and musical organizations, the Foundation plans step by step to provide its program on a year-round basis."

The statement of the board of trustees reveals the definite plans for improving the actual Chautauqua program. Lectures are to be given by men who speak with authority on subjects that immediately concern the individual and the community. Not one lecture but a series will be given on one subject. This plan which has been tested by such institutions as the University of California results in the formation of local groups desirous of further reading and study of the subject presented.

In explaining the musical and dramatic division of the program, Mr. Irwin said, "Though the circuit Chautauqua has made a definite pioneer contribution to the musical and dramatic development of communities, appreciation and understanding of these cultural pursuits has grown. The Foundation plans to bring metropolitan, musical and dramatic artists to encourage and assist local groups in their study and work."

Basing its year-round service on the vitalizing effect of personal contact the Foundation plans, according to the statement of the trustees, to supplement the work done during the Chautauqua program with an extension, educational and cultural department. Under the supervision of an educational director and his staff of trained assistants, extension representatives with the broadest educational background will follow up the inspiration given and the aspirations developed during Chautauqua week. By frequent visits, it was said, but with no attempt to superimpose any standardized program of study the extension representative will assist and stimulate local groups to continue their inquiries and study in those subjects in which they have shown interest; and will work with those who wish to develop musical and dramatic organizations. Cooperation with all agencies for cultural development at work in a community is planned.

The Foundation's program calls for a new type of education by correspondence so that its year-round service may be complete and not dependent alone on the visits of Chautauqua or its extension representatives.

The Foundation, it was said, will maintain a central information service which will direct groups or individuals to reliable sources of information such as public libraries, university extension courses and the American Library Association. It will compile and make available lists of books and material needed by the local study groups, and its program calls for the founding of a "loan library" of books and other printed matter for groups and individuals whose interest and activities carry them beyond the limits of local library facilities. This service is to be made available at a cost sufficient for mailing and clerical maintenance.

The statement of the board of trustees calls for an endowed correspondence service, the courses of which will be evolved as a natural growth to meet the developing interests of the local groups, as indicated by their chosen activities and requirements for information.

A committee of experts, composed of Dr. S. Josephine Baker, O. H. Benson, Elbert K. Fretwell and Owen R. Lovejoy, have prepared the Foundation's program to meet the children's needs in the towns and small cities. The name given to the work of this department is "Junior Town." The Foundation seeks to include in its service the 75 per cent of the children that are not reached by any educational or recreational organization. The method planned is that of developing self-expression through various projects adapted to the taste, experience, and environment of the children.

MT. LAKE PARK.

March is keeping up its old reputation of changeableness from balmy spring to cold rains and even snow. But real spring weather will soon be here, birds are here to stay.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Woods of England special friends of Rev. and Mrs. Aspinall, landed safely in New York after a rather stormy voyage from Liverpool, and are now enjoying our quiet mountain resort. The people of this community are invited to the parsonage Wednesday evening to meet and get acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Woods.

Mrs. A. V. Enlow entertained some of her friends on her birthday anniversary, the 9th inst.

Mrs. Oswald and daughter were summoned to Washington recently on account of the serious illness of Mr. Oswald. His condition is somewhat improved and Mrs. Oswald and daughter have returned to their home here.

After a visit to other places, Mr. and Mrs. Travers have returned to their Parkview Cottage, here.

Mr. Moomaw, our street commissioner, is busy putting the streets in shape for our comfort and also for the visitors who have begun to arrive for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spiker, of Terra Alta, were callers at J. A. Enlow's on Sunday afternoon.

The Father and Sons banquet Thursday night was well attended.

Rev. Aspinall preached two able sermons last Sunday, and began preparing a class of young people for admission into the church on Easter Day.

Dr. DeVoe Meade To Give Dairy Course At Grantsville

Dr. DeVoe Mead's services have been secured by Mr. M. W. Whiteford through County Agent McGlone for the purpose of giving a short course in dairying, and the course will be given at Grantsville on March 28, 29, 30 and 31.

Dr. Meade is head of the Animal Husbandry and Dairy department of the University of Maryland. He is nationally known for his work along these lines and is considered equal to any judge of dairy cattle. He is also noted for his ability to train boys in judging dairy cattle. He instructed the Boys Dairy Judging team which represented the United States in England.

Quite a few farmers in Garrett county know Dr. Meade and are interested in his lectures. Mr. Carl Frazee has informed the County Agent that he expects to drive to Grantsville to attend these meetings and will be very glad to take some farmers with him. He has requested the County Agent to arrange a party to accompany him. In view of this fact any interested farmer may receive information at the County Agent's office and leave their name, should they wish to attend this course with Mr. Frazee.

VOLUME 52. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, MARCH 31, 1927. NUMBER 6.

SENATE AND HOUSE BILLS EFFECTING GARRETT CO

In All There Are 7 Senate and 15 House Bills Presented

A copy of all of the Senate and House Bills presented at this session of the General Assembly has been received and a synopsis of each is given. The General Assembly is busy at this time disposing of a large number of bills that have accumulated, and much work remains to be completed before the clock strikes twelve on the night of Monday, April 4th, which ends the present session of the Assembly.

Senate Bill No. 140. Mr. Naylor. In The Senate. An act to increase the pay of the County Commissioners of Gerrett county to five dollars for each day's session of the board and to pay to them eight cents per mile, each way, for attending meetings of the board, but such mileage is to be allowed but once during a session.

Senate Bill No. 65. Mr. Naylor. An act which would give Justices of the Peace in Garrett county jurisdiction over certain cases involving amounts not exceeding two hundred dollars.

Senate Bill No. 291. Mr. Naylor. An act regarding the taxes of personal and real property in Mt. Lake Park.

Bill No. 171. Mr. Naylor, An act which would change the time for the holding of the two jury terms and the two non-jury terms of the Circuit Court for Garrett county. The two jury terms would be held the third Monday in March and the second Monday in September. The two non-jury terms would convene the first Monday of June and the first Monday of December.

Bill No. 292. Mr. Naylor. An act to provide for a bond issue by the Mayor and Town Council of Kitzmiller, Garrett county, for the erection of a river wall along the Potomac River to protect said town from river floods, and to submit the question of whether or not said bonds shall be issued to the legally qualified voters of said town.

Bill No. 342. Mr. Naylor. An act providing for the purchase of a farm by Garrett county and the establishment and maintenance thereon of a county home for the poor and other persons who are public charges of said county, and referring the question to the voters of Garret county.

Bill No. 432. Mr. Naylor. An act to authorize and direct the Conservation Department of Maryland to require all persons fishing or boating on the waters of Deep Creek Lake to secure a license, etc.

In The House

A Joint Resolution No. 14, entitled, A Joint Resolution requesting the State Roads Commission to build a bridge across the Potomac River between Kitzmillersville, Md., and Blaine, W. Va., provided the State of West Virginia pays half the cost, Maryland's share to come out of the Bridge Loan—In Senate.

Bill No. 102, entitled, An Act Providing that the county treasurer of Garrett county shall not be eligible to succeed himself—Signed by Governor.

Bill No. 154, entitled, An Act to increase the compensation of the crier of the Court to $3.00 per day—Signed by Governor.

Bill No. 188, entitled, An Act in reference to taxation of dogs—Signed by Governor.

Bill No. 203, entitled, An Act fixing the compensation to be paid the court bailiff for Garrett county—Signed by Governor.

Bill No. 261, entitled, An Act to prohibit the manufacture of intoxicating liquors within the limits of Garrett county, Md.—Signed by Governor.

Bill No. 339, entitled, An Act to regulate the catching of Rainbow Trout in the Youghiogheny River in Garrett county, Md., regulating the open season between July 1 and Dec. 1 and the size of fish to be removed from said waters, not to be less than eight inches—In Senate.

Bill No. 383, entitled, An Act providing for transportation for high school children—In Senate.

Bill No. 489, entitled, An Act to provide employment for persons committed to the county jail in Garrett county for failure to pay fines—In Committee.

Bill No. 508, entitled, An Act to repeal Chapter 153 of the Acts of 1924, entitled, An Act to provide for additional compensation for the Associate Judges of the Circuit Court for Allegany, Washington and Garrett counties, and authorizing and directing the County Commissioners of said counties to levy a tax sufficient to pay the same—Third Reading in House.

Bill No. 566, entitled, An Act to provide for the payment by the County Commissioners of Garrett county, Md., to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, so long as said Fire Department remains an active fire fighting organization, the sum of six hundred dollars ($600.00) annually for its benefit and for certain purposes, and to levy said amount on the assessable property of said county and to provide for the date on which said payment shall be made—In Senate.

Bill No. 600, entitled, An Act to authorize and direct the Conservation Department of Maryland to require all persons fishing or boating on the waters of Deep Creek Lake, located in Garrett county, now under lease to the State of Maryland by the Easter Land Corporation and the Youghiogheny Hydro Electric Corporation, to secure a license therefor, prescribing the manner in which said licenses are to be issued and the cost thereof, and how license fees are to be collected; authorizing the establishment of fish hatcheries thereon and providing for the maintenance thereof; defining the kinds and classes of boats which may be used thereon; requiring all owners of boats to secure a license therefor; prescribing the manner in which said licenses are to be issued, cost and manner of collection thereof; requiring the registration of boats; providing for the policing of said area and prescribing penalties for the violation of the provisions of this Act—In Committee.

Bill No. 619, entitled, An Act to regulate the use of motor vehicles owned by the State of Maryland or any political subdivision thereof, and to prescribe penalties for the violation thereof—In Judiciary Committee.

Bill No. 636, entitled, An Act to empower and direct the County Commissioners of Garrett county to borrow money on the credit of said county for the purpose of erecting public school buildings in the county of Garrett, and heating, furnishing and equipping the same, and to purchase or condemn real estate for the erection of the same, and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county and to issue bonds for the payment of said money and to levy taxes upon the assessable property of said county to redeem such bonds and to pay interest thereon. The bill does not carry a referendum—In Senate.

Bill No. 512, entitled, An Act to exempt from taxation certain real property of "The Evangelical Lutheran Church of Oakland," in the county of Garrett, so long as no revenue is derived therefrom—In Senate.

HOUSE IN DEBATE ON MARRIAGE LAW

Fight Over Bill Requiring 48-Hour Lapse Between License And Ceremony.

Considerable debate developed in the House Thursday on Delegate Conway's bill, which would require a lapse of 48 hours between the application for, and the issuance of, marriage license in the State.

Sentiment appeared well divided as to whether the bill should be made to apply to all persons, as it is now drawn, or only to non-residents of the State.

The measure came out of committee with an unfavorable report, but the report was not adopted, and so much discussion developed that the bill was made the order of special business.

Delegate Green offered an amendment which would exempt Allegany and Garrett counties from the operation of such a law, if enacted. He said the rigorous weather and consequently bad traveling conditions would make such a law a hardship on Western Maryland residents.

Despite a prolonged speech by Delegate Daniel Joseph, opposing any amendment which would interfere with the State-wide uniformity of the law, Delegate Green's amendment was adopted by a vote of 71 to 33. Many other amendments appeared in the offing.

Four Escape Injury When Car Turns Over Sunday

Mr. Bruce Glotfelty, in company with four other young men from the McHenry section, met with an automobile accident Sunday when the Dodge touring car in which they were riding skidded from the road near the intersection of the Hoyes road on the Accident State road, and turned over upon its side. The left side of the car was pretty badly damaged but the occupants fortunately escaped injury. The car was brought to the Treacy Garage where repairs were made.

Mrs. Frank O. Glotfelty returned to her home in Spokane, Washington, last Friday after having visited relatives in this section for a month or more.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS MARYLAND DAY PROGRAM

Dr. Thomas W. Koon Delivers Masterful Address At Mary-Theatre Sunday

A capacity house at the Maryland Theatre last Sunday afternoon enjoyed the Maryland Day program which was presented under the auspices of Proctor Kildow Post American Legion.

Dr. Thomas W. Koon, Mayor of the city of Cumberland, delivered the principal address for the occasion, in which he not only outlined very clearly the founding of the Commonwealth, but paid a glowing tribute to her sons and daughters for their State and national activities during times of peace and war. "History knows no other such example as the sacrifices of the sons of Maryland. Our Nation owes its existence to the men in the ranks, the men who in early days carried the musket and who in modern times directed with telling effect the latest of inventions in fire arms," stated Dr. Koon in his address.

Dr. Koon and his party were met by Lawrence M. Fraley, Mayor of Oakland, Dr. Henry McComas, a personal and fraternal friend of Dr. Koon, and Delbert Davis, commander of the local Legion Post and accompanied to the William-James Hotel where they dined at 12 o'clock noon.

Commander Delbert Davis presided during the program and made a few remarks concerning the activities of the Legion.

The program for the occasion was composed of the following numbers: Selection by the Orchestra, the singing of "America" by the audience; remarks by the chairman; selection by the orchestra; a reading, Henry Van Dyke's "America For Me", by Mrs. Delbert Davis; the introduction of the speaker, Dr. Koon, by Dr. Henry W. McComas; Dr. Koon's address, the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," by the audience, adjournment.

Dr. Koon's address is printed in full on page three of the current issue of The Republican.

Oakland Civic Club to Be Hostess to Federaton of Women's Clubs of Northern District

The Oakland Civic Club will be hostess to the Federation of Women's Clubs of the Northern District on Thursday, Anril 7th. The delegates will assemble at the Maryland Theatre at 10:00 o'clock where a business meeting will be held, followed by a reception and luncheon at the Manhattan hotel. The afternoon meeting will be held in the dining room of the hotel. Reservations for the luncheon must be made not later than Monday, April 4th. Mrs. Frank Rathbun, and Mrs. Lawrence Fraley have charge of the tickets for the luncheon. All members of the Civic Club and those interested in Women's Clubs are urged to attend the meeting.

Merchants and Business Men Will Close for Holy Week and Good Friday Services

The merchants and business men will again co-operate this year and close their places of business so that the Union Holy Week Services, which will be held each day from 12:05 to 12:30, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in the Presbyterian church and from one to three o'clock on Good Friday.

These services will begin promptly at 12:05 and will close at 12:30. Each day there will be a different speaker, who will bring a short and helpful message. The services are designed to bring all into closer touch with the Christ whose passion and death we now celebrate. The Good Friday service will be held from 2 to 3 o'clock, when a special service will be held. In as much as it is a holiday we ought to make it a holy and sacred day when together we should stand beneath the cross in an attempt to grasp its deepest meaning.

These services ought to make their appeal and all should strive to aid in their success, certainly every true heart will desire to be more filled with that love which prompted the Master to die that we might live. The least we can do is to worship Him in spirit and in truth.

COMMITTEE

Mr. Benj. H. Sincell was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, on last Friday, where he underwent a surgical operation for appendicitis which developed following an attack of pneumonia. At this time Mr. Sincell is much improved.

THIRD COMMUNITY SALE TO OCCUR APRIL 13

Oakland Merchants Arranging For Another Sales Day—Can Have Two Specials

The managing committee of the community sales of the Oakland Commercial Club have announced that the third community sale, in which practically every merchant in town will participate, will occur on Wednesday, April 13th, beginning with the opening of business that day and continuing throughout the day and evening, as it has become the custom for the merchants to keep their stores open during the evening hours for the benefit of those people who cannot take advantage of the sales if the stores close at the usual time, which is 6 o'clock p. m.

Each merchant, according to the rules governing this sale, is given the privilege of advertising one or two articles at special prices for the sales day, and every merchant will make preparation to have an abundance of the advertised articles in stock in order that they may have sufficient for their trade.

A page advertisement announcing the sale will appear in The Republican and The Mountain Democrat next Thursday. A solicitor, appointed by the committee, will call upon the merchants of town tomorrow and the merchants are requested by the committee to have their advertisement ready, as they feel that in order to give the best possible service in connection with the success of the sales day that the cooperation of the merchants in this connection is imperative. It is the desire of the committee and solicitor to complete their work not later than Saturday night.

Oakland's first and second Community Sales were successes, bringing a large crowd of shoppers to town who returned to their homes with rare bargains and feeling more kindly toward the merchants.

The United Brethren Sunday school of Mt. Bethel will re-open on the first Sunday in April, after being closed for the three winter months. Every one is invited to attend.

On Easter Sunday, April 17th, at 10 a. m., the school will render an Easter program consisting of singing, recitations, exercises and scripture reading by the school. All are invited to attend and enjoy the program. COMMITTEE.

Mrs. Nanalene Offutt and son Nelson and daughter Nelle motored to Cumberland today.

DIED.

ABRAHAM C. WOTRING

Mr. Abraham C. Wotring, a well known and highly respected citizen, died at his home at 26 Third street, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock after an illness of short duration suffering with bronchial pneumonia. Mr. Wotring was born in Preston county, W. Va., 79 years ago and moved to Oakland in the year 1879, where he shortly afterwards married Miss Christie Echard, who survives him.

To this union were born three children, one son, Harry Casper, who died in infancy, about 30 years ago, and two daughters, Mrs. Grace Shirer, and Mrs. Elsie Ashby, who survive. He is also survived by four grandchildren and one greatgrand child, all of whom reside in Oakland.

Mr. Wotring was for many years street commissioner in the town and served the corporation in a commendable manner in this capacity until he retired from active work several years ago. He was a life-long member and ardent worker in the Methodist Episcopal church, and always retained the family altar.

Funeral services were held in St. Paul's M. E. church on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Archibald Moore, assisted by the district superintendent Rev. W. M. Shultz, and the Rev. Craig, of Diamond Street M. E. church, Fairmont, W. Va. A host of friends attended the last rites. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

OLIVER R. LEIGHTON

Mr. Oliver R. Leighton, a well known and highly respected citizen, of near Oakland, died at his home Sunday morning, March 27th, after a long illness. Some four years ago he became afflicted with rheumatism and had been a constant sufferer ever since, thus making him inactive to a great extent. About ten days ago he was stricken with pleurisy, which developed into pneumonia and when complications set in caused his demise. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Leighton, and came to this county with his parents in 1882 and lived in this vicinity until his death. On April 23, 1899 he was married to Laura A. Sines and to this union were born five children, all of whom are living. Russell and Floyd, who own and operate the American Garage, Clarence, Ralph and Alvey, all of whom reside at home. He also leaves two brothers and four sisters: Isaac, of Weiser, Idaho; Herbert V., Mt. Lake Park, Md.; Mrs. Rhoda David, Sebring, Fla.; Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein, Oakland; Mrs. G. H. Falkenstein, Terra Alta, W. Va., and Miss Ada V. Leighton, of Chehalis, Washington. The funeral service was conducted at the home on Tuesday morning, by the Rev. Archibald Moore. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

NORA MAY FITZWATER

Nora May Fitzwater, daughter of James A. and Ada B. Fitzwater, of North Glade, was born June 6, 1908, and died March 28, 1927. She leaves to mour their loss her mother and father and two brothers and three sisters; Arthur, Elizabeth, Ernest, Mabel and Huldah. Nora Fitzwater was a member and organist of the North Glade Methodist church. The funeral service was conducted by her pastors, Rev. William Anderson and Rev. D. B. Brown.

MRS. LOUISE HARMON.

Mrs. Louise Harmon, widow of the late Lewis Harmon, died on Tuesday afternoon, March 22, following a short illness at the home of her son, Charles Harmon, in the Cove. Mrs. Harmon was born in Albenrun, Hese Darmstadt, Germany, and came to the States at the age of 15 years. On March 12, 1863, she was married to Lewis Harmon, who preceded her to the grave by several years. Her age was 85 years and 15 days and she is survived by four sons and two daughters: John, Henry, Charles and August, and Mrs. Mary Failinger, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Katherine Kolb, of the Cove, and by 26 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren. The funeral was held last Thursday from the German Lutheran church, of which she was a faithful member for many years, by her pastor, the Rev. H. H. Fickenscher, and interment was made in the church cemetery. Six of her grandsons were pall bearers.

MRS. E. C. CRONK.

The death of Mrs. E. C. Cronk, of Philadelphia, on Saturday, March 12, of paralysis, brings sorrow to missionary workers throughout America.

Mrs. Cronk, while of the Lutheran denomination, was internationally known. She was considered the best writer on Missionary Methods. She was editor of several papers and magazines, such as "Every Land," "Lutheran Boys and Girls," and she was also author of the pageants used in Sunday school and Missionary societies; also two books, "Brave Adventures," and "Under Many Flags," and many tracts and articles were written by her. Mrs. Cronk was general superintendent of "The Light Brigade" of the U. L. C. She was a brilliant speaker and we remember with great pleasure of having Mrs. Cronk with us several years ago In the School of Missions at Mt. Lake Park, and of her speaking in the Lutheran church in Oakland. She will be greatly missed as a writer, a friend and counselor.

She is survived by her husband, Rev. Dr. E. C. Cronk, of Philadelphia, and son, John Edward Cronk, of Gettysburg College.

TROOP TRAIN PASSED THRU HERE LAST NIGHT

Marines Enroute To China Followed Train No. 21 On Baltimore and Ohio

An event that recalled the stirring days of the World War was enacted last night when a troop train bearing Marines passed through Oakland following train No. 21, at 10:14 o'clock on their way to San Diego, Calif., the point of embarkation for China war zone.

The Marines will engage in active service in China, and while enroute to the point of embarkation they are under the command of Capt. R. L. Montague.

The detachment is of the Sixth Regiment of the United States Marines and are from Philadelphia, Pa.

THE CALENDAR GIRL

By STERLING BRIGHT

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

"AND Corydon?" inquired a visitor at the Artists' club, once himself in the profession, graduated into a gentleman of leisure through a rich legacy, and paying a brief visit to his old-time haunts.

"Oh, Corydon—eats!" was the sententious reply, as if that fact evidenced a very fair condition, indeed, for a devotee of the palette and easel.

"And Paul Willis—still a dreamer?"

"Still the same old hand to mouth existence. Yes, Willis had grand ideals—a poor capital in these practical times. He dropped out of the club months ago."

In a breath the absent fellow artist—who possibly did not eat—was dismissed from discussion. And, indeed, he did not eat at just this juncture!

There was not a man in the club who did not remember the soulful-eyed, impulsive young fellow who had started in to set the world on fire. It was work, not gain, that was the starting motive in his career, and the labor loved because he aimed at a high standard. He was a color specialist, and etchings and pen and ink effects had become the fashion.

A few portraits, perhaps twice a year a color scene, but the orders few and far between, and the cheeks of the handsome, graceful youth became wan, the old fire of genius left his eyes. With poverty bringing the threadbare garb, pride drove him to seclusion. He became isolated and forgotten.

If his two former artist associates had seen him at the hour when amid luxury and indolence they discussed him, they would have probably pitied this piece of poor driftwood.

In the remotest corner and smallest room of an old dilapidated central building, Paul Willis sat working with pencil and brush.

It was a sadly forlorn place, the windows grimed, the floor destitute of carpet or rug. Light and heat were wretched. Upon a table beside the easel was a loaf of immaculately excellent bread, a tempting fruit cake deep frosted and rich looking, a pie, fair and perfect—for expert housewives say that such things can be.

The artist had drawn with pen and ink in outline a faithful presentation of the articles before him. Now he began the work that had for him an indescribable attraction, the coloring of his sketch. More than once a feverish famished expression crossed his face. He moistened his dry lips with his tongue and set his teeth firmly. It was the evening before when he had last tasted food. Ever since then, penniless, hungered, weak in body and brain, that torturing display of food had tantalized him to the point of desperation.

Amid the fascination of the color processes, now his soul soared temporarily above his physical needs. A bitter smile crossed his face as he realized that his labor was strictly commercial. A picture piece, exquisite and perfect as an art plaque, he knew that when his work was done, reproduced from the printing press, it would show lettering advertising the wares of a famous baking company.

He lay down his tools of usage at last. Daylight was fading and he had worked rapidly, but his toil had its recompense. Side by side, the real contrasted with the artificial and the fine, delicate shades of the former would have appealed the more strongly to the true artist taste.

There was a tap at the door. Evidently the lone artist was expecting his caller, for he spoke out eagerly:

"Come in, Morse."

A brisk, bustling business-faced man entered. He wasted no time in civilities, but walked to the easel without excuse or hesitation, drew a magnifying glass from his pocket and critically inspected the color sketch.

"Excellent—your very best," he announced complacently. "You improve every day."

"And grow hungrier," observed Willis with a faintly bitter smile. "Can I have—the samples?" he added, with a meaning sweep of his hand towards the dainties.

"Why, surely," assented his visitor, with a stare of surprise. "What do you want them for?"

"To eat, of course."

"You mean—" began Morse, and paused, an indefinably shocked expression crossing his face.

Willis made no reply. He seized the loaf of bread with the fierceness of a famished animal, tore a handful from its soft mellow heart and crowded it into his mouth. Once he choked as if with direful humiliation. Once the tears fell over the loaf. His visitor watched him with sober, pitying eyes.

"That's better," observed the artist, striving to appear satisfied. "Anything new?"

The other came close up to him. He placed a trembling hand on the shoulder of the artist.

"As bad as that," he said in a subdued tone. I never guessed it—there."

He placed his hand in his pocket and drew out some money, counted it, doubled the amount. Willis recounted it and pushed back the excess sympathy had impelled, saying:

"My rightful hire, Morse. You're a good fellow just the same."

"There is something else," Morse said, "the Calendar Girl."

Above a cot in a kind of alcove hung a colored crayon sketch. Willis glanced at it with swimming eyes.

"No," he said resolutely.

"Why not?" urged Morse. "You know it was made for that rich manufacturer, Payne, who is so proud of his daughter. He has been at the office after the original crayon."

"It is mine; money will not buy it," said Willis sententiously and bowed his visitor from the room.

Buy it—as soon would he sell his soul! In his poetic way the work on that picture, taken from an oil painting, had been the inspiration of his recent life.

Willis had the first full meal of weeks that day, for he had money now. The rescue was too late, however. He awoke the next morning in a burning fever.

There was only the woman in charge of the apartments to nurse him. That afternoon a stylish automobile drove up. A young lady alighted. She was the original of the Calendar Girl. When she knocked at the door of the artist's room the old woman met her.

"He has been going on all day that way," she said.

Miss Elinor Payne had come, hoping to prevail upon Willis to sell her the picture. But now—she stood in a strange maze listening to the senseless babble of his parched lips.

His glassy eyes were fixed upon the picture. The lone burden of his mind had given way. In poetry, in wild passionate appeal he was telling that mute companion of his lonely life the secret of his life—how he adored the lovely face his art had perpetuated.

Never had the fair, innocent girl been so moved. Tears were in her eyes as she noted the wretchedness of this poor soul, whose delicate face showed the lineaments of genius.

"Everything must be done to save so precious a life," she told the woman. Then day after day for a week some irrisistible influence drew her to the place which her money transformed into a haven of comfort.

One day she came when the mournful eyes of the artist were once more calm and clear. The crayon was gone from its accustomed place. He handed it to her done up in paper.

"I have learned of all your kindness," he said simply.

"You wish me to take the picture?" she asked.

"It is yours. I have seen you in reality—there is a more lasting portraiture in my heart."

He spoke with the desperation and disappointment of a flitting spirit.

"You must live!" she cried impulsively, reading the oracle aright—"for my sake—will you not?"

His soulful eyes strove to read the secret of that beautiful face. To Elinor he was as a being above the common. She flushed. The admiration of his glance thrilled her.

"You must let me drive you each day till you get well," she said.

And that was the beginning of the beautiful end that saw two harmonious souls joined in undying love and joy.

Weak Character May Have Jaw of Steel

The man with a weak chin is not necessarily a man with a weak character. Such a person may even have bulldoggish qualities, medical scientists tell us, and in all probability his lack of chin was caused by the way he was fed at birth. Naturally fed babies stand a better chance of developing strong jaws than the artificially fed.

People with receding or weak chins have often suffered from rickets in childhood, and hardly anyone needs to be reminded nowadays of the relation betwen a diet deficient in vitamines and unsatisfactory bone formation.

Many parents, when they fear that their children's chins are not going to be of the best, consult a dentist, who may suggest that the child shall wear in the mouth an apparatus for stretching the jaw. This treatment continues for months, sometimes years.

Crime and Punishment

We were aroused one morning in early summer, writes a subscriber, by a great outcry among the birds, particularly by the harsh cry of the blue jay. On going out to learn the cause of the disturbance we found numbers of birds flying around an oriole nest which we had been watching with a great deal of interest. The jay birds were flying about in much excitement and several distressed little orioles were bravely fighting them. A closer view revealed a jay bird with his head caught in the nest. In trying to rob it he had made himself prisoner and neither his own efforts nor those of his companions could free him. Nearly all day he struggled and the other birds flew unhappily about, but gradually his efforts grew feebler until they ceased entirely and he was left alone. Of course, the nest was ruined, but until far into the winter he hung there high in the air, an object lesson to all thieves.—Youth's Companion.

Geode Stones

Geodes are rounded, hollow aggregates of mineral material, or indurated nodules, either empty or containing a more or less solid and free nucleus and having the cavity frequently lined with crystals. They are sometimes called "potato stones" on account of their size and shape. The name seems to have been given them because they are occasionally found filled with soft earthy ocher. Agate is a geode built up of concentric layers of chalcedony.

GRANTSVILLE.

(By George W. Diefenbach)

Grantsville, March 30—The boys in the agricultural classes of the High school who have not taken up a dairy project, have formed themselves into a pure-bred chicken club and each intends to raise a pen of chickens, thereby learning how to handle poultry and how to keep records. The breeds they have selected are barred rocks and light brahmas; negotiations have been opened with the Canfield hatchery at Sidney, O., for a thousand young chickens. The boys in the club are Leroy Shumaker, William Bevans, Ralph Younkin, Luther Miller, John Blocher, Joe Lewis, Clyde Miller, Markle Stanton and Herman Klotz.

Musicale In Memory of Master.

The Holmes and Wallace studios, Miss Rachel Holmes and Miss Caroline Wallace, gave an informal recital on Saturday evening of last week, of six numbers from the compositions of the great musician Beethoven, it being the 100th anniversary of the death of the music master. The audience enjoyed the recital and feel most grateful to the ladies who made this opportunity possible.

Composes Worthwhile Verse.

Ivan J. Miller, aged 15 years, son of the Rev. Jonas B. Miller, who lives just north of town, has composed nine verses of poetry entitled "The Sugar Maple Tree," which is printed in this issue of The Republican, and which has attracted quite a bit of attention in this community. The young man has shown considerable ability in fitting the ideas together, which tells us a number of great truths about one of our great natural resources which is not being conserved as well as might be. It is worth reading and thinking about, too.

Postponements.

The Firemen's Minstrel announced last week to be given by the members of the Meyersdale, Pa., Fire Department on April 6th and 7th, has been postponed until after Easter. The Department desires to cooperate with the churches that are holding Lenten Services, therefore the postponement. The dates will be announced later.

The Kitchen orchestra which was scheduled to play in the W. O. W. Hall on Friday night will not appear until after Easter. The time will be announced later. Quite a number of tickets have been sold for this event, and it is hoped the holders will not grow impatient, as the event will be staged soon after Easter.

Teachers Hold Meetings.

Three half-day teachers' meetings were held last week in the Grantsville unit, the first at the Jacob Warnick school, the second at Long Stretch school and the last on Friday afternoon at the Grantsville school. The topics discussed were county objectives for the year and courses of study. The last meeting of the series will be held today in the Grantsville school when the primary teachers of two-room schools will meet to discuss primary reading, language and seat-work.

Real Estate Transfers.

Roy Wilburn, of Jennings, has broken ground for a dwelling to be erected along the National Pike about two miles east of town, near that of George Hoover.

Henry F. Durst recently purchased the Jonas J. Folk property from the Executor of the estate, Frank J. Folk, which is located in the town and is composed of about ten acres of land and a six room house.

The Motor Services Company recently purchased a number of town lots from H. S. Yoder in the Miller Addition to the town. It is hoped that a number of dwellings will be erected there, as they are much needed to relieve the housing problem of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Platter, of Jennings, sold their personal property at public sale on Monday, near Jennings, and beginning April first will open a restaurant in the W. O. W. building here. Their sale was well attended. The Sisters Aid society, of Springs, Pa., served the lunch and cleared considerable money for the society treasury.

Church Services.

Services in the churches next Sunday as follows: M. E.: Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m., and worship at 7:30. Catholic: Mass at 10:00 a. m. Reformed: Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. Lutheran: Sunday school at 10:00 a. m.

On Sunday evening in St. John's Lutheran church, Salisbury, the American Legion will hold a dedicatory service for the Post Flag and Colors. Quite a number of Garrett county ex-service men have joined the Salisbury post.

Schedule of Interest Announced.

The County Home Demonstratoin Agent, Miss Lola Belle Green, announces the following events of interest to home makers and farmers generally: Beef Special Train, at Oakland all day on Monday, April 4, worth while for both men and women. Landscape Gardening Conference conducted by Mr. W. R. Ballard from the Extension Department of the University of Maryland, in the Court House at Oakland, April 12th.

Personals.

Misses Mary Bevans, Mildred Paul, Helen Swauger and Evelyn Beachy attended a taffy pull and birthday party given by Mrs. Eliza Hendershot in honor of her daughter, near Jennings, on Tuesday evening of last week.

Forester A. L. Sines, of Oakland, called on Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baker last week one day.

Mrs. Ella B. Keller has returned home after a visit of a month with relatives in Ohio.

Mrs. Ella Augustine, of Friendsville, Md., is here nursing her sister, Mrs. M. Nathan, whose condition is slightly improved.

Mr. Edword Bowser is convalescing from a severly crushed right leg received while at work about a month ago on a timber job near Somerfield, Pa.

Mrs. C. O. Bender substituted as teacher at the Strawberry Hill school last week in the absence of Miss Edna Miller, who was called home because of the death of her mother.

Miss Cora Otto is a patient at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, recovering from an operation. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Otto, of near Springs, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Livengood are moving from Springs to Pinto, Md., this week where Mr. Livengood will engage in the plumbing and heating business. They will be missed in this locality.

Messrs. Harry and George Edwards, Henry, Harry and William Durst made a hurried motor trip to Buffalo, N. Y.

Joseph Hutzel is recovering from an appendicitis operation, having returned to his home from the hospital last week.

The M. E. Ladies Aid Society met last Saturday in the home of Mrs. Marian Broadwater.

"The Sugar Maple Tree."

Among these dear old Garrett county hills,
Where deep and mighty forests still remain,
Where nature's scene my soul with rapture fills,
Where flowers bloom and birds sing their refrain—

'Tis here the Maple, sturdy, strong and hold,
Lifts up its towering branches towards the sky.
At fall of year, or when the leaves unfold,
It lends a scene of pleasure to my eye.

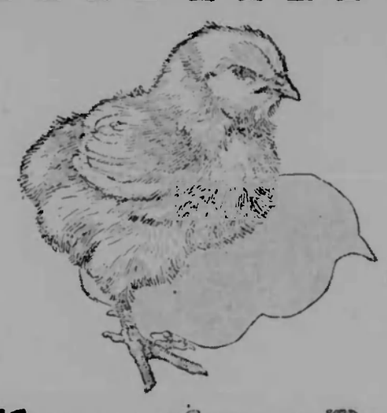
Thou mighty Maple, strong, and yet so kind;
Full many a squirrel has sought thy trunk for room
To hide its treasure, lest the winter find
It unprepared to meet those days of gloom.

Full many a bird has built its tiny nest
Among thy boughs, protected by thy green,
And many a weary beast enjoyed a rest
Within the tranquil shade of thy thick screen.

Each year if we thy rugged trunk but tap,
Thou dost respond in manner truly kind,
And givest unto us thy blood, thy sap,
A sweet, delicious present to mankind.

In places where we can not sow nor reap,
Where in the sod the ploughshare is not known,
Because of mighty rocks and hillsides steep,
For centuries you here have thrived and grown.

Yea, thou art wonderful, but who made thee?
Thou whom each human being ought to love,
Thy branches, leaves, trunk, roots the perfect tree,
All owe their being to the God above.



Then why do woodmen seek thy life to take
And slaughter thee in such a shameful way?
A braver heart than mine could not but ache
To see these Maple forests giving way.

Then, woodmen, spare this tree, yea let it stand,
Withold thy axe, strike not a single blow.
This ruler of a wild, mountainous land
Shall still be king, so let him live and grow.

Lesson for April 3

PETER BECOMES A DISCIPLE OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:14-18; 29-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye after Me and I will make you to become fishers of men.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Follows Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Great Decision.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making the Great Decision.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Answering Christ's Call.

I. Jesus Preaching in Galilee (vv. 14, 15).

The reason for Christ changing from Judea to Galilee was the growing opposition to Him. He accepted the fate of John, the Baptist, as foreshadowing His own death. The rejection of the forerunner meant the rejection of Him whose advent he heralded.

1. What He preached (v. 14).

The gospel of the kingdom of God which meant the good news of the near approach of the kingdom of God when the rule of God as predicted by the prophets would be realized.

2. How He preached it (v. 15).

(1) "The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand."

This meant that the time had now come for the appearance of the Messiah and the establishment of His kingdom.

(2) "Repent."

This meant that the people should turn around, change their minds and attitude toward Christ and accept Him as their King. The message of repentance is one which needs to be sounded out today.

(3) "Believe the gospel." Then, as now, men needed to believe the gospel of Christ.

II. Jesus Called Peter and Andrew to Become Fishers of Men. Jesus called this pair of brothers for service in His kingdom. It is usually best to perform the Lord's service in pairs. This has a threefold value. It makes testimony effective; it provides fellowship on the part of workers and protection of the witnesses. It is to be noted that these men had previously been called to be disciples of Christ (John 1:36-42). They are now called to service. Observe:

1. From what they were called (v. 16).

They were called from positions of definite service. They were fishers. God always chooses His servants from the ranks of the employed.

2. To what they were called (v. 17).

To be "fishers of men." They no doubt had been successful fishers. The qualities which made them good fishermen, namely, patience, bravery to face the storm and darkness of the night, and perseverance, which led them to toil all night though no fish were caught, would make them good fishers of men.

3. Their obedience (v. 18).

"Straightway they forsook their nets and followed Him."

To obey meant sacrifice, painful separation, the giving up of all business interests and leaving father behind. Regardless of the cost, they yielded prompt obedience.

III. Jesus Entering Simon Peter's House (vv. 29-31)

Soon after the call of Peter and Andrew, Jesus called James and John, after which they entered the synagogue at Capernaum, where He cast out an evil spirit. This miracle caused His fame to be spread abroad.

1. A loved one ill (v. 30).

When Jesus entered this home He found Peter's mother-in-law with a burning fever. We know that among the closest followers of Jesus there are suffering ones and anxious and burdened hearts. To all such Jesus comes with loving sympathy and power to help.

2. "They tell Him of her" (v. 31).

This was the proper thing to do. We should bring to the attention of Jesus those of our families who have need of bodily or spiritual healing.

3. He healed her (v. 31).

"He came and took her by the hand and lifted her up." This act showed the nearness, sympathetic tenderness and power of Jesus. At His touch the fever departed and strength was imparted to her body.

4. "She ministered unto them" (v. 31).

This act shows:

(1) That the cure was instantaneous and complete. When Jesus heals there is no halfway business.

(2) Gratitude on the part of the one healed. She thus expressed her appreciation of what Jesus had done. All those who have experienced the healing power of Jesus will express their gratitude in loving service to the Lord and His disciples.

God's Indulgence

God is not over-indulgent. He is too loving for that. Because He loves us, and pines for our growth, He cannot let our faults go without correction. His justice stands side by side with His mercy, and cannot be evaded or left out of account.—Southern Methodist.

Finding Strength

Where shall we find strength for practical separation to God, except in God Himself—Holmes.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY

IN GARRETT COUNTY

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, dated the 5th day of March, 1927, passed in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Emma Green, widow, et al., are plaintiffs, and Fannie May Green, et al., are defendants, it being No. 2730 Equity, upon the docket of said Circuit Court for said County, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale to the highest bidder or bidders therefor for cash in front of the Garrett County Court House on

SATURDAY, APRIL 16th, 1927,

at 11:00 o'clock a. m., the following pieces or parcels of ground, to wit:

1. All that part of a tract of land lying in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, and described as follows:

Beginning at the end of one hundred perches on the last line of a tract of land known as Savage Mountain, being near a white pine standing on the east side of a run known as Benjamin Boyer's Run, north of his old saw mill, and running north fifty-seven degrees west, eighty-four perches, south forty degrees west, ninety perches, south fifty-seven degrees east, eighty-four perches, north forty degrees east, one hundred and four perches, containing forty-nine and one half acres, more or less.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Andrew Beeman and Mary Beeman, his wife, by deed dated February 28, 1902, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 40, folio 406, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Also all that tract of land known as the "Hanekamp Farm," said property lying and being in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, about six miles from Lonaconing Town, in said State of Maryland, and described as follows:

Beginning at the beginning of the whole tract called "Savage Ridge" and running with the outlines of said whole tract, south forty degrees west, eighty perches, south fifty degrees east, one hundred perches, north seventy-seven and one-half degrees east, one hundred and three perches, north forty-five degrees east, one hundred and eighty perches to a stone pile, north twenty-two degrees east, fifty-six perches to a large stone pile and bounded chestnut tree, then crossing the whole tract aforesaid, north fifty-seven degrees west, one hundred and eighty perches to the given line of said whole tract, then with said given line to the beginning, containing three hundred and fourteen acres of land, more or less.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Jacob Beeman by deed dated March 1, 1902, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 40, folio 507, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above two pieces or parcels of ground comprise all of one farm of a total of three hundred and sixty-three (363) acres, more or less, and contains the following improvements:

A six room substantial frame dwelling; a frame and log bank barn about thirty by fifty feet in dimensions; a wagon shed; an automobile shed; two springs of never-failing water situated close to the house. The soil is lime stone soil, and about one hundred acres of the same are cleared and under cultivation. There is an apple orchard of about sixty trees of an average age of twelve years. This farm will be offered and sold as a whole. It is situated about five miles from Avilton on Pea Ridge Road leading from Lonaconing to Avilton.

None of the timber upon the above farm will be sold, it having already been disposed of under certain contracts of sale heretofore executed, and the farm will be sold subject to the rights of the parties holding said contracts to remove the timber therefrom.

2. All that tract, piece or parcel of land known and distinguished in a sub-division of a tract of land called "Lochiel" as Lot Number Six, situate and lying in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, containing one hundred and sixty acres of land, more or less, which said property was conveyed to Ulysses S. Jackson by The Lochiel Lumber, Mining, Manufacturing and Improvement Company of Allegany County and others, by deed dated July 16, 1888, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, in Liber No. 41, folio 125, and being also a part of the same property which was conveyed by the said Ulysses S. Jackson and Susan L. Jackson, his wife, to Thomas J. Rayner and Mary E. Rayner, his wife, by deed dated September 23, 1914, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County aforesaid, and it being also the same property which was conveyed by Richard S. Bell, Assignee of Mortgage, to Rebecca Clark by deed dated April 24, 1924, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County aforesaid in Liber No. 86, folio 599, reference to all of which deeds is made for a more full and particular description of this proprety.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Rebecca Clark, widow, by deed dated May 26, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 88, folio 63, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above farm is improved by a five room log and frame dwelling house, a small barn and other outbuildings. The property contains a good never-failing spring near the house, and an apple orchard of about thirty trees of an average age of twelve years. The soil is of lime stone, and about fifty acres of it are cleared and under cultivation. The timber on this farm will pass to the purchaser, and will not be reserved at the sale.

TERMS OF SALE:—Cash.

The Trustee hereby reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

GEORGE R. HUGHES,
5 4t. Trustee.

TRUSTEES' SALE

OF A VALUABLE

FARM PROPERTY

Meshack Mattingly Farm In District No. 6, of Garrett County

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, sitting in Equity, dated the 26th day of February, 1927, and passed in a cause wherein Martha Collins Dodge, Admrx. et al. were plaintiffs and William Mattingly et al. were defendants, the same being No. 2727 Equity on the docket of said Court, the undersigned trustee will on

SATURDAY, APRIL 9th, 1927,

at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder all of that farm in District No. 6 of Garrett county of which the late Meshack Mattingly died, seized and possessed, as follows:

1. All of that tract of land known as "Fayette" containing 200 acres and Military Lots Nos. 4148 and 1677, containing 100 acres. These parcels being the same which were described in a deed from Catherine Townshend to Dominick Mattingly dated December 17, 1853, and recorded in Liber 11, folio 359, one of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and title to which became vested in said Meshack Mattingly by a series of conveyances mentioned in the papers in this cause and filed therein. Parts of Military Lots Nos. 1668 and 1669 containing 46 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Daniel Smith and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated September 30, 1869, and recorded in Liber 31, folio 184, one of the Land Records of Allegany county; part of Military Lot No. 4146 containing 16 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Samuel Ferguson to said Meshack Mattingly dated January 1, 1876, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 2, folio 337, one of the Land Records of Garrett county; part of a tract of land called "Warrington," containing 9½ acres and part of Military Lot No. 1498 containing 6¾ acres, described in a deed from Wm. Dewitt and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No 6, folio 418, one of said Land Records.

Excepting, however, those parcels of land which were conveyed by said Meshack Mattingly and wife to William Dewitt and Mary F. Sebold by deed dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 6, folio 485, etc., and September 17, 1881, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 5, folio 775, etc., of the Land Records of Garrett county; and by Mary P. Mattingly, widow, et al, to W. A. Smith by deed dated September 21, 1912, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 64, folio 247, one of said Land Records. The remaining portion of said farm to be sold containing about 316 acres.

2. The timber on the portion of the above farm bounded on the west by the land formerly owned by Hamill Casteel, on the south by the Marion Hoye land and on the south-east by George Sebold's land will be excepted from the above and will be sold separatey on the day of sale. Further information relative to this can be obtained by any interested person from the trustees.

The above farm is well located, a very considerable portion thereof is cleared and under cultivation; is improved by two dwellings, barn, stable and other necessary outbuildings, has a good orchard and would make an excellent farm home.

Terms of Sale:—As prescribed by the decree, one-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and one-third in twelve months, or all cash at the option of the purchaser; credit portion to bear interest and to be secured to the satisfaction of the trustees.

A Vest Pocket Essay on Dancing

Dancing ain't what she used to be. Time was when it was considered one of the most graceful of the arts and indulged in by both young and old alike. As it is now, however, anyone past the first blush of youth who attempts to essay the dances of the day is likely to wind up by breaking a leg or being prematurely carried off by a heart attack. The terpsichorean efforts of the present period seem to lie about midway between a wrestling match and a Hopi Indian performance. The Charleston calls for a more supple frame than the contortionist ever hoped to acquire. The Fox Trot has been speeded up to a full gallop. Anyone not possessing the "wind" of a marathon runner had better elect to remain a wall flower. The jazzphoney orchestra sounds like the inside of a boiler factory working full time, while a floor full of dancers takes on all the aspects of a stampede. Only the waltz remains to cheer the hearts and tickle the toes of the old timers. It is played so seldom, however, that grandfather's creeping paralysis claims him between halves. Vaudeville actors ought to be numerous. Anyone who can negotiate the Black Bottom deserves a place in the theatrical sun if not in the side show of the circus. Even the names have degenerated. If the "Fox Trot," why not the "Weasel Walk," the "Canine Canter," or the "Gopher Gallop"?

The "Piggy Wiggle" is another name which might be used to advantage for a dance, although not as many piggies are waltzing up to the trough in these parts as formerly, due to certain disastrous circumstances last fall. Due to the carelessness of a good many people interested in said piggies, hog cholera carried a great many off to the happy rooting grounds. The Department of Agriculture has issued a warning that the disease is likely to be wide-spread again this year. The Maryland Plan for cholera control is simple and inexpensive. To follow its precepts, the swine owner has only to guard against feeding any product that might contain bones, rinds, or scraps of pork; to use care in the purchase of new hogs; to keep hogs confined so they cannot mingle with other swine; and to bury the carcasses of animals that die on the place. Those who have followed the plan in their farming operations have found that it pays. It insures protection with a minimum of expense. Really, would there be any wrong in, or could any harm come from following these simple rules?

Prove Purebred Cows Are Best Producers.

Purebred cows stand out as the best producers of milk and butterfat and cow testing associations have produced the evidence to prove it, say dairy specialtists at the University of Maryland.

The evidence has come to light as a result of a tabulation of 48,097 tests made in cow testing associations in all parts of the United States by the Bureau of Dairy Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The results showed an average production of 7,667 pounds of milk and 296 pounds of butterfat for the purebred cows whose records were examined. The grades fell below this figure with an average production of 6,990 pounds of milk and 281 pounds of butterfat. Last in the list were the scrubs with an average yield of 6,217 pounds of milk and 251 pounds of butterfat.

There are now approximately 350,000 cows in cow testing associations in the United States, it is reported. In 1925 the average production per cow in the United States was estimated at about 4,500 pounds of milk while cow testing asscoiation cows were able to show an average of 7,272 pounds.

On this basis, the 350,000 cows in cow testing associations in 1925 produced as much milk as 560,000 average cows and returned as much income over cost of feed as 626,000 cows of the average type, it is said.

Mr. Fred Kamp and family spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Asa Beaghly at Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snyder and Mrs. Fred Bowers were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller.

Mr. John McGettigan was the guest of Marvin Callis Sunday.

Mr. Lloyd Hoover was in Bittinger Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bowser and family, Miss Elma Georg and Mr. Walter Harmon were Sunday guests at the home of Miss Lillie Miller.

Mr. William and Waldo Zinkan spent Friday in Bittinger.

Messrs. Roy Spoerlein and Foster Speicher, of Western Maryland College, Westminster Maryland, are spending their spring vacation at their homes here.

While playing with some dynamite, Raymond Kahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kahl, met with a serious accident. He was badly burned and it is quite probable that his eyes will be effected following the explosion of the dynamite.

PLEASANT VALLEY

According to the ground hog, there were six weeks of hard winter weather due after the second day of February. However, Mr. Groundhog has some tall explaining to do if he wants to square himself with us—not that we care though. It doesn't peeve us that February was so pleasant that the robins and red birds came back, and we wont hold a grudge against the ground hog, for we all are liable to make mistakes sometime.

Lloyd Bowers, son of Mrs. Nellie Bowers, has been on the sick list for the past few days. We hope he will soon be able to be out again.

Misses June and Dorothy Sembower were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lee Sunday.

Mr. E. O. Liller is the busy man of the community trying to get the farmers organized for hauling stone on the road.

Mr. Arch. Spiker has a saw mill in operation on his farm, sawing lumber for a barn which he expects to build in the near future.

The regular meeting of the Grange is on Thursday, April 7, 1927. We would like to see a large attendance of the members. Regular meetings are held on the first and third Thursday evenings of the month. Literary programs will be rendered at every meeting.

Mr. John Moon and family are moving onto the Alvey Martin farm.

BITTINGER.

The weather of the past week was not favorable for farming or for sugar making, however indications at this writing point to some further gathering of sap from the local camps during the present week.

Rev. E. E. Campbell, in company with Messrs. C. E. Ellithorp, George Wiley and Charles Wiley, motored to Oakland on Monday of last week on a business mission.

George Bietzell recently made a business trip to Grantsville.

Paul Davis, of Tissue, Pa., was a visitor of the C. E. Ellithorp family in this village last Saturday.

Mrs. Oscar Brenneman is reported as being ill at this writing.

Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, made a professional visit to this section last week.

Spring began last Monday and as fate would have it Madam Stork visited two homes in this village on that day, and now Clark Brenneman and Joel Brenneman are trying to outsmile each other because of the fact that she left a son for each. Neither one seems to care whether their hens keep on laying or anything else just now.

County Commissioner Harvey Gortner, of Grantsville, was a business caller in this village last week.

Oakland Boys' 4-H Club

The Oakland High school boys after studying the problems of dairying in Garrett county decided that this industry could be improved. After talking this matter over with their parents they decided to start a Cow Testing Association.

Mr. O. T. Graser, Agricultural Instructor of the High school, called a meeting of all the boys interested. Mr. E. G. Jenkins, State Boy's Club Agent, and County Agent McGlone were invited to talk on this subject. After a brief talk on the value of such an association, both from the boys standpoint and fathers, the election of officers was held at which the following officers were chosen: Gerald Biggs, president; Elwood Hauser, vice president; Dale Sanders, secretary and treasurer. Following the election a committee was appointed to draw up rules, regulations and name for the Association which is to be presented at the next meeting for acceptance by all the members.

In instructing the Committee on a motto, one of the members suggested "Over the top with Garrett county cows and away with the scrubs."

Other members of the organization besides the officers are as follows: Welba Casteel, William DeBerry, Bert Falkenstein, John Stevenson, B. Ramsey, Ritter Brothers, Otto Menear, Edward King and Charles Dodge.

OAKLAND 4-H NEWS

The Oakland 4-H Girls meeting was held March 26th in the Court House. Topics of interesting discussion were sewing ,and especially the pillow slips each girl is making. By the time the next meeting is called these must be finished, washed and ironed.

During the discussion of business, Miss Green and the girls elected a committee to arrange for a 4-H Girls booth at the coming Athletic Meet. A new member was added, Nancy Franklin, making a total membership for the club of one dozen.

Reedbirds, or Bobolinks, No Longer Permitted To Be Killed

By an order of the Secretary of Agriculture it is no longer permitted to kill reedbirds, or ricebirds, known in the North as bobolinks. In 1919, owing to the serious depredations of bobolinks on the rice crops of North Carlina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, permission was granted by the Secretary, under authority of the migratory-bird treaty act, administered by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture to kill these birds in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida for the protection of rice growers. This permission is now revoked.

Under the new order, a person or members of his immediate family or bona-fide employees, owning or leasing lands in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia or Florida on which rice is being grown, may shoot bobolinks, or ricebirds, only when authorized by a special permit issued by the Secretary of Agriculture and countersigned by the chief official in charge of the enforcement of the fish and game laws of the State in which the permit is effective, and only during the period from August 16 to November 15, inclusive, on rice fields where such birds are seriously injuring the crops. The birds so killed may be consumed as food, but may not be sold.

More Than 22,000,000 Motor Vehicles Registered in 1926

More than twenty-two million motor vehicles were registered in the United States during 1926 according to reports received from State registration agencies by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The year's registration represents an increase of 10.3 per cent, or slightly more than 2,000,000 more than that of 1925.

Florida with an increase of 40.2 per cent, not including nonresident registrations, shows a greater gain than any other State. Oklahoma, with a gain of 17.8 p ecrent, and second only to Florida in respect to the amount of increase, was followed closely hy Alabama, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi and Utah, all of which had increases over 15 per cent.

Of the total number of vehicles registered, 19,237,171 were passenger automobiles, taxis and busses, and 2,764,222 were motor trucks and road tractors. The increase in motor truck and road tractors amounted to 13.2 per cent, which is somewhat greater than the increase for all classes of motor vehicles, indicating a continuation of the development of commodity transportation by highway.

Receipts from registration fees, licenses, etc., amounted to $288,282,352 as compared with $260,619,621 In 1925. Of the gross receipts $190,406,060 was available for highway construction under the supervision of the State highway departments, $51,702,184 was allocated to counties for expenditure on local roads and $25,274,158 was used to finance highway bond issues. The remainder was used for payment of collection costs and miscellaneous purposes.

The number of vehicles registered in Maryland was 252,852, and the revenue derived from the registration and licenses amounted to $2,928,268. Maryland ranked 29th in all the States.

Selection of Seed Corn.

The difference between a good stand of corn and a poor one, between vigorous seedlings and weak ones, and between high corn yields and low ones is often a matter of a few hours time spent in selecting and testing the seed, says F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in agronomy for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

"Careful selection of seed corn is always advisable even when it is followed by actual germination test," says by an actual germination test," says Mr. Oldenburg. "With a little experience a farmer can soon acquire the ability to select seed corn quickly and accurately. First of all, choose the well-formed, medium sized ears, typical of the variety to be grown. The ears should be relatively heavy, with bright, well formed grains, and free from external signs of disease. Discard light, chaffy ears with starchy grains and rotted, shredded or discolored shank attachments.

"The cob should be examined. It should be bright and free from discolorations caused by moulds and root rot organisms. The cob of a healthy ear is white inside. The grains should be fairly large, free from moulds and checks, well matured with plump tips and having good depth and medium indentation. The backs should be glossy, free from soft starch and blisters and the germs should be plump and creamy white.

"The grains should be shelled hy hand from the butts and tips of the selected ears and discarded. Or better still, the butts and tips of the ear may be cut off with a sharp corn knife so that the internal condition of the cob can be observed. A half dozen kernels should next be removed from various parts of the ear and examined by cutting across the germ. Discard ears with dead germs. Likewise reject ears with mouldy kernels or cobs, shrunken, blistered or checked kernels, dull, soft, starchy kernels, those with rotted or shredded shank attachments, those with cobs badly discolored internally and those seriously injured hy mice.

"From each ear finally selected in this manner, select two grainss and test the entire lot for germination. If ninety-five per cent or more of the grains produce vigorous sprouts, the seed should be safe for planting. If the germination test, however, shows less than 90 per cent of vigorous sprouts, a regular germination test should be made of each ear, and all ears discarded that do not show perfect germination."

Motorists Awarded Membership in the "Never-Been-Pinched Club."

For being a thoughtful driver during the past twelve months Wilfred Chadderton, Deer Park, Md., is one of the first in this community to be awarded a membership in the 100 per cent Driver's Club, a subsidiary of the International Association of Automobile Traffic Officers, with headquarters in Seattle, Washington, considered the largest traffic body in the world. Through membership in this club, the motorist is entitled to display the Good Conduct Emblem of this Association on his car.

The 100 per cent Driver's Club is unique in that there are no membership fees or dues, and admission can only be obtained by those who have not been arrested for serious traffic violation for twelve months before making application.

The club is financed by the members of the Traffic Officers Association, who are convinced that traffic safety can only be obtained by co-operation between the motorist and the official.

Chiropractic for Children

Children respond readily to Chiropractic adjustments. even more readily than adults. This no doubt, is due to the fact that the recuperative powers of the human being is greatest during its younger years, and then too, the ailments are generally of not so long standing. "A stitch in time saves nine." If your child is not enjoying the best of health, as every child should, let us make a spinal analysis.

MARYLAND DAY ADDRESS DELIVERED HERE SUNDAY

By Dr. Thomas W. Koon, Mayor Of Cumberland, To Large Audience at Maryland Theatre

Maryland was the third of the Anglo American Colonies established on the Atlantic seaboard; it was the first proprietory province and was the conception of George Calvert, the first Lord Baltimore. The privileges conveyed by the charter were the most complete ever granted by an English sovereign to a subject. The province was entirely self governed, all laws being made by the people and needed no confirmation by the King or parliament. By an express clause the King renounced for himself and his successors forever all right of taxation in Maryland.

George Calvert was born about 1580 in Yorkshire, England. In 1597 he obtained the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Trinity College, Oxford, England; after his graduation he broadened his education by extended travel on the continent of Europe. In 1619 he was appointed Secretary of State for life and became very much interested in the colonization of the new world, until the year 1625 so far as is known solely on political, social and economic grounds. It was his desire to promote the glory and expansion of the English nation, and held that position until 1625 at which time he resigned after a public avowal of his conversion to the Catholic faith, which was more or less at that time under the ban of the British law, after that another notion began slowly to take shape in his mind. He would provide not only a refuge in America for his persecuted co-religionist but those of other Christian faith as well. Calvert invited men of all Christian faith to join with him and go to the new world. On June 9, 1647, George Calvert, the first Governor of Maryland, died, leaving a memory still dear to Marylanders. He was a brave, broad minded man. Maryland's political and religious history is long and interesting, much too long for any such meeting as this. In 1791 Maryland ceded to the United States the present District of Columbia to be the permanent seat of the Federal Government.

For nearly two hundred and fifty years after the discovery of the new world had been made known to the nations of the Eastern Hemisphere, by the great navigator Columbus, this country lying along the base of theAlleganies was a trackless wilderness in its progress from the seashore to the mountain fastnesses. The new comers seemed content to settle down upon the coast, whence they could look out upon the expanse of ocean which separated them from the ideas and theories they had left forever when they spread their sails to the heaven invoked breezes which were to waft them to a strange but prolific world.

For nearly two centuries and a half had the gorgeous hues of the autumn tinted these boundless forests ere the white man came to behold their beauties. These mountains and valleys were peopled by the Red Men, whose history was dimly preserved in unsubstantial legend, and who were destined to yield their possessions to the sure encroachments of the Anglo Saxon intelligence. There is no history, either written or oral, to enlighten us as to the events of an epoch earlier than about 1728 of this Western Maryland. About that time there was a small Indian town at the junction of two streams, viz, the North branch of the Potomac River and Wills Creek, with an unpronouncable name, this was at a point about where Cumberland now stands. The first map on record as to Western Maryland was in 1751, so you can see the slow progress which was made in the development of this Western part of our state, but year after year the colonists fought and toiled and suffered and increased. Today we tell the history of our country's life, recount the lofty deeds of vanished years, the toil, the suffering, the defeats and victaries of heroic men, of men who made our nation great and free. We see the first ships whose prows were gilded by the Western sun, we feel the thrill of discovery when the new world was found, we see the oppressed, the serf, the peasant and the slave, the adventurous, the proud, the brave sailing an unknown sea, seeking a home in unknown lands. We see the settlements, the little clearing, the block houses and the forts, the rude and lonely huts. Brave men, true women, builders of homes fellers of forests, founders of states, this is our heritage and such was our forefathers. Separated from the old world, away from the heartless distinction of caste, away from sceptres and titles and crowns, they governed themselves, they defended their homes, they earned their bread, each citizen had a voice in the government and the ltitle villages became republics. Slowly the savage was driven back, the days and nights were filled with fear and the slow years with massacre and war, but the savage of the new world were kinder than the King and nobles of the old, and so the human tide kept coming and the place of the dead was filled.

Two hundred and ninety-three years ago, March 25, 1634, (Maryland Day) the landing of the Colonists of Maryland took place on the shores of Saint Mary's county, Maryland. Almost in the beginning of the Colony of Maryland her sons were called to arms; in less than a month after the landing of the colonists of Maryland, the first naval battle between white men in America took place between the Maryland ships the St. Margaret and the St. Helen, and the Virginian ship the Long Trail. Governor Calvert was called upon to make his frontier good by force of arms and that chivalry present in the early days of Maryland's history has ever been present in its sons and daughters. They have engaged in every struggle that our nation has been called upon to make, as men in the ranks and as officers in the direction of battles.

History knows no other such example as the sacrifices of the sons of Maryland. Our nation owes its existence to the men in the ranks, the men who in early days carried the musket add who in modern times directed with telling effect the latest of inventions in fire arms.

No man perhaps, except the soldier of fortune who makes fighting a profession, seeks reputation at the cannon's mouth simply as vain glory—men go to war to save the State, they join invading parties in order that the enemy may not invade on the other hand, and war is only justified in the preservation of peace and the mission of a nation such as ours can only be one of peace and we are always justified in striking in the preservation of peace; history shows conclusively that the United States has never engaged in an un-holy war. In the American Revolution we fought for representative government toshake the shackles of a royal government that was fast sapping out our lives; in the war of 1812, we fought for the individual liberty and citizenship of Americans on the high seas and forever settled our grievances with Great Britain; in the war of 1861-65, it was the preservation of the Union on one side and the sovereignty of the States on the other, and that conflict left us with a more perfect union and showed the world that the starry ensign of this Republic had been sanctified with Southern and Northern blood; in the American-Spanish war we fought in the name of liberty and humanity and the last shot forever destroyed the despotic force of the Spanish Kingdom in the Western Hemisphere, so you men of the American Legion as sons of Maryland have a goodly company before you. In your service to the country you have held sacred the traditions of Maryland—in the war of the Revolution it was the Maryland line at the battle of Long Island that Washington credited with saving the day, for had the army of Washington been defeated and scattered on the eventful day It would have have been the turning point of the feeble American Colonies, and we would perhaps have been still subservient to the British Empire.

In the Revolution, Maryland contributed her sons, her money and her courage. Charles Carrol as chairman of the Committee on Military Supplies, placed his private fortune at the beck and call of General Washington. General Smallwood and General Tench Tilman achieved records of brilliancy; General John Eager Howard, Otha Williams and DeKalb stand out as heroes of Revolutionary fame and had the mantle to command the forces fallen upon them, they would have been able and worthy of the honor and have achieved success.

In the war of 1812, Stephen Decatur, a son of Maryland, was the most prominent commander on the high seas and Lord Nelson, England's great admiral, pronounced Decatur's fight in the war with Tripoli as the boldest expedition of its kind on record. The first gun fired in the war of 1812 was fired by Joseph Israel, a Marylander; Maryland heads the list in the number of soldiers contributed to the war of 1812. In the war of 61-65, Maryland contributed many gallant men who wore both the blue and the gray, and in the Spanish-American war, the hero of Santiago, Admiral Sly, stands out as the great hero of that conflict.

In the great World War, when the Prussian Government demanded a place in the sun and attempted to make that place good by acts heretofore unknown to have been committed by civilized people; when the Prussian Emperor in the name of "Me and God" panting for conquest and world dominion, set the continent of Europe on fire, made common cause with his ally Australia, invaded and reduced to ruins the Kingdom of Belgium, assaulted Russia on the Western front and Italy on the East and made the city of Paris his objective point, and in order to maintain liberty over the war lord, England, France and Italy cemented themselves to repel the invader; and then the Prussian Emperor not content with over-running Europe sought to sweep the high seas clear and disgraced the rights of neuterals and nationals of other governments not at war. When American citizens were no longer safe on a ship that carried our flag, then the name of humanity, common decency, orderly government and safety at home and dignity abroad, we were called to arms after all other recourse was unavailing. The young manhood of America was called to face in this generation the greatest conflict ever waged in the annals of war; you were called upon to bare your breast and give your last drop of life'sflowing stream on the altar of freedom that the nation might be safe and that other people on the face of the earth may be saved. The conflicts of that struggle are fresh in your memory, we need not dwell on the scenes of that conflict. American manhood was sanctified in bravery far above any power that can add or detract from their greatness, and our hearts go up on high to every home in which there is missing one who gave up his life for the cause. To secure a million men is work enough, but to safely get those million men on the battlefields of France was a feat unexampled in the history of armies. You men were entrusted to that distinguished American hero, General Pershing, and as Lafayette came to us in the days of our infancy so we went on soil hallowed by his services and saved to Central Europe and her posterity the great nations of France, England, Italy and Belgium.

The most apprporiate speech that I have ever heard attributed to any man was delivered by General Pershing (and it is probably the shortest) when he was taken, after reaching France, to the grave of Lafayette and asked to say something, to make a speech. He did not go into any long oration as he probably was expected to do; he could have told them that America had one million of the bravest, truest liberty loving young men that the world had ever produced in training to be brought over, but he did not, but he stretched forth his hand and said, "Lafayette, oh Lafayette! We have come, and our men came none too soon for they found England with her back to the wall fighting for her very existence, and France almost upon her knees." They had fought the then almost victorious Hun for three years and more and were bordering on exhaustion.

America will ever rise to do the honor that history has accorded you, now that you have fought well the battles of your country, the nation owes to you the care and fortitude a father owes its children. The American Legion ean wield influence for the security of the nation, in the young men of today lies our only hope and the men of Maryland in the World War stand out pre-eminent for their bravery and their sacrifices. History knows no other such example, you have been true to your traditions and the Government must remain faithful to you.

Henceforth my friends, it will be impossible for the United States to remain neutral in any general European War, it never ean be neutral again, that was tried in the last war and it failed. When the last battle of the Civil war had ended and the battle flag had been furled and the dove of peace had settled over the North and South, and all hoped and believed that the god of war would never again rear its ugly head in our beloved land. But, a generation had not passed away when the piteous cries of a persecuted people in the historic island of Cuba called our men to arms and the cruel tyranny of Spain was driven from the Western Hemisphere.

Again the dove of peace perched above our door and as the world advanced rapidly in civilization and education seemed about to become universal, we again said that the world would never again be deluged in blood. While most of the world thought that there was one country that did not dream such peaceful dreams she carefully laid out a program of world conquest, all of middle Europe was to be united under one powerful hand and before the rest of the world was aware of its diabolical intention would strike the fatal blow.

How near this plan came to success is hardly appreciated by our people today. They expected to crush France in six weeks, then strike the Russians in overwhelming force before they were mobilized. Then they would be ready for England and any other countries that dared to interfere. This bold plan would probably have been successful had it not been for brave, little Belgium. She delayed the advance two weeks while the French armies came into the field on the run and completely overwhelmed the Huns at the first battle of the Marne. That battle prevented the hands of the clock of civilization from being turned back 200 years. Had the French army been crushed in that titanic struggle, Paris would have fallen in a few days and the formidable resistance would have largely ceased.

With France crushed, England could have done little as it took her more than a year to thoroughly get into the fight. As terms of peace Germany would have taken the French, Russian and perhaps part of the British fleet. The day would not have been distant when the Kaiser could have carried out his threat when he said, "I will not take any more nonsense from the United States." With all of Europe united under one rule and with no allies, we might have had to fight for our national existence on our own soil. If that had come to pass, I believe we could have licked the whole outfit, but it would have meant millions of graves and a destruction that the mind of man cannot estimate. While we mourn the death of nearly 100,000 and the wounding of several times that many, we have escaped lightly to what it might have been. We do honor to the memory of those who have already passed away. Some of them sleep in great marble cities, with their graves guarded by the nations' vigils; some in old fields and besides quiet streams; some in Flander's field where the poppies grow, and some in unknown graves. Wherever they sleep (comrades of your members of the American Legion) a nation's love is with them, and their memory will ever be cherished by their posterity.

"On fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And honor guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead."

While we honor the dead, let us resolve again that those yet living who fought with them shall not lack the comforts of life and that their widows shall not fail to realize, in the evening of their lives, that a grateful republic remembers them too. The surviving soldiers of the Civil war are rapidly passing away. They are making their last march, moving steadily onward. Slowly, inevitably, the members of the Grand Army of the Republic are nearing the frontiers of the great beyond and soon the last one must pass over. Let us leave nothing undone that can be done to make them know before they go that the proud citizens of the great Republic which they preserved are not lacking in gratitude and that they will never cease to cherish the memory of their noble deeds, while we love to relate the stories of heroism of the passing generation let us remember that we have young heroes among us just as brave and patriotic as those who saved this nation 65 years ago. They have encountered dangers undreamed of in any former war, cannons that would send projectiles over twenty miles, sub-marines that could sink the greatest ship afloat; poison gas that meant almost instant death; air planes that were loaded with the most deadly explosives, and scores of other infernal machines that never haunted the dreams of soldiers in other wars.

When you boys landed on that foreign shore the Germans were making their last great drive and it looked for a time as though they would both reach Paris and take the channel ports. Within four months from the day our boys struck the first serious blow the great German military machine was mashed. The Keiser, an exile In a foreign land, and the German nation was on its knees begging for peace.

You boys were transformed from citizens of the most peaceful walks of life into hardened soldiers in a few short months. We were in the war but one and a half years, yet we sent 2,000,000 thoroughly armed and equipped soldiers over 3,000 miles on stormy, submarine infested seas to the shores of sunny France, and now today, only after a few short years, we hear the rumbling of war again in a foreign land, where American citizens and property are in danger, and our warships and soldiers are there. No one at this time can tell just what the outcome will be, but America stands to protect her citizens wherever they be, but we all join in the hope that the issue between nations will in the future be settled in the same way as between individuals, through the peaceful process of a just court. War at best is but a necessary evil. Peace is the ideal state for nations and men.

"There is need in the world of men today
For the man who can fight and smile;
For the man who can to the field away
With a song on his lips the while.

There is need in the world of women today
For the woman who smiles and gives;
Who can hide her tears and her deep dismay,
While in sorrow she works and lives.

So here's to the man who can fight and smile,
And to the woman who smiles as she gives;
And here's to the end of war's dreadful night
And the dawn of the peace that lives.

LOCAL PYTHIANS TO MAKE MERRY FRIDAY NIGHT

All who were numbered as guests of the Maryland Theatre last Friday night are unanimous in their praise for the welcome accorded them by the management. The merits of the high class picture have been discussed at length and taken as a whole, the entire evening was well spent and enjoyed by all.

Dr. Crabbe, Superintendent of the Anti Saloon League of Maryland once made an address before a Sunday audience in Baltimore. As he and Mrs. Crabbe journeyed home she complimented the venerable Doctor on his flow of eloquence and declared it the best she had ever heard him give, stating as her reasons for the assertion that it was short, and therefore the best.

We will exercise brevity this week in our presentation of items of interest. You are aware of the fact that Friday falls on April first. You are doubtless familiar with the tradition attached to the first of April. If you come to Cas tle Hall Friday night expecting to get fooled, there being nothing on hand in the way of diversion, you are going to get fooled. Will there be something o interest? Yes, Yes. There will be fifteen of the worlds renowned famous entertainers, every one a star of unsual brilliancy. We are pleased to call this aggregation of dancers of the light fantastic.. The Invincible Mirth Provokers. They will give one of the most snappy surprises you can imagine. We think that is enough to tell you about what is going to happen. Only an outline has been given. Their movements are veiled in secrecy while an air of mystery abounds. You must come and find out for yourself.

Lodge will open at 8 o'clock on and after April 1. Our genial outer guard welcomes this announcement for he is well nigh over worked by tardiness on the part of some. The contest of the two rival teams has ben extended to May 1. On the distant horizon looms a faint ray which will later develop the entire community in a blaze of splendor and dazzling brilliancy. Do not be alarmed—it is the first ray of the Annual Pythian Banquet of which you will hear more later. No definite date has been named but we predict that the ladies will have a chance to display their Easter toggery. Be not dismayed, ladies, we have your welfare at heart. The success of our banquet is what you make it. Everyone wants to look their best on such an occasion. The feminine trait of wishing to apear well dressed is a laudable one. Don't forget the banquet.

ENDORSE JUDGE DOUB FOR FEDERAL BENCH

Among those who have been mentioned and put forward for the Federal bench of Maryland, to fill the present vacancy, none comes nearer the man for the position than Judge Albert A Doub, of this District Circuit, a jurist of eminence and note who is strongly endorsed by the bars of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

Maryland would be honored should Judge Doub be appointed by President Coolidge to the Federal Bench and the people of Maryland, who know and honor Judge Doub, would feel thoroughly satisfied with the appointment.

An eminent lawyer, member of the bar of Allegany county, Judge Doub has served with honor and distinction for a long number of years. A Republicanof power and influence,a man who stands supreme in the community as a citizen of high integrity. Judge Doub is recognized as a Marylander who would represent his State on the Federal bench with high honor both to himself and the State.

In Maryland, he is regarded as a jurist second to none. Since his election to the Fourth Judicial Circuit. he has filled the position in a manner that reflects great honor to himself, to the bench and bar of the Circuit, and his record is without blemish. In every manner of way, Judge Doub is regarded as the most suitable man for the Federal bench of the State of Maryland and the combined bar association of Allegany. Garrett and Washington counties, are strongly on record for him for the position now vacant.

Judge Doub came "into his own" as a member of the Fourth Judicial Circuit because the people in Western Maryland recognized his legal ability and high standing as a jurist. He was chosen for Associate Judge upon the death of the late Judge Robert R. Henderson and the expiration of the appointive term of Judge William C. Walsh.

A man who "loved his profession he did not seek the position on the bench but harkened to the wishes of his friends in Western Maryland. Washington, Garrett and his own county, Allegany, Insisted that Judge Doub represent them on the bench, and he was elected on his merits as a man and a lawyer.

The record of Judge Doub since he has served as Judge is an open book. It has been most satisfactory and he has proved himself a man of high legal talent, while, as a jurist, he has followed the highest attributes of the Maryland bar. No Judge stands higher in the State than does Albert A Doub, and that is the reason he is being urged for the Federal bench.

Personally, he would not put himself forward for the position, but it is his friends and admirers who are insisting that he be recognized now that Maryland calls for a man of legal power for the Federal bench. Judge Doub is identically the man.

ALBERT A. DOUB

Judge Doub was born on a farm at Beaver Creek, Washington county, of parents whose lineage is traced back to the French Huguenots, and after profiting by the advantages of the public schools of the county, he atded for one year the University of Kentucky at Lexington. In 1883 he entered Johns Hopkins University from which he graduated in 1886 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Was School Teacher

Returning to his home, he taught in Williamsport High school for two years when he became principal of the Beall High school at Frostburg. In 1893 he was elected treasurer of Allegany county, and in January of the following year, while incumbent of this office, he was admitted to the bar, after having pursued the study of law in the office of the late Benjamin A. Richmond after school and office hours.

He served as city attorney for both Frostburg and Cumberland and for four years was legal counsel for the Allegany County Commissioners. In 1898 he was appointed referee in bankruptcy for Allegany and Garrett counties and held this office for a period of twelve years.

Then followed many years of practice as a lawyer here, during which time Judge Doub grew and grew in the estimation of the people of the community. At the bar of Allegany county, he became a lawyer of note until the time came for the call to him to practically sacrifice a very lucrative practice at the bar to become a judge. There should be no measure of regret on the part of Judge Doub beause he was overwhelmingly chosen for the Fourth Judicial Circuit, inasmuch as he has grown steadily in the estimation of the people of Western Maryland and his standing is such today that there is an insistent demand for his appointment to the Federal bench.

GAUER.

Mr. Darwin Hauser and family recently moved into our community.

Mr. D. O. Roth and son. Russell, were visitors at the home of Mr. Billy Hines.

Another spelling match and festival will be held at the Gauer school on April 8th. At this time the Red House school will spell against Gauer. Don't forget—Gauer, April 8th, around 8 o'clock.

Our school recently purchased a new flag and a Victrola.

Rev. Walter Waybright, of the Gettysburg Seminary, occupied the pulpit of St. John's Lutheran church at Red House Sunday. We hope to secure him as a permanent pastor.

It seems winter isn't over after all, because we had quite a snowfall this morning (Tuesday).

We Ought to Do This Often

WITH long distance telephone service at your elbow, there is no longer such a thing as separation. The calls are cheap—especially station-to-station calls—and the service is rapid. A station-to-station call for a distance of 150 miles costs only 95c. during the day; between 7.00 and 8.30 p. m. the call costs 70c.; between 8.30 p. m. and 4.30 a. m., 50c. And you can reach almost any place in just a few minutes.

Many improvements in long distance service have been made during the past year. Rates have been generally reduced and the service has been speeded up. Another thing, station-to-station calls (above 20 cents) may now be reversed without extra charge

VOLUME 52. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, APRIL 7, 1927. NUMBER 7.

ASSEMBLY CLOSES IN TURMOIL EARLY TUESDAY

Sixteen Garrett Bills Out Of Twenty-two Passed.

The Maryland General Assembly came to its close after a last minute struggle with legislation which had left both houses looking like battle grounds. The House adjourned sine die at 12:03 and the Senate at 12:18 a. m., Tuesday after the clocks had been stopped at midnight. Officially, the Legislature could not continue past the end of April 4.

In bringing down the final gavel in the Senate, President David McIntosh said:

"When the record is written and the public has the opportunity to look back on this session from the standpoint of state history, I believe the 1927 sesion will compare favorably with any that has gone before it. Often times the public does not understand why some legislation passes and some legislation fails, but when the record it finally investigated, it certainly will be found that the Maryland Senate did not lag."

Ritchie Expresses Regret.

Committees from the House and Senate waited on Governor Ritchie just before the gavels fell, to inquire if he had any further matters to bring before the House. The governor replied that the administration had nothing further and it was with sincere regret that he saw the ninety day session come to a close.

The close came in the midst of turmoil and revelry. The House, which had been clear of all business sometime before the Senators began to dig themselves out, got away to a running start. When the delegates adjourned, fifteen minutes ahead of the Senators, they poured into the corridors with exuberant shouts which momentarily disrupted the final session of the Senate.

Disposition of Senate Bills.

No. 140. Which would increase the compensation of the County Commissioners, was killed in the senate.

No. 65. An act which gives Justices of the Peace jurisdiction over certain cases amounting to $200. Signed by Governor.

No. 291. An act regulating the taxes of personal and real property in Mt. Lake Park. Signed by Governor.

No. 171. Which would change the time of the Jury and non-jury terms of the Circuit Court for Garrett county. Held up in Senate because of the fact that an amendment was added in the House.

No. 292. Providing for bond issue to build river wall for protection from floods in Kitzmiller. Signed by Governor.

No, 342. Provlding for the purchase and maintenance of Poor farm in the county. This bill carries a referendum. Signed by Governor.

No. 432. Relative to licenses being procured for fishing and boating upon Deep Creek Dam. Signed by Governor.

Disposition of House Bills

A resolution regarding the building of a bridge across the Potomac River between Blaine, W. Va., and Kitzmiller, providing the State of West Virginia pays half of the cost. Signed by the Governor.

No. 339, regulating the catching of Rainbow trout in Youghiogheny River and regulating the open season between July 1 and December 1. Also the fish not to be under eigbt inches in length. Signed by Governor.

No. 383, providing for the transportation of High school children. Held up in Senate by consent.

No. 484, providing for employment on roads of persons committed to jail for the failure to pay fines. Passed.

No. 508, referring to compensation for Associate Judges of Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties. Killed in Judiciary Committee.

No. 566, referring to the payment of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department the amount of $600 annually by the County Commissioners of Garrett county. Passed.

No. 609, regarding fishing and boating on Deep Creek Lake, authorizing the establishment of fish hatcheries, etc. Signed by Governor.

No. 619, regulating the use of State owned automobiles, etc. Died in Committeee.

Bill No. 636, entitled, An Act to empower and direct the County Commissioners of Garrett county to borrow money on the credit of said county for the purpose of erecting public school buildings in the county of Garrett, and equipping the same, and to purchase or condemn real estate for the erection of the same, and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county and to issue bonds for the payment of said money, and to levy taxes upon the assessable property of said county to redeem such bonds and to pay interest thereon. Held up in Committeee.

No. 512, regarding the exemption of certain real property belonging to the Evangelical Lutheran church of Frederick, in the county of Garrett, from taxation. Signed by the Governor.

BENEFIT PICTURE FOR FIRE DEPT. TOMORROW

Five-Story Jump Into Net One Of Thrills In Spectacular Movie At The Maryland

A spectacular orphanage fire, which excels in magnitude and thrills any fire scene ever photographed, is one of the thrilling sequences included in "The Fire Brigade," the Metro- Goldwyn-Mayer special playing at the Maryland Theatre, benefit of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, yet it is said to have been filled with remarkably little confusion.

Dozens of motion picture stars and directors were present the night of the fire at the studio, and all declared it the most perfectly handled big scene ever made.

Director William Night worked with Fire Chief Ralph Scott of Los Angeles and Chief Jay W. Stevens, under whose supervision the blaze was staged, in planning and filming the fire. More than fifty motion picture cameras were trained on the scene to catch every possible momement of the flames.

Being a "four alarmer," the fire was staged in four parts, each one more spectacular than the former. In the last blaze, every window in the large five story building is flaming, thirty-two pieces of fire apparatus are working in the scene, and more than five hundred people are before the cameras. The spectacle on the screen is one of amazing beauty with twenty powerful streams of water playing on the blaze.

Five-Story Leap.

Perhaps the most thrilling event in the picture comes when Charles Ray leaps from the top of the building into a nine foot net held by fifteen firemen on the ground. Many other spectacular jumps and rope rescues are negotiated from other windows in the structure.

"The Fire Brigade" received the expert cooperation of the International Order of Fire Engineers in its filming, and in return the studio is giving a large percentage of the net proceeds to this Order for the carrying on of its fire prevention work. Another portion is to be given to various fire and sick benefits maintained by fire departments throughout the country.

The cast of the big fire prevention spectacle includes May McAvoy, Charles Ray, Holmes Herbert, Tom O'Brien, Eugenie Besserer, Warner P. Richmond, Bert Woodruff, Vivian Ogden, DeWitt Jennings, Dan Mason, James Bradbury, Jr., Erwin Connelly and others.

Girls And Boys Throughout County Receive Payment For Soil Samples

During the early part of last year through the activities of County Agent Jester an effort was made to acquaint the farmers of the county with the varied soils and a lime campaign was organized. The boys and girls of the county were requested to submit soils from their respective localities to ascertain where lime was needed most and also the amount per acre for each farm from which a sample was taken, and also what means should be taken to make the soil more productive.

For each sample brought to the County Agent a premium of five cents was offered and many girls and boys took advantage of the opportunity of obtaining this very necessary information.

Probably through some misunderstanding this work was not completed, but through the efforts of County Agent McGlone the names of the girls and boys who took part in the program as outlined, were procured, and with the cooperation of the First National Bank of Oakland, who has agreed to finance the plan, the girls and boys will now be paid for their efforts.

Mr. McGlone is getting in touch with the various agricultural interests of Garrett county and is proving himself a valuable asset to the people who are engaged in farming and dairying.

BETTER BEEF SPECIAL IN OAKLAND ON MONDAY

Two Registered Sires Purchased —Agent and Demonstrator Responsible For Success

O .K. Quivey, General Agricultural Agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad stated: "Garrett county farmers and townspeople of Oakland always turn out in large numbers when our Agricultural development Special visits Oakland, and the Better Beef Special was no exception which drew a crowd of over one thousand people to Oakland, Monday.

The Better Beef Special is the first train ever operated by the Baltimore and Ohio in the interest of the breeders of beef cattle and the first train of its kind, combining the sale of beef sires with a practical meat exhibit ever operated by any railroad.

In conducting this specail the Baltimore and Ohio has the cooperation of the University of Maryland, Agricultural Extension Service represented by Professor K. A. Clark and Miss Margaret McPheeters, the National Livestock and Meat Board, represented by Mr. F. T. Ediner and Miss Inez Wilson, by the U. S. Department of Agriculture represented by K. F. Warner. The American Hereford Breeders Association, The American Shorthorn Breeders Association and the Aberdeen-Angus Cattle Breeders Association and Ottenheimer Brothers, of Baltimore, represented by Mr. Humphries, manufacturer of refrigerator equipment.

Two very fine purebred beef sires were sold and delivered from the train to Garrett county famers. A shorthorn bull being purchased by Hurley U. Miller, and an Aberdeen Angus bull being purchased by Courtney Wilson. These very fine animals will be a tremendous factor toward improving or building up the kind of beef produced in this county.

The credit for the succes of the Better Beef Special here goes entirely to Mr. J. L. McGlone, Garrett County Agricultural Agent, and Miss Lola Belle Green, Home Demonstration Agent, both of whom have worked unceasingly for the past several weeks on this proposition.

Conference of Homemaker's Clubs Held.

A Conference of the presidents and secretaries of the Garrett Homemaker's Club was held in the Court House on Wednesday, March 30th. Miss V. M. Kellar, State Home Demonstration Agent, was present at this meeting and the day was spent in a round table discussion of the various problems of the clubs. Seven of the eight Women's Clubs were represented at this meeting. The following women were present: Mrs. Allie Speicher, Accident; Miss Mollie Dorsey, Miss Ethel Broadwater, Mrs. Joseph Fahey, Mrs. Annie Getty, Grantsville; Mrs. J. W. McCullough, Friendsville; Mrs. B. C. Scott, Mrs. Boyd Sanders, Mrs. A. P. Sanders, Hutton; Mrs. J. S. Elliott, Mt. Lake-Loch Lynn; Mrs. O. S. Ridder, Sunnyside; Mrs. D. S. Davis, and Mrs. Stanton Whipkey, Oakland.

This was the first County Conference of Homemaker's Clubs held in Garrett county. The clubs hope for a County Council at some future time that will unite all the Homemaker's Clubs in the county.

Rotarians "April Fooled."

Last Friday night at the William James hotel the Rotary Club held their weekly dinner. Many had forgotten it was April 1st, but before the meal was over all were fully aware of the fact.

The table had eight tall candles down the centre and eight paper fools posed in different positions; at every place was a card with a transparent clowns head and underneath the wording. "If you hold this clown up to the light, you'll see thru him alright."

A menu card consisting of nine courses and every delicacy of the season upon it, was placed at each plate. Some men eagerly seized the bill of fare, really believing such a meal would or could be served, (especially for the small amount of 75 cents); upon turning the card over the words "April Fool" appeared.

The egg salad was served in shape of red apples with a little tag saying "Apple salad," on other side, "April Fool." The dessert was an imitation of a fried egg on toast.

During the hour much laughter was heard and all seemed to agree—"A little nonsense now and then, is relished by the best of men.

LAUNDRY DAMAGED BY FIRE MONDAY

Manager and Dry Cleaner Severely Burned—Loss Estimated At $2,500.

Two men were severely burned about the face and arms and a two-year old baby barely escaped burns and probably death in a fire that badly damaged the Nu Way Laundry Monday evening about 7:30 o'clock, following two explosions, the first of which was caused by static electricity, it is said, and did little or no damage.

The fire originated in a dry cleaning vat which contained approximately 50 gallons of dry cleaning fluid, the base being gasoline, and when the first flare came from the vat it was closed and apparently the flames were smothered. At least five minutes lapsed between the time of the first and second explosion, the cause of which has not been definitely determined, but which originated at the end of an eight inch sewer in the south end of the building, which is 40 by 40 feet, and was of such large proportions that its force and flames carried it to the north end of the building and pushed the wall out about twelve inches, cracking it in several places. The building is of concrete block construction.

The two men who were severely burned are William Johnson, one of two brothers who own and manage the laundry, and W. R. Tanner, of Charleston, West Va., a dry cleaner in the wrecked establishment. These men were caught by the second explosion, and were two of probably a dozen people who were in the building at that time, the others escaping that they were not in the paths of the flame, which followed along a side wall to the north end of the building and then made a sweep across the front end of the building for a distance of about 15 feet, when they turned and swept diagonally across to the point where they originated. The flame was about four feet thick, said Mr. Johnson, and he and Mr. Tanner were standing close together and far enough away from the wall that the flame passed by them when it traveled to the north end of the building, however when the flame made the diagonal sweep the two men were caught in its path. Both men were severely burned, and their faces are swollen almost beyond recognition. Both will recover, it is said.

Eugene Johnson, two years old last November, a son of Mr. Johnson, was sitting on a table in the laundry at the time of the explosion and for a time was forgotten by the older people, but very fortunately and miraculously was snatched from in front of the flame by Miss Eleanor Baker, of Crellin, an employee at the laundry, who, after starting for the door, remembered the baby and returned to save it in the nick of time.

The NuWay has been in operation only a short time, and was equipped with the finest laundry machinery that could be procured. It is thought that the machinery has been damaged to only a slight extent, and that $2,500 will repair the building and cover other losses. Insurance covers the entire loss.

A future occurrence of this kind is improbable, because dry cleaning and work in which gasoline will be used will be done on the exterior.

Repairs to the building and machinery will be made immediately, and within a few days time the laundry will resume operations.

At a meeting of the General Committee, Baltimore and Ohio System Division 33, Order Railroad Telegraphers, held in Washington last week, Mr. E. A. Shaffer was elected General Chairman for the three year term beginning March 1st. Candidates for the position who were defeated were Mr. Stover, of Keyser; Mr. Yeager, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Stenger, of Dayton, Ohio. Mr. G. A. McBride was elected General Secretary-Treasurer for the same term of office, winning over Mr. Pierce, of Baltimore, however the committee ruled that if the offices were to remain together they should locate in Baltimore, otherwise the offices could be located where the incumbents desired. Mr. Shaffer will maintain his office in Oakland and Mr. McBride will locate at his old home near Akron. Mr. and Mrs. McBride both state that they have had a most pleasant year in Oakland, but the move will be to their advantage financially, and enable Mr. McBride to be nearer his mother, who has been confined to the house most of the winter.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS HERE TODAY

Ninety Presidents and Delegates Present For Seventh Convention.

The Northern District of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, held its seventh annual meeting at the Maryland Theatre Thursday, April, 7, with ninety presidents and delegates of the various clubs present.

In the absence of the District President, Mrs. A. N. Ward, the executive session in the morning was presided over by Mrs. J. H. Apple, of Frederick, Maryland.

Several reports from the Chairmen of Departments were most comprehensive and inspiring, especially that of Mrs. A. M. Lickenstein, of Cumberland, who told of the valuable work done in Public Welfare; that of Mrs. Paul Hitchens, concerning International Relations, and an excellent report of the American Home, by Miss Anna Sloan.

The very profitabl morning ended with a reception and luncheon at the Manhattan Hotel. There are about seventy-five ladies from as far away as Frederick in town for the occasion.

West Penn Systems Opens New Office

The West Maryland Power Company, subsidiary of The West Penn Public Service Co,, opened their office in the G. A. Fraley & Sons store building Monday, and while the office room is not complete in all details, yet it presents a pleasing and comfortable appearance, Miss Elizabeth West, clerk, is in charge of the office at present and is carrying on the business of the company. All current bills, relative to electricity supplied, can be discounted on or before the 11th day of this month at the local office.

Original Quota For Camps Increased 540

The rush of applicants for permission to attend this year's encampments and the general enthusiasm displayed by the public has prompted Major General Douglas MacArthur, commanding the Third Corps Area, to obtain an increase in the original quota of 4,300. The total increase authorized is 540. Fort Eustis, Virginia will take 240; Fort Howard, Md., will be increased by 50 and Fort Washington, Md., will train 100 more for Basic and Infantry courses. Fort Monroe, Virginia, will take 50 more for Coast Artillery, and Fort Hoyle, Maryland, 100 more for Field Artillery, including basic advanced courses. The War Department is greatly impressed with the activities of last year's candidates in interesting their friends, and with the recognition by parents that these young men (most of them between the ages of 17 and 24) return home from these camps greatly improved in courtesy, health and discipline.

The cavalry camp at Fort Myer cannot accommodate all who have applied for training there and no more applications for training at that camp can be considered. This is also true of the first encampment at Fort Washington, Maryland.

Many members of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia are planning to encamp at Fort Washington, Maryland, during the second training period, August 7th to September 5th, as these dates do not interfere with National Guard encampments.

Fire Department To Drill Friday.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department has set aside tomorrow as a day for extensive drill about the town, and will also take their equipment to Crellin in the afternoon for the purpose of demonstration, and will use the water from the Youghiogheny River for that purpose at Crellin. During the day they will also take their equipment to Mt. Lake Park and demonstrate its qualities there.

At a meeting of the department Tuesday, Mr. Fred Peddicord was elected president of the company, and Mr. Alvie Gortner was elected vice-president. Heretofore the fire chief, George Kerins had been acting in the capacity and performing the duties of the presidency, but found that the work required too much of his time to successfully carry along the work in connection with his other responsibilities.

A benefit motion picture will be shown at the Maryland Theatre tomorrow evening for the local company.

SUFFERS PARALYSIS AND FALLS DOWN STEPS

Mrs. Ralph Weber Escapes Injury and Condition Is Now Improved

Suffering a paralytic stroke on Monday when she was leaving the A. & P. store on Alder street, Mrs. Ralph Weber, a socially prominent lady residing near the H. Weber & Sons green houses, south-east of Oakland, collapsed at the top of the steps leading from the street to the store room, and rolled down to the walk in front of the store. Her entire left side was paralyzed at the time, however, she has regained use of her left leg and the partial use of her left arm, and at this time her condition is reported as favorable for a complete recovery.

Mrs. Weber met with an automobile accident in the year 1912, when she received a fracture of the skull, from which time her physical condition has been impaired to a slight extent, and it is presumed that the stroke on Monday was directly caused by that accident.

Fortunately in her fall Mrs. Weber was not seriously injured, and with the exception of a slight mark on her body, there are no indications that she suffered any severe blows.

On account of Mrs. Weber's present condition, a home talent play for the benefit of the Oakland Grammar school, which she was coaching, has been indefinitely postponed.

DIED.

ELIZABETH ALMA WAGNER.

Mrs, Elizabeth Alma Wagner died at Kingwood, W. Va., Friday, April 1, and was buried Sunday afternoon with services in the Lutheran church at Eglon, conducted by Rev, C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland. She was buried in the cemetery adjoining the church. She was aged 58 years and one month.

MISS NORA MAY FITZWATER

Death has again invaded our community and with his arrow struck a shining mark.

Nora May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A Fitzwater, of North Glade, died March 28, 1927, as the result of a serious attack of measles which developed into pneumonia. She was in her nineteenth year, just in the spring time of life. She was converted and united with the Methodist church at the age of fourteen, and lived a consistent Christian life, ever faithful in her attendance at church and Sunday school. Unassuming, patient and kind, always dependable and trustworthy. She set a noble example for others.

She was conscious to the last, and left a bright testimony of her readiness and willingness to go and live with her Saviour.

Beside her relatives she left a host of friends to mourn their loss.

Funeral services were conducted at the home by her pastors, Rev. Brown and Rev. Anderson. Interment was made in Rose Hill cemetery.

Methinks I hear her sweet, soft voice,
Singing in the Heavenly choir,
And see her Angel form stoop down
To beckon us up higher.

A FRIEND.

Serious Automobile Accident At Grantsville.

A serious automobile accident occurred at Grantsville at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon, when a Ford Coupe carrying two men ran away down Pusley Run Hill, and upon reaching the bottom struck the stone bridge which crosses the run on a curve and demolished the car. The men were thrown down over the bridge into the run and were seriously hurt. They were taken to a hospital in Cumberland.

Mayor and Town Council Elect and Appoint Officers

At a meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening at the council chamber in the City Hall, an election of officers for that body was held with the following results: Mr. Grover C. Stemple, president; Mr. James O. Ilinebaugh, collector. The appointive offices were filled as follows: Samuel B. Aronhalt, chairman of the street committee; Grover C. Stemple, chairman of the water committee; Delbert Davis, chairman of the finance committee; Ernest Ray Jones city attorney; Bartlett B. Nethkin, bailiff; Edward I. West, magistrate. Michael Maroney, street commissioner, and James Compton water works commissioner, were retained in service by the body.

PETER'S LESSON IN TRUST

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 14:22-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be of good cheer. It is I; be not afraid.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Trusts Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Helping Savior.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Peter Failed.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ the Ever-Present Helper.

The storm-tossed disciples on the sea at night are an example of the struggling followers of the Lord in the darkness of the present age, as they are tossed by the tempests of the evil one.

I. The Disciples on the Storm-Tossed Sea (vv. 22-24).

1. They are sent across the sea by Christ (v. 22).

"Jesus constrained His disciples to get into a ship." Doubtless His reason for this was to keep them from entanglement in the movement of the people to make Him King, for in John 6:14, 15, it is shown that the people were so excited by the feeding of the 5,000 that they were about to make Him King by force.

2. Christ dismisses the multitudes (v. 22).

This may be taken as typical of His rejection by the nation whose rulers had already rejected Him.

3. Christ praying alone in the mountain (v. 23).

Temptation to earthly honor and power had come to Him, therefore He went to the Father in prayer for relief and strength. The need of prayer is greatest at such times. According to Mark 6:48 He saw from the mountain the disciples toiling on the storm-tossed sea.

II. Jesus Walking on the Sea (vv. 25-27).

1. It was in the fourth watch of the night (v. 25).

He did not come to them immediately, but waited till almost dawn. However, it was the darkest part of the night. Their physical danger was great, but no doubt their mental perplexity was greater. They knew that the Lord had sent them, but why should they be in such straits if He sent them? The stormy sea is no evidence that the disciple is not in the Lord's appointed way.

2. The disciples alarmed at His coming (v. 26).

At the sight of Him they cried out for fear. They said: "It is a spirit." It was the coming of their best friend to deliver them from danger.

3. Jesus' words of comfort and good cheer (v. 27).

In the midst of their distress they heard the Master's words, "Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid." This changed their fear to joy.

III. Peter Walking on the Sea (vv. 28, 29).

1. Peter's request.

As soon as Peter recognised the voice of Jesus he cried: "Bid me come to thee on the water" (v. 28).

2. Jesus' response (v. 29).

At the Lord's "come," Peter left the ship and walked on the water. While he kept his eyes on the Lord he walked on the waves. His faith linked him with the divine power and was thus upheld. Vital faith in Jesus Christ will enable the disciple to outride the storms of life.

IV. Peter Sinking (v. 30).

He took his eyes off the Lord and placed them upon the raging sea. This separated him from the divine power. We should learn to fix our eyes upon the Lord instead of upon our circumstances. Failure will surely follow if we give consideration to our circumstances and our own ability to master them.

V. Christ Rescuing Peter (v. 31).

When Peter began to sink he did the sensible thing. He cried out: "Lord, save me." Immediately Jesus stretched forth His hand and caught him. His salvation from death at the bottom of the sea was the result of the Lord taking hold of him. Jesus Christ in the incarnation was the divine hand reaching forth to rescue a sinking world. The significance of the expression "caught him" is made clear in Hebrews 2:16. It is there declared that Jesus took not upon Himself the nature of angels but took upon Himself the seed of Abraham. The same Greek word occurs in verse 31 of this lesson. We should understand from this that the eternal Son of God did not come in the form of a man in order to show man the way to God, but identified Himself with man through incorporation with Him. He came, not as an example, but as a Savior.

GRANTSVILLE.

(By George W. Diefenbach)

Grantsville, Md., April 6.—Eli Brown, a Civil Veteran, died March 31st at his home near Mill Run at the age of 80 years and three months, from the infirmities of age. He is survived by his wife, four grandchildren and two great grandchildren; also by a brother, William Brown, of Meilman Ridge; and two sisters, Mrs. Susan Bowser, Selbysport, Md., and Mrs. Caroline McRobie, McHenry, Md. The funeral was conducted by his pastor, Rev. G. W. W. Amick, in the Cove Lutheran church on Sunday morning, which was largely attended, he being a man well and favorably known in his locality.

Word was recently received in this locality by relatives and friends, of the sudden death of Ernest Enlow, of Akron, Ohio, recently, he being the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Enlow, former residents of this locality. His death was the result of an automobile collision, in which the occupants of both cars were injured, but not seriously, except young Enlow. He is survived by a wife and small child, his parents and several brothers and sisters. The funeral was held from the family home near Akron.

Municipal Election Held.

In the Municipal election, held on Monday, Messrs. Norman Patton, William Winterberg and Fred Livengood were elected councilmen. The election was a quiet affair and passed over without a stir, not even with electioneering. The retiring members are, Messrs. C. A. Bender, Harvey Gortner and D. W. Dorsey, who served during the past two years.

Install Refrigerator.

Ira Huff, the obliging town butcher has recently installed a refrigerating show case in his place of business in the Glotfelty building, which enables him to keep and show his goods in a much more sanitary and convenient manner.

Womans' Club Holds Meeting

On of the most interesting and instructive special meetings of the Womans' Club was held at the home of Mrs. J. U. Stanton last Tuesday. Mrs. Helen McKinley, of the University of Maryland, assisted by Miss Lola Belle Green and other club members, made two dress forms while there. Mrs. McKinley was very thorough in explaining every detail connected with making of a perfect form, the finishing and mounting when completed. There were seventeen members of the club present and two from the Friendsville club with the senior class from the high school, also several visitors, who took notes as to the making of a form.

Local and Personal Items.

The 42nd studio evening, consisting of a Lenten program, was given last Wendesday evening, as follows:

Prologue, Herrick, Mr. Lee Roy Shumaker; Voice, Sunshine and Rain, Thomas, Miss Mabel Younkin; Reading, Maximus, Procter, Mr. George Diefenbach; Piano, Largo Appassionata, Beethoven from Sonata Op. 2, No. 2, Mrs. George Diefenbach; Reading, "Times were hard in Pontiac," Parker, Miss Helen Folk; Voice, Babylon, Watson, Mr. Diefenbach; Reading, "Glaucus and Olinthus," Bulwer, from "Last Days of Pompei," Mr. Shumaker and Mr. Clyde Miller; Voice, Prayer, Salvatore Marchesi, Miss Christine Winterberg; Reading, "This way went the Lady Mary to Paradise," King, Miss Dorothy Edwards; Piano, Largo Haendel, Miss Helen Folk and Miss Mabel Younkin; Eliogue, Leigh Hunt, Mr. Clyde Miller.

The half-day teachers' meeting for primary tachers of the two and three rooms schools in the Grantsville Unit was held last Wednesday at the High school, here, under the supervision of Miss Kate Bannatyne, the unit helping teacher. Discussions on difficulties and remedial measures for reading in the first three grades were led by Norman Maust of Yoder school; Miss Hettie Deathrage of Jennings school; Miss Louise Yantz of Finzel school, and Miss Mary Jinkins of Strawberry Hill school. Demonstration in primary reading was given by Miss Harriett Wilson of the Grantsville school. Standards for language work in these grades were also discussed.

The boys of the High school taking Vocational Agriculture have recently purchased a cap of the trench cap style, which was originated during the World War. The materials are blue with gold lettering, the school initials on one side and the words "Vocational Agriculture" upon the other. They make a nice appearance.

The Utopian Literary society of the High school gave a public program last Thursday evening, consisting of the following numbers:

Song, Long, long ago, society; Monologue, Miss Velora Swauger; Trio, Misses Lulu Pope, Marion Wisseman and Velora Swauger; Scene, from "Merchant of Venice," Frieda Wiley, Mary Martha Miller and Lee Roy Shumaker; Vocal solo, Viola Butler; Dialogue, "Grandpa Dean's Talking Machine," Genevieve Pope, Pearl Beachy, Alvin Beachy, Ruth Emory, Allen Baker and Joseph Lewis; Locals, Miss Ruth Emory; Declamation, Miss Dorothy Edwards; Song, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," Society.

Plans have recently been completed to remove a partition from between two of the rooms on the second floor of the High school in order to provide a suitable assembly hall, which has always been lacking in the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Platter, formally opened their restaurant in the W. O. W. Hall on Monday morning, having it tastily equipped for the business and presents an inviting and neat appearance. They are prepared to serve regular meals or lunches, and have a stock of candies, cigarettes, tobaccos and fruits, also groceries.

The American Restaurant, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwards, recently erected a neat and sizable sign in front of their place of business, equipped with electric lights.

The Grantsville Garage, local Chevrolet dealers, report that March has been the best month in the history of their business, having delivered eleven new cars and seven used cars. They recently remodeled their stock room and office, put in comfort rooms for men and women, equipped their sales room with new show cases and counters.

The Motor Service Company, local Ford dealers, have started an addition to their already large building which will give them much additional space for show and stock room purposes, also storage space, which has been at a premium with them for some time.

The Lutheran Church Council last week awarded a contract to William Petry, of Salisbury, Pa., for a basement room under the present structure. Excavation from under the entire building will be started next week. The plans include a large assembly room for Sunday school and social purposes with platform, a kitchen, toilet rooms, inside stairway to the upper floor, a new heating plant and modern plumbing, giving them a very complete plant when finished.

The Dairy course, conducted by Dr. Devoe Meade from the University of Maryland at the High school last week for the benefit of farmers of this locality, was well attended, there being an average of 25 for the week. The instructor and farmers were both pleased with the results and are looking forward to a similar course next year.

Special attention is called to the Landscape Gardening Conference to be conducted by Mr. W. R. Ballard from the Extension Department, University of Maryland, at Oakland next Tuesday, April 12th. This meeting will be held in the Court House and is free to all persons who desire to learn more about setting shrubbery and trees.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church met last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Marian Broadwater. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Etta Engle. The attendance was good and plans were made for a social and musical to be given soon. The hostess served a two-course luncheon.

Mrs. Annie Stanton entertained the Womans' Missionary society of the Reformed church on Thursday, last week. Mrs. N. R. Davis was the leader. There were fourteen in attendance and the annual election was held, electing Mrs. Byron Bender, president; Mrs. Harold Boucher, secretary, and Mrs. Annie Stanton, treasurer. Mrs. Stanton served refreshments.

Word was recently received that Mrs. A. J. Jinkins, a resident of this locality until a year ago, but now living with her children in Akron, O., is convalescing from an operation of a serious nature, performed in the People's Hospital, Akron.

The True Blue Class of the Reformed Sunday school, has announced that it will conduct a bake sale on the day before Easter in Dr. Broadwater's store room. The posters are very artistic and attractive. The makers are to be complimented upon their work.

The local camp of Woodmen of the World are rehearsing for a minstrel to be given soon.

The regular Quarterly Conference of the Methodist church will be held on Easter Sunday morning in the Jennings Methodist church.

Services next Sunday in the churches as follows: Methodist: Sunday school 10 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. Reformed: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m., and worship at 10:30 a. m. Minister not announced. Lutheran: Sunday school at 1:15 p. m. and Holy Communion at 2:30 p. m.

Lenten Good Friday services will be held at the Holmes and Wallace Studios on Good Friday at 3 p. m.

Miss Gertrude Hone spent several days last week in Friendsville, the guest of Mrs. J. W. McCullough.

Hamilton Weeks, Misses Bertha Warnick and Clemma Murphy, of Mt. Lake Park were guests on Wednesday and Thursday of last week of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwards.

Mrs. Wilda Fahey, Misses Mary C. Dorsey, Ethel Broadwater and Mrs. Annie E. Getty attended the Presidents and Secretaries of Womens Clubs meeting in Oakland last week.

Misses Marion Henion and Helen Kinnick, Garrett County Grade Supervisors, visited Miss Kate Bannatyne last Friday.

NOTICE TO SCHOOL COMMUNITIES OF ONE- and TWO-TEACHER SCHOOLS.

NOMINATION OF TRUSTEES

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all school communities of one- and two- teacher schools in Garrett county that the Board of Education of the county aforesaid has named the hour of 4 o'clock p. m., of

as the hour and day upon which each school community of one- and two-teacher schools is to meet at its school house for the purpose of selecting one, two, or three residents of the school community to be recommended to the Board of Education before May 5, 1927, for appointment as trustee or trustees, as the vacancies may demand in each particular school.

School Communities having three or more teachers are excused from this regulation.

The hour and day of the meeting may be changed to any other hour or day of the week of April 18th-22, 1927, if such change has the UNANIMOUS consent of all the people of the school community who are interested and concerned in the object of the meeting.

BLANK FORMS for reporting to this office the deliberations of the meetings have been mailed to all principals of the various one- and two- teacher schools to be delivered by the principals to the community meetings to be held on the date and hour named.

BY ORDER of the Board of Education of Garrett county, Maryland, at its meeting held March 30, 1927.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, a corporation, vs. The Advance Development Company, a corporation; John Crosby Brydon and Nell H. Brydon, his wife; William Schley Brydon and Delia E. Brydon, his wife, and Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife.

No. 2743 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to have a decree passed declaring void, vacating and annulling two deeds.

The Bill alleges that on or about the 6th day of February, 1922, the plaintiff, The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, discounted a note of the defendant Louis B. Brydon, in the sum of Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars, and that ever since said time and at the present time the said indebtedness with interest thereon is an outstanding and subsisting indebtedness due the plaintiff; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon was the owner of a one-third undivided interest in land in Garrett county, Maryland, containing about forty seven acres, which was conveyed to the said Louis B. Brydon, John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon by deed of Susan V. Brydon and husband, dated the 5th day of September, 1896, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett county in Liber E. Z. T. No. 30, folio 477; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon had out of his own moneys and property advanced and paid to the said John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon an amount of money, equal to and in excess of their value and ownership in the aforesaid property, and in order to secure the same to the defendant, Louis B. Brydon, the said John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, without consideration, except said indebtedness, did on June 1, 1926, execute a deed to The Advance Development Company, a corporation, of all of their right, title and interest in said property, same being recorded among said Land Records in Liber E. Z. T. No. 93, folio 411.

The Bill further alleges that the defendant being all the time indebted to the plaintiff as aforesaid did prior to January 26, 1926, cause to be incorporated The Advance Development Company and did, without any consideration moving from the said The Advance Development Company to the said Louis B. Brydon, execute a deed in connection with his said wife for a pretended consideration of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars of all of his right, title and interest in the aforesaid real estate; that at the time of the execution and delivery of the aforesaid deeds from John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, to The Advance Development Company, and the said deed from Louis B. Brydon and wife to The Advance Development Company, the said defendant Louis B. Brydon was indebted as aforesaid to the plaintiff, and that at the time of the making of both of said deeds, he did not have the means of paying said indebtedness out of any other property except the property so conveyed, and at said time he was also largely indebted to other persons and was insolvent; that said conveyances were made to The Advance Development Company for a simulated and pretended consideration, and that the effect of the same was to hinder, delay and defraud your complainant of its just and lawful claim.

The Bill further alleges that the said Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Taylor county, West Virginia, and that the said William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Barbour county, West Virginia.

The Bill prays for a decree of Court declaring to be void, vacating and annulling both of the aforesaid deeds to The Advance Development Company, and for other relief.

It is thereupon this 31st day of March, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 6th day of May, 1927, give notice to the said absent and non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 23rd day of May, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

TRUSTEE'S SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY
IN GARRETT COUNTY

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, dated the 5th day of March, 1927, passed in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Emma Green, widow, et al., are plaintiffs, and Fannie May Green, et al., are defendants, it being No. 2730 Equity, upon the docket of said Circuit Court for said County, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale to the highest bidder or bidders therefor for cash in front of the Garrett County Court House on

SATURDAY, APRIL 16th, 1927,

at 11:00 o'clock a. m., the following pieces or parcels of ground, to wit:

1. All that part of a tract of land lying in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, and described as follows:

Beginning at the end of one hundred perches on the last line of a tract of land known as Savage Mountain, being near a white pine standing on the east side of a run known as Benjamin Boyer's Run, north of his old saw mill, and running north fifty-seven degrees west, eighty-four perches, south forty degrees west, ninety perches, south fifty-seven degrees east, eighty-four perches, north forty degrees east, one hundred and four perches, containing forty-nine and one half acres, more or less.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Andrew Beeman and Mary Beeman, his wife, by deed dated February 28, 1902, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 40, folio 406, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Also all that tract of land known as the "Hanekamp Farm," said property lying and being in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, about six miles from Lonaconing Town, in said State of Maryland, and described as follows:

Beginning at the beginning of the whole tract called "Savage Ridge" and running with the outlines of said whole tract, south forty degrees west, eighty perches, south fifty degrees east, one hundred perches, north seventy-seven and one-half degrees east, one hundred and three perches, north forty-five degrees east, one hundred and eighty perches to a stone pile, north twenty-two degrees east, fifty-six perches to a large stone pile and bounded chestnut tree, then crossing the whole tract aforesaid, north fifty-seven degrees west, one hundred and eighty perches to the given line of said whole tract, then with said given line to the beginning, containing three hundred and fourteen acres of land, more or less.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Jacob Beeman by deed dated March 1, 1902, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 40, folio 507, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above two pieces or parcels of ground comprise all of one farm of a total of three hundred and sixty-three (363) acres, more or less, and contains the following improvements:

A six room substantial frame dwelling; a frame and log bank barn about thirty by fifty feet in dimensions; a wagon shed; an automobile shed; two springs of never-failing water situated close to the house. The soil is lime stone soil, and about one hundred acres of the same are cleared and under cultivation. There is an apple orchard of about sixty trees of an average age of twelve years. This farm will be offered and sold as a whole. It is situated about five miles from Avilton on Pea Ridge Road leading from Lonaconing to Avilton.

None of the timber upon the above farm will be sold, it having already been disposed of under certain contracts of sale heretofore executed, and the farm will be sold subject to the rights of the parties holding said contracts to remove the timber therefrom.

2. All that tract, piece or parcel of land known and distinguished in a sub-division of a tract of land called "Lochiel" as Lot Number Six, situate and lying in Garrett County, in the State of Maryland, containing one hundred and sixty acres of land, more or less, which said property was conveyed to Ulysses S. Jackson by The Lochiel Lumber, Mining, Manufacturing and Improvement Company of Allegany County and others, by deed dated July 16, 1888, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, in Liber No. 41, folio 125, and being also a part of the same property which was conveyed by the said Ulysses S. Jackson and Susan L. Jackson, his wife, to Thomas J. Rayner and Mary E. Rayner, his wife, by deed dated September 23, 1914, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County aforesaid, and it being also the same property which was conveyed by Richard S. Bell, Assignee of Mortgage, to Rebecca Clark by deed dated April 24, 1924, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County aforesaid in Liber No. 86, folio 599, reference to all of which deeds is made for a more full and particular description of this proprety.

It being the same property which was conveyed unto William H. Green by Rebecca Clark, widow, by deed dated May 26, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 88, folio 63, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

The above farm is improved by a five room log and frame dwelling house, a small barn and other outbuildings. The property contains a good never-failing spring near the house, and an apple orchard of about thirty trees of an average age of twelve years. The soil is of lime stone, and about fifty acres of it are cleared and under cultivation. The timber on this farm will pass to the purchaser, and will not be reserved at the sale.

TERMS OF SALE:—Cash.

The Trustee hereby reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

GEORGE R. HUGHES,
5 4t. Trustee.

TRUSTEES' SALE
OF A VALUABLE
FARM PROPERTY
Meshack Mattingly Farm In District No. 6. of Garrett County

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, sitting in Equity, dated the 26th day of February, 1927, and passed in a cause wherein Martha Collins Dodge, Admrx. et al. were plaintiffs and William Mattingly et al. were defendants, the same being No. 2727 Equity on the docket of said Court, the undersigned trustee will on

SATURDAY, APRIL 9th, 1927,

at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder all of that farm in District No. 6 of Garrett county of which the late Meshack Mattingly died, seized and possessed, as follows:

1. All of that tract of land known as "Fayette" containing 200 acres and Military Lots Nos. 4148 and 1677, containing 100 acres. These parcels being the same which were described in a deed from Catherine Townshend to Dominick Mattingly dated December 17, 1853, and recorded in Liber 11, folio 359, one of the Land Records of Allegany county, Maryland, and title to which became vested in said Meshack Mattingly by a series of conveyances mentioned in the papers in this cause and filed therein. Parts of Military Lots Nos. 1668 and 1669 containing 46 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Daniel Smith and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated September 30, 1869, and recorded in Liber 31, folio 184, one of the Land Records of Allegany county; part of Military Lot No. 4146 containing 16 acres, more or less, and described in a deed from Samuel Ferguson to said Meshack Mattingly dated January 1, 1876, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 2, folio 337, one of the Land Records of Garrett county; part of a tract of land called "Warrington," containing 9½ acres and part of Military Lot No. 1498 containing 6¾ acres, described in a deed from Wm. Dewitt and wife to Meshack Mattingly dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No 6, folio 418, one of said Land Records.

Excepting, however, those parcels of land which were conveyed by said Meshack Mattingly and wife to William Dewitt and Mary F. Sebold by deed dated May 23, 1871, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 6, folio 485, etc., and September 17, 1881, and recorded in Liber W. H. T. No. 5, folio 775, etc., of the Land Records of Garrett county; and by Mary P. Mattingly, widow, et al, to W. A. Smith by deed dated September 21, 1912, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 64, folio 247, one of said Land Records. The remaining portion of said farm to be sold containing about 316 acres.

2. The timber on the portion of the above farm bounded on the west by the land formerly owned by Hamill Casteel, on the south by the Marion Hoye land and on the south-east by George Sebold's land will be excepted from the above and will be sold separatey on the day of sale. Further information relative to this can be obtained by any interested person from the trustees.

The above farm is well located, a very considerable portion thereof is cleared and under cultivation; is improved by two dwellings, barn, stable and other necessary outbuildings, has a good orchard and would make an excellent farm home.

Terms of Sale:—As prescribed by the decree, one-third cash on day of sale, one-third in six months and one-third in twelve months, or all cash at the option of the purchaser; credit portion to bear interest and to be secured to the satisfaction of the trustees.

J. C. RENNINGER,
G. S. HAMILL,
E. R. JONES, Trustees.

Thinks Maryland Should Find Significance In Forest Week

Maryland, with a forest area thirty-five per cent of its total land area, yet dependent upon other States for five-sixths of its lumber, should find American Forest Week particularly significant, the National Forest Week Committee pointed out recently.

Proclaimed by President Coolidge for April 24 to 30, American Forest Week is the annual call to all citizens to take part in bringing about better forest conditions. Marylanders interested in forestry are urged by the national committee to get in touch with De Courcy W. Thom, of Baltimore, State chairman, and offer him cooperation in the local observance of the week.

Freight $5,000,000 Yearly.

Although few sections are situated more favorably for timber growing than Maryland, with its valuable tree species, suitable soil, nearness to timber markets, and its possession of important wood-using industries, the State annually pays a freight bill on imported lumber of $5,000,000, the committee asserted.

Maryland forests contain tree species of the greatest variety and of the highest commercial value found in Eastern United States. The loblolly, species of pine, is at home in Maryland and grows more rapidly there than in any other section, it is said.

Big Loss In Forested Area.

The original forested area of 5,760,000 acres has decreased to 2,230,000 acres, much of which is cut-over and culled forest. Reforestation, however, is being carried on with considerable success. As a private business proposition tree growing has been in practice for many years.

The State now has a nursery, with an annual output of 500,000 forest tree seedlings. For supplying forest planting stock to farmers, the State has allotted $3,731 for 1927. To this amount the United States Forest Service will add $2,000. For fire protection, the State maintains a system of local fire wardens, with power to employ fire-fighting assistants. A chain of fire-observation towers covers most of the State. This and other State forestry matter are under a State Board of Forestry, whose secretary, F. W. Besley, is the State Forester.

No Special Taxation Laws.

There are no special forest taxation laws favorable to reforestation, assessment being at the local property rate.

The six State forests have an area of 3,859 acres and the community forests of cities and towns an area of 8,000. The Camp Meade military reservation has about 3,000 acres of woodland under the administration of the Forest Service.

CHILD HEALTH DAY

Arrangements for the celebration of Child Health Day, throughout the State, in connection with the observance of May Day, are being made by the Maryland May Day Committee, of Child Health Day, throughout the Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, is Chairman, in accordance with the recommendations of the American Child Health Association.

"Underlying our plans for the celebration of Child Health Day," Dr. Knox said, are two main purposes: "first, to increase the interest of every mother and father in the State and of all other grown-ups, in the health and well being of the growing child. Second, to afford an opportunity for the celebration by the children themselves of May Day, emphasizing the ideas of personal health and vigor along with the traditional features of the spring time festival.

"Special thought has been given this year, in the nation-wide plans outlined by the American Child Health Association, to the spiritual side of the child's nature as well as to the physical and mental sides. Special exercises, consisting of recitations and music, have been arranged for use in the church schools.

"The celebrations in the day schools and by other organizations will be held on selected days in April and May. They will include plays, pageants, special May Day exercises, games and athletic events.

"The part that will be taken by City and State Departments of Health, Parent Teacher Organizations and other associations interested in the health of the growing child, will follow the lines that have been found to be most effective in promoting health and in preventing disease, and will include health conferences for mothers and young children, physical examinations of the pre-school child in preparation for admission to school; immunization against diphtheria, and against typhoid; vaccination against smallpox."

A Child Health Day pamphlet containing suggestions for exercises in the school or by other organizations, has been published by the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health. A copy of the Child Health Day book and of the May Day Music may be obtained by writing to the Bureau, 16 W. Saratoga St.

MRS IZETTA BROWN TO WED ENGINEERING PROF

Famous Preston Co. Woman Will Become Bride April 16 of Union College Dean.

To announce the engagement and marriage of Mrs. Izetta Jewel Brown, of Kingwood and Washington, to Dean Hugh Miller of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., Mrs. James Rogers Moreland entertained Thursday afternoon at her home on Preston road, Morgantown, with a reception of elaborate appointments at which 150 friends of Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Moreland were received.

Each guest on arriving was presented with a jonquil in which was hidden a slip of paper bearing the words, "Brown-Miller, April 16." The ceremony will be performed in Georgetown, D. C., at the home of Mrs. Alvin Dodd, an intimate friend of Mrs. Brown, at noon Saturday, April 16. There will be no attendants, but a number of West Virginia friends of Mrs. Brown will be present.

Mrs. Brown is a nationally prominent figure and her exceptionally brilliant career covers many fields; the stage, having been the leading woman for Otis Skinner, James K. Hackett, and other leading actors; dairy farming, politics, travel, newspaper writing and campaign work for the leaders of the Democratic party.

In 1914 she was married to William G. Brown, Jr., a representative in Congress from the Second district of West Virginia. Mr. Brown's death occurred in 1916, six weeks after the birth of their daughter, Miss June Brown.

During the war Mrs. Brown was unusually active and it was at this time that she met her fiance, then Capt. Miller, at Camp Humphrey.

Twice she was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. Although she was defeated both times she made such remarkable contests that she became known over the entire country as one of the leading women in politics.

In 1924 at the national Democratic convention held in Madison Square Garden, New York, Mrs. Brown seconded the nomination of John W. Davis for the presidency. She also seconded his nomination at the 1920 convention.

Mr. Miller is an authority in educational matters, especially in engineering. Until last fall he was Dean of the College of Engineering of George Washington University. He now holds the same office at Union College at Schneetady. Mr. Miller is the son of the late Charles Dexter Miller, former president of the New York Cotton Exchange. He is a graduate of Princeton, in the class of 1901.

He has held professorships at Princeton, Harvard, Rice Institute, at Houston, Texas, George Washington University and Union College. From 1917 until 1921, he was captain of engineers in the army. Upon resigning he was retired to the Reserves with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. He is a widower and has two sons, both students at Princeton.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mrs. J. A. Hayden, who has been ill for some time, was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, last Saturday for treatment.

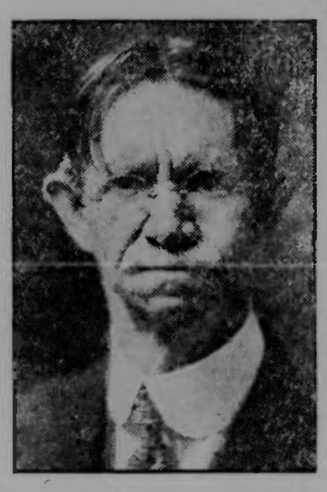
The Dunnington's have returned from Washington, D. C., where they spent the winter months, and are getting the Mt. Lake Hotel in readiness for the season.

Rev. A. Bailey has vacated the Baptist parsonage in Loch Lynn and has moved his household goods back to his own cottage in the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Utterback are enjoying their new and handsome car.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Schrock, who spent the winter months in Florida, are now back in their cottage.

Mrs. Bussell is here putting the Allen House cottage in shape for the summer.



Mrs. Nancy J. Haymond, who spent the winter months in Sebring Fla., has returned to the Park for the summer months.

DR. WRIGHT TO RETIRE BECAUSE OF ILL HEALTH

Former Mt. Lake M. E. Pastor Will Enter Sanitarium For Treatment

Lonaconing, Md., April 5.—After seven years service as pastor of the first Methodist Episcopal church of Lonaconing, Rev. Dr. U. S. Wright, left during the past week for the Maryland State Sanitarium where he will take treatments for his heart, which has become weakened in the last few months as the direct result of a severe attack of grippe.

Known throughout Lonaconing and vicinity as "the hatless parson" Dr. Wright's ill health is a surprise to many, as, in his daily work of ministering to the spiritual needs of his flock he never mentioned his condition—leading everyone to believe that he was in the best of health.

REV. DR. U. S. WRIGHT

It is notable that for the past ten years, Dr. Wright has never worn a hat or cap—because, as he states, he found it too much trouble to be continually "tipping" his headpiece to women whom he would meet on the street. Graying slightly at the temples, Dr. Wright's hair is a thick mass—prospering apparently on the air. During the colder days and through the thick of rain, snow and sleet, the minister went about sans hat or cap.

Coming here in 1920 from Hyndman, Pa., where he spent two years, Dr. Wright's popularity began to increase in leaps and bounds from the start. Apparently never in a hurry he would stop on the streets to talk or joke with anyone—and never drew the line on faith or creed. He has as many friends of Catholic and other faiths as of his own faith.

Wrote for Religious Journals.

Aside from being an active preacher, Dr. Wright is somewhat of a "Fourth Estater," having written for many papers and magazines. He was at one time Epworth League and Sunday school editor for the "Baltimore Methodist" and the Washington "Christian Advocate." Up until last week he furnished weekly Sunday School lessons for the Oakland Republican. He is a director of the Mountain Lake Park Association, and has taught the Men's Bible Class there many times. He also attended Epworth League conventions there. His first charge, 25 years ago, was at Taylorsville, Md., he being admitted to the conference from his former home at Knoxville, Carroll county. He was educated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

Work Shows Big Results.

Since coming to Lonaconing, Dr. Wright has increased the Sunday School enrollment from about 125 to over 500 active members and the enrollment in the church has increased about 35 per cent. Only last Sunday he admitted 39 persons to membership in the church representing the work of the winter months. He has also inaugurated the Epworth League here. He has always been prominent in Epworth League work, being a member of the faculty of the Epworth League Institute of the Baltimore Conference. It is not uncommon for him to be greeted as "Uncle Sam" on the streets of Baltimore or Washington by some student of the institute. The trend of international affairs does not escape his attention and he is always able to talk with authority on any subject affecting the affairs of state.

Several hundred books including religious, historical and technical works can be found in his library.

Always active in anything tending for the betterment of the city or individuals, the removal of Dr. Wright will be deeply regretted in this section. It is thought that he will be confined to the sanitarium for the next three months after which he will take up another charge if conditions permit. During his stay in the hospital his family will remain in Lonaconing, making their home with Mr. and Mrs. George Hunt, Church street.

A TRIBUTE.

The day is done and the darkness
Falls from the wings of night
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in its flight.

I see the lights of the village,
Gleam through the rain and mist
And a feeling of sadness comes o'er me,
A feeling I cannot resist.

For like strains of muffled music
These mighty thoughts suggest
Life's endless cares are over
And tonight our comrade's at rest.

What beauty, and yet what sadness these tender lines convey. Too sadly do they describe our own little town just now. Tis in sadness all, even the voice of the small stream seems stifled with the dreary, mournful splashing of the chilling rain. With slow but sure and steady hand God has taken another link from the family chain, and has claimed him for his own—Mr Abraham Wotring, a man known to many far and near.

A dear one from our midst has gone,
A form we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in the home
That never can be filled.

He was kind, affectionate and unselfish, and a lover of small children. He was supremely happy when surrounded by small children. It will be a sad but sweet thought, for in his last illness re requested that only his family watch his bedside, which was willingly granted.

His infant son, Harry, preceded him to the grave some years ago. We remember so often of hearing him wish the time was here for him to go to meet little Harry. If we would but live our lives here on earth, taking him as an example. It could truthfully be said that our assurance with God would be certain. The beautiful floral offerings were mere emblems of the esteem we all held for him.

Sad as it was when the end came, he looked into the eyes of his faithful companion and said, "Mother, I'm going home." All that loving hands could do was done, but God who doeth all things well had called to his faithful servant "well done, come up higher." Though he suffered he never complained, and his face gave expression akin to that above until his feeble frame could no longer withstand the stern demand of disease, and his soul returned to God who gave it.

The deceased is survived by his bereaved wife, and two daughters, Mrs. W. E. Shirer and Mrs. Elsie Ashby, both of Oakland, and one brother, Mr. Joe Wotring, of Aurora, and five grandchildren.

Only the truth on earth he has spoken,
Only the seeds on earth he has sown
These shall pass onward when he is forgotten,
Only remembered by what he has done.

MRS. A. S. OURS.

The members of the bowling league, numbering 54 in all, attended a delightful banquet at the Manhattan Hotel on last Thursday evening. A very high class dinner was served by the management of the hotel, and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by those present.

Mr. Henry Lauer, propietor of the Oakland Model Bakery, has just received word from his son, William H., better known by his host of friends here as "Bill," that he could not get home as he had planned, for Uncle Sam has ordered it otherwise. For twenty months "Bill" has been a United States Marine, sixteen of them spent at St. Croix, Virgin Islands. He returned to the states March 31st and was immediately ordered to San Diego, for embarkation to the China war zone. "Bill" has a record in the Corps that is hard to beat and everyone wishes him God-speed on his new assignment and a hope of seeing him soon again back in town.

The old standby, "a good time was had by all," certainly expresses the thots of everyone that attended the St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood meeting Tuesday night at the Lutheran Church. About fifty members and their friends were present.

Brotherhood,- "The fraternal bond of a common humanity or the common fatherhood of God." The definition very clearly states the aim of this Brotherhood in this particular community, and each successive meeting finds more and more coming to ascertain just what this thot of Brotherhood might be.

President Henry Lauer had an interesting program arranged, which was as follows: Opening song, Everyone: Scripture reading and prayer, Rev. Shilke: Announcements: Songs, by that far-famed Male Quartette, Henry Lauer, Walter Dawson, Wade Hinebaugh and Jesse Ashby: Recitation, Hasaleah Yutzy: Piano Solo, Louise Lauer, both of these of Metropolitan rating: More Quartette by the Four Horsemen: Address, Delbert Davis, and let us say right now, Patrick Henry was a rank amateur compared to Delbert: Songs again by every one, and how they enjoyed singing them: Refreshments by the Pastor's Aid Society, "nuf 'ced:" And with it all, the inimitable "Bill" Gibson at the piano. Every one in the community and surrounding is invited and urged to attend these informal gatherings, held the first Tuesday of each month, at the St. Mark's Lutheran Church and a promise is made that a pleasing program will be presented each time as well as addresses by the men of the town, whom we all know and enjoy. "Ilizzoner" the Mayor was present and took a "bow." Don't forget the next meeting,- First Tuesday in May. Vice-president Guy Yutzy will preside and arrange the program.

Remember the definitlon of Brotherhood.

CHEVROLET
for Economical Transportation

Higher Quality at Lower Prices

because of increasing Volume Production!

January, 1925 —There was introduced a new Chevrolet which scored a tremendous success. Among its many new features were: a new and rugged rear axle, an improved unit power plant, a new single-plate disc-clutch, a much stronger frame, semi-elliptic chrome vanadium steels prings, cowl and dash-lamps, and new Fisher bodies finished in Duco . . . and the price of the Coach was . . . $735 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

August, 1925 —Chevrolet announced a new measure of value based on many new quality features—such as motor-driven Klaxon horn, improved sheet metal construction in the bodies, corrugated steering wheel with walnut finish, new headlamp rim construction and a more convenient gear-shift lever. Yet, despite all the additions . . . the Coach was reduced to . . . $695 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

January, 1926 —Another spectacular increase in Chevrolet value—a model offering many mechanical improvements, such as a smoother, quieter motor with three-point suspension, a silent V-belt generator drive, new oil pump, more efficient cooling, an air cleaner, larger brakes, etc. Notwithstanding these improvements . . . the Coach was reduced to . . . $645 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

and now—

The Touring or Roadster $525
The Coupe $625
The 4-Door Sedan $695
The Sport Cabriolet $715
The Landau $745
½ Ton Truck $395
1 Ton Truck $495
All Prices f.o.b. Flint, Michigan

Balloon tires standard equipment on all models.

In addition to these low prices Chevrolet's delivered prices include the lowest handling and financing charges available.

The Most Beautiful Coach In Chevrolet History!

Climaxing all of Chevrolet's previous value triumphs, the Chevrolet Coach of today is acclaimed as the outstanding closed car value of all time. Beautiful new Fisher bodies—paneled and beaded, rakishly low and finished in new colors of genuine Duco . . . full-crown, one-piece fenders . . . bullet-type headlamps . . . AC oil filter and AC air cleaner . . . finer performance, greater riding comfort and remarkable steering ease! A car so marvelously beautiful that you must see it to appreciate it—Yet the price has been reduced to . . . $595 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

COOLIDGE HOLDS FAITH IN BIBLE ESSENTIAL

Says Nation Must Hold Faith To Support Foundations of Government And Society

Declaring that at times it appears "as though a popular familiarity with the Scriptures is not as great at the present time as it has been in the past in American life," President Coolidge, in a letter made public recently, said it would be difficult to support the foundations of government and society if faith in Bible teachings were lost.

The letter was addressed to Eugene E. Thompson, organizer of the Bible class at the Church of the Epiphany in Washington, who, with D. Z. B. Phillips, pastor of the church, recently called on Mr. Coolidge, explained the campaign of the class to create wider interest in the Scriptures and invited him to attend the church's services, Sunday.

Literary Value of Bible.

Mr. Coolidge's letter declared that the foundations of American society and government rest so much on the teachings of the Bible that "it would be difficult to support them if faith in these teachings cease to be practically universal in our country."

"Everyone who has given the matter any thought," the President said, "knows of the great literary value of the Bible and the broad culture, aside from its religious aspect, that comes from a general familiarity with it."

Source of Inspiration.

"Although it has been the subject of most careful and painstaking study for hundreds of years, its most thorough students find in it a constant revelation of new thoughts and new ideals which minister to the spiritual nature of the race."

"It would be difficult to conceive of any kind of rehgious instruction which omitted to place its main emphasis on the precepts of this great book. It has been the source of inspiration and comfort to those who have had the privilege of coming in contact with it, and wherever it goes it raises the whole standard of human relationship."

Southern College Students Conservative In Religion.

New England college students are "the most radical" in their religious beliefs, and those in the South "show the conservatism of the South in religious matters," the Rev. Charles Stelzle, keeper of the church advertising department of the International Advertising Association, declared.

Mr. Stelzle's conclusion was based on a study of the religious beliefs of 36,000 students in one hundred widely distributed American colleges and universities with a total enrollment of 76,000. The students indicated their beliefs in answers to nine questions, which were submitted recently in a newspaper poll taken in 200 cities. In the newspaper poll 250,000 persons answered.

Orthodox in Their Beliefs.

The college survey, said Mr. Stelzle, showed that the students are as orthodox in their religious beliefs "as is the average person in the cities of this country."

The nine questions and the percentage of affirmative answers by the students and newspaper readers were:

Do you believe in God? Students, 98; newspaper readers, 91.

Do you believe in immortality? Students, 90; newspaper readers, 88.

Do you believe in prayer as a means of personal relationship with God? Students, 90; newspaper readers, 88.

Do you believe that Jesus Christ was divine as no other man was divine? Students, 89; newspaper readers, 85.

Do you regard the Bible as inspired in a sense that no other literature could be said to be inspired? Students, 82; newspaper readers, 85.

Are you an active member of any church? Students, 76; newspaper readers, 87.

Do you think that religion in some form is a necessary element of life for the individual and for the community? Students, 97; newspaper readers, 87.

This questionnaire, said Mr. Stelzle, showed that "the conservatism of the South in religious matters was revealed in the study of the colleges as was true in the newspaper poll, in many cases the students voting almost solidly 'yes.' " Probably the most radical students were those in New England colleges. Dartmouth had an average of only 52 per cent "yes" answers on the whole set of questions, as against 87 per cent for all the colleges, and Wellesley had 71 per cent.

Small Colleges Conservative.

Providence College, Rhode Island, however, had the highest rating, with 99 per cent for the whole questionnaire.

"Ten women's colleges," said Mr. Stelzle, "not including Wellesley, had an average of 94 per cent 'yes' answers, which was 7 per cent above the average for all the colleges. The smaller colleges were unusually conservative, although in most cases these were denominational in character."

Half Students Disbelieve Prayers Are Answered.

Seventy-five per cent of college students still resort to prayer, but only fifty per cent believe prayers are answered, a survey made by a graduate student at Northwestern University for his doctor of philosophy thesis has revealed.

Students professed praying for various things, from happy love affairs to good jobs and relief from illness, the survey disclosed. Nearly all pray to pass final examinations and for enough money to stay in school.

Among ailments students said they had been cured by prayer are bunions and homesickness.

SUNNYSIDE GRANGE

Sunnyside grange met in regular session March 23rd. Meeting was called to order by the County Agent, Mr. McGlone. While there was not a large attendance, yet the meeting was very impressive and instructive. For the Literary hour we had instrumental music and recitations. Mr. Gracier gave a talk on preparation of the soil, and Mr. McGlone a talk on chemicals used in the World War. Our next regular meeting will be held April 13, at which meeting we hope all will answer the Roll Call, "Why I am a Granger."

SUNNYSIDE COMMUNITY CLUB

Our last regular meeting, March 10, was called to order at 2 p. m. by the president. Ten members were present and three visitors. The meeting was a success. Two new members were added to our list. Topic of the Home Demonstration Agent, "Nutrition, Underweight and Overweight Signs; Cause and Treatment."

Our next regular meeting, April 14, at 2 p. m., Topic, "Nutrition—Formation of Good Food and Health Habits."

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

Many Applications Already Received for Citizens' Military Training Camps

"The early spring and open weather may be responsible for it, but the fact remains that the enrollment for the Citizens' Military Training Camps is further ahead this year than ever before," said General Douglas MacArthur, Third Area Corps U. S. Army, yesterday. "It was May 1st last year before we had two thousand young men enrolled as we have now in this Corps Area." "The Cavalry Camp at Fort Myer is over subscribed and no more are being accepted for this camp. The C. M. T. C. Officer tells me that the men from last year's camps are sending in for application blanks in order that they may enroll their friends. This is a healthy sign. More college men are enrolling than last year and several schools are talking of sending their entire football and basketball squads. We expect to spend a considerable amount for athletic equipment, one item being 45 dozen baseballs. I am particularly pleased with the interest taken by the Reserve Officers, not only by sending in applications but by making the physical examinations, which every candidate must take. We may be permitted to train 4500 instead of 4300 our present quota if accommodations can be found for them."

SHERIFF AND AGENTS CAPTURED TWO "SHINERS"

Youngest Manufacturer To Be Caught Was Brought In Last Night

Sheriff William D. Casteel and Deputy Grifhth, accompanied by Prohibition Enforcement Officers Stotler, Darr, Coleman, Darl and Jack, returned from Bear Hill section last night after conducting two raids there yesterday and brought with them one of their captives, Alfred Bittinger, a lad of 15 years, and who is, according to records, the youngest moonshiner apprehended in this section of the country.

Alfred stated upon capture that he had been in the business more than a year, but had discontinued operations for a part of that time because one of his customers had stolen his entire output one night. He said that this customer had purchased a quantity of liquor from him during that day and had seen him (Alfred) take the liquor from the hiding place, and accordingly that night the customer returned and made away with all of his goods. This loss discouraged the young distiller and he closed his distillery until recently.

Young Bittinger is in the County Jail in default of $1,000 bond to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Another captive yesterday was in the person of Clarence Swauger, aged 24 years, who resides on the John Swauger farm between Bittinger and Jennings.

Swauger was in possession of a 45 gallon still and five barrels of mash. The mash was found in a manure pile, where Swauger had placed it for the purpose of speeding the fermentation.

Swauger was taken before Justice of thePeace J. B. Emory, at Bittinger, and was released on $500 bond for his appearance at the June term of Court.

Bittinger had in his possession 15 gallons of moonshine liquor and a coil and still cap.

Accident And Kitzmiller Listed Among Chautauqua Towns

Nellie Taylor Ross, America's first woman governor, sees a "wonderful opportunity for women to express themselves" through The National Community Foundation's plan for popular education and cultural advancement. The former woman governor of Wyoming made this statement in a letter received here today by Paul M. Pearson, trustee of the Foundation, in which she said:

"The biggest thing any woman can do for her community is to make it a better place in which to live and bring up children."

The Foundation's plan aims to do this, it was explained, by seeking a $5,000.00 endowment. Part of the income will be used for an all-year Junior Town organization for children in the Swarthmore Chautauqua towns, of which Kitzmiller and Accident are two. The remainder of the income will be applied to build up the Chautauqua programs and to maintain all-year extension activities for local community benefit and advancement.

"As I read the plan of The National Community Foundation," Mrs. Ross said, "I am impressed with what a wonderful opportunity this plan offers to the people in the Swarthmore Chautauqua towns. If they rise to support it, as I believe they will, they certainly will win the admiration of other towns and the aid of those philanthropists whose money can help build this vision into a glorious reality.

"As a woman, I cannot but think first of what this plan can mean to the women and what they can mean to it. They can make it live. They can make it a splendid medium through which to express themselves."

As governor of Wyoming, Mrs. Ross established a reputation as one of the most competent state executives in the United States. Her work attracted the attention of leading women throughout the world and Lady Nancy Astor, the American-born woman who was the first of her sex to be elected to the British Parliament, singled out Mrs. Ross as an outstanding example of a competent and brilliant woman in public life.

Mrs. Ross expressed particular interest in the Foundation's plan because its ultimate aim is national and its success in the towns where it is first begun, she believes, will make them pioneers in the opening of a new era in the progress of democracy.

DEER PARK HOTEL HEAD SUED FOR $100.000

Claimed He Sold A Florida Hotel Under False Representation

Henry S. Duncan, President of the Duncan Hotels Company and owner of the Hotel Continental, New York City, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for $100,000 damages by Victor Jacoby for alleged false representations in the sale of a ninety-nine year lease of the Royal Palm Hotel at St. Petersburg, Florida, and of a mortgage on real estate at Lake Butler, Florida, which the plaintiff alleges could not be disposed of by Duncan when they were sold to Jacoby.

Mr. Duncan is alleged to have had his dealings with the plaitiff in December, 1925. The complaint says Mr. Duncan represented that the Duncan Hotels Company had a ninety-nine year lease on the Royal Palm dating from July 4, 1924, and that there were no incumbrances except the lease of the restaurant privilege, and also owned an interest in a first mortgage on Lake Butler property given to secure a note for $50,000, as a result of which assertions Jacoby agreed to pay $85,000 for them.

Jacoby says the representations were false in that taxes on the Royal Palm Hotel were unpaid, and the lease had already been conveyed to the People's Bank and Trust Company of St. Petersburg, whereas the Lake Butler mortgage had been assigned to another corporation for advances. The plaintiff asks for the $85,000 and $15,000 lost profits.

The Duncan Company has been operating hotels at Miami, Albany, Wildwood (N. J.), Cleveland and Zanesville (Ohio), and Deer Park, Maryland, in addition to the Continental in New York City.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR FIRE AT MORGANTOWN

Entire Half Of Block In Heart Of Business Section Razed

The heart of the business section of Morgantown, West Va., was threatened with destruction by fire at an early hour this morning when a half of one block was entirely consumed.

The fire originated about 3 o'clock this morning and was not brought under control until after 8 o'clock.

More than $500,000 damage resulted according to an estimate made by Morgantown citizens at 11.30 o'clock. The fire was confined to half of a block along High street, but only after heroic work was done by the Morgantown, Fairmont and Uniontown Fire departments.

Complete destruction was wrought to the Strand Theatre, Strand Grill, Orr Brothers' Department store, Layman's Pool Parlors, Communtzi's Confectionery, Brown's Jewelry, Morgantown Hardware Company, office buildings and the High Street market.

Three firemen were injured during the fire.

'SEEING' PHONE DEMONSTRATION IS SUCCESSFUL

Herbert Hoover, Speaking In Washington, Seen and Heard In New York, 200 Miles Away

Visions of a person at home witnessing and hearing events miles distant were a step nearer realization last Friday. Demonstration of television process by which Herbert Hoover, speaking in Washington, was seen and heard in New York, 200 miles away, was hailed by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company with confidence "that in many ways and in due time it will be found to add substantially to human comfort and happiness."

Invention Made Rapid Progress.

Some idea of the possibility of the practical use of television in the near future was given, however, by the statement of Dr. Frank B. Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, that television was further advanced now than was trans-Atlantic telephony when first demonstrated in 1915, 11 years before it was put into commercial use.

Dr. C. G. Abbot, acting secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, who has been closely identified with many scientific projects, spoke over the apparatus from Washington and said "that in 50 years there may be other developments needing no apparatus whatever, by means of which human thought may be transmitted at the will of the sender by the process which now we dimly recognize as telegraphy."

The television demonstration, staged at the laboratories of the telephone company Friday was far in advance of the progress claimed for any other invention in the same field.

Invented By Scotchman.

The work of John L. Baird, the Scotch inventor, who has been considered a leader in television research, is said to be less complete than that of the Bell System. E. F. W. Alexanderson of the Radio Corporation of America has a television project which is still being developed.

The moving likeness of Secretary Hoover and the radio performers—shot over wires and flashed through the ether—were seen on a rectangular screen, the size of a cigar box, and later reflected on a screen in full view of a group of scientists, electrical technicians and others.

The demonstration was the result of years of research and experimentation, starting with the invention of the telephone by Alexander Graham Bell, half a century ago.

Basic Principles of Invention.

The basic principles of television are similar to those of the telephone. Like telephone instruments, electrically sensitive to sound, the television details are sensative to light.

The subject, as he talks, is scanned by three great photo-electric eyes, the largest photo-electric cells ever built. The impression made on these cells are transmitted into varying intensities of electric current and carried over wire or wave lengths to the receiving end where machines revise the varying current back into light and shade. The result is a reproduction of the picture scanned by the electric eyes.

AUTO WRECKED ON WASHINGTON SPRING CROSSING

Andrew Shartzer Escaped Serious Injury But Car Was Badly Damaged

What might have been a more serious accident, resulted only in a slight scalp wound and a badly damaged Ford coupe, when Andrew Shartzer was caught on the Washington Spring crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks on Monday.

Approaching the crossing, which is located about a half mile west of the B. & O. Station here, Mr. Shartzer's view of the railroad was obstructed by a string of box cars standing along the siding and after crossing the west bound tracks was struck by an east bound freight train.

His car was hurled to the side of the tracks and after turning over rested against a pole which supports an electric warning bell along the right of way.

Mr. Shartzer suffered a slight wound and was otherwise shaken up, but fortunately no serious injury resulted. The car was damaged to the extent of about $325, so it was said at the Evans Garage where it was taken for repairs.

Mr. Shartzer stated that the automatic bell which rings to warn people of approaching trains was out of commission, and due to the cars standing along the siding, which obstructed his view, he was unaware of the approaching freight until it hit his car. The impact came about the centre of the automobile.

Dr. Henry W. McComas dressed Mr. Shartzer's wounds and sent him to his home for the day.

PYTHIAN GRAND LODGE CONVENES IN BALTIMORE

Representatives From Garrett Lodge No. 113 In Attendance

The grand lodge, Knights of Pythias of Maryland, opened its fifty-ninth annual session Tuesday in Baltimore at the Pythian Castle. Representatives from each subordinate lodge in Maryland attended. Delegates from the local lodge are Past Grand Chancellor Commander Julius C. Renninger, David W. Walter, William Whorton and Reis Friend.

On Wednesday, the new Pythian Castle, North Charles street, was visited by the grand lodge, and the seals were placed on the building.

Past Supreme Chancellor John Ballantyne, of Boston, Mass., and Supreme Vice Chancellor Aera M. Lumpkin, of Columbia, S. C., were among the distinguished visitors on the occasion. The Uniform Rank of Westminster served as a guard of honor.

The ceremony was in charge of Richard Laws Lee, president of the Maryland Pythian Building Commission. The copper box, containing historical records, was presented to Harry J. Starr, of Westminster, Grand Chancellor of the order, by J. Millard Tawes, of Chrisfield, Grand Vice Chancellor.

The invocation was offered of Rev. J. S. Webster, M. D., representative of Hancock.

In addition to the Supreme and Grand Lodge officers mentioned, short addresses were made by Supreme Representatives Reno S. Harp, of Frederick; Benjamin H. McKindless, of Baltimore, and Nelson W. Russeler, past Grand Chancellor Commander, of Cumberland. Addresses were also made by John P. Lauber, vice president of the building commission, and Past Supreme Representative Wm. F. Broenig and J. Ed. Richardson.

Sheep Specialists To Visit Garrett County Four Days

Mr. K. A. Clark, Sheep Specialist from the University of Maryland, will give demonstration in various parts of the county from Monday, April 18, until Thursday, April 21st. The program which has been arranged so far is as follows:

Through Ryan's Glade on Monday, April 18th.

Vicinity of Grantsville and Keyser's Ridge on Tuesday, April 19th.

Friendsville and Hoyes, Wednesday, April 20th.

Thursday, April 21st, he will remain in the County Agent's office to answer any questions which the farmers desire to make. As the schedule will not be complete until Monday, anyone desiring any further information in regard to this matter may obtain same from County Agent's Office after today.

REASSESSMENT TO BE MADE DURING THE YEAR

Actual Work Will Commence The Latter Part of July—Assessors Named Later

Following the close of the General Assembly on Monday, the 14th inst., when a State-wide Bill ,which would have doubled the period of time between assessments of all real and personal property, failed in its passage, the State Tax Commission of Maryland issued instructions to the County Commissioners throughout the State to proceed in the re-assessment in the usual manner.

It is the law and custom for the County Commissioners to include in the Levy every five years sufficient funds to make a re-assessment of real and personal property in the counties, and had the Bill referred to passed the General Assembly the re-assessment would not have been made this year, but instead would have been postponed until 1932. Had the recent Bill become law the re-assessments would have occurred every ten years.

The Commission for Garrett county will make provision for the assessment at their meeting next Monday and assessors for the several districts will be appointed at a later date. The actual work will get under way probably the latter part of July.

DAIRY EXPERTS PAY GARRETT COUNTY A VISIT

B. & O. and Philadelphia Banking House Representatives Also in Party

In cooperation with County Agent, J. L. McGlone, a number of business men of the county met with representatives of the Supple-Wills-Jones Milk Company of Philadelphia.

The milk company representatives were Mr. F. A. Wills, Mr. J. H. Port, Mr. Howard D. Davis, all of Philadelphia. The other gentlemen in the party were, Mr. Arthur E. Spellissy, of Brown Brothers & Company, bankers, Philadelphia, and Mr. Dugan, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

These gentlemen had been spending some time at Meyersdale, Pa., in the interest of dairying and while enroute to Elkins, W. Va., for the same purpose, they spent some time in Garrett county looking over dairy conditions. Their comments, coming from expert dairymen, were very gratifying, and spoke for more extensive dairy business in Garrett county.

TRAP SHOOTERS TO OPEN NEW LEAGUE IN MAY

Six League Clubs To Take Part In Opening Match At Keyser May 14

Keyser, W. Va., April 5.—At a meeting and dinner of the executive committee of the West Virginia-Maryland Trap-shooting League held here tonight at Hamill's Restaurant, the schedule for the 1927 season was drafted and adopted.

Lesson for April 17

PETER'S GREAT CONFESSION

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 16: 13-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Pleases Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC — Confessing Our Faith in Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Confessing Christ Openly.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What think ye of Christ?

The disciples had been with the Lord for several years. They had heard His wonderful words and witnessed His mighty works. Various opinions were extant about Him. Since Jesus was soon to go to the cross it was necessary for the disciples to have a definite and true conception of Him. In order to help them into the right conception, He provoked this confession from Peter as the spokesman of the group of disciples.

I. Peter's Confession (vv. 13-16).

1. How provoked.

Two questions of Christ put to the disciples called forth this great confession.

(1) Whom do men say I, the Son of Man, am (v. 13).

1. He first inquired for the opinion of the people concerning Him. As a wise teacher He knew that this would help crystallize the view of the disciples. The people recognized Jesus as a teacher or a prophet, with more than human authority and power. Today, as then, there is a diversity of opinion among the people as to Jesus Christ. The multitudes today recognize Jesus as an unique personality and as having been a great teacher, but that which offends them is His deity.

(2) "Whom say ye that I am?" (v. 15).

This question involved the personal opinion of the disciples concerning Him. To be able to tell what others think of Jesus is not enough. There must be definite, correct and personal belief in Him. Personal belief is worth infinitely more than the knowledge of what others think, for upon personal belief hinges character and destiny.

2. What Peter's confession involved (v. 16).

Two vital things, the Messiahship and deity of Jesus. That which Jesus called forth from Peter is the burning question of today. "What think ye of Christ?" is the question that must be answered by everyone.

3. Christ's commendation of Peter (v. 17).

He pronounced him blessed. Truly he was blessed, for he both possessed and confessed Christ.

II. The New Body, the Church, Announced by Christ (vv. 18-20).

Christ declared His intention of bringing into existence a new body, to the members of which He will give eternal life and into whose hands He would entrust the keys of the Kingdom. Peter was to have a distinguished place in this body. Christ declared that Peter should be the foundation stone in His church. Christ is the chief corner stone upon which the church is built. Christ's person and Messiahship were confessed by Peter and on this rock (truth confessed) is laid the foundation of the apostles and prophets (Eph. 2:20). All believers are living stones of this house (I Pet. 2:5). The keys entrusted to Peter were used on the day of Pentecost and again in the case of Cornelius.

III. The Cross the Way to the Throne (vv. 21-23).

From that time Jesus began to show unto the disciples how that He must go unto Jerusalem and suffer many things, be killed and raised again the third day. This indeed startled the disciples. They did not yet realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion of the cross. So unwelcome was this announcement that Peter cried: "This shall not be unto thee." Peter later saw through this darkness to the glory of the hilltops. A new hope then filled his heart (I Pet. 1:3, 4). Many are yet stumbling over the doctrine of salvation and redemption through the suffering of the cross. Salvation by blood is hated by the devil.

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (v. 24).

To follow Christ means to suffer. It means to turn one's back upon the world.

1. There must be denial of self. There is a wide difference between self-denial and the denial of self.

2. Take up His cross.

This cross is the suffering and shame which lie in the path of loyalty to God.

3. Follow Christ.

This means to have the mind of Christ; to be like Christ. Christ will come in glory to reward all such.

The Power of God

Many a battle has been won by the arrival of reinforcements. When a man is fighting a battle against his evil tendencies, the coming of the power of God into his soul often means victory. The human reinforced by the divine assures us of heaven.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Nature

Nature has a power to show what is inside of a man that responds to God on the outside.—Echoes.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach.

Grantsville, April 13,—Last Thursday, while traveling westward down Negro Mountain, C. B. Newhouse and George R. Gormer, both of Cumberland, were very painfully injured, Mr. Newhouse seriously, by being thrown thru the top of their Ford coupe into Puzzley run, a drop of about 25 feet. The car could not be controlled and ran into the stone coping of the bridge at a terrific speed, which completely demolished the machine. Mrs. Jonas Butler, who lives near by, saw the car speeding down the grade and turned away, knowing well what the result would be, as there have been many accidents at this point. She immediately summoned aid and had the injured men taken from the stream. Dr. N. R. Davis was called and gave first aid, and Winterberg's ambulance rushed them to the Miner's Hospital where it is reported they are resting comfortably. Gormer sustained several fractured ribs and cuts about the face and arms, while Newhouse suffered fractures of the left leg at the hip and knee, several broken ribs, an abrasion of the eye, and cuts about the face.

Class Banquet.

Last Friday evening the Senior and Junior boys of the High school gave a banquet. Those attending were, Prof. R. R. Webster, Prof. and Mrs. M. W. Whiteford, Frank Jack and their friends, twenty-two in all. Miss Marian Price, Home Economics teacher, with the aid of her class, prepared the dinner, arranged the tables, and did the serving. The decorations were green and yellow. The place cards were colored Easter eggs and the favors were daffodils and Easter booklets. Speeches and songs added to the merriment of the occasion.

Teachers Attend Meeting at Oakland.

Teachers of Academic subjects at the high school attended a series of group meetings at Oakland last week. Those attending were: Miss Keller, English; Prof. I. M. Staley, Science; Prof. R. R. Webster, Social Science. Mr. W. W. Klingaman, high school supervisor of Western Maryland, conducted the meetings.

Graduation Date Set.

The date for the high school graduating and central elementary schools closing exercises has been definitely set for Thursday, June 16th.

May Day Activities.

In connection with the County Athletic Meet, which is to be held at Oakland, Tuesday, May 31st, is also to be observed the May Festival and Child Health Day. It is intended to further an increased interest on the part of all members of a community in the health of the growing child; to afford an opportunity for the children themselves to associate the idea of personal health and vigor with the traditional features of May Day, an historic spring-time festival. Exercises will consist of a Health parade, May-pole dance, crowning of the May King and May Queen, and other events. Several valuable prizes will be given to the schools representing the best phases of health as to originality, appearance and effectiveness. Both elementary and high schools are planning to compete.

Poultry and Cow Testing Meetings.

The high school Poultry Club met last Tuesday and elected the following officers: Ralph Younkin, president; Clyde Miller, secretary and treasurer. There are eight other members. Prof. M. W. Whiteford, agricultural teacher is Advisor. The members have ordered standard bred stock from a hatchery in Ohio and expect the chicks to arrive soon. They will be raised as projects for the coming year in their agricultural classes. Accurate records of all feed, labor and other expenses will be kept. The agriculture teacher is offering a prize to the boy who produces the best flock on the least spent money. The aim of this poultry club is to eliminate the scrub flocks in our community.

The Junior Cow Testing Association tested 96 cows last month. Feed and milk records were also kept on these cows. A keen interest is being shown among the farmers and their sons, as to whose cows are producing the most milk and butter fat. Some of the farmers are finding that they have some real producers and others that are not paying for their feed. The results for last month are given below by William Turner, secretary of the Association:

1st, J. U. Stanton. Grade Jersey, 1240 lbs. milk, 75.6 lbs. butterfat. 2nd, George Krause. Grade Jersey, 1147 lbs. milk, 55.5 lbs, hutter fat. 3rd, Charles Layman. Pure bred Jersey, 1023 lbs. milk, 55.3 lbs. butter fat. 4th, J. U. Stanton. Grade Jersey, 1054 lbs. milk, 54.8 lbs. butter fat. 5th, W. L. Turner. Grade Jersey, 1016 lbs. milk, 53.8 lbs. butter fat. 6th, George Krause. Grade Jersey, 992 lbs. milk, 50.4 lbs. butter fat.

Social

A splendid meeting of the Woman's Community Club was held at the home of Mrs. John H. Folk last Wednesday afternoon. Fifteen members were present; two new members were enrolled. Miss Green demonstrated the ordinary lunch for school children and the palatable and attractive lunch, also various sandwich fillings, suitable and desirable for children. The business meeting was conducted by Miss Mary Dorsey and several subjects pertaining to the club were discussed by the members.

Miss Helen Loechel entertained the K. C. Dramatic Club one evening last week in her home with games, music, a taffy pull and other refreshments.

Are YOU One of These?

——one of the people who still believe that long distance calls are expensive? For, although it's 1927, there are still some of them left.

Now, long distance calling is not expensive. For instance, on a station-to-station call of 150 miles, the day rate for three minutes is only 95c., and think how much you can say in three minutes. Then, too, the rates are lower during the evening and night hours. The same call of 150 miles between 7 and 8.30 p. m. is but 70c., while between 8.30 p. m. and 4.30 a. m., it is only 50c. Pretty cheap round trip!

Remember, it isn't necessary to wait until midnight to get these discounted rates.

Out-of-town station-to-station rates are lowest after 8.30 p. m.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, a corporation, vs. The Advance Development Company, a corporation; John Crosby Brydon and Nell H. Brydon, his wife; William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, and Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife.

No. 2743 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to have a decree passed declaring void, vacating and annulling two deeds.

The Bill alleges that on or about the 6th day of February, 1922, the plaintiff, The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, discounted a note of the defendant Louis B. Brydon, in the sum of Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars, and that ever since said time and at the present time the said indebtedness with interest thereon is an outstanding and subsisting indebtedness due the plaintiff; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon was the owner of a one-third undivided interest in land in Garrett county, Maryland, containing about forty seven acres, which was conveyed to the said Louis B. Brydon, John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon by deed of Susan V. Brydon and husband, dated the 5th day of September, 1896, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett county in Liber E. Z. T. No. 30, folio 477; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon had out of his own moneys and property advanced and paid to the said John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon an amount of money, equal to and in excess of their value and ownership in the aforesaid property, and in order to secure the same to the defendant, Louis B. Brydon, the said John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, without consideration, except said indebtedness, did on June 1, 1926, excecute a deed to The Advance Development Company, a corporation, of all of their right, title and interest in said property, same being recorded among said Land Records in Liber E. Z. T. No. 93, folio 411.

The Bill further alleges that the defendant being all the time indebted to the plaintiff as aforesaid did prior to January 26, 1926, cause to be incorporated The Advance Development Company and did, without any consideration moving from the said The Advance Development Company to the said Louis B. Brydon, execute a deed in connection with his said wife for a pretended consideration of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars of all of his right, title and interest in the aforesaid real estate; that at the time of the execution and delivery of the aforesaid deeds from John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, to The Advance Development Company, and the said deed from Louis B. Brydon and wife to The Advance Development Company, the said defendant Louis B. Brydon was indebted as aforesaid to the plaintiff, and that at the time of the making of both of said deeds, he did not have the means of paying said indebtedness out of any other property except the property so conveyed, and at said time he was also largely indebted to other persons and was insolvent; that said conveyances were made to The Advance Development Company for a simulated and pretended consideration, and that the effect of the same was to hinder, delay and defraud your complainant of its just and lawful claim.

The Bill further alleges that the said Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Taylor county, West Virginia, and that the said William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Barbour county, West Virginia.

The Bill prays for a decree of Court declaring to be void, vacating and annulling both of the aforesaid deeds to The Advance Development Company, and for other relief.

It is thereupon this 31st day of March, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 6th day of May, 1927, give notice to the said absent and non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 23rd day of May, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a deeree ought not to be passed as prayed.

A DIMINISHING CROP

One crop that is not wanted in Maryland, has been cut in half in the last ten years, Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health said recently in connection with the announcement that in some parts of the State, the health officers have begun the vaccination of the older girls and boys in the schools, against typhoid fever. He was referring to the annual crop of typhoid fever cases.

"In 1917," he said, "there were 1775 cases of typhoid fever reported to the State Bureau of Communicable Diseases, among people in the State, outside of Baltimore City, with 155 deaths. In 1926, there were 856 cases and 73 deaths. Typhoid fever begins to flare up about the middle of April. It continues to increase until the middle of September when it begins to decline. The disease is no respecter of persons or of ages. It strikes hardest at the age groups from five to forty, but no age is safe from it by reason of age alone. The cases reported to the Department, range from babies three months old to their great grandfathers and grandmothers of eighty or eighty-five.

"The great reduction in Maryland, as in other States, has been brought about by a combination of methods. These have included the protection of water supplies, the safeguarding of food supplies from infection at the source, and from contamination by 'carriers' of typhoid, the careful supervision of each individual case to prevent the spread of the disease to others and the protection of individuals through vaccination against the disease.

"The State Department of Health can be depended upon to continue its active fight against this unnecessary and avoidable disease, but there will be sources of infection that can be warded off only through the protection afforded the individual by vaccination.

"As the season approaches for the open road, for hiking, for out door sports, my advice to all prospective hikers, to all boy and girl Scouts, to all users of the open road whether for business or for pleasure—to everybody in fact—who has not been protected against typhoid fever in the last year or two, to go to your doctor or to the nearest health office for the three innoculations that will protect you from the disease for another twelve months or longer. The State Department of Health supplies the vaccine without charge. Your only expense will be your doctor's fee."

Woodrow Wilson Film Memorial For Maryland

A 6 reel film depicting the life of Woodrow Wilson has been compiled by his friends and is now being presented by the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Society.

Each state for the sum of $5000.00 is allotted a permanent copy of this film memorial. New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, California and Arizona already have their copies, Texas owning two. Maryland expects to be the next state to own one. In New York the Woodrow Wilson Foundation is in charge of the Film Memorial, and in Texas the "Houston Chronicle," the largest newspaper in Texas, keeps their two copies in constant circulation. Only the most reputable communities in all the states are entrusted with the Film Memorial.

In Maryland the committee in charge includes Mrs. Leonard Hecht, general chairman; Mrs. Edward Shumaker, a summer resident of Deer Park, Mrs. Johnson Poe, Mrs. Page Edwards, Mrs. Matthew Gault, Mrs. John Alcock and Mrs. Robert Skutch, assistants, all of Baltimore. Mrs. Robert Henderson, Cumberland, widow of Judge Henderson, well known throughout Garrett Co., is treasurer. Each county has a chairman, and Mrs. G. Semmes Hamill, Jr., is chairman for Garrett county.

Garrett County's quota is only $200, which must be turned in to the treasurer by May 1st. When Maryland owns the film it can be shown all over the state free of charge and arrangements are now being made for it to be shown in Garrett county in May.

Though the film depicts the life of Woodrow Wilson the important incidents during his career as President are especially emphasized. The declaration of war, the dreadful episode of the war, the Armistice, the trip abroad, reception by foreign potentates, the negotiation and signing of the Peace Treaty. It is Non-Partisan and Non-Propagandistic.

Everyone, whether an admirer of Wilson or not should feel anxious for Maryland to own a film of such historic value, and which so vividly depicts the horrors of war so that seeing it will prevent future wars. Already it has been shown 750 times to most enthusiastic audiences.

A benefit card party will be given to help Garrett county raise her quota at the residence of Mrs. G. Semmes Hamill, Jr., 85 Alder strreet, Oakland, Tuesday night, April 19th, at 8:00 o'clock. Each person will be charged $1.00 and reservations can be made by seeing or phoning Mrs. Hamill—telephone Oakland 92, before April 18th. Prizes will be given and refreshments will be served.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the cause may send a check to Mrs. Hamill made payable to Woodrow Wilson Memorial Society.

MRS. G. SEMMES HAMILL, Jr.,
Chairman for Garrett County.

REPORT OF COW TESTING ASSOC. PROVES WORTH

Grantsville Dairymen Increase Butterfat Production at Alarming Rate In Month

Within one months' time after forming the Maple Land Cow Testing Association at Grantsville, the number of cows in the association producing 40 pounds of butterfat or more was increased from two to sixteen. During this time a series of lectures on feeding and care of cows was given by a specialist from the University of Maryland, and attended by a large number of dairymen from different sections of the county.

In the April report of the association it is noted that but two cows produced more than 40 pounds of milk and that the highest number of pounds produced by one cow was 46.2 pounds. A like report for the month of March shows that there are sixteen cows producing more than 40 pounds and that the highest number of pounds produced by any one cow is 75.6 pounds. The report for April also shows that there are seven cows tested by the association producing more than 50 pound of butterfat.

The value of the association is realized when reports of this nature are made. It is said that it costs no more to feed a good cow than to feed a poor one, and a cow testing association will many times prove that one good cow will produce more butterfat than two poor cows. It is obvious then that everytime a poor cow is taken from a herd the dairyman is bound to profit more for his "loss."

ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Asa Beeghly spent part of last week in Cumberland.

FORD BUILDING FOUR CYLINDER THREE-SPEEDER

New Product Will Also Have Planetary Transmission And Some Modification of Body

A new advertising policy will be inaugurated by Henry Ford this summer along with his announcement of a new four-cylinder, three-forward speed car, it was learned recently. When the new Ford is ready for the American and world markets, under his present plans, Mr. Ford will initiate a policy of advertising the quality of his car rather than its price. The motor buying public will be told about the "good Ford car," rather than the "cheap Ford car." The policy already has been adopted for the Ford trucks and the Fordson tractor.

News of Plans Leak Out.

This much was learned through the heavy cloak of secrecy which envelopes the Ford organization at all times and which was clamped down tighter than ever following the exclusive announcement of International News Service that the auto king's new car would be a four-cylinder, three-forward speed Ford with planetary transmission and some body modifications.

One "spokesman" for the Ford plant gave partial confirmation to the exclusive announcement by admitting that new machinery is being installed at the Ford factories around Detroit for production of the new car. He also confirmed reports from New York that large quantities of tools, machinery, and dies had been bought in the east for use in constructing the new car. He begged, however, that his name be withheld.

Officials of the company would not comment publicly on the International News Service announcement. They would not deny the story, however, saying merely that all formal announcements would have to come from Ford himself. The motor king, meanwhile, was confined to his home, recuperating from injuries suffered two weeks ago in a motor crash. His estate was heavily guarded and newspaper men were repulsed at the gates.

Ford Dislikes Publicity.

The Ford officials pointed out that the automobile king doesn't like publicity on his plans and indicated that Ford desired to announce his new car as a complete surprise to the motor world.

The change in advertising policy, which Ford is said to be contemplating, grew out of the fact that his car, while made from the best materials obtainable, has gained a reputation as a "cheap car." This rather injured Ford's pride because he has gone to extraordinary lengths to obtain the best raw materials to be placed in his car.

Great quantities of literature are being circulated among farm organizations telling of the "good qualities" of the Ford truck and Fordson tractor. The farmers are told not that the truck is cheap but that it will give good service and will save them much overhead expense. They are told the tractor will replace four horses at half the cost, do the work in all kinds of weather and can be used for a hundred tasks for which horses are not suited.

It is this type of publicity that Ford now plans to use for the Ford passenger cars.

LOCH LYNN.

The formal re-opening of the U. B. church will be held on Sunday, April 24th, with two services. The morning service will begin at 10:45 and the evening will begin at 7:30. Rev. F. G. Rodabaugh, D. D., superintendent of East District, will preach at both services. The singing will be in charge of Rev. E. C. Cuppett, pastor of Evansville charge. The Crellin orchestra will also be in evidence. The third quarterly conference will also be held in the church on Saturday afternoon at 2:30, and superintendent Rodabaugh will preach in the evening at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. L. B. Crane and family, of Buckhannon, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Combs, here.

Mr. C. E Hardesty, of this village, attended the funeral of Col. W. J. Lavalle, at Fairmont, on Monday.

Mrs. Millie Cooke and baby, of Fairmont, spent several days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Brown, here.

Mr. Fouch, of near Hagerstown, spent last week with his brother, Mr. E. O. Fouch, in the Park.

Miss Fannie Moon, who has been confined to her home here with rheumatism for several months, is greatly improved at this writing.

The "Blues," which is one division of the U. B. Ladies Aid, will serve an Easter supper in the Aid Hall here on Friday, April 15th, beginning at 5:30. The "Reds," another division, will conduct a food sale on April 23rd.

Shaw, of the Terra Alta Bottling Co., a member of the national trade association which is conducting it. They include: First prize, $1,000; second prize, $500; third prize, $125; fourth prize, $75; fifth prize, $50; sixth prize, $40; seventh prize, $30; eighth prize, $30; ninth prize, $25; tenth prize, $20, and twenty prizes of $5 each.

"I want to see that first prize of $1,000 go to a resident in the territory served by the Terra Alta Bottling Company," Mr. Shaw told a reporter for this paper when he announced the contest, "and I invite every person who wishes to enter this contest to visit our bottling plant and get first hand information as to 'Why Bottled Carbonated Beverages are Good, and Good for You.' We'll show them how the goodness is put in the bttles—every step of the manufacturing processes from mixing the ingredients to the marketing of them in clean, sterilized containers.

"Here is an unusual opportunity to profit handsomely from a little study and a few minutes given to writing an essay of 500 words or less on a most interesting topic. Bottled carbonated beverages have been demonstrated to be nourishing as well as palatable by leading authorities on health and dietics. The modern bottled carbonated beverage is a pure, wholesome food as well as a delicious drink. It is served in hospitals because of the ease with which it is digested.

"The Terra Alta Bottling Co. extends a cordial invitation to all who wish to take advantage of it, to visit our plant during working hours to learn for themselves just how bottled carbonated beverages are produced, and to receive information as to their ingredients and qualities which should prove valuable in composing essays on this subject."

The essay contest closes June 15, and all entries must be mailed before that date to the "Good for You" Editor, American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, Washington, D. C.

The judges for the contest will be, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, U. S. Senator from New York and a noted health authority; Dr. W. W. Skinner, of the U. S. Dept., of Agriculture, who has charge of U. S. Pure Food laws enforcement, and Mr. A. H. Kirchhofer, President National Press Club.

Public Utility Official Dies

Mr. Albert M. Lynn, president of The West Penn Electric Company and a director of the American Water Works and Electric Company, died at the Roosevelt Hospital, New York City, April 8, 1927, at 1:00 p. m., in the fifty-second year of his age, after a long illness.

For over thirty years he had been identified in important executive capacities with the public utility properties of the American Water Works and Electric Company.

Mr. Lynn was born in Indianapolis, Indiana, October 12, 1875, moving with his family to Pittsburgh in 1889, where he attended public school. On February 1, 1893 he entered the employ of the American Water Works and Guarantee Company, the predecessor of the American Water Works and Electric Company, serving for some years in the general offices at Pittsburgh. He then became manager of the Company's water works plant at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and later of that at Birmingham, Alabama. For many years thereafter he was in charge of a large proportion of the Company's works properties.

In 1917 he was elected president of The West Penn Company and upon the organization of The West Penn Electric Company he became its president in which capacity he was serving at the time of his death.

Among his associates and throughout the large territory served by the properties of which he was the head, Mr. Lynn was noted for the great energy and attention which he devoted to his work.

His experience with and knowledge of the public utility properties of American Water Works and Electric Company, Incorporated, made Mr. Lynn's advice and counsel of great and increasing value. His personality was most engaging; and his kindly and sympathetic nature strongly impressed itself upon the personnel of the various organizations and upon a wide circle of friends, within and without the industry.

Mr. Lynn, who resided in the city of Pittsburgh is survived by his widow, nee Miss Ethel Sharpe, of Birmingham, Alabama, and by one son, Henry Sharpe Lynn, now a Junior at Princeton University; also by his mother, Mrs. P. A. Lynn; a sister, Miss Clara Lynn, and four brothers, William H., H. Ross, Arthur M., and Lawrence.

BITTINGER.

Those who were congratulating themselves upon the arrival of spring, awakened to the fact last week that winter was still lingering, when snow fell sufficient to cover the ground and the east wind blew so cold that it was uncomfortable to be abroad.

Mr. Walter Welsh, of Friendsville, was a business visitor to this village one day last week.

Camp owners are still giving their attention to the making of maple syrup, as the sap still flows and the weather conditions prohibit work on the farm.

Prof. C. M. Friend motored to Friendsville one evening last week on business.

Lawrence Bittinger, of Grantsville, was a pleasant caller in this village last Sunday afternoon.

Silas Beaehy had the misfortune to lose a fine colt last Saturday evening. The animal was but a few days old and evidently contracted pneumonia from exposure to cold.

A special Easter program will be rendered in the village Lutheran church next Sunday evening, beginning at seven-thirty o'clock.

A. L. Sines, of the State Forestry service, was among the recent visitors to this section.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mrs. J. A. Hayden, who underwent a minor surgical operation in a Cumberland hospital, returned to her home last Thursday.

Rev. Aspinall and his friends returned from their trip to Buffalo, N. Y., on Friday without a mishap of any kind, which added much to their pleasant trip.

Mr. John Sanders is back from an extended visit with some of his children in Clearfield, Pa.

Miss Helen Enlow has returned home from a visit with her sister in Chicago.

Mr. Alex. Paulicus, of Clarksburg, has rented the S. R. Owens cottage for the summer, and is now occupying same.

Mrs. Hill, of Washington, D. C., was here for a few days looking after her property.

The Zepp family have gone to Chicago, Ill., where Mr. Zepp and son are employed.

Mr. W. C. Dunnington is preparing to supply his hotel with water from a deep well he has put down on his own grounds.

Mr. C. C. Gnegy is putting his cottage on H street in shape for a family who have rented it for a year.

Mrs. Eichelberger is making considerable improvement on her cottage on the corner of First and Wheeling Ave.

THEIR SIGNAL DEFEAT

By BERTON TRIMMER

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

INA RINGOLD stood gazing from the doorway of her home after the receding figure of Paul Newcombe with ardent longing eyes. Handsome, well dressed, erect and manly looking, he would have made an impression on nine out of ten feminine admirers. To Ina he was n last hope. She had reached the borders of womanhood, and a spinster life seemed to menace her.

"A rising young man," spoke the unctious voice of her father in her ear so unexpectedly that she started, blushed consciously and in some confusion evaded his keen insinuating eyes. "Is he rising to the occasion of matrimony, Ina?"

"How should I know?" fluttered the girl. "He comes here occasionally, but divides his attention with others."

"I have fancied that he ruther favored you," proceeded Squire Ringold bluntly. "Ought to. As to money and position, he couldn't make a better match, eh, Ina?"

"Father," spoke Ina suddenly, placing a pleading hand on his arm, "will you do something for me?"

"Why, surely—always," acceded Mr. Ringold, fairly surprised at her strange manner. "What is it?"

"The school trustees are deciding on a new teacher."

"Why, yes, but that doesn't usually interest you much."

"It does this time," confessed Ina hurriedly. "I understand that the board has selected two to choose from—a Miss Zelda Bertram of Fairview and a Miss Lucy Dodge of Brocton."

"You're pretty well posted," said the squire. "That's right."

"Mr. Newcombe favors Miss Dodge. It seems some friend of his recommends her. She is young and pretty, I learn."

"We usually give Newcombe his way," said the Squire.

"You mustn't this time," insisted Ina. "This Miss Bertram, I have heard, is a Vassar graduate. She must be older than the other one. Besides, it would be quite n card for us to have a Vassar graduate as a teacher, don't you see, pap?"

The Squire "saw" very well, indeed, and said so, and departed with a chuckle. What Ina was inspired with was the fear of beauty and youth coming upon the scene to add a new rival in her determined onset to appropriate young Newcombe as her fiance.

"I'm wise," meditated the Squire. "As I have said, Newcombe is a rising man in the community, and I wouldn't object to him as a son-in-law."

Although Ina did not know it, Paul Newcombe was perfectly free from any interest in Miss Dodge outside of wishing to oblige a friend. He had learned that the young lady in question was entirely eligible for the post she expected to fill, and his sympathies were enlisted when he learned that she was the sole support of an invalid mother.

Paul had told the other six members of the school board of his preference. He was a lawyer, they respected his good judgment and up to the day before the meeting of the trustees the votes of four of his fellow members were pledged with him.

To his surprise and in a way to his pained regret, Miss Bertram was chosen for the vacant post by a vote of five to two.

"You see, Newcombe,' explained the Squire, trying to act off-handed, "we believe that a mature woman, as this Miss Bertram is probably, would be better than a mere chit of a girl."

"Yes, and then again," advised one of the Squire's cohorts, "it's something to have been educated at Vassar."

"I think that some one ought to go down to Fairview and personally notify Miss Bertram of our choice," submitted a third trustee.

"Exactly," approved a fourth, "and first look up her general record to be sure that we are making no mistake."

"I nominate Newcombe to represent the school board in that mission," said the Squire.

Paul swallowed his disappointment as to favoring a friend through the selection of Miss Dodge. He made arrangements to go to Fairview the next day. That evening the Squire came home with a satisfied expression on his face.

"Well, Ina," he observed, "we carried the day."

"They have selected the Vassar girl, then?"

"Of course. I had influence enough for that."

"I hope this Miss Bertram is the self-opinionated old maid I judge her to be," meditated Ina and felt quite elated over her petty victory.

The fair siren planned out a series of parties for the near future, pursuant to the expected speedy return of Newcombe. He had never given her the least indication that he had any preference for her, but she was sure she led in the race, at least locally, as to position and wealth.

"Sort of queer about Newcombe," observed the Squire, when he came home two days later. "He's usually a quick all around business man and ought to have got through with his [illegible] in a few hours."

"Hasn't he written?" inquired Ina a trifle anxiously.

"Not a word."

The following evening, however, the Squire brought some fresh news.

"Got word from Newcombe today," he said, and Ina looked curious and eager. "Says he has looked up that Vassar girl and found her more than capable and all that, but the deal's off."

"Why, what do you mean, father?" asked Ina vaguely.

"Miss Bertram won't come. Newcombe wrote that she had altered her plans. That leaves the other candidate the only one that passed the committee. I reckon they'll send for her. Newcombe sent his proxy to vote for her, so I guess it will be Miss Dodge."

"But when is Mr. Newcombe coming back?" inquired Ina, losing sight of her former fears and jealousy in dismay over the continued absence of the victim she had set her cap for.

"Why, he says he discovered some old friends in Fairview, needs a rest and will take a week's vacation."

At the end of a week Paul returned, but Ina did not see him. She tried to in every way she could devise, but her schemes did not succeed. Paul was away again on the train to Fairview the next morning. The Squire met him at the depot.

"We decided on Miss Dodge," he observed.

"Yes, so I heard."

"Going away again, I see. Say, Newcombe, what was the reason that Miss Bertram did not accept our offer."

"Well," replied Paul, a faint smile about his lips, "because she accepted mine."

"Accepted yours?" stammered the Squire.

"Yes, I guess it was fate sent me to meet the most beautiful and cultured young lady I ever met. I am going back to marry Miss Bertram."

"No," soliloquized the Squire, with a melancholy shake of the head as the train bore away the young man he had hoped to secure as a son-in-law, "it wasn't fate that sent young Newcombe to Fairview. It was Ina, and I wonder how she will take it when I tell her the news?"

Miss Ina Ringold took it so seriously that she went off into a violent fit of hysterics, when she learned that but for her arbitrary interference Paul Newcombe might still be a hope in the future.

Miss Dodge came to the village, modest, devoted only to her invalid mother. In no sense, Ina realized, could she have become a rival.

But when Miss Zelda Bertram—Mrs. Paul Newcombe now—a brilliant bride, appeared, even Ina acknowledged secretly that she had been the means of bringing together as charmingly mated a couple as the world afforded.

Agreement of Honor Made Binding Compact

A gentlemen's agreement is an agreement binding only as a matter of honor; it has no constitutional or legal standing and cannot be enforced in a court of law. The famous gentlemen's agreement between the United States and Japan became effective in 1900. President Roosevelt and the emperor of Japan got together, figuratively speaking, and agreed verbally to a limited act of exclusion which was to apply to both countries. Students, travelers, international traders, could come and go between the two countries as much as they pleased, but not laborers or small tradesmen. This agreement was not submitted to or ratified by the senate as a treaty; it was not even reduced to a single document. Nevertheless it was intended to be a binding compact, as the phrase implies, between gentlemen whose word is as good as their bond. —Pathfinder Magazine.

Cancer and Capricorn

The positions of the Tropics of Cancer and Capicorn on the earth are determined by the obliquity of the ecliptic—that is, by the angle between the plane of the earth's equator and the plane of the earth's orbit around the sun. The Tropic of Cancer is a small circle around the earth parallel to the equator and directly under the sun at its greatest declination north of the equator. The Tropic of Capicorn is a corresponding circle directly under the sun at its greatest declination south of the equator. Due to the fact that the obliquity of the ecliptic is constantly changing the Tropics of Cancer and Capicorn do not have permanent positions on the earth, but vary from year to year. The obliquity of the ecliptic in 1927 is about 23 degrees 26 minutes 36 seconds, and so the Tropic of Cancer is 23 degrees 26 minutes 36 seconds north of the equator and the same distance south of the equator.

Snow-Blindness

According to Stefunssou, the explorer, the Eskimo seems far more susceptible to snow-blindness than the white man. He does not think it a racial question, however. The reason is that a man who has never had snow-blindness does not easily get it, but when he has had it once he gets it more easily the next time. Men who have been exposed to it from childhood are very prone to the affliction. Stefansson thinks that in Arctic regions it is of great importance to protect the eyes in the daytime by wearing goggles. He also considers it important in preventing this affliction to sleep in a dark place at night. A tent of such material as white balloon silk was found to be trying to the eyes. When the tent is covered with blankets and skins to make it dark the snow blindness is cured.

Rushing Waters Meet in Giant Whirlpool

Just before the junction of the Madre de Dois and the Inambari rivers in Peru the latter divides into two arms, with an island some two miles long between. The right arm, which is usually the safer for navigation, is at times impassable, owing to excessive drought that causes the formation of perilous rapids. Travelers must in consequence take the wide left arm, down which the main volume of the river then flows.

An enormous force of water is shot into the Madre de Dios; the Inambari at its left-arm junction is 300 yards wide, perhaps 50 feet in depth, and flows at six knots an hour. This great mass of water meets the Madre de Dios, itself 400 yards wide here, at a right angle. The current of the Inambari, being faster than the Madre de Dios, the former river cuts right across to the farther bank. There the Inambari is thrown back and surges round in a huge circle 200 yards in diameter, to join up again with the water flowing to the bank. The whirlpool thus formed is probably one of the largest in the world. The circles of seething water curl inward and downward, screw-fashion, to their center, which appears as a great hole, at least six feet being below the level of the outer rim.

Birch-Bark Canoe Not Popular With Indians

Though the birch-bark canoe is the traditional vehicle of the Indians of northern Canada, few are to be seen today among those Indians frequenting trading posts or mining camps in Ontario or Quebec, writes Courtney Ryley Cooper in the Saturday Evening Post. There is an art in making a birch-bark canoe that only the old-timers truly know. Then there is work to it and "an Indian and unnecessary work are about as well mated as a bulldog and a black jaguar." Far better, if he can trap enough rats or corral enough ermine skins, he owns a chestnut canoe with an outboard motor, with which he can scoot along the streams and lakes in serenity and swiftness, while the wind waves his hair and creases a grin across his face, comparable only to an Oklahoma Cherokee enjoying his oil royalties and a new motor. There's only one thing more exciting, and that is to stand close enough to the track to get the ballast in his eyes as he watches the transcontinental go by.

Finished

A traveling man put up one night in a cheap little hotel, where the thin partitions of a range of bedrooms, like the stalls of a stable, stopped halfway to the ceiling. And in the stilly watches of the night he lay awake and listened to the finest demonstration of plain and fancy snoring that it had ever been his fate to hear. It was full of sudden and awful variations. Sometimes strangulation seemed imminent; then, in the middle of a fantasia, the agony stopped suddenly, and there was silence.

From a nearby room he heard a voice exclaim wearily, "Thank goodness! He's dead!"

Landmark on Old Trail

One of the early landmarks was Pawnee rock on the Santa Fe trail, in what is now Barton county, Kan. This giant rock standing on the level plain was a noted spot, for the trail ran near its base. It provided a place of rest and safety for many a traveler. In later years this landmark was disappearing. The Woman's Kansas Day club resolved to save the historic spot and secured a deed for the rock and five acres surrounding it. On Kansas day, 1909, the women presented this deed to the state. This was done with the condition that the state spend $3,000 for improvements.

Lake Affected by Canal

Experts have decided that the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans mingle with the fresh water in Miraflores lake in the Panama canal. The progressive rise of a certain amount of sea water to this lake and in a lesser amount to Gatun lake began with the first ship to pass through the canal and will probably continue indefinitely with the operation of the locks of the canal under traffic. A rise also takes place when the ships are locked downward.

Time-Sense Center

Why is it that most of us beat time whenever a lively time is played? The reason, says the Swiss scientist Hoepli, is that the nerve centers which react to the sensations of hearing music are located in the feet at a point in each foot under the bend between the ankle and the toe bones. Moreover, the nerve spots which react to musical rhythm, he adds, are in the feet, near the big toes. In the feet also are the nerves controlling the ability to dance rhythmically.

Traffic-Blocking Islands

Floating islands are formed by the accumulations of soil and grasses that push their way over the normal shore line of streams and oceans. These floating masses are lifted at high tide and will break away if the pull is strong enough. In less than 40 years one of the traveling islands, or "rafts," as they are known, grew in size until it was 10 miles long, 600 feet wide and 9 feet thick blocking the lower area of the Mississippi. Four years of labor were required to remove it.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Welch and son, Wellington, were visitors at the home of Mr. Welch's mother Sunday, at Mt. Lake Park.

Misses Blanche and Gertrude Bernard spent the week-end at the home of Mr. O. C. Bittinger.

Misses Erma Whittington and Dorothy Sembower, and Messrs. Oscar Kisner and Harrison Sembower attended services at Loch Lynn, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Galand Fike visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Friend, one day last week.

A very interesting program was rendered at the Pleasant Valley Grange hall last Thursday evening. It consisted of:

Opening Song.
Reading, ... Harrison Sembower
Talk, Walter Newman, on Club Work.
Piano Solo, ... Erma Whittington
Talk,.... County Agent McGlone, on Dairy Cattle.
Humorous Reading, ... E. O. Liller

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lee spent Monday of last week at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sembower.

Misses Eugenia Athey and Erma Whittington will leave here Thursday evening to spend their Easter vacation at their respective homes, Shepherdstown, and Kearneysville, W. Va.

County Commissioners Browning and Orendorf were seen in the vicinity inspecting the new stone road that is being built from Loch Lynn to Pleasant Valley. Mr. John Kisner, who is forman of the new road, is pushing the work rapidly.

Since the roads are getting better, let's have a large turnout at Grange Thursday evening, April 21st, at 7:30.

A penny could have saved him!

The man who owned this chick saved a penny. It would have cost him a penny more to have fed Purina Poultry Chows, and nine chances to one, Purina Poultry Chows would have saved the chick, but—the man thought he'd save a penny.

We want to see the man who likes to save his pennies. We can save him baby chicks—and dollars instead of pennies!

GRANTSVILLE FAIR BUILDINGS DESTROYED

W.O. W. to Hold Minstrel-Work on Sunday School Room Started —Other Grantsville News

Grantsville, Md., April 20,—Fire of undetermined origin started in the kitchen of the Community Fair building here on Sunday night and spread to the pavillion, completely destroying both buildings. The blaze was not discovered until about eleven o'clock and was well under way, preventing any opportunity for saving either building. Inside the pavillion there were about 60 chairs stored, besides oil stoves, tables and other equipment used for exhibition purposes. The buildings were un-insured and the loss will be at least five hundred dollars to the Association. Fortunately there was no wind and the adjoining buildings were not endangered, however a slight wind could have caused very disastrous results.

Married.

Miss Nellie Frantz and Ernest Lowdermilk, both of Oakland, were united in marriage by the Rev. Johnson, at the Methodist parsonage here, last Friday noon. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Lowdermilk started on a motor trip thru the Eastern part of the country.

Miss Elsie Juanita Brenneman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brenneman, of Frostburg, formerly residents of Grantsville, was married on the 9th, at the Central Methodist church, Cumberland, to Edward W. Grim, of Cumberland, by the Rev. Wade Johnson. Mr. Grim is an employee of the Imperial Ice Cream Co. They will reside at Huntington, W. Va., where Mr. Grim is employed by the company.

To Hold Minstrel.

The members of the Woodmen of the World Lodge here are preparing to hold a minstrel in their hall on Friday and Saturday of this week. Songs and dances will also be features to further enliven the program.

New Flag and Staff At School.

The reconditioned flag pole at the school was set last week by Prof. R. R. Webster, who was assisted by Prof. I. W. Staley, Prof. M. W. Whiteford and others, with proper ceremony. The new flag purchased by the pupils of the school, together with the white pole and gilded top, makes a pleasing appearance. The front of the school building is soon to be painted and will make a very much better appearing school property.

P.- T. Associations Hold Meetings

The Parent-Teacher Association of Turner school recently held a meeting at which Prof. R. R. Webster was the principal speaker, on the advantage of a high school education. Miss Mary C. Dorsey, a former teacher of the school, spoke about the changes made in modern elementary education, since she taught.

The meeting of Parent-Teacher Association of Manadier school, of which Miss Mary Miller is teacher, held last week was quite well attended. The feature of the evening was a program by the pupils. Miss Kate Banatine, helping teacher, spoke on the purposes of supervision, and Miss Miller explained the methods of primary reading. Refreshments were served.

Birthday Surprise Parties.

Rexford Bittinger was given a surprise birthday party by the members of his musical club last Friday evening, in honor of his 15th birthday. Games, a musical program and refreshments helped make the evening a pleasant one. Those present were, John Blocher, Clyde Miller, Markel Stanton, Clyde Bender, Luther Miller, Herman Klotz and Allen Rodamer.

Miss Helen Baker was given a surprise party by her friends, in honor of her 18th birthday, last Tuesday evening. Music, games and refreshments were the principal forms of entertainment.

Personals.

William and Rudolph Urich, sons of the late Jacob Urich, of Keyser Ridge, have recently opened a tailoring, repairing and cleaning business in Akron, Ohio. The Urich brothers are well known here and their friends will be pleased to know of their recent step upward in the business world.

Henry Beeman, of Negro Mountain, was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, last Thursday for an appendicitis operation.

Mrs. Michael Nathan, who has been seriously ill for some time, was removed to the Miners Hospital, Frostburg, on Friday for treatment.

NINE HURT WHEN PORCH COLLAPSES

Ladies Fall Six Feet to Ground—Two Were More or Less Seriously Hurt

Two ladies were more or less seriously hurt when nine ladies, attending the funeral of the late Charles C. Cross, fell to the ground when a porch in front of the residence gave way.

The more seriously injured ladies are Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein, and Miss Julia Lawton, a nurse.

Those who escaped with slight injuries are Mrs. G. J. Altstetter, a sprained wrist; Miss Marion Leary, bruised ankles; Miss Elizabeth Leary, sprained arm; Miss Louise Shreve, scratches and bruises on face and leg; Mrs. B. B. Nethkin, Mrs. Clyde Liller and Mrs. Charles Dawson suffered slight shocks from the accident, but otherwise were not injured.

Mrs. Falkenstein is confined to her bed suffering from a disorder in the right side which was evidently caused from a blow by a piece of timber. Her condition is slightly improved.

Miss Lawton was probably the most seriously injured of the ladies, and it is said that several of the unfortunate ladies fell upon her after she had struck the ground under the porch. She suffered many contusions about the body.

The porch frame and roof remained stationary, and when the floor went down the women were helpless in extracting themselves because of the wall on all sides of them, and it was not until a door, which opens under the porch was opened that the women were taken from their entanglement onto the lawn.

The floor was elevated above the lawn about six feet, and besides the fall the ladies were further injured by some heavy porch furniture falling in on them.

The accident happened immediately after the casket containing the remains of the deceased man had been removed from the house, however, it was necessary to remove the casket by way of a side door and fortunately the body was not conveyed across the porch.

Oakland And Aurora To Hold Track Meet

Arrangement have been made for a dual track meet between the High school track teams of Oakland and the Aurora High schools, to take place at Aurora on April 29th.

The teams will follow the precedent established between the two schools in the last few years and each will bear their own expenses. No admissions to the event will be charged, since the date is one set for public school day exercises at Aurora.

The only requirement for eligibility to be an entrant is that he be a bona-fide student in good standing and under 21 years of age.

The morning of the 29th will be taken up by the school exercises of the Union district grade schools of the vicinity of Aurora. The events will start at 2:30 p. m., and will consist of all the usual events, except the hurdles; that is, there will be the 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880 yard run, and the mile run, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, shot put, hammer throw and javelin throw. Some of these events will be new experiences for both teams, so that any unevenness will be balanced. There will be no relay races since this event does not usually count for points.

The first three places in each event will count for points on a 5-3-1 basis.

In addition to the dual track meet there will be a meet of the grade schools of Union district only, including dashes and runs for the boys and girls, running broad jumps for the boys, and base ball throws for the girls. The girls of the Oakland High school will not participate in any of the events of either meets on this day.

Pastor Called To The Red House.

Rev. Walter E. Waybright, a senior at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., has been unanimously elected the pastor of the Eglon Lutheran charge, which consists of the congregations of Red House, Texas and Eglon.

Rev. Waybright has sent his acceptance to this call and expects to take charge of his field immediately upon the close of Seminary, when he and his bride will occupy the parsonage at Red House and begin his work on the field there.

Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell spent a few days the past week in Washington, D. C., returning to her home in Oakland on Monday.

BLOOMINGTON GIRL KILLED BY TRAIN

Martha Ellen Clark, 16, Struck by Freight While on Her Way to Work.

Martha Ellen Clark, 16 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Clark, of Bloomington, Md., was killed yesterday morning about 6:30 when struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train about 10 feet east of the Bloomington bridge over the Potomac river. Her wrist watch stopped at 6:38. Miss Clark was on her way to work at the plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and had stepped to the east bound track to avoid a west bound freight and failed to observe the approach of an east bound train. Her body was badly mangled. She is survived also by three brothers, Harry, Clifton and Arthur, at home; and two sisters, Pleasant, at home, and Mrs. Opal Rizer, Bloomington.

The funeral will be held today at 3 p. m. from the Methodist Episcopal church at Bloomington. Interment will be in the Bloomington cemetery. The Rev. E. L. K. Tune will officiate.

Maryland Tuberculosis Association Clinic.

A clinic for diseases of the chest will be conducted in Dr. Mason's Office, Friendsville, Wednesday, April 27, at 10:30 a. m. Individuals complaining of any of the following: cough, expectoration of blood, (spitting), tired feeling, loss of weight and appetite, indigestion, hoarseness, etc., should see their family physician and obtain permission to attend clinic at the place announced above.

A Bit Of Family History.

The recent death of Mr. Henry Shaffer, better known as "Chip," marked the passing of the last of the third generation of the Shaffer family, which originally settled at Brookside, W. Va., in 1788. His grandfather, Adam Shaffer, came from Washington county, Md., and was on his way to the Ohio country, but after he had started he found that his money in the form of Revolutionary script had become worthless.

John Hoye, who had patented a large tract of land in Preston county, happened to meet him and believing that he would make a valuable addition to the German settlement, established the year before about what is now known as Aurora, W. Va., offered him a tract of 100 acres for the equivalent of $100, and gave him a deed in fee before a cent was paid.

Adam Shaffer's wife was the daughter of John Wotring, one of the original members of the settlement. Wotring evidently came originally from Chester county, Pa., for Thomas Starchman, the historian of Preston county, relates that Mrs. Adam Shaffer would often tell with pride that on the day of the battle of Brandywine, September 11, 1777, her grandfather was in the American army, her grandmother Wotring and Aunt Bingham raked and set up buckwheat, while her mother moulded bullets for the army. The moulds she used on that occasion are, or were a few years ago, in possession of the Wotring family.

Birthday Surprise Party Given

A very pleasant surprise was tendered Mr. S. W. Ringer, near Hutton, on Thursday evening, April 14th, in honor of his 40th birthday.

Mr. Ringer had been called to one of his neighbors "on business." When Mr. Ringer returned he was called into the parlor by his niece, to see why the victrola would not play. He was welcomed by "surprise" from his friends and neighbors, and a birthday cake with forty lighted candles was placed on the table.

The fifty-eight present were: Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Melott and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Scott and daughters, Misses Mary and Martha Jane; Miss Anna Mae Swindler, Mrs. Fred Paulie and family, Miss Edith Sommers, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Sanders and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sanders and family, Mr. N. C. Sanders and family, Mr. and Mrs. John White and family, Martha Hardesty, Edgar Hardesty, Hutton; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hardesty, and Mary Weeks, Loch Lynn; Miss Lova Rhodes, Utah; Miss Margaret Loraditch, Frosthurg, Md,; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Smith and family, Crellin; and John Grimes, Aurora, W. Va.

After playing many games, refreshments were served. The guests returned home at 11 p. m., after spending a very pleasant evening. Mr. Ringer received many pretty and useful gifts.

A FRIEND.

TAX RATE INCREASED TWENTY-TWO CENTS

Budgte Over $82,000 More Than Last Year—Deficiencies and Reassessment Cause

The levy of 1927 for Garrett Co., compiled and approved by the Board of County Commissioners Tuesday night calls for an increase of 22 cents on the $100 of assessable property in the county. The rate for the county tax for 1927 is $1.99 while the rate for last year was $1.77. The State tax rate is 27 11-28 cents per $100.

The budget totals $379,855.83, an increase of $82,382.52 over last year. The increase is caused by deficiencies amounting to $42,000, the reassessment of taxable property in the county at a cost estimated at $10,000, an increase in the appropriation for county schools of $29,317.90, and an increase of $15,000 for road work over last year. The public school system will receive this year $159,666.36 while the road levy totals $55,275.00. Added to these proposed expenditures is $8,000 which will be used in repairing the Court House and County Jail.

Many urgent requests had been made to the County Commissioners during the past several weeks for funds for various necessities throughout the county for which many citizens felt there were pressing demands. These included bridges, roads, repairs to the court house and jail, which have been ordered by the Court and by the grand juries of the county in their reports for the last several years, re-assessment of property thruout the county as required by an Act of the General Assembly, etc.

Among those necessities most prominently pressed were funds for new school buildings, heating plants, etc., requesting for funds for which needs formal requests had been made of the Commissioners by the Board of Education of the county.

Among these necessities as pointed out above were new school buildings at Dodson-Shallmar, Gorman, Swanton, Bloomington and Friendsville. The requests included funds for heating equipment in the recently constructed new school building at Accident and Kitzmiller. The estimated cost of these five new school buildings and the two heating plants was placed at $100,000.

The Commissioners stated to each of the delegates that appeared before them that the present financial ability of the tax payers of the county, as expressed in the present mandatory county tax rate of $1.99 for the year of 1927, a large portion of which rate is necessary in order to comply with laws passed by the General Assembly of the State, make it absolutely impossible to levy any taxes for school buildings or heating equipments, all of which had been forecast in a letter written to the present members of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1927.

The measure introduced in the recent session of the General Assembly authorized a loan or bond issue of $100,000, or as much thereof as may have been found necessary. The measure passed the House of Delegates but failed in passing the Senate.

While the measure did not provide for a referendum vote thereupon by the electorate of the county, yet, under the provisions of The Referendum Act of 1914, it was pointed out that 10 per cent of the voters of the county, or about 395 voters, could have called by petition the proposed loan to a referendum vote would have been taken in November, 1928.

The letter referred to by the Commissioners as having been written to the present members of the General Assembly last March, reads as follows:

To Garrett County Delegation,
General Assembly of Md. of 1927,
Annapolis, Maryland.
Gentlemen:

Our attention has been called to an effort upon the part of the Board of Education of this county to procure suitable legislation whereby there could be a Bond Issue of $100,000 passed by the General Assembly of 1927 for new school buildings, etc.

In this connection, we would like to state that the financial condition of the county at this time is more acute than what we understand has previously prevailed and therefore we desire to inform you and the people of Garrett county that it will be impossible for The Board of County Commissioners of this county to provide any funds for new school buildings, equipment, heating plants, etc., by direct levy for the ensuing two years at least except in cases of dire extremity that may result from an act of Providence or from some similar unforseen cause, which would result in an almost prohibitive tax rate.

Among the reasons for this conclusion at which we have arrived after matured discussion and judgment, we find already that it will be necessary for us to provide in the county levy of April, 1927, funds for the following large items over and above what were necessary to levy in April, 1926, for the general up-keep of the county, which run approximately as follows:

Amount due County Board of Education for deficiencies in previous levies, $34,009.14; cost of new Assessment, $10,000.00; repairing Court House and Jail, $12,000.00.

In addition to the above, it will be necessary to have a special road appropriation of considerable size for which we already see urgent needs.

We feel that the Garrett county members of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1927 should be acquainted with all these facts and with other similar important items yet to be developed.

We desire that these conditions be known to you and to the people of our county so that you may be guided thereby in your present official acts for the best interests of our county and for these reasons we are sending this letter to each of the four members of the Garrett County Delegation of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1927.

Thanking you for your consideration of the above, we remain

Very sincerely yours,
GEO. D. BROWNING, Pres.
D. E. ORENDORF,
HARVEY GORTNER,
Board of County Commissioners.

Oakland—Thomas Road Recommended By Commissioners

A majority of the members of the County Commissioners recommended to the State Roads Commission of Maryland that the money available for improved roads in Garrett county this year be expended on the road running from the Red House to the West Virginia line, at which point an improved road leading to Thomas, Davis, and by the end of the summer to Elkins, West Va., begins.

Since but little more than two miles of improved roads can be built in Garrett county this year it was thought by a majority of the board that it would be of value to a greater number of people to use the funds on one stretch of road than to divide the mileage in different sections of the county.

County-Wide Young People's Conference to be Held Here

The annual conference of delegates from Sunday schools throughout the county will be held at St. Paul's M. E. church on Wednesday, May 4th, and will get under way at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Each school in the county will send five delegates, two of whom will be girls and two boys. The fifth delegate to be an adult, in many cases the superintendent or an officer of the school. The large Sunday schools in the county are privileged to send more than five delegates.

The program will continue throughout the day and a fellowship supper will be served at the Parish house of the church in the early evening.

Car Found With Three Tires and Rim Missing

The Ford touring car owned by Postman Robert Hoffman and used by him to deliver parcel post on his route in the town was stolen from in front of his home sometime during Sunday night and driven to Mt. Lake Park where it was found Monday with three tires and three rims missing.

"Bobby" thought someone was playing a practical joke on him when he missed his "inspiration" on Monday morning, but he changed his mind when he was notified that the car had been stripped of its most valuable parts. The Ford was a $75 one when he bought it several months ago, and the tires that were taken from the wheels were new ones, and with the rims were worth about $40.

Two Fined For Drunkenness.

Before Magistrate E. I. West Monday, John Clarke, Oakland, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. Clarke was picked up Sunday evening and spent the night in the county jail.

J. L. Bolyard, of Clarksburg, West Va., paid a fine of $10 and the costs in the case after being found guilty of a similar charge. Bolyard was detained in jail Monday night to sober up before being released.

Former Oakland Pastor Will Wed Gettysburg Girl

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Belle Miller, of Gettysburg, Pa., to the Rev. Pierce M. Willard, of Baltimore, was announced Thursday at a party at the home of Miss Miller's mother, Mrs. Margaret E. Miller.

Mr. Willard, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Mount Winans, Baltimore, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Willard, of Frederick, Md. He graduated from the Frederick High school in 1918, from Gettysburg College in 1922, and from the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, in 1925.

He supplied as pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church here during the summer three years ago.

The wedding is expected to take place in the early summer.

DEER PARK HOTEL TO OPEN BEFORE MAY 30

Lessee Is Former Manager Of Morrison Hotel, Chicago—Extensive Improvements Made

J. F. Gaulet of Chicago, Ill., and former manager of the Morrison Hotel in that city, and lessee of the Deer Park Hotel, will open that famous mountain resort sometime between the 15th and 30th day of May for the present season.

Since the hotel has been taken over by Mr. Gaulet, extensive alterations and improvements have been made to the interior and exterior of the property, and a large sum of money has this year been spent on the golf course, which has for many years been considered one of the most beautiful and finest courses in the country.

It is stated that the management expects to entertain more than 200 guests on the 30th of May, when the golf course will be the center of attraction.

DIED.

MISS LILLIE AGNES DUKE.

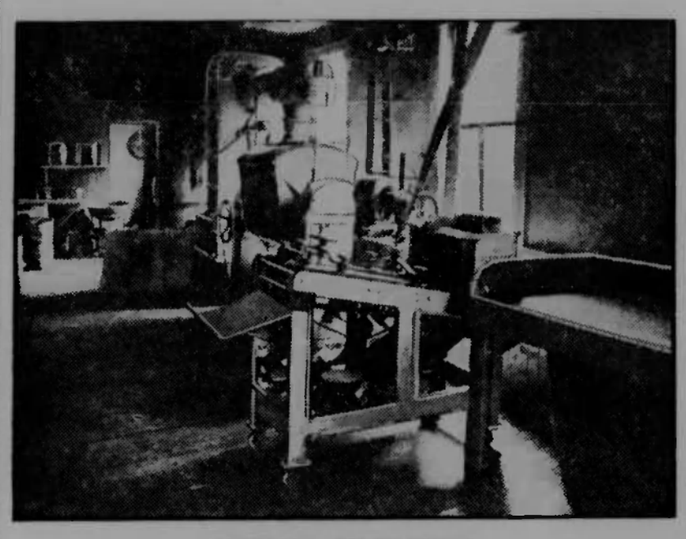
After an illness extending over a period of five years, Miss Lillie Agnes Duke, aged 20 years, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Duke, died at the home of her parents on the corner of Alder and Fourth streets, at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning suffering with tuberculosis.

Miss Duke was a patient at the Maryland State Sanatorium, Sabillasville, Md., for several months while her parents were residents of Leonardtown, however when Mr. and Mrs. Duke and their family came to Oakland to reside in December, 1922, they were accompanied by Miss Lillie in the hope that she might regain her health here. An improvement was noted by the members of the family until a year ago when she suffered an attack of la grippe which was followed by a second attack of the same malady several months ago, which weakened her physical condition and from which she did not recover. Miss Duke was confined to her bed for three years preceding her death on Saturday, but it is said that she was a very patient sufferer and that in all her physical weakness she never offered a complaint.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Duke, and by five sisters, Mrs. James E. Codd, Baltimore; Mrs. William F. Cecil, Leonardtown, Md., and Misses Madge Duke, a twin sister; Cecelia and Virginia, all at home, and by five brothers, John R. Duke, 3rd officer of a liner sailing between Baltimore and Belfast, Ireland; Charles D., of Washington, D. C.; James. A. of Atlantic, N. J., and Harris and Frederick, at home. Two brothers and one sister preceded her in death, a brother dying in 1918 at the age of 21 years, and a brother and sister in infancy.

Funeral services were conducted on Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, by the Rev. Father John F. Eckenrode, who sang a Requiem High Mass, in St. Peter's Catholic church. Interment was made in St. Peter's cemetery.

FUNERAL OF CHARLES C. CROSS



Funeral services for Mr. Charles Clinton Cross, who died at his home on Bartlett street from a heart attack Thursday morning, were held Saturday morning from his home. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

His illness was very brief, having been bronght to Oakland Monday evening on train No. 21 from Bloomington where he was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio in the capacity of a watchman.

Mr. Cross was born April 12, 1863, in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, the son of the late Thomas U. and Mary A. Cross. He was aged 64 years and two days. He was united in marriage to Elizabeth J. Sines, and to this union were born four children: Raymond, Mary Alice, Walter and Emerson. Raymond and Mary died in childhood.

He was a member of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, of Oakland, and of the Brotherhood of Railway Maintenance of Way. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Walter, of Keyser, West Va., and Emerson, who is now a member of the United States Marine corps; three brothers, John, of Akron, Ohio; William, of California, Pa., Elmer, of Crellin; and three sisters, Martha Savedge, of Sang Run, Elvira Rodeheaver and Annie Kisner, both of near Oakland.

Mrs. H. C. Dewitt visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Groves, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Robert Wilt and family, of Cumberland, spent the past week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tasker.

BITTINGER.

A feature of the Easter season in this section was blue skies, mild temperature and songs of many birds.

The Easter service held in the village Lutheran church last Sunday evening was largely attended and commendably rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hetrick and children, of near Meyersdale, Pa., visited relatives here on Sunday.

Miss Nellie Glotfelty, a student at Cathermans Business school, Cumberland, spent Easter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Glotfelty, at their home near here.

Messrs. Lloyd and Irvin Beachy, of Akron, Ohio, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Beachy, in this village.

A number of persons from this section attended the public sale of Columbus Mason's personal property, last Saturday afternoon.

Federal enforcement officer, W. R. Stotler, of Keyser, W. Va., in company with several deputies and Sheriff Casteel and Deputy Griffith, of Oakland, visited this section last Wednesday, and during the day discovered a 45 gallon still and five barrels of mash on the John Swauger farm, near Jennings. The equipment was destroyed and Clarence Swauger placed under arrest. A still and a quantity of liquor and mash was also found at the home of Floyd Bittinger and Alfred Bittinger was taken into custody by the officers.

Misses Olive Brenneman, an employee at the Stone House farm, near Grantsville, and Amanda Buckle, of the National Hotel in Grantsville, spent Easter at their homes here.

Health Forces Mobilized For Child Health Day.

Governor Ritchie has issued a proclamation setting aside May 1 as Child Health Day and has asked all Marylanders to join in the observance of the day. The plan to observe May Day originated with the American Child Health Association. The purpose underlying the nation-wide observance is summed up by Mr. Herbert Hoover, the president of the Association, in which he has called the "Child's Bill of Rights," which claims for each child the right to be born under proper conditions, to be safeguarded in the right sort of home, and to have proper care physically, mentally and spiritually.

All organizations that are interested in child health are cooperating in the plans for the state-wide celebration. Among them are the City and State Departments of Health, the State and Diocesan Departments of Education, the Parent-Teacher Associations, the Women's Clubs, American Legion, Federation of Labor, the Playground Athletic League, County Medical Societies, the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Babies Milk Association, State Tuberculosis Association and the Baltimore Dairy Council. Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene is chairman of the State Committee.

The programs arranged for Child Health Day in which the children themselves will take part will not be limited to the one day but will be spread throughout the spring season. There will be exercises in the schools, with plays and special May Day music, athletic events and other outdoor celebrations.

There will also be exercises for which the grown-ups will have a special responsibility. These will include health conferences for babies and preschool children, especially for the prospective first graders who will enter school next fall; health parades and pageants arranged by Parent-Teacher Associations and similar organizations to focus attention on the importance of protecting children against diphtheria and other catching diseases; window displays; movies and radio talks, all of them emphasizing the importance of giving the best possible care to the State's most valuable assets—its children.

Owing to the usual weather conditions prevailing in Garrett county in the early Spring, when we have more or less cool and wet weather, the program for Child Health Day will be postponed until May 31st, and will be held in connection with the annual field meet of the Garrett county public schools which will be conducted on the Fair grounds at the west end of the town on that date.

Are YOU One of These?

——one of the people who still believe that long distance calls are expensive? For, although it's 1927, there are still some of them left.

Now, long distance calling is not expensive. For instance, on a station-to-station call of 150 miles, the day rate for three minutes is only 95c., and think how much you can say in three minutes. Then, too, the rates are lower during the evening and night hours. The same call of 150 miles between 7 and 8.30 p. m. is but 70c., while between 8.30 p. m. and 4.30 a. m., it is only 50c. Pretty cheap round trip!

Remember, it isn't necessary to wait until midnight to get these discounted rates.

Out-of-town station-to-station rates are lowest after 8.30 p. m.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, a corporation, vs. The Advance Development Company, a corporation; John Crosby Brydon and Nell H. Brydon, his wife; William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, and Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife.

No. 2743 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to have a decree passed declaring void, vacating and annulling two deeds.

The Bill alleges that on or about the 6th day of February, 1922, the plaintiff, The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, discounted a note of the defendant Louis B. Brydon, in the sum of Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars, and that ever since said time and at the present time the said indebtedness with interest thereon is an outstanding and subsisting indebtedness due the plaintiff; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon was the owner of a one-third undivided interest in land in Garrett county, Maryland, containing about forty seven acres, which was conveyed to the said Louis B. Brydon, John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon by deed of Susan V. Brydon and husband, dated the 5th day of September, 1896, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett county in Liber E. Z. T. No. 30, folio 477; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon had out of his own moneys and property advanced and paid to the said John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon an amount of money, equal to and in excess of their value and ownership in the aforesaid property, and in order to secure the same to the defendant, Louis B. Brydon, the said John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, without consideration, except said indebtedness, did on June 1, 1926, execute a deed to The Advance Development Company, a corporation, of all of their right, title and interest in said property, same being recorded among said Land Records in Liber E. Z. T. No. 93, folio 411.

The Bill further alleges that the defendant being all the time indebted to the plaintiff as aforesaid did prior to January 26, 1926, cause to be incorporated The Advance Development Company and did, without any consideration moving from the said The Advance Development Company to the said Louis B. Brydon, execute a deed in connection with his said wife for a pretended consideration of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars of all of his right, title and interest in the aforesaid real estate; that at the time of the execution and delivery of the aforesaid deeds from John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, to The Advance Development Company, and the said deed from Louis B. Brydon and wife to The Advance Development Company, the said defendant Louis B. Brydon was indebted as aforesaid to the plaintiff, and that at the time of the making of both of said deeds, he did not have the means of paying said indebtedness out of any other property except the property so conveyed, and at said time he was also largely indebted to other persons and was insolvent; that said conveyances were made to The Advance Development Company for a simulated and pretended consideration, and that the effect of the same was to hinder, delay and defraud your complainant of its just and lawful claim.

The Bill further alleges that the said Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Taylor county, West Virginia, and that the said William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Barbour county, West Virginia.

The Bill prays for a decree of Court declaring to be void, vacating and annulling both of the aforesaid deeds to The Advance Development Company, and for other relief.

It is thereupon this 31st day of March, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 6th day of May, 1927, give notice to the said absent and non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 23rd day of May, next, to show eause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Peder Emanuel Baasland vs. Jenny Baasland.

No. 2747 Equity. In the Circuit Court of Garrett county.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii for the plaintiff from the defendant.

1. The Bill states that on the 4th day of September, 1917, he was married to his wife Jenny Baasland, nee Jenny Hansen, at Little Falls, N. Y., and lived with her as man and wife until the latter part of October, 1917.

2. That although the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant, on or about the latter part of October, 1917, without just cause, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final and beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation.

The Bill then states that the plaintiff has resided in the State of Maryland for more than two years, and that the defendant is a non-resident of this State.

The Bill further states that no children were born to the parties as a result of said marriage.

The Bill then prays for a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii, for general relief and for order of publication against the defendant.

It is thereupon this 18th day of April, 1927, by the Circuit Court of Garrett county, in Equity, ordered, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 20th day of May, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 5th day of June, 1927, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Pastures Are Hurt When Used Too Early.

The temptation to be relieved of much labor and considerable expense for feed frequently prompts the dairyman to turn his cows on pasture entirely too early in the spring with the results unsatisfactory to both pasture and cows, says J. A. Conover, Dairy Specialist, for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

"Cows turned on pasture too soon are likely to become dissatisfied with the customary dry ration and unless there is an abundant supply of grass, milk production is likely to be curtailed. Furthermore, the pasture under such conditions may receive a setback from which it will not recover all summer.

"The best plan is to wait until the grass is five or six inches high before turning out the herd. This gives the grass a good start and enables the cow to secure a fill quickly and lie down or stand quietly under the shade of a tree. The cow that is tramping over the field all day searching for grass is not making milk.

"Cows making twenty-five pounds or more daily will need grain in addition to pasture. A good mixture for the early part of the season when grass is abundant may be made up of 600 pounds corn and cob meal and four hundred pounds of wheat bran. Other good rations would be: 800 pounds of corn and cob meal, 100 pounds wheat bran and 100 pounds cotton seed meal; or 500 pounds ground corn and 500 pounds of ground oats.

"Later on in the season as the grass becomes older, the grain mixture should contain a higher percentage of protein. A mixture composed of 400 pounds of corn and cob meal, 450 pounds of ground oats and 150 pounds of cottonseed meal should prove satisfactory. Another good combination consists of 500 pounds of corn and cob meal, 200 pounds of wheat bran and 200 pounds of linseed meal."

Late in the season when the grass is old and tough, a grain mixture containing about twenty per cent protein is suggested and could be made up of 500 pounds of corn and cob meal and 500 pounds of thirty-two per cent dairy feed or equivalent.

With the first use of pasture in spring, it is a good plan to feed grain and hay, also silage if available, in the morning before the cows are turned out. For the first two or three days the cows should not be permitted to stay out longer than two or three hours. Cows should not be turned out for the first time when there is dew or rain on the grass. If the pasture is clover, alfalfa, or sweet clover, a close watch over the animals should be maintained for several days. These succulent feeds often cause the animals to bloat, sometimes with fatal results.

Senator Naylor Answers Some Questions Concerning Legislation

To the Editor of The Republican:

I have been asked, since my return from Annapolis, by quite a few citizens of our county, as to what legislation has been enacted increasing salaries of the public officials of Garrett county.

The salaries of the Court Bailiff and Court Cryer have been increased from $2.50 to $3.50 per day. There has been no salary increase other than these.

The members of the House as well as myself, have been very mindful of the fact that we were not elected to place tax burdens upon the tax payers of Garrett county.

ALONZO D. NAYLOR,
Senator for Garrett County.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of our father, Mahlon Glotfelty, who passed away April 19, 1926.

What would I give to clasp his hand;
His happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile
That meant so much to me.
He is gone, but not forgotten,
And as down another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

MARRIED.

Lowdermilk—Frantz—Miss Nelle Frantz became the bride of Mr. Wade Lowdermilk at the parsonage of the Methodist church in Grantsville, on Friday, the Rev. Johnson, pastor of the church officiating.

Mr. Lowdermilk is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lowdrmilk, and is associated with his father in the automobile painting business at the Yough Auto Paint and Repair Shop. Miss Frantz is the daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Frantz and the late Edward J. Frantz. She was graduated from the Oakland High school in the class of 1925, and is a very popular young lady, having a host of friends here.

Taft-Welling—Miss Catherine Welling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Welling, of Oakland, Md., and Roy Taft, of Morgantown, were married on Saturday evening, April 16, 1927, at the Lutheran parsonage by the Rev. D. M. Funk. They were accompanied by a friend, Joe McGinnis.

The bride has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. P. F. Wolfe, and Mr. Wolfe, at their home on Lorentz avenue. She has been employed, as has the groom, by the Royal Furniture Company.

Mr. Taft is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Taft, of Mason avenue. He and his bride will make their home at 2033 University evenue.—New Dominion, Morgantown, W. Va.

Swartzentruber-White.— A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Lutheran parsonage last Saturday morning, April 16th, at 8:30 o'clock, when Miss Nellie Grace White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy White, became the bride of Mr. Harvey Donald Swartzentruber, of Gortner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Swartzentruber. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the bride, who used the ring ceremony.

The bride was becomingly attired in a pink Bois DeRose dress, and wore a light tan spring coat, with hat, hose and slippers to match.

The groom has been in the employ of his father, and in the near future will operate a milk truck into Oakland.

Both are popular young people and enjoy a wide circle of friends.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Swartzentruber left Oakland on the 9:06 train for Baltimore, where they spent Easter among relatives; returning they will spend several days in Washington.

Upon their return they will reside near Gortner, where they will be at home to their many friends.

Bowlers Resume Play Following Rest During Holy Week.

After a week's rest during Holy Week, the bowling league got under way again on Tuesday evening at the Recreation Bowling and Billiard parlor and rolled another series of games. Some fairly high scores were rolled after the rest from the alleys, but from the score it is evident that Bobby Hoffman had his mind on his stolen automobile rather than on the game. Bill Gibson, of the Oakland Model Bakery rolled the highest score of the evening.

Miss Dorothy Kennedy, of Parkersburg, W. Va., spent the Easter holidays in Oakland at the home of her Aunts, Misses Arabella and Dora Martin, at their home on Oak street.

Mr. and Mrs. Bay, of Clarksburg, West Va., spent Easter at the home of Mrs. Bay's parents, County Commissioner and Mrs. Daniel Orendorf, at their home a mile or so south of Oakland.

The Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Funk and daughter Mary, were in Oakland from Monday until yesterday at the home of Mrs. Funk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Thayer, when they returned to their home in Morgantown.

Miss Rebecca White returned to Pittsburgh, Pa., Monday after having visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles White, here. Miss White is a student at Carnegie School of Technology.

Misses Ruth and Katharine Conley were in Baltimore from Saturday until Monday. Miss Katharine Conley is principal, and Miss Ruth is a member of the faculty of the Oakland High school.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart were visiting homefolk in Westernport and Frostburg Saturday and Sunday. During Mr. Stewart's absence from town Richard West drove the Old Trail's bus to Keyser Ridge.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Hamill and daughter, Miss Margaret Hamill, returned to their home here last Thursday from Huntington, W. Va., where they had spent the winter months with Mr. Roy Hamill and family.

Miss Anna Shaw, of near Baltimore, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Townshend Naylor for several days during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas O. Wiley, of Grantsville, were Oakland visitors for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McComas returned to Cumberland Tuesday morning after having spent the week-end in Oakland with Dr. and Mrs. H. W. McComas. Mr. and Mrs. McComas are students at Catherman's Business school at Cumberland.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, was called to his former charge at Walkersville, Md., where he assisted in the burial of a former member, who was a warm personal friend of Rev. and Mrs. Shilke. He expects to return to Oakland tomorrow afternoon.

Messrs. Rowland R. Gilbert, director of the Oakland Band, Hugh Teets and Russell Brown, are rehearsing with the Keyser, West Va., Band and will accompany that organization to Winchester, Va., for the Apple Blossom Festival, which will be held in that city on the 27th and 28th inst.

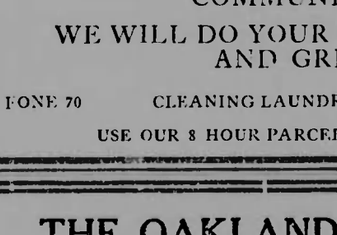
Mr. and Mrs. James Sweeney and children came to Oakland Friday from their home in Baltimore, to visit Mrs. Sweeney's mother, Mrs. J. W. Hart, and her family. Mr. Sweeney returned to Baltimore Sunday evening for the week but will return Saturday to accompany his family to Baltimore the first of next week.

The remains of Mrs. Thomas Cummings, who died in Keyser, West Va., on Sunday, was brought to Oakland yesterday morning and taken to Eglon, West Va., for burial in the Eglon cemetery. Mrs. Cummings is an aunt of Mr. Floyd Stahl.

Mr. Robert Bowman, Crellin, Md., a graduate of the Oakland High school, class of 1925, and a recent student of Catherman's Business school, Cumberland, Maryland, has accepted a position in the office of the Remington Typewriter Company, Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Matheney and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, drove to Oakland Sunday and returned to their home in Cumberland, accompanied by Mrs. Leah F. Sincell, who will visit with them and also with relatives in Keyser, West Va., for several weeks.

Messrs. Cecil Smith, Joseph E. Harned, Henry Lauer, H. P. Stuck, James A. Towler, Townshend Naylor, Neil Liller, J. C. Renninger, Thomas Gonder, W. W. Dawson, W. E. Shirer, David W. Waltetr and Arthur Lawton attended a session of the Scotish Rite Masons held in Cumberland on Monday.



H. R. Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland Division, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, returned last night from Baltimore, where he attended a conference of officials, called for the purpose of making several changes in the time-tables. The changes, effective May 22, are few, he states.—Cumberland News.

The fifth annual banquet and ladies night of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, will be held on Thursday, April 28, at 7 o'clock p. m., in the lodge room. Mr. A. T. Matthews, local attorney, will be the principal speaker for the occasion and the Crellin orchestra will play during the banquet. Several special vocal and instrumental selections will be a feature of the evening.

Mr. Walter Iman and family have moved into the James P. Treacy property on Third street. Mr. Iman is superintendent of the Lindsey Coal Company, one of the R. P. Maloney holdings, which is located at Corinth, W. Va. Mr. Iman, before coming to Oakland resided at Kempton, W. Va., where he was superintendent of the Kempton mines for a number of years. He has been associated with Mr. Maloney for 12 years.

The Houck Auto Supply received two car loads of Buick Automobiles this week and they were delivered to the following: Guy Zinn, of Reedsville, W. Va., a Country Club Coupe; A. R. Ashby, of Tunneiton, W. Va., a Two-Passenger Coupe; Charles Miller, of Rowlesburg, W. Va., a Four-door Sedan. and Jas. E. Harned, of Oakland, a Four-door Sedan. The Houck Auto Supply delivered seven Buick cars in the month of March.

Again it is proved that advertising pays. Dr. Henry W. McComas packed a brook trout in ice and shipped it to the Western Maryland Hospital for "examination." No words were spoken, but yesterday Dr. Gracey, as popular in Oakland as he is in Cumberland, accompanied by Dr. Wilson, and other professional men from Cumberland, came here for the purpose of a further "diagnosis," and upon their return took with them several of the finest specimens of trout that they could care to "work" upon. Dr. McComas very kindly opened his fishing dam to the public several days this week and a large number of trout measuring from 12 to 15½ inches were taken from the waters. The dam was again closed this morning.

Pure food and drink for young and old!

THEY'RE both food and drink—these tempting bottled carbonated beverages!

Scientists say the sugar in these wholesome drinks becomes, by chemical action, what they term "invert sugar," which provides vital energy and "pep" for work or play. And you know, of course, that the health-insuring process of carbonation prevents lurking germs and makes these drinks purer than water from a sparkling mountain stream.

REAL FOOD IN BOTTLED CARBONATED BEVERAGES

Dr. W. W. Skinner, of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry, says: "Bottled carbonated beverages contain more actual food value than many fruits and vegetables of the same weight."

PETER AT THE TRANSFIGURATION

LESSON TEXT—II Peter 1:16-18; Mark 9:2-29.

GOLDEN TEXT—And a voice came out of the clouds saying, This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Shows Peter His Glory.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Beauty and Glory of Christ.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Peter Saw and Heard in the Mount.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Majesty and Glory of Christ.

I. The Meaning of the Transfiguration (II Peter 1:16-18).

These verses are an inspired interpretation by one who was present and knew all that transpired. The hope of the disciples was crushed. When Christ announced His death which was to take place on the cross, they were unable to see how victory could issue from death. Jesus took with Him, Peter, James and John, and they went into the mountain by themselves. Before going into the mountain He declared that there were some standing in His presence who would not taste of death till they had seen the kingdom of God come with power.

Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about His approaching death at Jerusalem—the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. Then, too, God's own voice was heard in words of approval of Christ's course, directing them to hear the Master.

II. Jesus Christ Glorified on the Mountain (v. 2, 3).

He took the disciples "by themselves" and was "transfigured before them." This shows that the purpose of the transfiguration terminated upon the disciples and not on Christ. Christ's rebuke of Peter for his unwillingness to hear concerning His death apparently for a time estranged the disciples from Him. His appearance on the mountain typifies His visible appearance on the Mount of Olives (Zech. 14:4, 9).

III. Peter, James and John Represent Israel in the Flesh in Connection With the Kingdom (v. 2).

Christ is peculiarly the King of Israel. According to Ezekiel 37:21-27, the Israelites are to be the central people in the kingdom. This people shall be gathered from among the nations and united as one in that kingdom, in their own country.

IV. Moses and Elijah Appeared in Glory With Jesus (vv. 4-13).

These men in the glorified state are typical of the saints in glory. Moses who was once denied an entrance into Palestine appears now in glory representing the redeemed of the Lord who shall pass through death into the kingdom. Elijah represents the redeemed who shall pass into the kingdom through translation. Some shall be living upon the earth when the Lord shall come and they without dying shall be changed and thus pass into the kingdom (I Cor. 15:50-53; I Thess. 4:14-18).

1. Peter's proposal (vv. 5, 6).

So definitely was the method of the kingdom unfolded before Peter that he proposed to erect tabernacles for Christ, Moses and Elijah. It is true that the unveiling of the majestic person of Christ and the panoramic display of the kingdom somewhat disconcerted Peter, yet he grasped its central meaning and proposed to celebrate the advent of the kingdom which had been prefigured in a tangible way.

2. The divine voice out of the cloud (vv. 7, 8).

God declared Jesus to be His Beloved Son in whom He was well pleased. If one would know what is pleasing to God, let him study Jesus Christ who perfectly did His Father's will.

3. Jesus' charge (vv, 9-13).

He charged them that they should tell no man concerning the things which they had seen until He had risen from the dead.

V. A Demonstration of the Purpose of the Establishment of the Kingdom (vv. 14-29).

When they descended from the mountain of transfiguration they witnessed a great multitude in a state of perplexity. The immediate cause of this state was the grievous condition of a young man possessed with a demon (v. 18). This young man's state is representative of the nations who are oppressed by the devil. Just as this young man was grievously oppressed, causing him to cast himself into the fire and into the waters, so the nations today in their great perplexity are doing the things which will result in their own destruction.

WAR ON CORN BORER BEGINS IN FORTNIGHT

Dr. Woods To Direct Federal Activities Against The Pest.

Washington, April 17.— In two more weeks the United States Department of Agriculture will enter upon the second stage of its $10,000,000 campaign to head off the European corn-borer in its devasting march toward the Western corn belt.

May 1 is the date upon which the Government will cease to rely upon the voluntary efforts of farmers to clean up the great infested areas in the northeastern part of the country, and will proceed with the work under plans expressly laid down by Congress in the borer control act, passed at the last session.

Dr. Woods To Direct Campaign

Dr. A. F. Woods, former president of the University of Maryland, and now director of scientific work in the Agriculture Department, is the director of this campaign—generally regarded as one of the most intensive fights ever waged against a single plant pest. In addition to the $10,000,000 to be spent by the Federal Government, thousands of dollars will be contributed to the cause by the individual States affected.

Since March 14 the department has been at war with the destructive caterpillar through the medium of the farmers living in the seventy-six counties of the extreme western portion of the infested area—which includes Southeastern Michigan, Northeastern Indiana, Northern Ohio, Northwestern Pennsylvania and Western New York. Under this plan farmers have been engaged in burning, plowing under, or otherwise destroying the stubble in their infested fields, the Government providing them with full information and demonstrations as to the conduct of this work.

Field Demonstrations.

Field demonstrations in the selection and operation of borer-control machinery have been and are being held in hundreds of communities under the supervision of the Agriculture Department cooperating with the extension departments of State agricultural colleges and county extension agents.

On May 1, the Government will begin its inspection of the work done. If it is found that the fields have been cleared of the pest in an acceptable manner, the individual farmers will be recompensed at the rate of $2 per acre for such work as they may have done over and above normal farming operations on the plots. Where the work has not been done satisfactorily, the Federal forces, under authority of State departments of agriculture, will conduct the necessary clean-up, the cost to be charged to the individuals on whose farms the work is done to be collected by State authorities on the same basis as taxes.

Equipment Is Ready.

For this work the Government already has equipped itself with hundreds of auto trucks, tractors, burning machines, stubble beaters and gang plows and much other machinery chosen and bought for this particular work.

The Department of Agriculture estimates that there are 60,000,000 acres of corn-growing land infested with the borer at the present time and that the cleaning up of approximately 2,500,000 acres can be accomplished under the present control act. It is admitted frankly that eradication of the pest is impossible. The object of the control measure, therefore, is to check the spread of the borer and reduce infestation to a minimum.

Menaces $2,000,000,000 Crop.

In this connection it is pointed out that the total spread of the infestation in this country has resulted in a period of only about ten years, indicating the speed of this menace to the nation's $2,000,000,000 corn crop. The infested area was increased by fifty per cent last year, it has been estimated, which was much more rapid than in the preceding years.

The actual monetary loss to American farmers on account of the pest has not been large in comparison with the value of the total crop, it is cited, yet in individual fields there has been twenty to thirty per cent damage, thus indicating the destructive possibilities if the spread is not brought under control.

Although the borer thrives best in the stalks of corn—boring up and down inside the pithy stalk and robbing the ears of maturity—it has been found that it lives exceedingly well, too, on grasses and many other succulent plants.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Lee spent Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lee.

A very interesting sermon was preached by Rev. Shultz Sunday evening at the M. E. church. We were glad to see such a fine attendance.

Mrs. Noah Gnegy and daughter, Gladys, and Mrs. Clarnece Lee spent Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sembower.

Misses Erma Whittington and Eugenia Athey returned Monday evening from their Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Welch and son, Wellington, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Welch's parents at Friendsville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beckman and family visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stover, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Riley were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Riley.

The farmers of this vicinity are at present very busy getting the soil ready for oats sowing and other crops.

Mr. Luther Riley had a very painful accident one day last week. While removing a board from a building, a nail pierced his right hand.

History of American Forest Week April 24-30 This Year

The idea of devoting seven days in the year to forestry education originated on the Pacific coast in 1920. President Harding in 1921 issued the first proclamation which brought the Federal Government behind the idea. President Coolidge in turn gave the plan his sanction; and the presidential proclamations have been issued for seven successive years.

Out of the multifarious "weeks" this is the only one to which the Government has given recognition and support. Many governors have likewise issued special proclamations. At first the week was called "Forest Protection Week," but the breadth of the forest problem led President Coolidge in 1925 to enlarge the scope of the undertaking and change the name to American Forest Week. In 1926 the authorities of the United States and Canada, in view of the internal aspect of the forestry problem, jointly agreed that the week should be celebrated concurrently in the two countries. In Canada the week is known as "Save the Forests Week," but its observance is essentially of the same character as in the United States. This joint observance by the two countries is continued in 1927.

What It Is.

American Forest Week is an annual call to all citizens, young and old, to take part in bringing about better forest conditions. The American Forest Week Committee, of which Hon. Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, is general chairman, is composed of nearly 100 organizations representing almost every conceivable form of interest—the Federal Government, State Governments, outdoor, wild life, and recreational interests, foresters and forestry associations, the lumber industry, large consumersr of forest products, labor, groups interested in water resources, scientific and civic organizations and a host of others.

American Forest Week is all inclusive, for its purpose is to give opportunity for every form of interest in trees and forests to find expression, each in its own way. The end it aims at is that the general welfare may be promoted through the taking of common counsel, the formation of intelligent public opinion, and the stimulating of action, individual and collective, under the impulse thus given.

American Forest Week is not a tool for advancing the views or serving the purpose of any special group or itself with the particular measure or facts and to promote discussion from every angle. It has no goal other than that which a rightly informed public opinion may itself set up and seek. It is strictly and wholly educational in plan and purpose.

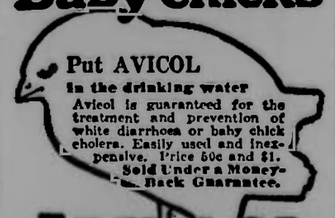
How To Avoid Causing A Forest Fire.

It is not difficult for anyone to be careful with fire while in wooded areas. Here are a few simple rules which if observed will go far toward reducing the appalling number of man-caused forest fires reported every year.

1. Matches—Be sure your match is out. Break it in two before you throw it away.

2. Tobacco—Be sure that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs are dead before throwing them away. Never throw them into brush, leaves, or needles.

3. Making camp—Before building a fire scrape away all inflammable material from a spot 5 feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the center and in it build your camp fire. Keep your fire small. Never build it against trees or logs, or near brush.



4. Breaking camp—Never break camp until your fire is out—dead out.

5. Brush burning—Never burn trash or brush in windy weather or while there is the slightest danger that the fire will get away.

6. How to put out a camp fire—Stir the coals while soaking them with water. Turn small sticks and drench both sides. Wet the ground around the fire. If you can't get the water stir in dirt and tread it down until it is packed tight over and around the fire. Be sure the last spark is dead.

Mid-Week Quiet Hour will again be resumed, when a study of the Creed will again be taken up. Come, join us in this study.

The Pastor's Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. John Ault, on the State Road, Thursday afternoon, April 28th.

St. Mark's invites all to share in the worship and work of the church. No one is a stranger, "O, come let us worship the Lord."

St. Mark's Lutheran church enjoyed a blessed Easter Season. The services through the Lenten season were well attended. Easter Sunday came with a burst of real joy.

The Early Dawn service was well attended. A brief sermon was preached by the pastor; the choir rendered a beautiful anthem, and communion was administered to about 70 people.

The Sunday school was opened with singing Easter songs, and Easter thoughts. Their lesson was enjoyed by all, especially the large group of men who gathered up stairs. One hundred sixty-seven were present in all departments of the school.

At divine worship the auditorium was filled with devout worshipers. The choir sang a splendid anthem; the pastor confirmed the following persons: Helen Louise Lauer, Geneva Martha Winters, Mary Frances Yutzy, Catherine Violet Long, Margaret Reet Christa Wolf, Sylvia Jane Turney, Ethel May Griffith, Waller Paul Hoye, John Henry and Ray Frederick Kltopfel, Carl Wilford Long, James Hull Nordeck, Walter Scott Shreve, Jr., Franklin Edward and James Albert Wolf. The Holy Communion was administered to about 150 persons.

The C. E. had a very pleasant meeting; about 75 being present. Elwood Hauser was leader. The contest closed with the Winning Disciples in the lead.

Evening worship was enjoyed, where again the choir rendered special music and the pastor preached the Easter sermon. Communion was administered to 7 persons.

The total offerings for the day were $211.00. St Mark's considers this among the largest Easter Days in the history of the church, for which all rejoice.

Wednesday, 4:15 p. m., Junior Epworth League service in charge of Miss Grace Loar, superintendent. This hour for the children is always of much interest and importance.

7:30 p. m., regular mid-week prayer service in charge of the pastor.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public generally to join in these services.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mrs. J. A. Hayden is an extreme sufferer these days, but she has good care at her home and the strongest sympathy of her many friends.

The Easter service in the M. E. church was most interesting and helpful to those in attendance. Three of the young people were baptized and six were admitted into the church; all members of the Sunday school.

Mrs. Joseph Dawson and her brother, Mr. Black, motored here from Washington, D. C. last week and will occupy Mrs. Dawson's cottage during the summer.

A number of inquiries are coming already for the renting of cottages here for the summer.

The young woman, who had a nervous breakdown from her school work at Clarksburg, W. Va., and who was brought here by her parents for the summer, is improving nicely.

There is a general clean-up and fix-up spirit manifested in putting the streets and grounds in good shape for the summer.

Mr. J. A. Enlow, in his effort to help clean up and repair this week, was painfully injured, when a ladder he was working on gave way and threw him from a height of six feet or more to the ground, striking his head and body on a 2 by 8 joist and a stump, very painfully bruising and spraining the muscles in his left side, but the Doctor reports no bones broken.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the kind friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness shown us during the illness and after the death of our dear husband and father. We wish also to thank those who donated flowers and cars, and those at Bloomington that were so kind. We especially thank Garrett Lodge, No. 113, K. of P.

LICENSES REQUIRED TO FISH IN DEEP CREEK LAKE

Law Goes Into Effect June 1—Open Season Fixed Between June 1 and August 15

The Eastern Land Corporation and the Youghiogheny Hydro Electric Corporation, subsidiaries of the Penn Public Service and Associated Gas and Electric Co., have had enacted into law through the Maryland legislature their working agreement by which they join in undertaking to make Deep Creek lake, in Garrett county, eight miles from Oakland, a notable place on the fishing and hunting map of the United States.

The law, which goes into effect June 1, authorizes and directs the conservation department of Maryland to require all persons fishing or boating on the lake to secure a license; authorizes the establishment of fish hatcheries on the lake; defines the class and kinds of boats which may be used; provides for the licensing and registration of the boats and for the policing of the waters.

The artificial lake is 12 miles long, and an average of a half mile wide, fed by mountain streams, and is privately owned and under the control of the Hydro Electric Corporation. The Hydro and Land Corporation, March 5, 1926, leased the lake for a period of five years to the state of Maryland, under the supervision of the conservation department, as a fish and game sanctuary, with power to regulate hunting and fishing.

Stocked With Trout.

The act recites that the lake is adaptable to rainbow and brook trout, and is being constantly stocked with these species of fish, and the waters are admirably situated for the rearing of young trout. The intent of the act is to permit the public to fish and hunt on this preserve under the restrictions which the act provides.

It is made unlawful for any person to fish on the lake without first obtaining from the clerk of the circuit court of Garrett county an annual license to do so. The fee for non-residents of the state is $5; that for residents of the state who are not residents of Garrett county, $2.50, and that of citizens of Garrett county, $1, with a 25 cent fee to the clerk. Licenses and tags are supplied by the state. The license will give the date of opening and closing of seasons and the creel limit in the lake area. The licensee while fishing must wear the tag and also have his license upon his person. The license fees go to the credit of the state conservation fund.

Open Season Fixed.

The open season for all fish other than carp and suckers is from June 1 to August 15, both days inclusive, and the only devices permitted are rod, hook and line. The creel limit on all fish except trout is not over 50 in the aggregate in any one day, no fish smaller than five inches in length to be taken. The creel limit on trout is not over ten in one day, no trout under eight inches to be taken.

No part of the area is to be closed to the public, except that the conservation commission may at his discretion and for the propagation of fish close tributaries to the area for their length, not to exceed three at any one time.

Hunting in the area is subject to all the requirements of the game laws of Maryland.

Boating is expected to become a popular sport on the big lake and will be essential to much of the fishing. and hunting.

Power boats using as fuel, gasoline, kerosene or any other liquids or material, are prohibited, except that the conservation department may, if it deems it necessary, place in operation power boats to be used as police boats. The power boat propeller is regarded as destructive to fish and the waste from fuels as probably worse in this respect.

Boats other than power boats may be licensed by the clerk of the circuit court on payment of $2.50 a year for one rowboat, two rowboats or more for hiring. $5, and each sail boat $5. Licenses are made out in duplicate, one to the game warden in charge of the area, and license numbers must be displayed on both sides of the boats, above the water line. License funds go to the conservation department. Provision is made for permits for the construction of wharves, docks, piers and floats.

Fish Hatcheries Provided.

The conservation commission is specifically authorized to establish fish hatcheries on the waters of the lake, and to use the funds derived from licenses and fines and penalties to help defray the expense of the hatcheries.

The licenses required are separate from and in addition to any licenses now required by the state or the county for hunting or fishing. Violation of the act is made a misdemeanor, with a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50 for each offense and commitment to jail until the fine and costs are paid. The act remains in force during the continuance of the leases or any renewals.

The extent to which Deep Creek lake will actually become a fishing and hunting paradise is thought by many sportsmen to be amost unlimited. The waters no douht would make great hass fishing, but the conservation commission has designated it especially as trout waters, with the emphasis on brook trout and rainbow. The lake is also becoming both a breeding place and a haven for ducks and other migratory game birds.

FARMERS AND FUTURE FARMERS TO MAKE TOUR

Will Visit Government Farms at Beltsville and Arlington on Four Day Trip

As it has been pointed out many times by leading Agriculturists and Statisticians that 80 per cent of trades, industry and transportation is based directly or indirectly on Agriculture, many farmers of Garrett county studying the problems of Agriculture realized its importance.

Urged by this motive for the betterment of Agricultural practices and a desire to learn how Agricultural operations are carried on in other sections, many farmers and agricultural boys have expressed a desire to visit typical farms in Maryland of the various phases of agriculture, the University of Maryland and the United States Government Farms at Beltsville, Md., and Arlington, Va.

The tentative schedule of the trip as it now stands is to leave Oakland hy bus or private car on Thursday morning, May 12th, and return Sunday, May 14th. This date has been selected because of a special agricultural program which has been arranged for farmers at the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., on Saturday, May 14th. This offers a special opportunity for Maryland farmers to see their own experiment station and to come in contact with the student and officials of the University of Maryland.

Final arrangements and detailed program of the trip wil bd pubilshed at a later date. Men or boys desiring to join on the trip may secure information from the County Agent or the Agricultural Teachers of the county located as folows: Mr. J. L. McGlone, Oakland; Mr. O. T. Graser, Oakland; Mr. W. E. Tarbell, Accident; Mr. M. W. Whiteford, Grantsville; Mr. J. H. Carter, Friendsville.

Youthful Prank at Mt. Lake Results Seriously.

Fred Landon, 17 years old, residing at Mt Lake Park, was pretty badly manhandled one night recently when he was forced against his will to accompany four or five other youths of the town to Crystal Spring, at the head of the lake, when he was tied to a tree and kept a prisoner for some time. When he was released from his bonds it is alleged he was struck in the face by one of his captors and knocked down. As a result of the treatment the youth suffered painful bruises, the most serious being to his right arm in which inflamation set up and to relieve the condition the services of a surgeon were required and an operation was performed Monday. It is said that arrests will follow in a few days.

Band to Resume Practice—Prof. Gilbert to Conduct Class

The Oakland Band will resume rehearsals, beginning Tuesday evening, May 3rd, at 7:30 o'clock in the room in the K. of P. building formerly occupied hy the Public Library. The use of this room has been donated to the band by the Knights of Pythias Lodge. It is desired by the Officers of the hand to have all members on hand at this time and also any others that may be interested in the hand.

A class will be organized, if a sufficient number of boys are interested, and will receive instructions one night weekly as a class. These instructions will be given by Prof. R. R. Gilbert and will be donated. The members of the class will be required to furnish their own instruments and pay a small amount of dues to defray the expense of music for the class. For further information in regards to the above see Prof. R. R. Gilberrt.

NEGRO TO DIE FOR ATTACK ON DAISY WELLING

Washington Jury Makes Mandatory Death Sentence For Westernport Woman's Assailant

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Found guilty of criminal assault on Mrs. Daisy Welling, former resident of Westernport, Md., in the Capitol grounds on the night of February 18, last, Philip Jackson, negro, will pay the death penalty recommended by the jury in court here today.

In finding Jackson guilty, the jury recommended the extreme penalty, for the court to sentence the negro to be executed.

During the trial, Mrs. Welling, who is a telephone operator and the divorced wife of Carter Walling, Oakland, positively identified Jackson as the man who attacked her as she walked through the grounds on her way home from the hotel where she was employed. Jackson attempted to prove an alibi, but wilted under the merciless cross-examination of the Prosecuting Attorney. The negro also repudiated his alleged confession, declaring police obtained it by force.

Brutal Attack.

The brutal attack on Daisy Welling was one of the most revolting crimes in the history of Washington, and shocked the entire city. The young woman, clubbed into unconsciousness by her assailant, was in a critical condition for several weeks afterwards. The negro, after beating her over the head with a brick, assaulted her and left her for dead.

Remained in Critical Condition.

A passerby discovered her lying in the hedge about thirty minutes after the assault and she was sent to a hospital, where she lingered between life and death for several weeks. Washington police arrested more than a half dozen suspects within a few hours after the alarm was spread. The Senate offered $1,000 reward for the arrest of the negro and the police department added $500.

Jackson, who was among the suspects arrested by police, was identified by Mrs. Welling when he was brought before her at the hospital. Police announced that the negro confessed his guilt several days later.

Terra Alta Girl Carries Away Honors At W. Va. University.

Miss Katherine Speicher, of Terra Alta, W. Va., a student at the University of West Virginia, Morgantown, was chosen to be "the ideal Woman's Athletic Association girl" in connection with the observance of "W. A. A. week," observed by University women on April 7, 8, and 9. The program there was a part of a national movement of athletic associations, it is said.

Tho qualifications upon which the choice was based follows: candidate must participate in all woman's athletics, must have good health, must be suitably and becomingly dressed, and should be an "all-round girl." This last means that she is physically, mentally, morally, and socially superior.

Candidates for the honor were selected from the different rooming houses by the women who stay there.

Miss Speicher has a host of relatives and friends in Garrett county.

Mr. Jack Campbell, a former resident of Oakland, has been in town several days this week on business and calling on old friends.

P. S. C. VALUES C. & A. GAS CO. AT $6,800,000

Company Expected To File New Schedule of Rates Substantially Higher Than Present Rate

After a study of six months, the Puhlic Service Commission Friday set the valuation of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company's property in Maryland and West Virginia at $6,800,000. The value of its property exclusively in Maryland was put at $3,488,740.

Attorneys for the campany at hearings held before the commission last October asserted that the property of the company should be valued at $10,000,000. Thomas J. Tingley, People's Counsel, contended that the valuation of the company's entire holdings should be about $4,000,000.

Expected To File New Rates.

With the order of the commission setting the value of the property, the gas company is expected to file with the commission a new schedule of rates substantially higher than those now in existence. The company supplies natural gas to Cumberland and Oakland and vicinity besides a large territory in West Virginia. A rate and valuation case of the company is pending before the Public Service Commission of West Virginia.

No valuation of the property of the gas company ever had been made before. When, in 1925, the company asked for higher rates in West Virginia, Thomas W. Koon, Mayor of Cumberland, requested that a valuation of the company be made to prepare for an anticipated rate increase in Maryland.

Would Be Effective In 30 Days.

With valuation basis to work on, it was pointed out, it could be determined whether the rates charged to Maryland consumers were justifiable.

If no protest against the prospective rates is filed with the commission, the rates will become effective in thirty days. If protests are made, however, a rate case to determine whether the rates are excessive in view of the valuation will be held.

Harold E. West, chairman of the commission, said the valuation by the commission was the first in the history to be made in two states. Engineers of the Maryland commission and of the West Virginia commission have worked together to obtain data in the case. Members of the Maryland commission also have sat with the West Virginia commission at hearings in Charleston.

Appraised hy Engineers.

The opinion issued by the Maryland commission, setting forth reasons for arriving at the valuation, was written by Ezra B. Whitman, a member of the commission. It asserts that the company employed engineers to appraise its property and that engineers of both commissions conducted investigations into the physical condition of the different elements of the property.

Evidences of value of the property, reproduction cost, overheads, depreciation, cost of leaseholds, working capital, going value and original cost were studied at every angle, the opinion said.

Rotary Club Members Visit The Kingwood Club Tuesday.

About twenty-five members of the Oakland Rotary Club motored to Kingwood Tuesday night where they met jointly with the Club of that place, the Terra Alta Club, and about forty members of the Morgantown Club, a total of nearly one hundred and fifty Rotarians being present from the four towns.

Kingwood furnished the dinner, which was pronounced to be par excellent, while Morgantown Rotarians had charge of the program. Prof. Roy Yoke, of the University of West Virginia, was the principal speaker of the evening. Oakland Rotarians are in accord in pronouneing Prof. Yoke's address one of the finest efforts they ever heard.

"Bill" Gibson presided at the piano, and "Skinny" (Wade) Hinehaugh, of the Oakland Club, led the singing, which could not he excelled, as both are memebrs of the Oakland Club.

Second Street B. & O. Crossing Being Repaired.

Under the direction of Mr. T. A. Laffey, supervisor of maintenance of way and Mr. Frank Ballard, local section foreman, the Second Street crossing is being changed from a temporary to a permanent crossing. The street will he closed at this point about four days.

OAKLAND ROTARY CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

Dr. H. W. McComas Again Chosen President of Organization

Dr. Henry W. McComas, after having successfully served the Oakland Rotary Club as its president since its formation, was reelected president at a meeting of the Board of Directors held at the William-James Hotel last Friday evening.

Mr. Joseph E. Harned was chosen as the vice-president. The Board of Directors for the ensuing year is composed of Dr. McComas, Mr. Harned, Professor F. E. Rathbun, Messrs. R. R. Gilbert, H. A. Loraditch, Charles W. Ream and W. W. Dawson.

Mr. James A. Towler was reelected by the club as secretary and Mr. Gilbert as treasurer. Committees under the various heads were named at the meeting of the directorate.

The membership and interest of the club has increased to such an extent that the good influence and fellowship is felt throughout the community.

Burning Car Chars Body Of Occupant—Other Grantsville Happenings

(By G. W. Diefenbach)

Grantsville, Md., April 27th.—An automobile collision, which cost Cecil Myers, age 26, of Cumberland, his life, occurred on Sunday midnight on the Transylvania Trail near the Pennsylvania State Line and about one and a half miles north of the Pike. Myers was driving a Reo sedan, enroute from Woodlawn, Pa., where he had spent the week-end, to Cumberland, accompanied by his wife, Rose Myers, Herman Myers, a brother, Henry Helkin, all of Cumberland, and Misses June and Ethel Odgers, of Frostburg. The car with which they collided was driven by Walter Slick, of Johnstown, Pa., and was accompanied by Glen Rankin. Joe Ake, Frank Rudge, also of Johnstown, Pa., and Misses Catherine and Jean Short, of Myersdale, Pa., who had been out for a drive, having gone as far as Addison, Pa., and were returning. There is a slight grade at the point of the accident; the Myers car was going up grade and the other in the opposite direction. There must have been a terrific crash, according to the testimony given to the Coronor's jury, which convened on Monday afternoon for investigation. Irvin Maust, who lives nearly a half mile away was attending to his brooder house stoves at the time and testifies that he heard a loud crash, heard the screams of women and within a few minutes saw the blaze from the car, the one in which Myers was driving was completely burned up. According to testimony, this car was thrown completely over on its top, Myers was pinned fast in some indescribable way and could not be released until all of the men from both cars turned the machine over which released the body, and which was burned considerable. The other occupants were pulled out, without serious consequences, except Mrs. Myers, who was slightly injured, and Mr. Helkin's hands were burned. The car driven by Slick was an Oakland touring car and had the left front wheel badly bent. The machines came together at the front hubs and the Reo had the running board crushed. Telephone calls were immediately put in to the Maryland Power Station at La Vale and Corporal Katz of police force went to the scene. J. J. Durst and Company were summoned and took the body to their morgue in Frostburg. A passing motorist took up the other members of the party and got them to Frostburg. Sheriff William Casteel, of Oakland, was soon

PETER'S DENIAL AND REPENTANCE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:53, 54: 66-71; Luke 22:61, 62.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Grieves Jesus and Is Sorry.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of Peter's Disloyalty.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Is Denied Today.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Danger of Sudden Temptations.

I. Peter's Downfall (Mark 14:29-71).

This began when he refused to hear about the cross and ended when he, with a foul oath, declared: "I know not the man." When the disciples would no longer hear Christ's message about the cross, they not only ceased to grow in knowledge, but they began to deteriorate in moral discernment and were exposed to the possibility of the shameful denial of their Lord. Steps in Peter's backsliding:

1. Overweening self-confidence (vv. 29-31).

His unwillingness to face the cross alienated him from Jesus and when apprized of the fact that the disciples would all forsake Jesus, Peter declared that Jesus was certainly mistaken, saying: "Although all shall be offended, yet will not I." Our condition is most perilous when we are most sure of our safety.

2. Sleeping at the post of duty (v. 37).

In one short hour the very one who was so confident of his self-sufficiency had fallen asleep instead of watching. The only way to escape from backsliding is to watch.

3. Lack of prayer (v. 38).

The legitimate inference from the Lord's words "watch and pray" is that He had commanded them to pray as well as to watch. The reason there is so little prayer is due to the lack of the sense of need of God's help.

4. Misguided zeal (v. 47).

Peter drew a sword and cut off an ear of a servant of the high priest (John 18:10) when they came to arrest Jesus. He was thus zealous for the Lord. He was trying to make up in outward service his conscious lack of communion.

5. Followed Jesus afar off (v. 54).

Christ's rebuke for taking the sword and the awkward position in which his act had placed him, caused him to follow afar off. He keenly felt Christ's reprimand. Following Jesus afar off got him into trouble.

6. Warmed himself at the enemy's fire (v. 67).

This fire was built by those who had come unsympathetically to witness the crucifixion and even to mock in this tragic hour. For Christ's disciples to try to get comfort from the things prepared for the satisfaction of His enemies is sinful. Many professing Christians are living a life of compromise, even attempting to get pleasures out of the things which the enemies of Christ have prepared for themselves.

7. Open denial (vv. 66-71).

Step by step downward Peter went until the words of a servant girl provoked open and blasphemous denial. This even by one who had said: "If I should die with thee I will not deny thee in any wise." Peter's trouble began when he shrank from the cross. It was that shunning which separated him from contact with God. It should be remembered that there can be no backsliding until there be established a position from which to slip. Many of the so-called backsliders have never been born again.

II. The Repentance of Peter (Luke 22:61-62).

1. The look of Jesus (v. 61).

This was a most wondrous look. It was doubtless filled with pity and pain. Christ knew the trials through which Peter and the other disciples would pass and He prayed for them. This look brought to Peter the full consciousness of his cowardice and disloyalty and his blasphemous words of denial, and yet it displayed His pity and forgiving love.

2. Peter's bitter tears (v. 62).

The look of Jesus brought conviction of sin. It called to mind his boastfulness and cowardice. How awful must have been his condition as he went out that night into the darkness, little suspecting that there would be found a way to get back into communion with his Lord. Doubtless the message from the women as they came from the tomb brought the first good cheer to his heart. Christ said to them: "Go and tell my disciples and Peter." This encouraged him, no doubt, as it indicated Christ's particular consideration and love for him.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT CAUSES DEATH OF ONE

on the job also and began an investigation. Coronor C. S. Zeller, impanelled a jury composed of John Zehner, J. J. Glotfelty, C. U. Edwards, D. W. Dorsey, Wm. G. Keller, Thomas McKinzie, J. W. Folk, G. J. Gnagey, John Livengood, Leonard Schaefer, Thomas Younkin and Stewart Rodamer. The jury went to the place of the accident together with Coronor Zeller, State's Attorney Renninger, Sheriff Casteel and Corporal Katz, examined the wrecked machines and marks on the road, viewed the body which was brought back by Mr. Durst, and then continued their investigation by examining witnesses. The witnesses were heard in the W. O. W. Hall in Grantsville and the investigation drew quite a large group of spectators. Testimony was given by Mrs. Myers, wife of the victim, Miss Inez Odgers, Henry Helkin, the owner of the Reo; Miss Ethel Odgers and Herman Myers, who were riding in the burned machine; all claimed their car was traveling at a reasonable speed and that they were well over to the right side of the road. Irvin Maust, a farmer living at the State Line, was summoned and testified also. Sheriff Casteel and Corporal Katz were interrogated. Walter Slick, Joe Ake and Glen Rankin, occupants of the other machine were also allowed to give their side of the accident, which was that they also were well to their right of the road, that they were traveling at a moderate rate of speed, and that the Reo was traveling very rapidly and well to the left side of the road; that the car when it came to rest was on its top and lying on the concrete. The Myers party state the car came to rest on its side. After short deliberation, the jury rendered a decision that Mr. Myers met his death because of reckless driving.

Cecil Myers was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Myers, of Cumberland, and is survived by three brothers, Harvey, Ellsworth and Herman; a sister, Mrs. F. W. Whitman, all of Cumberland. Myers was employed as a truck driver at Amcelle, by the American Cellulose and Chemical Manufacturing Company, and was a pianist with the Blue Ridge Entertainers, a Cumberland orchestra.

Another Sunday Auto Accident.

Gorman Broadwater, son of Wade Broadwater, of New Germany, while driving a Star touring car, and accompanied by Adam Wilt, his two sons, and Irvin Wilt, of Frankville, had his left arm broken and was cut above the eye when his car collided with the garage of Harvey Pritts, on Meadow Mountain, east of Bittinger, on Sunday evening. When Mr. Pritts arrived on the scene, all the occupants of the car were unconscious. The machine was damaged considerably and the garage was moved several inches on its foundation. Young Broadwater was given medical attention by Dr. N. R. Davis, and taken to the Miner's Hospital, Frostburg, on Monday for an x-ray examination. He claims the accident occurred when he looked back to see what the occupants of the rear seat were doing, all being in a jovial mood.

Married.

Roy, son of the late S. O. Bender, of Trafford, Pa., a former resident of Grantsville, was married on Wendesday evening of last week at Trafford, to Miss Beulah Shindel. The young people will reside in Trafford. Mr. Bender is employed by the Ford Motor Company in their Pittsburgh branch.

Miss Nora Broadwater, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Broadwater, of Avilton, Md., was married last Friday afternoon to Harry Herwick, of Akron, Ohio, in St Paul's Catholic church, Akron. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Herwick left for the bride's home in Avilton where they expect to spend a week. Both young people were employed by Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. They expect to reside in Akron.

Miss Ulelah Younkin Seriously Ill.

Mrs. Milton Younkin and daughter, Rozella, were called to the bed-side of Miss Ulelah Younkin, who is seriously ill resulting from an operation for appendicitis. Miss Younkin is a student in a school at Hampshire, Iowa.

Underwent Operation at Cumberland.

Carl Hutzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hutzel, was taken to Cumberland last week for an operation for complications which followed an attack of blood poisoning; the operation was performed by Dr. Gracie and the boy has improved considerably. His condition had grown quite serious during the early part of last week.

Famous Photographer Ill.

Leo J. Beachy, the well known photographer and writer of Mt. Nebo, has been confined to his bed for several weeks, seriously ill. Mr. Beachy has found it quite difficult to move about for a number of years, because of muscular atrophy of the limbs, and has been cared for by his sister, Miss Kate. Despite his physical handicap, he has made a name for himself in the picture world. His photographs of Garrett county scenery have been eagerly sought by such magazines as Motor Travel, National Geographic, and others. He has made thousands of postcards of our beautiful country which have had a good sale in all the local establishments.

C. E. Society Entertains.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Salem Reformed church, Frostburg, entertained the members of the cast "At the End of the Lane," a play recently given by the society, at the Dixie Tavern last Tuesday evening. The Misses Blocher served them with a delicious chicken dinner. There were forty in attendance.

Pageant at Local Studio.

On Wednesday, May 4th, a pageant will be given at the Holmes and Wallace studios for the benefit of the Mississippi Valley Flood sufferers. There will be no admission, but an offering will be taken and candy will be sold.

The students of the high school will give a play, "A Poor Married Man," on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week in the W. O. W. hall.

Died.

J. C. Balliet, well known in this locality by being in the lumber business here between 1890 and 1900 associated with the late William Billmeyer, died on April 12th, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harvey Fogle in Akron, Ohio, in his 77th year. Burial was made at Milton, Pa., where he had his home for some time.

Local and Personal.

Mrs. J. A. Beachy is recovering from a recurrence of erysipilas, which was supposed to be under control about ten days ago, but which took a decided turn for the worse.

Mr. and Mrs. John Opel, of Keyser Ridge, entertained a number of young people on Monday evening, the event being occasioned by their daughter Mildred's 19th birthday. Games, music and refreshments were the things which enlivened the gathering. Miss Mildred received a large number of gifts. Those attending the event were Mrs. Frank Margroff, Mrs. Charles Zehner, Misses Helen and Clara Margroff, Margaret and Mayme Hanft, Ruth and Evelyn Cramer, Pearl Beachy, Oleda Folk, Margaret Boyce; Messrs Walter and Paul Wisseman, Ralph Copeman, Walter Reichenbecher, Clarence Taylor, Harry Gingerich, Roscoe House, Floyd and Luther Cramer, Floyd and Robert Zehner, Howard Butler, Robert Walls, Roy Beachy and Olen Yoder.

George W. (Jesse) Slick, who spent the winter in Washington, D. C., as is his custom, has returned to Log Cabin Inn, Caledonia Park, a tourist resort on the Lincoln Highway, Fayetteville, Pa., for the summer. Mr. Slick is a well known veteran of the Civil War and has spent many years of his life with the Stanton family at Little Crossings, near Grantsville, Md.—Meyersdal Republican.

Services in the churches next Sunday as follows: Catholic: Mass at 10 a. m.; Methodist: Sunday school at 10 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m., and worship at 7:30; Reformed: Sunday school at 10 a. m.; Lutheran: Sunday school at 10 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kinsinger, of Canton, Ohio, spent Easter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kinsinger.

Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Lobach, of Waynesboro, Pa., visited friends here last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. J. W. McCullough, of Friendsville, visited Miss Gertie Hone last Wednesday. Mrs. S. R. Getty, of Cumberland, was the week-end guest of Miss Hone.

Mrs. S. O. Bender, of Trafford, Pa., spent last week here with relatives, returning to her home on Sunday.

Mrs. H. P. Miller, Misses Alverta and Mary Martha Miller, and Miss Christena Winterberg spent Sunday in Friendsville, the guests of Mrs. Claudine Friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fahey were Baltimore visitors last week.

Dr. and Mrs. T. O. Broadwater will leave for Baltimore on Saturday to attend the meeting of the Maryland State Dental Association. They expect to be gone about ten days.

James Messersmith, of Hagerstown, Md., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mary Messersmith and his sister, Mrs. Rhoda Paul.

Captain C. C. Nathan, of Lexington, Ky., is at home on account of the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. M. Nathan, whose condition at this time is slightly improved.

Miss Helen Hilleary, of Morgantown, W. Va., a student at the University there, spent last week-end with Miss Marian Price.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Dorsey have returned to their home here, having spent the winter in Washington, D. C.

Misses Alma Stephens and Mary Given, T. T. Given and Grover Given, of Baltimore, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Warnick for several days last week.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH OUR YOUNG PEOPLE?

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

In this article the dean of men at one of the largest State universities in the United States gives his own experience with modern youth. He tells you approximately the outward difference between the new generation and the old, and wherein their moral standards differ. He answers recent charges that the present day youth as a rule is reckless, unreliable, and irreligious. For what laxity does exists, he definitely places the blame.

Reprinted from "The Rotarian"

I have had a good deal to do with young people, and with young people of college age possibly as much as anyone has ever had. I have come into personal contact with hundreds and thousands and tens of thousands of them during the last thirty years, so that I have a pretty clear idea of what they are like. I have seen a good deal of their inner life, and they have let me know what they are really doing and thinking about. Then, too, I have been young myself, and I have tried throughout all the years that I have had associations with young people to keep their point of view and even though I was growing old in years at least to keep young in spirit.

There has been a good deal of talk and much writing and some preaching, since the war at least, about our young people. They are very different from what young people have ever been before, it is said. They do not do the same things that we did when we were young, or if they do, it is in a very different way. Very True!

What do I think of them? I am asked this question wherever I go. Are they going to the devil as fast as the general public suggests that they are? Are they wilder or less moral than we, their virtuous predecessors, were? Are they breaking away from all hampering conventions, and giving up all religious principles and ideals? In short what, if anything, is the matter with them?

No generation has ever seemed conventional or self-controlled by the previous one. My father in England was a dissenter from the recognized religious faith of his ancestors. He joined himself to a religious sect that was quite in disfavor in his family and was considered as all but morally lost by his father. He did some thinking for himself; he wandered out of the conventional religious and political path which his ancestors had followed, and he came to America to enjoy the kind of freedom which he thought best for himself and for his family.

He was, however, for all that, very rigid in his views. There was no card-playing in his house; his children were not allowed to dance; and when Sunday came all secular matters were set-aside. We did no work, we read no books or papers which did not have to do with sacred or religious matters, and we went to church—walking if the horses had been working during the week—and sat quietly and sedately with father and mother in the family pew.

We younger children took up cards later—seven-up and euchre—and we learned to dance simple square dances and in time the more extreme and morally dangerous waltz. There was a good deal said about the waltz when it first came in. The morally fastidious lifted their eyebrows and talked in undertones behind their hands when they mentioned it. It was thought to be the most risque social adventure upon which modern young people had yet ventured. We who assayed this view social pleasure were thought to be standing on very dangerous ground. Our parents were worried about us, as parents today are, it seems, about their children.

Judson was talking to me the other day about his boy who is just ready for college. Judson and I lived a mile or two apart when we were his son's age, our fathers being farmers. We had in our youth about the same social experience.

"I never did the things when I was his age that my boy does. He drives off in our car fifty miles to a party or goes that far to take a girl to dinner, —and the way he drives"!

Of course, Judson was right. We had no airplanes and no automobiles when he and I were young, but we did have a horse and buggy and I recalled to Judson that he and I had driven fifteen miles once to a dance. That wasn't so far, of course, but we went more slowly and got back later very likely.

"They want so much more money than we had," he went on. "I never spent a great deal of money. My boy has more in a month than I had in a year."

That is all quite true, but we had as much as any other fellow in the neighborhood had, and the cost of living was almost immensurably lower then than now. The young person of today wants little more than his neighbors have, and that was all we wanted.

Before we judge our young people too harshly we should take into consideration what changes have come about in ways of living since we were ourselves young. When I went to college, students lived a mile and a half from the campus and walked to eight o'clock recitations without thinking that it was a hardship. The old horse-car made the trip every half hour, but it started from nowhere and arrived at about the same place and did both at a most inconvenient time so that there was no counting on it to help, not even in a time of emergency.

We had no telephones, no electric lights, no automobiles. There wasn't a paved street in town. We studied by kerosene lamps in rooms heated with little soft-coal stoves, and if there was a bath-tub in town excepting the one in Terbush's barber-shop where we paid twenty-five cents for the privilege of cleaning up, I never knew about it.

Our pleasures were as simple as our ways of living. There were no moving-picture shows, no vaudeville, no ice-cream parlors, and no dance-halls. There were about two dances a year, one at Thanksgiving time and the other at Commencement, at which time the local opera house had some sort of shaky improvised floor run out from the stage over the seats in the dress circle. We didn't spend much money, because we did not have much, and our parents lived as simply as we did.

I say all this to suggest a little of what the conditions of living were when we who are now past middle age were young, for the conditions under which I lived were not materially different from the general conditions throughout the country. We lived a simple life, though that does not necessarily mean that it was a more moral one than the young people of today are living. We were not so frank, perhaps in our discussion of our emotions and in laying bare what was actually going on in our minds. We thought about a great many things about which it was not proper to speak. There are no such things today. The young person of today talks freely on subjects about which we would have scarcely dared to think. Possibly it is just as well.

There are fourteen saloons in the little town in which I went to college and they did a good business. The proprietor of one of them went to his great reward not long ago, and the schedule filed on the probate of his will showed that he had not done business for nothing. There was far more drinking then than there is now, badly as prohibition is enforced, and far more drunkenness. Gambling houses were pretty open. A friend of mine who is head of a big institution not far distant told me not long ago that he knew a half dozen bright young fellows who paid their way through college by means of their skill at poker. It was done back in those days. The red-light district was pretty flourishing. I called the mayor's attention once to a notorious place which was running in plain sight of his office.

"Oh, of course I know about it, he said, "but not officially, you see." City officials took their responsibilities as lightly then as now.

It is said that young people were more religious then than now—that they went to church more generally and more regularly. Posibly they went more regularly, for the church when I was young was a general meeting-place. Young people went to church for social reasons then far more than we now do. It is not necessary in these days, for social activities are far more general than they were thirty years ago, and it is no longer necessary for a young fellow to go to church to meet the girl he is in love with. He can call her up over the telephone, or tear down the concrete road in his flivver and meet her within a few minutes even if she lives several miles away, and besides there is a moving-picture house on every street corner where he can talk to her under a subdued light while a stirring drama is enacted before them.

We were trained to work hard forty years ago, and the young had their part in the work as well as the old. We went through a good many hardships and are what we are largely because we overcame these difficulties. We got up early at our house and were out in the fields, chores done and breakfast finished, by six o'clock; but I've seen Joe White, our neighbor, a half mile away resting on his plow-beam at five in the morning. He got up earlier than we did. We were not so well nor so widely trained on entrance to college then as are our children now; our teachers were not so efficient, inefficient as many teachers still are; but we were earnest, we were not afraid of study, we very much wanted an education and many made cruel sacrifices to attain that end, as some still do today.

The education of young people today is very different from what it was when we were young, and in a gratifying number of cases it has stimulated them to think for themselves, and in thinking for themselves they have sometimes questioned the old theories and the old standards. They are not throwing them over in a good many cases; they are simply proving them, and where these theories and these standards have a solid foundation, they still stand.

Connor has been brought up in the orthodox Protestant faith. He was taken to church until he was old enough to go of his own record, and for a time he questioned nothing, analyzed nothing, thought out nothing for himself. Now he is uncertain, he is asking questions, he is trying to discover why and why not. It is not that he is irreligious; he sincerely wants to be truly religious, but he is determined to think things out for himself. Many other young people are getting the same point of view, in other things as well as in religion but there is fact.

The young person of today is more resourceful than any other young person whom I have ever known. He can do anything that he wants to do and can do it better than any of his predecessors. Challenge him, and he will meet your challenge with a success that is almost unbelievable. I said that he can do anything that he wants to do. The chief difficulty is to get him to the point of wanting to do something.

He has been talked about and written about so much that he has become self-conscious. He has been praised until it has not infrequently gone to his head; he has been written up and talked about and preached to until he too often feels under the obligation to live up to the reputation of being the wild devil that he has been painted. He hates above all things now to be thought unsophisticated. In general he is much less wise and much less evil than he would like to have you think. His dissipations are pretty largely superficial, and this statement is quite as true of the young man's sister as of himself.

I had a talk not more than a week ago with a young fellow whose reputation was badly tarnished. He has confessed to his friends all sorts of dissipations, and it looked as if he were pretty far gone in sin.

"You won't believe me," he said, "but I've done none of the things which I have been talking about."

"But you've boasted of them," I said, "and quite generally, too."

"That's where I've been a fool."

"Why did you do it?'

"I've always been shy and a good deal of a prude, perhaps. I wanted the fellows to think that I wasn't afraid of anything and that I'd had a lot of experience of which they had never guessed. I guess I thought it would make me a hero."

His is a tendency of youth today. We have pictured him as wild and unconventional and he wants to prove that we have been correct in our judgment.

Our young people today are different from what we were, but we, too, have changed, and they are like no one so much as like their parents. We who are older live more comfortably than we did when we were boys and girls, and in general more luxuriously. We travel faster and farther and in greater elegance. We dress better, we live in larger and better-appointed houses than we once did, and in a certain sense we make fewer sacrifices; and all these changes in ourselves and in our environment have had their effect upon our young people. If there is anything in particular the matter with our young people, parents, more than anyone else and more than anything else, are responsible. Children respond to their training in an amazing manner; they take on habits very early which dominate them throughout life. By the time they are twelve or fifteen the path they are going to follow has been pretty well marked out for them, and parents and the home are most largely responsible for this choice.

It is said that young people are extravagant today. Possibly Someone was speaking to Clara about her fur coat or, to be more exact, about one of her fur coats, for Clara had three when her mother before her had had to be contented with a modest woolen one when she was Clara's age, and her mother's coat saw service for several winters. The fur coat question was a very beautiful one but not very serviceable.

"You coat is no so beautiful," one of her friends remarked; "it is too bad that it will wear out so soon."

"What matter?" Clara responded. "Who wants to wear a fur coat longer than one season?"

Who, indeed? But Clara is not at fault; it is her foolish, indulgent parents.

There is drinking among young people these days, we are told, and what young people go into they often carry through with enthusiasm. Butler had been dismissed from college for drinking. He had taken on more than he could carry and had been picked up in the public streets not knowing either his name or his place of residence. He was jailed and fined, of course, as such derelicts sometimes are. His mother came to see me to plead his case.

"We have always had liquor in the house," she explained, "and George has been free to take it when he wished. We teach temperance in our family; I never dreamed that my boy would go to excess."

The trouble with Mrs. Butler was that she did not know youth. What ever example you set, good or bad, youth is always likely to follow to excess. What is worth doing at all, especially if it contributes to one's pleasure, the young person argues, is worth doing as well and thoroughly as you can. If you teach a boy at home to drink, trust him at some time or other to do it to the limit.

Golinken called on me last Saturday. He had a son in college, nineteen years old. I think he is, and he looks as strong and healthy as a well-fed ox. His scholastic record so far does not show any indication of overwork on his part. It is, in fact, some fifty points below the average of college. Mr. Golinken's purpose in calling on me is to get permission for his son's use of a motor-car in his passage to and fro units lodging place.

"You see," the father explains, "my son lives five blocks from the campus and sometimes when he gets up a little late in the mornings it is rather hard for him to make his nine-o'clock class. A car would save time for him."

I could see that it might.

"You see, he has flat feet—not bad but annoying—and walking is not pleasant."

I explained that nothing is better for flat feet than walking moderate distances and that open-air exercises are helpfully stimulating to the brain, but he could not see it.

Now Golinken had a very hard time when he was a boy. He had no opportunity to go to school. He worked as an apprentice for years to learn a trade with not enough remuneration to pay for his meals. He rose in the world from sheer force of will And through hard work. He is a successful business man now but he cannot see that he got where he is through meeting difficulties and overcoming them, through sacrifice and doing without things to accomplish his purpose. He has given his son the easiest life possible—fur coats and motor cars and plenty of spending money. He has not taught him to deny himself anything. Whatever he wants he has only to ask for it. And the boy is a loafer, sleeping late in the morning, too lazy to walk five blocks by nine o'clock in the morning and satisfied to do work far below the average, and the father is satisfied to have him do this sort of work.

"I did enough hard work when I was to boy," Goblinken explains to me, "for the whole family, and made enough sacrifice. I want my boy to have an education; I want him to have an easy time; I don't want him to go through what I went through."

Many parents feel as he does. They are unwilling that their children should get anything of the training they are, and so they pamper and in-that has made the older people what dulge their children and humor them and make them soft and selfish.

My answer to the question that is found in my title is that there is nothing the matter with our young people. Where they have had the discipline of home and have been taught to work and rely upon themselves, where they have been grounded in the principles of love and sacrifice as many of them still have, they are the most wonderful young people in the world and they are going to do great things far beyond what we have been able to do.

The trouble, where there is trouble, is largely with the parents who coddle their children and make their life too soft and easy. There are too many coonskin coats and flashy-looking runabouts. There are too many extravagant allowances and too many formal parties when the young people who go to them should be playing children's games or at home in bed. Too many young people are taught not to work or to do their best at whatever they undertake. Parents are quite satisfied when their children accomplish the commonplace.

Our young people as a whole are judged, too, quite commonly by the escapades and the derelictions of the few. In general I have found that from eighty to ninety per cent of the young people with whom I have to do are conscientious and hard working and anxious to do well. It is the minority of ten per cent who have stirred up comment and made themselves notorious by their irregularities, and for these things foolish, indulgent parents are most largely responsible.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mrs. J. A. Hayden was presented with a nice brook trout the other day. After eating it she said, "I feel so much better and I think I will get well." She is sleeping and resting better now.

While Mrs. Erwin was working in her yard the other day she was stricken with paralysis which afflicted her left side.

Quite a change in temperature is noted since last Friday, as snow fell for three days, causing freezing weather.

Mrs. Mary Coffendoffer, of Shinston, W. Va., is having an addition built to her cottage on I street.

Miss Mollie Hamill has just returned from a visit to Columbus, O., where she spent a number of years in deaconess work, and if it were not for her impaired health would be delighted to spend the winter months in this splendid work. We are glad to have her here in her home, as she is very helpful in many ways.

J. A. Enlow is carefully nursing his wounds and bruises, so he can say goodby to them as speedily as possible.

Mr. Wiley W. Welling is quite busy these days repairing and building additions to cottages in the Park.

POLITICAL OWNERSHIP

The United States has been progressing steadily in efficiency and prosperity since the period of post-war reconstruction began, and it may be added that efficiency and prosperity usually go hand in hand. One of the striking examples of this progress can be found in our American railway systems.

At the close of the war these systems were practically wrecked. Government control, tantamount to government ownership during the war had completely disorganized them and it seemed that they had been scrambled almost past the unscrambling point.

But a few years of private control have worked wonders. The railroads are again back to normalcy. Operating conditions have improved, the service to the public is tremendously better and the railroads are making money. What is true of the railroads is true in a lesser degree of the other great public utilities which were placed under government control during and immediately after the war. The changes in these other instances may not be so striking but it is visible just the same.

The lesson is one which will not be lost on the American public. The example of our railroads under government and private control is a complete answer to the radical demand for government ownership of railroads, and other public utilities.

They call it government ownership and that is what the radicals advocate theoretically, but as a matter of fact the term "political control" would be more appropriate. For government control means political control, with all its evils. Everyone knows how railroad costs mounted during the war. With government control permanently established the costs would grow steadily, and efficiency vanish.

Instead of the railroads being run efficiently for the benefit of the thousands of stockholders they would be operated for political benefit. Railroad jobs would become political favors and therefore multiply like houseflies. And there would be built up a political machine in our great public utilities the like of which has never been known in modern government. Government by bureaucracy, or by office holders would no longer be a danger but an accomplished fact.

And what applies to the railroads applies to other kinds of business. You might be an advocate of government operation of railroads and other utilities today. But the thing spreads and by tomorrow others more radical than yourself would be demanding federal ownership of stores and factories and farms. And so on until the government became one tremendous all-absorbing machine with everyone working for it. When this stage was arrived at we should have bolshevism, with the only difference that we had entered that blissful state through the back-door.

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

It is not surprising that a nation-wide outcry has been raised against the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti as payroll murderers by the courts of Massachusetts. Nearly seven hundred thousand dollars has been raised and expended in the effort to clear these two men, and a good deal of clamor can be raised with that amount of money. Communists and socialists throughout the world have taken the matter up, and indeed the comrades have attempted to blow up three American legations in foreign lands, to prove their interest in orderly justice. The home of one of the state's witnesses has been blown up and threats have been made against the judges and prosecuting officials who have had to do with the case. Every socialist, communist and self-styled political "liberal" in the United States is attempting to prove that these two men are being railroaded to the gallows on no ground other than that they are foreigners and radicals, the truth being that the only reason this outcry is raised is that they are radicals.

Now a radical, in the opinion of other radicals, is never guilty of any crime of which he is accused. He is always the victim of a "frame-up." It will be recalled that when the McNamara brothers were indicted for blowing up the Los Angeles Times building and killing twenty-two workmen, the same elements now denouncing the Sacco-Vanzetti verdict were hysterically denouncing the "infamy" of the California courts for persecuting two perfectly innocent radicals. Mass meetings were held in every large city: the radical and liberal press was filled with charges against the integrity of the California courts; "defense" committees raised huge funds, and millions of people were led to believe that there had been some failure of justice. Unfortunately, in the midst of this campaign, one of the McNamaras confessed!

Few of those now discussing the Sacco-Vanzetti case know or care anything about the facts. The men were regularly tried and convicted by the unanimous action of the jury which heard all the evidence. The defendants had a battery of high-priced attorneys and all the help in their defense unlimited money could give them—so much money that they have carried on legation for six years. Their radicalism was not introduced into the case by the prosecution, but by the defence.

Prof. Felix Frankfurter, of Harvard University, a campus pink, has written a book on the Sacco-Vanzetti trial which is quoted by radicals as proof that there has been a miscarriage of justice. But it must be remembered that Professor Frankfurter is one of those to whom a radical is always innocent, and the government is always wrong. Theodore Roosevelt denounced him for his partisan activities in behalf of I. W. W.'s guilty of anti-government violence during the World War, declaring that it was Frankfurther's habit to defend men who are wrong by attacking those who are right.

Knowing no more first hand facts about the Sacco-Vanzetti case than do their radical and "liberal" defenders, sound Americans are willing to leave the adjudication of this case to the constituted authorities, including Governor Fuller, who is now reviewing the evidence. But they fully comprehend the motives of the radicals and "liberals" who find in this case just another opportunity to defend radicalism and attack their government.

Watch For The Placard.

If you are going on an auto trip this coming summer, or are planning a stay at one of the summer camps along Maryland waterways or at some attractive countryside, before you unpack your belongings be sure that the camp has been duly placarded by the State Department of Health as having met the sanitary requirements of the State Board of Health.

In order that the inspection of such places may be begun before the tourists and vacationists take to the open road, all operators of summer or tourist camps throughout the State are requested by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, to file their applciations for permits to operate such camps, at once, with the State Department of Health, 16 West Saratoga Street, Baltimore.

Only those camps that satisfy the requirements of the Board as to the protection of the water supply, disposal of sewage, proper protection of food supplies and general cleanliness will receive the permit necessary to operate such places. The absence of the Official placard will show that they have not met the requirements.

Any premises which accommodate ten or more persons and which are to be used as a camp for tourists or for vacation outings for a period of six days or longer, or which are used as picnic grounds, are subject to these regulationns.

During the season of 1926, 104 camps were inspected and permits were issued to 49. Of that number, one was an amusement camp, twenty-three were tourists camps, twenty-five were recreation camps with quarters for vacation outings. The camps which met all of the requirements covered every section of the State, and were located in eighteen counties. From the applications already received, it is expected that the number of licensed camps during the coming summer will be more than double the number in operation last year.

Sheep Survey of Garrett County

Mr. K. A. Clark, Sheep Specialist of the University of Maryland, accompanied by County Agent McGlone, visited many sections of the county in the interest of the sheep industry. Mr. Clark made a thorough study of the sheep in the county and said that most lambs that he had seen in Garrett county were earlier than usual. "Lambs in the flock which I observed are growing well and are above the average. The lambing percentage is strong, ranging from 100 per cent to 150 per cent. With the lambs coming early and the spring well advanced, the crop will probably move to market ahead of the usual fall rush," said Mr. Clark.

Sheep Industry in Garrett county suffered a decline in the three years including and following 1921. The liquidation that took place during that period of low prices left the country with approximately 12,000 sheep, which number is about 20 per cent less than the production five years ago. Garrett county has always led in sheep, but it is now the second county in Maryland. There is some tendency at present to increase the size and number of flocks. This natural stimulus in the raising of sheep must be attended with the use of better rams and the more rigid culling of ewe flocks. "I notice many of the rams in use are scrubby, counterfeit individuals. Practically every ewe flock needs a severe culling. The best way to improve flocks is by the use of good purebred rams and by the replacement of unsuitable ewes with the best ewe lambs from the flock each year. The old thin, worn-out ewe will not produce as many nor as good lambs, as young vigorous ewes. A high class purebred ram produces growthier, huskier, more uniform lambs of better quality that sell quicker and higher than common lambs from poor breeding stock."

The sheep business can be made more profitable by studying the conditions on each individual farm and keeping that number of sheep which should be increased to allow fuller use of a better ram, and repay more for the attention and care given. A few flocks might be reduced on account of feed or pasture shortage and to allow better housing and handling facilities.

A common attitude with too many flock owners is the feeling that sheep are a side line. Make them one of your projects of first importance. Give your flock just as good attention as you would if they were your only source of income and they will repay well for the extra care and attention. There is nothing more profitable on the farm than sheep, and they deserve the best.

At the close of the meeting when Mr. Clark talked he assured the farmers he was anxious to help them in any way he could because he saw great possibilities for sheep in Garrett county. He also said he saw no reason why Garrett county could not lead the state in the production of sheep and wool, because it had ideal conditions for the raising of sheep.

Ideal Type of Dairy Cattle

GENERAL APPEARANCE: Triple form in cows. Comparing with beef cattle they have less thickness in body, less breadth of back, narrow thighs, a slender neck and more muscular character in general. Males notably narrow at withers and more divided between hind quarters; females rather sharp over withers and full and heavy behind, with udder of ample proportions. Rather long, deep ribbed, muscular, not fleshy body and shortness of leg is notable in the high class male. Fleshiness with either sex is distinctly objectionable, unless with young animals not yet in location.

HEAD: should be lean, broad of muzzle, large of nostril, moderately short and broad of nose, with some dish to face. Prominent, clear, calm eyes, wide apart beneath a broad, full forehead. Cheeks deep and lower jaw strong. Ears fine, medium sized, thin and pointed, must be neatly placed and covered with fine hair on the outside, with longer hair at tip and edges. If there are horns, they must show quality and not be coarse and shelly. Pool should be covered with thick layer of fine, long hair, especially in cold weather. Yellow color of inner skin of ear and yellowish, waxy color to horn, are regarded as indicating that a cow will yield milk rich in fat.

NECK: Tends to be long and muscular. Especially strong with the bull and heavily muscled, and usually has a prominent arch. With the cow it is thin and long. Lower part of neck has more or less dewlap, this being a thin edge of skin extending from the brisket upward. A deep neck with much dewlap, fullness at the throat, or a short, thick neck show lack of quality and type and are objectionable.

SHOULDERS: Should incline at a good angle well into the back, lying fairly close together and forming rather refined, narrow and sharp withers. With the males, greater breadth of wither is desired. Shoulders are usually somewhat prominent but should not be heavy or meaty.

BREAST: Not so wide as in the beef; brisket narrow and sharper and not carried quite so far forward.

CHEST: Does not show great thickness, but should be amply deep with reasonable spring of rib. Crops are usually somewhat deficient in dairy cattle but at this point the ribs should have a fair arch from the back, showing ample chest room below. Front flanks well filled out showing good constitution and the ample chest capacity.

FRONT LEGS: Straight from side and front (No crookedness at keen or wide turning in or out of toes.) Knees close together show narrow chest, and lack of constitution.

BACK: Often shows a droop from withers to hip line. A strong back, well sustained, with but little depression, if at all, is much to be preferred. A large back bone may indicate a large spinal cord and strong nervous temperment. A strong, level, broad loin and fair width of back throughout are necessary.

RIBS: Sufficiently long and arched to provide a capacious body. Flat and short ribs go with poor feeders and defective constitutions.

HIPS: Tend to be prominent in male and females. Hip points in male should be neat and moderately close, not wide, while those of the female may be more widespread and prominent.

RUMP: Long, wide and level. Backbone prominent. Fat rump is objectionable.

THIGH: Muscular rather than fat. Long, thin back edge and curve on inside. Thick thigh and deep twist are unfavorable to large udder development.

HOCKS: Muscular, clean and thin. Should point directly back with ample space between.

LEGS: From hock down should stand square. Toes pointing as nearly straight as possible. Shank bones should be smooth and short, showing quality and refinement of bone.

TAIL: Proper length (fleshy part to hock.) Brush to 2 or 3 inches from feet. Tail head level.

UDDER: Most important part. Moderately thick, filling up well between the thigh, extending high up behind and well along the belly. Teats 3 or 4 inches long on same level and enough apart to be comfortably grasped in the hands. Udder soft and pliable, showing much shrinkage when milked out. Hind part should show much elasticity, with many folds of skin. A mellow, soft, skin and fine coat of hair should cover entire udder. Common defects: small, poor fronts with teats elevated or close to hind ones; small teats; meaty udder; small udders. Large cows have larger udders.

MILK VEINS: Tortuous, with large "milk wells." Usually extend about half way to fore legs. Small veins and immature teats ("rudimentaries") found in front of and on each side of the scrotum, (1) said to indicate milking qualities; (2) said to indicate placing of teats and formation of fore udder on offspring.

ESCUTCHEON: Back of thighs or between them. Line of hair turning to oneside or upward ("milk minor").

QUALITY: Shown in character of skin and hair, size of horn, ear and hone, and general proportions. Skin should be mellow and pliable, thin, with short hair. Also yellow, oily secretion, conspicuous at ears, between thighs, about udder and scrotum, and at end of tail.

The Democratic Political Tide.

Practical politicians have always been inclined to look askance upon the prospects for a presidential nomination of the candidate who seemed to be first in the field with the most votes. Usually a President desirous of succeeding himself can accomplish his own renomination despite the eleventh hour rally of opponents. But the history of the political strategy of parties, when out of office, will almost invariably show that the candidate who a year before the nominating convention seemed to have the nomination in his hands has but seldom won the coveted prize.

A few weeks ago it seemed that the brilliant and efficient Governor of New York was likely to get the next Democratic nomination almost by default. Reports came from all parts of the country of leading Democrats declaring their support of his ambitions. There was apparently no individual upon whom his opponents could unite. Being himself profoundly wet, he had the great advantage of the unequaled genius for publicity possessed by those who are desirous of bringing the liquor power back into American politics and who are clamorous in urging his claims. It seemed for a time as though wet sentiment were going to carry "Al" Smith to the goal of his ambitions, or that he, with a notable record of public service back of him, might be strong enough to carry the handicap of opposition to the Nation's policy on prohibition.

But it is quite apparent that the inevitable reaction has come. It began when two of the distinguished members of the Wilson Administration who had been quoted as favoring Smith publicly disavowed any such attitude. Former Secretary Daniels thinks "that the Democratic Party would make a serious mistake if we should nominate a wet man for President." Senator Carter Glass expresses a similar opinion, while Governor Byrd of Virginia requests that he, too, be set right in the public eye as one who was misquoted in support of the wet Governor of New York. Senator Caraway of Arkansas declares that southern Democrats stand 50 to 1 in their opposition to Governor Smith, and a very sagacious observer, not a politician, C. W. Barron, of Boston, returning from the South, declares that North Carolina would go Republican should Smith be nominated. The redouhtable "Tom" Love of Texas, taking issue with former Postmaster-General Burleson, says his state is for Mr. McAdoo. Distinguished Democrats from Indiana and Ohio have declared that neither of those states would cast 75 per cent of its normal Democratic vote were a wet champion put forward.

VACATION.

Looks like summer's here again for sure. In lakes and rivers fish are biting; summer resorts are opening; roads invite the motorist; the north woods beckon; the mountains bid you come. It's time to plan vacations!

How long since you had one? Are you sick of four walls and dishes, office and trade, business and buildings? Be ready to go when the two weeks armistice is declared. Find out how a man three states away plants corn, regulates traffic, catches trout. Find out that there's a lot of good people and true in the world; that there's lots to learn, to see, to enjoy. Take a vacation this year!

The money problem? Don't worry about that too much. You'll spoil the fun. Plenty of time in the next two or three months to build up a healthy vacation fund. $5 or $10 a week saved with Garrett National will do it. But begin now.

Come in and start today. It only takes a minute—but how that minute will repay you!

We are having quite an epidemic of measles.

Our roads have been almost impassable all Spring.

Misses Melvin and Cherrington, teachers at North Glade and Meadow Mountain schools, have had a fine time lately visiting Swanton, Oakland, Davis, Cumberland and Baltimore.

Misses Edna and Pearl Custer have resigned from the teaching force of Gerrett county, having spent several years successfully in that profession.

Senator Naylor's action in preventing another $100,000 bonded indebtedness being saddled on us, we think is approved by tax payers generally; as our tax rate is already soaring.

C. C. Mason is moving to Cumberland. He will be missed here.

Miss Elizabeth Beckman having graduated at Catherman School, has a nice position in Cumberland now.

I., having reached that harbor recently from Cuba following the winter maneuvers, arrived at his home here Monday, having been furloughed following the death of his father, the late Charles C. Cross, an account of whose funeral was printed in last week's Republican.

E. E. Cuppett, of Terra Alta, was a business visitor here during the past week. For the past eighteen months Mr. Cuppett has been compelled to use crutches because of an injury to his foot that resulted from a fall. He still experiences a great deal of pain and trouble from the injured foot and although he has consulted a specialist a number of times he has been given very little relief.—Kingwood Argus.

The "National Limited," the all-Pullman train of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad between Washington, Cincinnati and Saint Louis, and which passes through Oakland, marked Tuesday its second birthday anniversary. During the two years this train has traveled 1,299,400 miles, being on time at Saint Louis 715 times and at Washington 716 times out of 730 trips each way, or an "on time" record of 97 per cent for two years.

The season of tree planting is at hand. Arbor day is being celebrated in the various states of the country. For the past few years things agricultural have been a little below par, but this is no reason why our tree life should be neglected. Volumes have been writtten ahout the importance of tree culture to the nation from every standpoint, and it would seem that there is little left to he said. But be that as it may, we ean all take time, during this season of the year to plant at least one tree. Try it and watch the tree grow. It will add to your interest in life. This is the time of year. Show your confidence in the future and your love of country hy planting a tree this year.

Mr. J. G. Mealy, a former resident of Oakland, now of Baltimore, was in town last Friday.

Miss Norine Ault is attending the "Apple Blossom Festival" in Winchester, Va., this week.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, a corporation, vs. The Advance Development Company, a corporation; John Crosby Brydon and Nell H. Brydon, his wife; William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, and Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife.

No. 2743 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to have a decree passed declaring void, vacating and annulling two deeds.

The Bill alleges that on or about the 6th day of February, 1922, the plaintiff, The First National Bank of Cumberland, Maryland, discounted a note of the defendant Louis B. Brydon, in the sum of Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars and that ever since said time and at the present time the said indebtedness with interest thereon is an outstanding and subsisting indebtedness due the plaintiff; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon was the owner of a one-third undivided interest in land in Garrett county, Maryland, containing about forty seven acres, which was conveyed to the said Louis B. Brydon, John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon by deed of Susan V. Brydon and husband, dated the 5th day of September, 1896, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett county in Liber E. Z. T. No. 30, folio 477; that at said time the said Louis B. Brydon had out of his own moneys and property advanced and paid to the said John Crosby Brydon and William Schley Brydon an amount of money, equal to and in excess of their value and ownership in the aforesaid property, and in order to secure the same to the defendant, Louis B. Brydon, the said John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, without consideration, except said indebtedness, did on June 1, 1926, execute a deed to The Advance Development Company, a corporation, of all of their right, title and interest in said property, same being recorded among said Land Records in Liber E. Z. T. No. 93, folio 411.

The Bill further alleges that the defendant being all the time indebted to the plaintiff as aforesaid did prior to January 26, 1926, cause to be incorporated The Advance Development Company and did, without any consideration moving from the said The Advance Development Company to the said Louis B. Brydon, execute a deed in connection with his said wife for a pretended consideration of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars of all of his right, title and interest in the aforesaid real estate; that at the time of the execution and delivery of the aforesaid deeds from John Crosby Brydon and wife, and William Schley Brydon and wife, to The Advance Development Company, and the said deed from Louis B. Brydon and wife to The Advance Development Company, the said defendant Louis B. Brydon was indebted as aforesaid to the plaintiff, and that at the time of the making of both of said deeds, he did not have the means of paying said indebtedness out of any other property except the property so conveyed, and at said time he was also largely indebted to other persons and was insolvent; that said conveyances were made to The Advance Development Company for a simulated and pretended consideration, and that the effect of the same was to hinder, delay and defraud your complainant of its just and lawful claim.

The Bill further alleges that the said Louis B. Brydon and Grace B. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Taylor county, West Virginia, and that the said William Schley Brydon and Della E. Brydon, his wife, are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing in Barbour county, West Virginia.

The Bill prays for a decree of Court declaring to be void, vacating and annulling both of the aforesaid deeds to The Advance Development Company, and for other relief.

It is thereupon this 31st day of March, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 6th day of May, 1927, give notice to the said absent and non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 23rd day of May, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Peder Emanuel Baasland vs. Jenny Baasland.

No. 2747 Equity. In the Circuit Court of Garrett county.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii for the plaintiff from the defendant.

1. The Bill states that on the 4th day of September, 1917, he was married to his wife Jenny Baasland, nee Jenny Hansen, at Little Falls, N. Y., and lived with her as man and wife until the latter part of October, 1917.

2. That although the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant, on or about the latter part of October, 1917, without just cause, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and sueh abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years, and is deliberate and final and beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation.

The Bill then states that the plaintiff has resided in the State of Maryland for more than two years, and that the defendant is a non-resident of this State.

The Bill further states that no children were born to the parties as a result of said marriage.

The Bill then prays for a decree of divoree a vinculo matrimonii, for general relief and for order of publication against the defendant.

It is thereupon this 18th day of April, 1927, by the Circuit Court of Garrett county, in Equity, ordered, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 20th day of May, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 5th day of June, 1927, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Appearance

Only in cars much higher in price will you find such smartness of line, such beauty of design and such elegance of appointment as in the new Chevrolet! Compare its appearance with that of any car at anywhere near Chevrolet's low prices—and then you will know why it has everywhere been acclaimed as the Most Beautiful in Chevrolet history!

New Fisher Bodies, beautifully beaded and paneled; Fine nickeled hardware; Smart new Duco Colors; Full-crown, one-piece fenders; Bullet-type headlamps; Higher, more massive radiator; Cowl Lamps; "Fish-tail" modeling of rear decks on 2-passenger models.

Performance

The performance of the new Chevrolet is literally amazing. Incredible smoothness at every speed—flashing acceleration that is a delight—effortless shifting of gears—finger-tip steering—remarkable ease of parking. One ride at the wheel, and you will understand why the new Chevrolet has been the greatest sensation of America's greatest industry!

Valve-in-head motor; Three-point Motor Suspension; Strong and sturdier frame; Single-plate disc-clutch; Long, semi-elliptic springs; Full size 17-inch steering wheel; Balloon tires; Deeply upholstered cushions; Semi-reversible steering gear; AC Air Cleaner; AC Oil Filter.

Price

Comparison of delivered prices reveals Chevrolet's value supremacy. Delivered prices are f.o.b. prices plus charges for handling financing, etc. The financing charges of General Motors Acceptance Corporation are the lowest available. Handling charges are in proportion. Thus, Chevrolet delivered prices are even more amazing than the f.o.b. prices.

The re-opening services of the U. B. church were held here on Sunday morning and evening. The church was filled to capacity at both services. The male quartet of Crellin rendered several selections. Mrs. L. Knotts, of Crellin, and Rev. E. C. Cuppett sang two duets. The Crellin orchestra entertained the congregation. Rev. F. G. Radabaugh, superintendent of East district preached both sermons. This was one of the greatest days in the history of the church. The Board of Trustees report that they went away "over the top" financially.

A message was received here conveying the sad intelligence of the death of Mrs. B. F. Ryan, a former resident of this village. Mrs. Ryan was a loyal member of the U. B. church, and an ardent worker.

Mr. C. A. Combs, the oldest and most highly respected citizen of Loch Lynn, died today, Tuesday, at 1 p. m. Mr. Combs was in his eightieth year and had been ill for the past two years, but was seriously ill only since Sunday. Previous to that time he was able to be up about the house. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah A. Combs; one daughter, Mrs. L. B. Crane, of Buckhannon, who was with him when he expired, and by two sons, Walter A., who resides here, and William A., who is a patient in the hospital at Sykesville, Md. The family has the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

DIED.

MRS. JENNIE WHITE.

Saturday afternoon at the M. E. church funeral services were held for Mrs. Jennie White, whose death occurred last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jackson. Rev. F. S. Bishop was in charge. Interment was made in the old family cemetery at Pleasant Dale. Mrs. White was 72 years of age and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Two sons, Elmer, of Louisville, and McKinley, of Cleveland, survive. A daughter died several years ago. Her funeral was attended by a brother, Mr. Geo. D., White, and a sister, Miss Bertha White, of Oakland.—Kingwood Argus.

MARRIED.

Miller-Brown.—Mrs. Izetta Jewel Brown, widow of former Representative William G. Brown, Jr., of West Virginia, was married at noon Saturday to Dean Hugh Miller, of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in the walled garden at 3,300 Q street, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dodd, close friends of the bride. The Rev. Dr. Charles Wood of the Church of the Covenant performed the ceremony.

The 100 or more guests stood in the garden or on the large veranda at the south of the house. A string orchestra played during the assembling of the company, and Miss Charlotte Harriman sang two songs to the orchestral accompaniment.

Just before noon Dr. Wood and Dean Miller entered the garden and took their places at the south side of a lily pond, which was enclosed by broad white ribbons held by floral posts. Mrs. Brown entered the garden to the wedding march from Lohengrin, attended only by her 9-year-old daughter, Miss June Brown.

Both wore yellow gowns, the mother in Brussels lace with a long train and the daughter in tulle. The bride's bouquet was of yellow roses and lilies of the valley. She wore an antique bracelet of topaz, set in dull gold, and a diamond-studded chain with a large oblong pendant of topaz.

After the ceremony Dr. Miller and his bride walked around the lily pond and returned to the house, where they received congratulations in the drawing room. Here the floral decorations carried out the topaz idea, topaz being the bride's birthstone.

The wedding breakfast was served in the dining room and on the veranda and was concluded with the cutting of a huge cake, topped by a miniature in sugar of the quaint doorway of the Dodd house.

Among those at the wedding were the sons of the bridegroom, Francis and Donald Miller, who came from Princeton University for the wedding; his brothers, Gardiner, Lucius and James Miller, all of New York, and their sister, Miss Helen Clarkson Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Belch, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Leshure, of Philadelphia, and President Richmond of Union College, and Mrs. Richmond were also present.

Dean and Mrs. Miller will be at home at Schenectady in May, and later will go to the bride's estate in West Virginia.

Mrs. Miller has had a successful stage career that began at the age of 16. She is a sister of Mrs. D. G. Godwin, wife of Lieut. Commander Godwin, U. S. N. She has been identified with Washington from her childhood. During the nine years of her widowhood she took an active part in politics. She made the seconding speech in the nomination of John W. Davis at Madison Square Garden in 1924.

Jackie Coogan Aids Teachers In Promoting First Aid Knowledge

During the entire week of April 25th, Jackie Coogan will visit the public schools in our city—by proxy. The most popular boy in America has accepted the appointment of Commander-in-Chief of the well-known Junior Legion—an organization devoted to promoting First Aid knowledge among boys and girls—in the hope that every boy and girl in the country will become enrolled as an active member.

There are now over 700,000 members in the Junior Legion, of which Jackie Coogan is now the honorary commander. And the help of these members in the cause of First Aid, has proved invaluable during the past year.

But this year Bauer & Black, sponsors of the Legion, have gone even a step further by actually going into the public schools of the country with authoritative First Aid education. An intensive training of First Aid methods will be given during the special First Aid week.

Each teacher will receive a complete demonstration kit which contains all the material necessary in rendering efficient First Aid service. And to each pupil will be given a valuable text book on First Aid, prepared by Mr. Angelo Patri, principal of the famous Fordham Grade school, of New York City.

Health Officers and educational experts are giving their whole-hearted cooperation to this First Aid Week, feeling that it is one of the most essential and valuable movements ever launched in the direction of public health.

For the complete Junior's course in First Aid, prepared for members of the Junior First Aid Legion, and enrollment in the Junior First Aid Legion placed through the druggist gives any boy or girl a compact First Aid kit and a very comprehensive course of instruction in the basic First Aid things to do when accident strikes.

O. H. S. NEWS.

Dear Parents and Friends of O. H. S.:

Spring has come and with it arrives the season of joyous, happy, good school times. Baseball time! Parties! Hikes! All file in the order of the day.

A few new regulations have been made, however, in regard to the O. H. S. after school frolics. No night parties OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL are to be sanctioned by school authorities! Undergraduate parties held in the High School Auditorium are to close not later than 11:30 p. m. This means that all pupils should be at home on such occasions not later than twelve o'clock.

Patrons of the school are to be invited to all school parties to act as chaperons.

We hope that our new regulations meet the approval of our O. H. S. Patrons.

Very sincerely yours,
KATHARINE T. CONLEY,
Principal.

NOTICE TO THE FARMERS

It is rumored and being told by certain representatives of an International dealer close to Garrett Co., and in the territory of Oakland Farm Supply Co. of Oakland, Md., that Moline Repairs cannot be gotten for Moline machinery. We offer a reward of $25 to the party that brings any part of Moline machinery that has been manufactured by the Moline Co. since it was a manufacturing concern that we fail to get any piece of repair for any implement made by them. We also ask that this lying propaganda be not considered by any person in Garrett Co., or who has good reasoning within their power, to realize that the story being told is a base lie. We ask proof for any one stating this unreasonable tale of woe.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

This is to give notice to the taxpayers of Garrett county that the annual levy for 1927 has been made and published, and to call their attention to the following abstract of Section 45 Chapter 56, Acts of 1890, relating to the discount to be allowed and interest to be charged on all tax bills:

"All county taxes shall be due and payable on the first day of September next succeeding the date of the levy thereof, and on all county taxes paid on or before the first day of September a discount of 3 per cent will be allowed, and after the first day of January all county taxes shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum until paid. The treasurer shall take the discount from and charge the interest on the tax bill for the county purposes regularly in the manner aforesaid, and shall note the same upon the books and upon the receipts given on the taxes paid. But the discount shall not be allowed unless the whole amount of state and county taxes are paid when the same is made."

Under the provisions of Section 48 of Chapter 630 of the Acts of 1916, all the state taxes shall be due and payable on and after the first day of July in the year in which the same are levied, and if not paid on or before the first day of September of said year, shall bear interest from said date at the rate of six per cent per annum. No discount is allowed on state taxes.

HIGHER GAS RATES ASKED BY COMPANY

Cumberland And Allegany Gas Company Files New Schedule With P. S. C..

A substantial increase in the rates for natural gas furnished for domestic use in this section by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company is sought by the company, which filed a new schedule of rates with the Public Service Commission in Baltimore on Friday. The new rates, if granted by the commission, will be effective May 29.

The increase sought by the company follows the fixing of a $6,800,000 valuation for its property by the commission last week. Approximately 13,000 domestic consumers in Cumberland and section would be affected by the new rates. The industrial rate schedule will remain the same.

With the filing of the proposed schedule of rates, the company announced that a new flat rate for each 1,000 cubic feet of gas would be used instead of the "sliding scale rate" now in effect. On the basis that the average consumer uses 9,000 cubic feet of gas each month, it is estimated that the monthly charge would be $6.93 instead of the present figure of $5.68 on the same basis.

The City of Cumbreland opposed efforts of the company to increase its rates two years ago and the valuation of the company was asked by Mayor Thomas W. Koon to determine whether or not the company was justified in making the increase.

Whether the rates will be approved by the commission depends on the action of patrons of the utility company. It is probable that the commission will order a hearing to determine whether the increased rates are justified. Consumers in all sections of Western Maryland are opposed to the increase and an active campaign against the granting of the new rates is anticipated.

City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, of Cumberland, declared that the city had gone as far as it could to forestall any increase, but it may go to the Public Service Commission to ask what the past income of the gas company has been, and what it now should be.

DIED.

MRS. F. S. IRWIN

Mrs. Frances Susan Irwin was born February 17, 1846, near Grantsville, Md. She was the daughter of the late Joseph Slabaugh. In 1858 she removed with her parents to Gortner where she grew to womanhood. She was married to Mr. Wm. Irwin, who died about 27 years ago.

She is survived by one son, John D., of Pittsburgh. Mary, wife of J. H. Sanders, died a few years ago and Gertrude and Readie died in infancy. She is also survived by one brother, Mr. Joel Slabaugh, of Springs, Pa., who is now in his 89th year, and is the last survivor of a family of 15 children. Besides 13 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren, she is survived by a host of relatives.

Mrs. Irwin was stricken wth paralysis about ten days ago at her home at Mt. Lake Park. Her son and his wife from Pittsburgh were summoned and were with her when she passed away.

Funeral services were conducted at the Gortner Union church on Wednesday by Rev. R. Aspinall, of Mt. Lake Park.

C. A. COMBS.

Mr. Charles Albert Combs was born December 10, 1847, at Westernport, Md., and died April 26th, 1927, aged 80 years, 3 months and 16 days, at his home in Loch Lynn.

More than fifty years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah A. Harriss, who survives him. To this union were born three children, William C., Mrs. L. B. Crane, of Buckhannon, and Walter A., who resides here.

The funeral took place from his late home on Thursday afternoon, his pastor, Rev. F. L. Fultz, officiating.

The high esteem in which Mr. Combs was held in the community was shown by the large number of friends who attended the funeral, it being one of the largest ever held here.

The pallbearers were Mr. B. F. Shaffer, Mr. H. M. Weeks, Mr. H. V. Leighton, Mr. B. L. Hardesty, Mr. J. Ferguson, and Mr. A. A. Callis. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery by the side of his mother and father, who died many years ago.

MR. JOHN W. M'CULLOUGH SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER

Appointed By Governor Ritchie To Succeed Mr. Robert L. Wilson

Mr. John W. McCullough, former State Senator from Garrett county, and a resident of Friendsville, was made a member of the County Board of Education by the appointment made by Governor Albert C. Ritchie on Tuesday.

Mr. McCullough's appointment is for six years and he succeeds Mr. Robert L. Wilson, whose term expired after having been a member of the board druing the past five years.

Rev. Aspinall Delivers Striking Address Before Brotherhood

St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood met in regular session Tuesday evening and were addressed by Rev. Rowland Aspinall, pastor of the Mt. Lake Park M. E. church, on the subject of prohibition.

Rev. Aspinall presented some facts concerning the success of prohibition which were amazing and well received by the large number present. He very strikingly pointed out the financial growth of the country since the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, and the comparatively low cost of the enforcement of this comparatively new reform.

Miss Fike, of near Gortner, favored the Brotherhood with a reading. Guy O. Yutzy arranged the program and presided.

COMMITTEE.

Civic Club Meeting

The first spring meeting of the Oakland Civic Club was held Tuesday afternoon in the Municipal Building, with the newly elected president, Miss Tecla Fundenburg, presiding.

The most important discussion of the afternoon was that of the Orthopedic Clinic—which is being sponsored by the club, and which will be held in Oakland in the very near future.

Miss Anne Sloan, of Lonaconing, who has done a great amount of this work for the crippled children thruout Allegany county, will speak at the Municipal Building on Tuesday, May 17th, at 3 o'clock, at which time she will tell us of the importance of such a clinic and how our county can be greatly benefitted by such a one.

Members of all organizations of the town and county as well as the general public are cordially invited and urged to be present.

WM. F. BROENING GETS BIG MAJORITY OVER CORRAN

Former Mayor of Baltimore Will Succeed Mayor Jackson For Four Year Term

Baltimore, May 3,—Running far ahead of his slate, former Mayor William F. Broening, Republican, today defeated William Curran, Democratic candidate, to succeed Howard W. Jackson as mayor for a four-year term, beginning May 18th.

Unoficial returns from 577 out of 621 precincts in the city gave Broening a majority of 12,229. The vote was:

Broening, 74,180.
Curran, 61,951.

While Broening appeared likely to roll up a majority of 15,000, his Republican running mates for comptroller and president of the city council were far behind the Democratic incumbents, who were re-elected. Likewise all Democratic candidates for the city council with a few exceptions were assured of election.

Curran Concedes Defeat.

Mr. Curran concedes his defeat late in the night as Broening's lead, picked up on the first precincts, rolled higher and higher. Curran's defeat, in view of the showing of the other Democrats, was considered a personal cut. The religious affiliations of Mr. Curran also were introduced during the closing days of the campaign. The statement that "the fight was to be made on Mr. Curran because he is a Catholic," attributed to Eugene Frederick, chairman of the Republican publicity committee, was repudiated by Mr. Frederick as an "infamous lie." An affidavit declaring that Mr. Frederick had made that statement was made, however, by Harry H. Goldberg, a Jew, who said that for this reason he remained away from another Republican rally.

Religion Specified On Handbill.

"Handbills circulated at a Republican meeting bore, besides the candidate's name and political faith, the designation "Protestant" or "Catholic" with the latter word in capital letters. Regarding these, Mr. Frederick said, "no one connected with the Republican campaign committee authorized the distribution of such ballots."

"Considerable newspaper space devoted to this angle of the case weighed heavily upon Mr. Curran in the opinion of close followers of local politics.

Ran Ahead Of Ticket.

Broening ran far ahead of his ticket, R. Walter Graham, Democrat, leading the Republican candidate Peter E. Tome by 8,401 votes for comptroller.

Howard Bryant, seeking re-election as president of the city council, also led his Republican opponent, J. Archer Bell, by 3,199 votes from the same number of precincts.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Those having a perfect school attendance record for the month of April were: Delton Elsey, Carlton Sembower and Elsie Gnegy. Those having a perfect record last month were Delton Elsey and Wellington Welch.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Durst and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Riley.

Mr. Lester Birkheimer left this vicinity Sunday for Fairmont, where he will be employed in dairy work.

We are sorry to note that Mr. W. S. Friend is very ill, and we are hoping for a speedy recovery.

There will be the regular meeting of the Pleasant Valley Grange Thursday evening, May 5th, at 7:30 o'clock, when a class will be initiated in the first and second degree. Every Granger is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Liller and family spent Sunday at the home of Mr. E. O. Liller.

Sunday guests at the Sembower home were, Miss Erma Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lee, and Mr. Oscar Kisner.

Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Elsey and son, Delton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Welch.

The Swanton 4-H Club will hold a Mother's Day entertainment nt the Swanton school on Saturday night, May 7th, beginning at 7:30. Admission for children under 14 years, 5 cents and for adults, 10 cents. After the entertainment there will be refreshments for sale.

COMMITTEE.

K. OF P. BANQUET IS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

Two Hundred Eighty Persons In Attendance—Largest Banquet Held Here

The most brilliant affair yet to be held by Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, and probably the largest banquet ever held in Oakland was served last Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the Lodge rooms.

Two hundred eighty-five persons attended the affair and the address of the evening was made by Attorney A. T. Matthews, who again proved himself a splendid after-dinner speaker.

The good spirit and fellowship was so pronounced that those present felt that it had been a good old-time community dinner.

Mr. W. W. Dawson acquitted himself with his usual ability and grace as toastmaster for the occasion, and his humorous remarks throughout the evening lent much in making the affair so successful.

The entertainment committee was highly commended for their endeavors, which evideneed much time and work in the preparation.

A feature of the evening was a duet by Messrs. Jesse J. Ashby and Reeves Blanford, and a solo by Mr. Arthur Martini, of Mt. Lake Park. A number of the favorite old-time songs were heartily sung by everybody in attendance.

COUNTY AGENT ASKS FOR COOPERATION IN TOUR

Must Know Number Of Tourists Not Later Than Monday

As the time is drawing near for the Agricultural Tour for Garrett county farmers, future farmers and anyone else interested in the proposition, County Agent McGlone requests that he be informed by Monday, May 9, by those who expect to take advantage of the same and make the trip as outlined.

The tour will be conducted on schedule, and will start at 7 o'clock a. m., on Thursday, May 12, at Oakland and the return trip will be made to Oakland on Sunday, May 15.

Included in the schedule are 16 cities and towns to be visited by the tourists, and three states will be touched. The most distant points from Oakland as the schedule now stands is the U. S. Government farms at Arlington, Va. Other cities of interest to be visited include Hagerstown, Frederick, New Market, Va., Ridgevile, Montgomery county, Md., College Park, Washington, Winchester, Va., and Romney, West Va.

It is said that meals for the entire trip will cost but $4.50, and the cost of transportation depends upon the number of tourists from the county, and the kind of conveyances that will be used. This matter can only be determined after the County Agent is informed of all who expect to make the trip.

It is said that the trip affords vast educational opportunities for those who avail themselves of the advantages offered.

County tourists can board the conveyance along the State and National highways between Oakland, Accident, Grantsville and Frostburg.

West Va. State Police Killed Near Masontown

Blake Michael, aged 29 years, son of Dr. and Mrs. Michael, Belington, West Va., and a West Virginia State Policeman, was instantly killed last Sunday afternoon near Masontown, West Va., when he drove his motorcycle into a telephone pole crushing his skull.

The side parking rack on his machine had fallen from its hanger and was dragging on the road, and it is generally supposed that in attempting to replace the rack he drove from the road into the pole.

Officer Michael, besides his parents, is survived hy his widow and a son four years of age.

P.-T. A. At Mt. Lake Park Will Present Play

A play entitled, "The Sewing Circle Meets at Mrs. Martin's House," will be given by the Parent-Teacher Association of Mt. Lake Park, at the Amusement Hall on Thursday, May 12th at 8 p. m., as a benefit for the school. Admission will be 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

TWO SECTIONS HIGHWAY WILL BE BUILT THIS YEAR

Gnegy Church Road and a Section on Northwestern Turnpike Selected

In today's Republican the State Roads Commission gives notice that on May 10th, at 12 M., that body will receive and publicly open bids for the building of two sections of highway in Garrett county, as follows:

Garrett County. Cont. G-31. One section of State Highway from Red House to the West Virginia Line near Gnegy Church, a distance of 2.98 miles. (Concrete.)

Garrett County. Cont. G-35. One section of State Highway along the North-Western Turnpike from Red House eastward, a distance of 1.75 miles. (Concrete).

With the completion of the Gnegy-Church-Thomas Road, beginning at the end of the Oakland-Red House road at Red House, the people of Maryland and also of West Virginia, who reside along this highway will have an improved road over which to travel from the heart of West Virginia on through Oakland to the National Highway at Keyser Ridge.

The additional section of road to be built on the route of the North-Western Pike from Red House eastward, will be 1.75 miles in length and will carry this improved highway east of the foot of the Great Backbone Mountain toward Gorman, at which point the West Virginia State line begins. The road from Gorman eastward has been practically completed as far as Winchester, Va. Last year the Maryland State Roads Commissien gave a contract for the building of two miles of concrete road on this route, which was not completed, however, on account of weather conditions. Last year's contract begins at the Youghiogheny River and goes eastward to the Red House.

Maryland Theatre Made More More Attractive By New Stage Setting

Manager Bernard I. Gonder, of the Maryland Theatre surprised a large audience of picture fans on Monday evening when they entered the theatre and were confronted by a striking new stage setting.

A sliding curtain replaces the old roll curtain, nnd a black slide and background absorbs the reflection, thus making the projected picture perfectly clear. The screen is of gold fibre.

COUNTY QUOTA FOR FLOOD RELIEF HAS BEEN DOUBLED

Contributions Can Be Made At Any Bank Or To Red Cross Treasurer

At least $10,000,000 will be needed to care for the refugees in the flood area along the Mississippi River and its tributaries, and accordingly the quota for Garrett county has been increased from $1,000 to $2,000.

Contributions can be made to any of the banks of the county or to Mrs. J. C. Renninger, treasurer of the Local Chapter American Red Cross. All contributions will be received by Mrs. Renninger, who will forward the money to headquarters at Washington.

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, chairman of the local chapter was in receipt of the following telegrams which are self explanatory:

Washington, D. C. April 28.
Mrs. E. Z. Tower, Chairman Garrett Co. Chapter American Red Cross, Oakland.

Mississippi flood situation growing more serious every hour. Red Cross now giving emergency care to one hundred and fifty thousand flood refugees in fourty-four concentration camps. This number growing daily. Red Cross also supervising reseue work of thousands as each new levee breaks flooding some fresh town or city. All present indications are that this is the nation's greatest disaster. Five millions dollars minimum required for adequate relief. Strong possibility this figure will have to be increased later. Urge immediate response your Chapter, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion, Veterans Foreign Wars, all pledge assistanee by local bodies to Red Cross Chapter campaigns. Send money direct to Washington headquarters. Wire me results of your campaign.

J. ARTHUR JEFFERS,

PETER AND THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-10; 21:15-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Forgives Peter.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Forgives and Restores Peter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Risen Lord Appears to Peter.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fellowship With the Risen Lord.

I. Peter and John at the Empty Tomb (John 20:1-10).

John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ or attempt a proof other than that the tomb was empty and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested Himself to the disciples after the tomb had been found empty.

1. How they came to know (vv. 1, 2).

The information was brought by Mary Magdalene out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9, Luke 8:2). Prompted by love for Him she went early to the tomb, "while it was yet dark," "she was last at the cross and first at the grave, she stayed longest there and was soonest here." Her love for Jesus was genuine, though her knowledge of His resurrection was defective. She could not rest till she had done her utmost for Him because she realized that great good had come to her from His hands. The reason we work so little for the Lord is that we have such a dim sense of His saving grace.

2. Their investigation (vv. 3-10).

The news of the empty tomb, which Mary brought with breathless haste, so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. Upon arrival at the tomb John gazed upon it, but Peter entered it. John, with holy reverence, hesitates. Peter, with impulsiveness, enters the tomb at once. Their respective actions are not to be explained on the basis of degrees of love for the Lord, but to temperament. The investigation convinced them. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher, the arrangement of the grave-clothes all convinced them that it had not been done by an enemy.

II. The Charge of the Risen Lord to Peter (John 21:15-17).

Jesus put to Peter the thrice repeated question, "Lovest thou me?" Then He gave him a commission. This shows that supreme love to Christ is the one essential qualification for serving Him. Love is the spring from which all Christian activity flows. He asked, also, to show that there are three classes in the church which demand care and attention. These three classes need special care and food.

1. Feed my lambs. (v. 15.)

This first charge relates to those who are beginning the Christian life—the babes in Christ. The word "feed" means more than instruction. It means in addition to instruction that proper surroundings, influences and examples should be provided. As a Christian minister, Peter was to be an example, provide the proper surroundings and do the proper teaching for the young Christians, those just beginning the Christian life.

2. Tend my sheep (v. 16).

This charge shows a different class. It means to shepherd the sheep. It has application to the mature class of Christians. The duty enjoined therefore is to care for those who have passed out of their childhood into maturity. He must feed the sheep, give them proper instruction, guide them, lead them and discipline them. For this ministry the essential qualification is love.

3. Feed my sheep (v. 17).

The implication here is that Peter was charged with the responsibility of caring for aged Christians. The word "feed" is much the same as in the first case. It means that for the aged Christians the instruction ought to be such as will be suited to their needs. This needs special emphasis today because much attention is given to the young people, but in many instances the old people are neglected.

III. Follow Me (vv. 18-23).

In verse 18 is given a clear prophecy concerning Peter's death. It was to be by crucifixion. Peter once shrank from the cross, but now the Lord holds it up before him. It is not the Lord's death on the cross, but Peter's own. He teaches here that the Christian's death is for the glory of God. Whatever may be before us, even the cruel cross, the Lord's command is to follow Him.

Our Hope

Our hope lies not in the absence of danger, but in the presence of Christ, who is able to control the storm. No church with Christ in it can be wrecked or lost. More of the living Christ, more of His love, of His teaching.—Western Recorder.

Costs Self-Denial

To keep in good grace with one's own self often costs self-denial, but it pays a mighty dividend.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

YOUNG DUNCAN'S ORDEAL

By FLORENCE HENDERSON

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

CLICK!

Hal Duncan woke up from his slumber on the sunny side of a pile of lumber at the sound, rubbed his eyes and stared suspiciously at a spruce appearing young fellow "shooting" him with a camera—and a smile.

"Hey! what are you up to?" challenged the aroused sleeper.

"Oh, I've got a famous story on you and I wanted your picture to make it more interesting," explained Dave Lind. "I'm a reporter for the Star. One of your chums told me about you and piloted me here. I gave him a dollar to do it. I'll give you five to go over what he's told me and add enough to it to make a two-column 'special'—what do you say?"

Hal Duncan looked bored. It was not the first time he had been the subject of pictorial publicity. Hal was unique as a tramp and a good deal of a gentleman. Something of a mystery, too. It seemed that about two years since he had appeared among the hoboes. They made a favorite of him, for many a story was told of his care for poor sick fellows and homeless ones, many a stirring tale of some thrilling exploits in a ramble over half the country; a fire discovered in time to save a whole business block, a knockout of footpads who would have killed a victim but for his interference, the rescue of two little children from a burning building.

Hal shared everything with his fellow unfortunates except his moral nature and his self-respect. He never got down to rags. He was a reformer all through and had made a famous speech in behalf of the poor and oppressed that had got into the papers. But he was dead to the old world, where apparently he must have once led a life of what people call respectability.

Now for a moment he seemed about to resent the proposal of the energetic young newspaper reporter, then with his usual careless self-abandon he shrugged his shoulders resignedly and said:

"All right. I need the money and I guess I can give you good value."

Pathos, adventure, humor—through many unique shades of rare human interest Hal led the interested reporter. The latter regarded the narrator both pityingly and admiringly.

"There's your money," he said, "and you've given me some good stuff. I say, though, it seems a pity to see a man of your intelligence wasting your life like a common tramp. Why, my friend?"

"Call it the 'wanderlust,' disgust with the so-called respectable world!" laughed Hal. "I have found warmer hearts among the wreckage of humanity than I ever knew in society."

The "why" of the reporter, who left Hal, with a cheery "Good luck," sent the latter into a sudden reverie. "Why," indeed! Before his mental vision passed a series of vivid pictures of a small fortune left to him, of being "the best fellow" in his home village.

Then love—his head drooped sorrowfully as he thought of Hazel Green. How he had loved her! how winsome she had been—but dissipation had not then relaxed its awful influence over him. He finally found himself penniless. Pride, remorse tortured him. A man who had money and position became his rival. Hal knew that Hazel loved him, but a better man had come between. Hal left the town desperate and became a homeless wanderer.

With a sudden spurt of resolution he banished the memories that so tormented him and arose to his feet. He placed the five-dollar bill in his pocket. Then he noticed some papers the reporter had thrown aside. They were political campaign documents reciting the views and giving a speech of Rodney Walton, candidate for congressman in the district.

These also Hal thrust into his pocket. He proceeded to a barber shop and thence to a store where he purchased a hat and some collars and a tie. His clothing was not bad and, brisked up, he would scarcely have suggested the tramp to a casual observer.

Long since Hal had recognized the effects of his bad habits and had eliminated that feature of his reckless life. The possession of money made a generous meal at a restaurant a luxury. Then he secured a cheap room at the hotel and slept in a real bed for the first time in months.

There was a fair at Derby, a town sixty miles away at the extreme edge of the district. Hal felt like playing the gentleman while his money lasted. He bought a ticket for that place, the morning newspaper and selected a comfortable seat in the train.

"Hello!" he ejaculated as he opened the sheet—"here's my story."

There it was and next to it was a boom for Mr. Walton, the congressional candidate. And then Hal Duncan smiled broadly. The Star had made a fearful mistake. They had got the picture of Hal over the Walton article. There he posed as the lauded candidate for congress!

The journey was a slow one and Hal was glad to put in his time looking over the campaign literature he had picked up the day previous. A sample speech interested him. Evidently Mr. Walton was reaching for the popular vote. A good many humane sentiments that he enunciated rather feebly were greatly in accordance with Hal's ideas.

"How I would like to set myself loose on that subject in a genuine free and easy way!" ruminated Hal.

When he arrived at Derby he found the fair and a big political meeting the attractions of the day. Posters announced a mammoth mass meeting that evening to boom a certain ticket in which Hal noticed the name of Rodney Walton.

It was late that afternoon, just as Hal came out of a restaurant that a prosperous looking man stopped, stared at him, drew a newspaper from his pocket, glanced at it and then went up to Hal.

"Mr. Walton, surely?" he said. "I wouldn't have known you only for your picture in the paper. Why, you must come at once to headquarters. A speech from you will just about fill out our program."

At once Hal comprehended the situation. A whimsical resolution seized him. He had been mistaken for Mr. Walton. He allowed himself to be introduced to the committee, he was given a royal banquet. Then the speech! Hal Duncan let loose all the eloquence he possessed.

"Why, the crowd just went wild!" enthused a committeeman. "Mr. Walton, you have carried the day for us. We wish to entertain you tomorrow—" but with the morrow Hal had gone.

The masquerader was a good deal surprised when a month later the Star reporter ran across him in another town.

"Been looking for you for a week," declared the latter. "That speech of yours elected Mr. Walton. He wants you—bad."

He wanted this natural orator so badly that when Hal returned with the newspaper man to Wellsville, he engaged him as his secretary forthwith.

Hal Duncan became a changed man. One day he stole away from Wellsville and visited the home of his childhood. It was to find Hazel waiting for him. Yes, true womanly love had disdained all new suitors.

"I knew you would come back," she told Hal, serene in his cherishing arms. "My heart was with you through all the long ordeal that has shown you to be a man among men."

And then there was a wedding and Congressman Walton gave away the beautiful bride.

Information of Value Gleaned by Students

Bona fide gems from examination papers:

"The Saxons were a lazy and glutinous race."

"Wordsworth saw in the French revolution a new error of happiness."

"The Magna Carta occurred in the reign of King John. The barons compelled him to sing it."

"Lack of indiscretion was Stephen's greatest personal enemy."

"Although Henry was not outwardly offended with Cromwell, after he had made him a baronet he sent him to the block for being a nuisance."

"Wolsey was a great, daring and bold warrior. Some of his chief victories were the capture of Quebec, the battle of Waterloo and the battle of Trafalgar square." (Student appears to have made the cardinal a composite of Wolfe and Wellesley, with a dash of Nelson.

After telling of the clash between Henry VIII and the pope, one student concluded: "England was freed from the ecclesiastical jokes of the pope."—Boston Transcript.

His Proper Job

The waiter was busy dusting away imaginary crumbs and seemed disinclined to leave the table, at which the manager of a theatrical touring company was seated.

"Well, what is it? I've given my order; what do you want?" asked the manager, impatiently.

"Beg pardon, sir," began the waiter, with a deferential cough, "but don't you remember me?"

"I can't say that I do."

"I used to sing in one of your companies."

"Oh! What's your name?"

"Poggins."

"Ah, yes, of course, I do remember you."

"I suppose, sir," said the one-time actor, "you are surprised to see me now as a waiter?"

"Not in the least—not in the least," said the manager, acidly.

Nature's Clock

In a lonely glen among the hills bordering Loch Lomond is the most wonderful "clock" in the world. It never goes wrong and never requires winding, for it has no works.

It is the timepiece of an old shepherd, who, by observing the shadows cast by the sun on the neighboring mountain ridges, has been telling the time with amazing accuracy for half a century.

Asked to give the time by his prehistoric timepiece, he pointed out a thin streak of shadow on the hillside. "When the sun strikes yon ridge," he said, "it's three o'clock."

Then, gazing in the direction of the long shadow and pointing to a neighboring peak, he said, "The shadow is a quarter the way from yon peak, so it's about fifteen minutes past three." He was right.

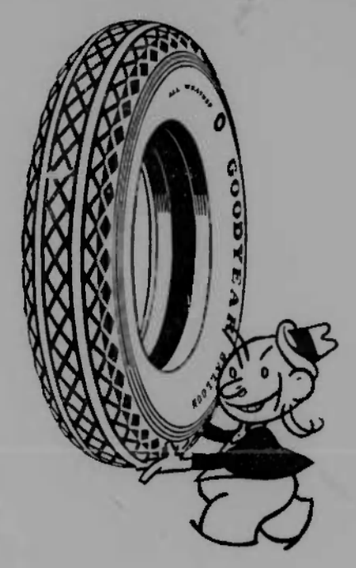
Roger W. Babson Tells Why He Goes To Church.

Roger W. Babson, the great business statistician and advisor, continues to devote his unusual talents to the causes of the church. His sermonette, "Why I go to Church," has been so highly appreciated that it has literally been broadcasted.

Among the statements which arrest attention are:

"The need of the hour is not more factories or materials, not more railroads or steamships, not more armies or more navies, but rather more education based on the teachings of Jesus.

"The prosperity of our country depends upon the motives and the purposes of the people. These motives are directed only in the right course through Religion. In spite of their imperfections, this is why I believe in our churches, and why I am a great optomist in their future.



"We stand at the cross-roads. We must choose between God and mammon. Materialism is undermining our civilization as it has undermined other civilizations. Unless we heed the warning in time and get back to the real fundamentals we must fall even as did the civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome."

"Statistics of every nation indicate that true religion is the power necessary for the development of its resources, and for its successful continuation. The challenge goes out to every man to support his church, to take an active part in the religious life of his community, to live according to the simple prineiples upon which this, the greatest country in the world, was fashioned more than three hundred years ago."

COOLIDGE SITS TIGHT

The man who is criticised for talking too little escapes the grave danger of saying too much.

There's Calvin Coolidge, for illustration.

Just now other Republicans, anxiously nursing Presidential ambitions, want him to say out loud whether he intends to retire or be a candidate for another nomination.

And Calvin doesn't say a word. Just keeps on sawing wood.

That bothers the other fellows. They don't know just what to do. If Coolidge were to say now that he won't run again, all the job-holders would get busy hunting another coat-tail to tie to. At the next session of Congress the President's influence would be nil.

The tight-lipped occupant of the White House, by keeping his own counsel, commands the situation. The jobholders are afraid to desert him, because they would be out of luck if he should later decide to run, for they know he can get the nomination if he wants it. They also know that unless Democrats show more sense than they have shown since they got all messed up in 1920 Coolidge will be elected hands down.

Any Republican President is sure of the Solid South in the nominating convention—for there is a Republican as well as a Democratic Solid South. It is made up of the federal jobholders and their lieutenants of both races, together with some others who are Republicans because they hope to get jobs. Political expediency demands that there be enough Republicans in Southern States to hold the jobs under Republican Presidents.

Coolidge can get most of the delegates from Republican States too, because there are not only the holders of federal jobs, but also those who hold State, county and municipal jobs and want a Presidential candidate who can play them through to victory.

But that isn't the only advantage held by the President who knows how to hold his tongue.

If the Democrats should surprise the country and get together a smashing liberal progressive Jeffersonian platform, with a candidate to match it—if the Republican administration should get into an unpopular mess because of its foreign policy below the Rio Grande or across the Pacific—if things get worse for the farmers and they get mad enough to revolt—if business goes mad and things are in the doldrums—why, then, President Coolidge can take it or leave it alone.

So it's a safe bet that practically all of the delegates to the Republican National Convention of 1928 will have been chosen before there will be an informative peep from the speechless spokesman of the White House.

THE PRESS.

"This growth and power of the press carries with it great obligations. It is axiomatic that a free press can exist only in a free country. One of the first efforts of all kinds of absolutism is to control the press and the schools as the sources of information and education of the people. Where the press is free, as it is in our country under the guaranties of the national and State constitutions, it has a reciprocal duty of its own to perform toward the administration of the government, of giving true reports to the people of the actions of public officials."
—President Coolidge.

President Coolidge said, "It is natural that the press should represent the character of the government under which it lives and of the people which it serves."

This is undeniable, but, as between the two, the press should be far more careful to represent the character and aspirations of the people.

Government can only remain free so long as it reflects the public will, and the press can only contribute to free government by accurately reflecting the public will.

K. A. Bickel, president of the United Press, put his finger on the vital point when he said, during his introduction of Mr. Coolidge, "The newspapers of the United States—indeed, the people of the United States— have been singularly fortunate; for at no time in our history has the press ever been cursed with the handicap of a governmentally-subsidized agency, holding, or endeavoring to hold, by virtue of special powers and privileges, the deadening hand of monopoly over the news-distributing resources of the country. The press has been free largely because the development of its news resources has been free. And because of this free competitive situation the press association of the United States have developed into the strongest and most comprehensive agencies in the world for the fast and accurate distribution of the last obtainable news fact."

Forgotten Veterans

Attention was called by Judge Florence E. Allen, of Ohio, well known as the first woman judge to sit on a state supreme court bench, to the neglect by the public of many war veterans. Judge Allen told of men who were cheered when they left for France, but since have had to beg bread on the streets, and she spoke of many former soldiers whose hearts rankle bitterly with the feeling that justice has not been done them.

The war veterans included all types of men. Most of the soldiers returned with the determination to make good and have done so. Many were disappointed to find their jobs gone when they got back, but those with energy and capacity have usually found something else to do, and have not lost by the war experience.

Some who have tried hard to make good, have encountered difficulties, and in some cases it is difficult to tell whether they were responsible for their troubles or not. Sometimes after a man has to look for work for a considerable time, he seems to lose the capacity of working efficiently. If a man's ill success is due to his own fault, then people finally get tired of doing things for him, even if he was a soldier.

The disabled men should receive the most hearty sympathy and tangible help as well. People should make every possible effort to give them work where they are capable of doing it. They do not ask charity, and they do not expect to be put onto work which they are not up to doing. But if there is a chance that they can make good, they should be given the benefit of that chance.

The American people owe a debt to all these soldiers, and the debt to the disabled men is one that can never be paid. It hardly seems as if the people had commonly realized their full obligation to the veterans. They were asked to offer their lives to the country, and the people should always keep their interests in mind, and give them employment whenever possible.

100 YEARS SOON TO BE NORMAL SPAN OF LIFE

One of the greatest advantages of modern civilization is the way in which the span of human life has been increased, points out Brenda Ueland in an article in this week's Liberty.

"The span of useful life used to be only forty-five years," the writer explains. "Now people are living until seventy in full usefulness and vigor. In the future they will be living until eighty or ninety or a hundred. And the result is that the center point of humanity has shifted from the twenties to near the fifties.

"At the court of Louis XV," the writer continues, "a man's prime was twenty-five. After that—the downward slope. Today a man of twenty-five is one whose father is wondering whether to send him to a law or medical school, or set him at work. Formerly a woman of twenty-two was an old maid; a woman of thirty-five often was a grandmother."

Equipment Is Better Than Ever For C. M. T. Camps

The many new and interesting features planned during the past winter for Citizens' Military Training Camps in the Third Corps Area, have made it necessary for camp commanders to start preparations for the summer encampments earlier than usual, this year.

Trainloads of equipment have been transferred by motor transport from Camp Meade, Maryland, to other points in the area and this is now being put in perfect condition for the citizen-soldiers.

At Fort Eustis, Virginia, approximately 2,000 uniforms are being dyed, in order to insure uniformity in color. This will please former students who have worn the mixed colors, previously issued summer campers. The swimming pool at Eustis is now being provided with new diving platforms and will be completely encircled with a new floor.

At all of the camps baseball diamonds, tennis courts, polo grounds, golf courses, etc., are being put in fit condition for the making of new world's records, which is not at all improbable in view of the large number of college athletes who have applied for admission this year.

At Third Corps Area Headquarters, baseball, basketball, track, tennis and other athletic equipment is now being contracted for.

The daily food allowance for students is 70 cents, which is 20 cents per day above the regular army allowance. Expert dieticians from the Bureau of Home Economics, Department of Agriculture, are cooperating with camp commanders to the end that all meals will be well balanced and contain that savor of home cooking which appeals to every healthy youth. Ten gallons of ice cream per company, each day, is an item planned for the mess tables at Fort Eustis.

B. & O. WORLD'S FAIR IN TRANSPORTATION

Will Be Principal Function of Year In Connection With The Road Centenary

A World's Fair in Transportation, or what is believed will be the largest and most complete out-door historic railroad pageant ever displayed, will be the chief attraction of the Baltimore and Ohio's two-week celebration at Baltimore, September 24 to October 8. This will be the principal function of the year in connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Centenary.

President Coldige is expected to be present on opening day. Everybody is invited. There will be no admission charge.

The Centenary Grounds will be located on the company's property in the Southwestern outskirts of the city at a point called Ilelethorp, close by the railroad and the Baltimore-Washington highway. Work is progressing on the 1,000 acres which will be the site of the exposition. Plans include a loop track over a mile long, nearly two miles of other track and a grandstand seating 12,024 persons, within the 25-acre loop space, various replicas of buildings and railroad structures will be erected, representing century-old associations, among which will be one of the Mount Claire Station, the oldest in the world.

Hall of Transportation

The Hall of Transportation will house many exhibits showing the development of rails and ties, not only from the Baltimore and Ohio's earliest used, but going back to those on the tramways of England in the 18th and 19th centuries. The development of many railroad applications, notably the air brake and the signal also will be displayed, in careful detail. There will also be shown reproductions and models of the earliest European locomotives, equipment and conveyances, even to the vehicle in use in the days of the Pharoahs. The motor vehicles, especially as it is correlated with the railroad, will have its proper place in the show.

There will be special platforms for those arriving and departing by train or automobile contiguous to a subway passing under the railroad so that no one will have to cross the tracks either going or coming from the Exposition grounds. Parking space for 3,000 automobiles will be available.

In the transportation expositions of the 1876 Centennial, the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 and the St. Louis Fair of 1903, the Baltimore and Ohio took a prominent part, but these were held indoors and all the various historical types of locomotives were not in motion. By the use of the loop track for the passage of the pageant in the open, at a season of the year when the weather is generally favorable for out-door affairs at Baltimore, an opportunity is afforded to display a mobile and articulate panorama three miles long as the many units of the pageant will move under their own power.

Uncle Jerry Conover, Dairy Specialist, University of Maryland, who visited Garrett county last week says:

"Every dairyman looks forward eagerly to the time when he can turn his cows out on pasture and thus be relieved of the necessity and expense of feeding grain. However, it is only the poor dairyman whose life is thus made easier.

The good dairyman with the good cows must keep on feeding grain, even though he has excellent pasture. A cow on good pasture will eat about 100 to 120 pounds of grass a day. This is only enough to enable a cow to make 25 pounds of 4 per cent milk a day. She must be able to get this grass in a few hours so that she can lie down or stand in the shade of a tree and contentedly chew her cud. It is only then that she starts her milk factory. If she is obliged to travel over a large territory to secure the necessary hundred pounds of grass she will not have much time for milk production.

It is well to wait, therefore, until the grass gets 5 or 6 inches tall before turning cows on pasture. This gives the grass a better start, the cows will get filled sooner, the pasture will last longer and you will get greater production.

Cows giving more than 25 pounds of 4 per cent milk should be fed grain in addition to good pasture, and it usually pays to feed some grain to cows giving 20 pounds of milk daily. On good pasture 1 pound of grain to about 5 pounds of milk will be sufficient. If the pasture is short it will be necessary to feed more heavily.

Early in the season when the grass is young a mixture of 500 pounds of corn and cob meal and 500 pounds of ground oats or wheat bran will be sufficient. Later in the season when the grass has become older it will be necesary to increase the protein content of the mixture and something as follows will be needed:

400 pounds of corn and cob meal, 400 pounds of ground oats and 200 pounds of cotton seed meal.

Late in the season the grain mixture should be the same as the regular winter ration, which in most cases contains from 20 to 22 per cent protein.

Water is an essential factor in milk production and an abundant supply should be provided both summer and winter. Automatic watering cups soon pay for themselves in increased milk production.

Be sure the cows receive a sufficient amount of salt. 1 per cent of salt is usually put in the feed, and they should be allowed free access to salt in the yard. The two other minerals needed are lime and phosphorus. These are best secured in legume hay and in grains such as wheat bran, linseed meal and cotton seed meal."

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank each and every one who has so generously given and helped us in any way in our need, caused by our home burning. A friend in time of need is a friend indeed. God loves a cheerful giver; and it is more blessed to give than to receive. May God abundantly bless each one is our prayer.

As Nine Is To One.

It has been determined that nine times more money is transferred every day by check than by cash.

For every dollar that changes hands by cash, nine dollars are exchanged by check. In other words; the advantages of spending by check over those by cash are as nine is to one. It may be inferred then that checks are nine times more convenient than cash, to say nothing of the increase safety of the check system.

If you have never experienced the benefits of paying by check, we invite you to open an account here where every banking service is at your command.
